Large Attendance at Meeting

The Woman's Auxiliary of All Saints' church held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs Ed. Cooney, Sherbrooke street. There was a large attendance and the meeting was a very successful one.

Refreshments were served at the close.

Inthon Bible Class

The Inthons met again yesterday afternoon and were entertained with a talk on "Astronomy" by Mr. Lowry, instead of the International lesson. The talk on astronomy was very interesting and held the class for half an hour As the Star of Bethlehem played an important part in the Christmas lesson. a talk on stars was just the proper thing.

Next Sunday the class will join the Sunday school to hear the memorial service to one of the former pastors of George street church.

HAPPY EVENT AT DOMINION CAFE

Boarders Tendered Supper by the Management—Presentations Were Made

The boarders at the Dominion Chinese cafe were tendered a supper by the proprietor, Mr Harry Hamilton recently. About twenty were in attendance and a most enjoyable time was spent. The table was prettily decorated and the menu, which was one of unusual excellence, contained many Chinese dishes which were greatly relished.

When supper was over, Mr Harry Hamilton was presented with a handsome gold stick pin and Mr Tom Him with a pair of cuff links.

The presentations were made by Mr. Pretty, and short speeches were made by Messrs Campbell, Bennett, Carruthers and others. The party were chaperoned by Mr and Mrs A E Carruthers.

The supper was a most enjoyable affair and testified to the excellent relations existing between the managers of the cafe and the boarders there.

DOG WILL BE TIED UP FOR THREE WEEKS

By Order of Magistrate Dumble at Police Court This Morning

The young man whose dog bit a little girl appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning. The case was heard on Saturday but His Worship enlarged it until today in order to give Dr Young, who attended the child, an opportunity to give his evidence.

The doctor said that there were scratches that looked like as if they were made by a dog's teeth. Dr Young suggested that the animal be kept tied up for three weeks. Then if it developed hydrophobia it should be done away with.

His Worship acted upon the doctor's suggestion and made an order to that effect.

"MARY QUEEN OF SCOTS" SUBJECT OF THE ESSAY

Read at the Meeting of the Ladies Literary of the T. A. S.

On Friday evening the regular fortnightly meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. was held and Miss Mary O'Heron occupied the chair. The feature of the evening's entertainment was an essay on Mary Queen of Scots read in a delightful manner by Miss Alice Moloney. The reading was marked by very choice English and purity of diction and Miss Moloney's rendering of the essay gave every evidence of a great deal of time and study having been spent on it.

In introducing her subject Miss Moloney sketched briefly the struggle between England and Scotland during the reign of Henry VIII. the desire of Henry to separate Scotland from France and unite her to England; the struggle James V. carried on to prevent this; his marriage with Mary of Lorraine and finally, his defeat by Henry at the Battle of Solway Moss. At this juncture James V. died and in 1512 his daughter, Mary Queen of Scots, was born. Scotland was overjoyed at having an heir to the throne and the baby girl was crowned Queen of Scotland at Stirling and a council was appointed to take care of the future administration of her kingdom. Henry VIII now proposed that Mary should wed his son Edward but the proposition was not met with any degree of favor by the Scots and in a fit of fury Henry sent an army across the border which left fire and destruction in its wake. Scotland once more turned to France for aid, and proposed the hand of their young Queen to the Dauphin Francis. France hailed the proposition with delight and her king at once sent an embassy to bring Mary to France.

The essayist drew a charming picture of Mary's departure and of her girlhood days in Sunny France. In due course Mary and the Dauphin were married but during these years great changes had taken place in England. Henry VIII. had died; his son Edward, after a weak rule of six years had also passed away and been succeeded by his half sister, Mary. Mary also had died, and at the time of the marriage of the Dauphin and Mary Queen of Scots Elizabeth was ruling in England and was experiencing great difficulty in keeping her throne and maintaining peace in her kingdom. A great many of her subjects considered her claim to the English throne invalid because, they claimed, she was born out of lawful wedlock. This left Mary Queen of Scots the legitimate heir to the throne and this claim was warmly supported by France and by all the Roman Catholic population of England and Scotland. She was proclaimed Queen of England and was made to adopt that title in the official acts which issued from her chancery. Thus by an irresistible power of circumstances Mary was forced into an apparent attitude of hostility towards her cousin which was forcibly resented by Elizabeth, and which gave rise to a bitter hate that wrought out a fiendish scheme. Mary Stuart was not long Dauphiness of France—she soon became its Queen, and from that moment until her tragic death her life was one continuous suffering. Every student of history is familiar with the story and every fair-minded one loves and admires the character and life history of Mary Queen of Scots. Miss Moloney dwelt at great length on this phase of the subject and in doing so explained thoroughly the religious struggles and political conspiracies of that time.

In conclusion the essayist gave a splendid description of the eighteen long years Mary Stuart was Elizabeth's prisoner—the plotting of her friends to liberate her, and, at last, her condemnation to death by Elizabeth's Parliament. "Never in the pomp of her youthful loyalty did she stand before the splendid chivalry of France, or amid the ancient nobles of her own kingdom with such stately dignity, such pride of innocence, as now in hopefulness and sudden pain she confronted the minister of her rival's hatred. But she was already condemned and Mary had to but hear the sentence passed. She listened with her usual calm, sweet dignity and assured them that after such sufferings as hers death would come as a welcome deliverer."

During the evening the following musical programme was rendered:—

Chorus—T.A.S. Glee Club.
Vocal Solo—Miss F. Carew
Instrumental Solo—Miss O. Letellier.
God Save the King.

The next meeting of the Society will take place on the evening of January 15th, when a paper will be read by Miss Nora Fitzgerald.

HUTCH'S HAMS COULDN'T HOLD NEWSPAPER TEAM

Three Straight for Examiner A's—Standing of Bowling League—Individual Averages to Date.

The Examiner B. team made another clean sweep of the series in their ten pin league game at the P.B.C. on Saturday night, taking all three games from Hutchinson's team and the winners are now well up in the race for the league leadership. The winners deserved their victory, though they had the narrowest possible escape from sustaining a reverse on the second game, which was decided by a single pin. The Hams, as a whole, showed some improvement and with a fair share of luck should do better in the future.

A double-header will be played tonight, when the Bankers meet the Lock Works and the B.A.C. and the Midgets clash.

JIDDY MILLER LEFT FOR THE TELEPHONE CITY TO-DAY

"Jiddy" Miller, Peterboroughs' erstwhile puckchaser, left to-day for Brantford, where he did such effective work last year with the pro. seven. Last winter "Jiddy" held down left wing in excellent style and this year will likely be given a chance at rover or the centre, and from his performance of last season should make good and with some to spare.

Miller will likely be much improved this winter as he is a young player and with last season's experience added to his marked ability as a player should be able to hand out a pretty finished article this season. The practices of the Telephone City outfit will commence at once. Manager Roy Brown has gathered a particularly likely looking bunch of men for the game this winter and Brantford should be heard from all through the season.

WHITCROFT'S MEN PASSED THROUGH TORONTO SUNDAY

The Edmonton hockey team passed through the city yesterday on their way to Montreal in their private car, where they will meet the Wanderers in the Stanley Cup series on the 28th and 30th of this month. Manager Fred Whitcroft informed the Globe last night just before the train pulled out that the team were in the pink of condition, and he thought he had a winning crew. The team, he said, were getting down to the eastern city a week before the game which, he thought, would prove a great advantage in many ways. Bill Crowley, formerly of the Peterborough team, who went to the west under Whitcroft's second year of administration, is in training togs this season and will have the boys in hard training this week.

President A. M. Stewart and Secretary S. Chauvin were among the Edmonton party, and the team is made up of;—

O. B. Bush, the one-armed whirlwind skater, who took the 220 yards championship away from Fred Rossor last year, is also with the team, and is booked for several points in the east, where he will meet all comers.

The team were accompanied by 25 supporters, but they expect a large following to leave Edmonton for Montreal early this week.

HOCKEY

Several Peterborough people went to the CPR station last night under the impression that "Whitcroft's Stars" from Edmonton would pass through on the midnight express. They were not on the train however, having taken the Grand Trunk for the trip from Toronto to Montreal.

Mr. R. M. Waddell Will Represent Peterboro' on the Ontario Curlers' Visit

Secretary J A Macfadden of the Ontario Curling Association announced the following ten curlers as chosen from this jurisdiction for the Canadian curling team for Scotland;

Col. Robert Mackenzie, Sarnia; J. H Neelands, Barrie; Alex Logan, Parry Sound; T J Hamilton, Fergus; R M Waddell, Peterborough; D W. Lennox, Churchill; R L Patterson, Toronto; Randolph Macdonald, Toronto; Simpson Rennie, Toronto; R. S Strath, Toronto.

It is probable that Mr A F MacLaren, of Stratford, will also go on the tour in which case, being a Past President, he will represent the Ontario Curling Association.

The team will meet tomorrow at 6 o'clock at the National Club in Toronto and at 6.30 will take dinner with President Reid Carlyle and the O.C.A. executive. The whole party, which includes also curlers from the northwest and the eastern jurisdictions of Canada, will sail from Halifax on January 9th.

TURF

Maud Keswick is to start at the winter meet of Dufferin Park. The Toronto Star says:

There is an immense amount of interest in Maud Keswick locally because of the fact that when she made her mark she was owned by ex-Ald. O B Sheppard, one of the most enthusiastic of local horsemen. Maud Keswick is by Keswick, 2.18 1-4, out of Dolly Tariff, by Tariff, and was foaled in 1898 at the farm of Chas. Fyfe of Lang, Ont. As a two year old she was sold to Bertie Morrow of Peterborough and before getting into possession of O B Sheppard, passed through the hands of Robert Gibbs, A Tarker and George Fitzgerald.

Mr Sheppard secured her in 1904 and the year following was the best one of her career she being very successful on the Grand Circuit never being outside the money and winning at Detroit, Buffalo, Syracuse, Columbus and Lexington. It was only last year that Mr Sheppard sold her to the Leamington horseman, Art Brown, who in turn disposed of her to Elihu Wigle of Windsor, her present owner. This is the first winter she has ever raced upon the ice.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR

POWERS AND PRIVILEGES OF THE CAPITAL'S CIVIC CHIEF.

In the City He Takes Precedence of Everybody Save the Ruling Sovereign—Only Officer In the Kingdom Whose Commission Holds Good on Death of Sovereign—His Powers With the King.

Although from time to time the powers of the Lord Mayor over the City have been much curtailed, they are still a good deal more extensive than is generally supposed.

In the City itself the Lord Mayor takes precedence of everybody save, of course, the ruling sovereign, and even he may not cross the civic boundaries without ceremony. Once only has a member of the royal family been bold enough to dispute his right. That was during the mayoralty of Sir James Shaw, when the Prince of Wales, afterwards George IV., claimed precedence of the Lord Mayor in St. Paul's Cathedral. Sir James declined to give way, and the King, to whom the matter was referred, had no choice but to approve and confirm his action.

The Lord Mayor enjoys one privilege which is absolutely unique. He is the only officer in the kingdom whose commission still holds good on the death of the sovereign. And when that untoward events occurs, it is his to sit among the Privy Councillors and to sign the proclamation announcing the successor to the throne. At the coronation banquet he acts as chief butler, and receives for his fee a golden cup. Further, he expects to be informed by special messenger of every birth and death in the royal family, and to receive, under the King's sign manual, the password of the Tower as often as it is changed. Without his permission soldiers cannot march through the City, nor can peace or war be proclaimed in the City until he chooses to admit the heralds who bring the news.

As the City representative the Lord Mayor is in almost daily communication with the Government and he enjoys the right of private audience with the King at any time, should public affairs demand it. When an audience is wished for, it is usual, however, to make the request through the Remembrancer or by letter to the Lord Chamberlain. Also in attending levees or drawing-rooms he has the privilege of the entree, and is allowed to drive direct into the Ambassadors' Court at St. James's.

Among the rights and privileges enjoyed by the Lord Mayor some are closely connected with those of the Constitution itself. Thus he has the badges of royalty attached to his office—the sceptre, the swords of justice and mercy, and the mace. The sceptre is delivered into his hands together with the City purse, which the Lord Mayor also controls, by the Chamberlain on the day he is sworn into office. The mace is of silver-gilt; it is five feet three inches long, and is surmounted with a royal crown and the imperial arms, the handle and staff being richly chased.

There are four swords belonging to the City. The "Pearl" sword, presented by Queen Elizabeth when she opened the first Royal Exchange, and so named from the pearls with which it is richly set, is carried before the Lord Mayor on all occasions of festivity and rejoicing. The "Sword of State" is borne before him as an emblem of his authority. The "Black" sword is used on fast days, in Lent, and on the death of any member of the royal family. The fourth sword is that placed before the Lord Mayor's seat at the Central Criminal Court.

As President of the Courts of Aldermen and Common Council, as well as of the Court of Livery in Common Hall assembled, the Lord Mayor has practically unlimited control over the proceedings of these bodies. None of these courts may meet unless convened by him, and he can at any time dissolve the court by simply removing the sword and mace from the table and declaring the business at an end.

Finally, as chief magistrate of the City, the Lord Mayor presides over a court which is one of the most ancient in the kingdom. His judicial authority, however, is more nominal than real, for to all intents and purposes the City Recorder is the court's sole judge to-day. This functionary is the corporation's highest and best-paid official, drawing a salary which, with fees, amounts to some $20,000 per annum.

Next in importance to the recorder comes the City Chamberlain, who is a sort of glorified treasurer. Among many other duties he exercises authority over the City apprentices, and holds a court for hearing and determining disputes between them and their masters, and also complaints on the part of the masters themselves. Considering his many duties, he thoroughly earns the $15,000 a year which he is paid.

The City Marshal draws $1,500 a year for his services. He cuts a brave figure on horseback at the annual show, and for the rest he carries messages and makes himself generally useful to the Lord Mayor.

None of the above-mentioned officers are personally appointed by the Lord Mayor; nevertheless, there are certain appointments in the mayoral household which fall directly within his gift. The first of these appointments is that of a chaplain. The Lord Mayor's chaplain, besides receiving a full set of canonicals, has certain rooms and a servant at his command in the Mansion House.

The next appointment the Lord Mayor has at his disposal is the Clerk of the Cocket Office. Finally, the Lord Mayor has a voice in naming the successor to any harbor-master belonging to the Port of London who may happen to die during the Lord Mayor's year of office.

A DUSKY CYNIC.

He Gayly Admitted That the Joke Was on Himself.

A lady was walking along Fifth avenue a couple of weeks ago when a big negro stepped up to her politely and asked her to give him a quarter.

"I am a shipwrecked sailor," he told her. "Three days ago the ship I was on went ashore outside Sandy Hook. Ever since then I've been wandering around without being able to get a job."

The lady gave him a quarter and passed on. A week later while going by the same spot on Fifth avenue she was approached once more by the same negro.

"I am a shipwrecked sailor," he began. "Three days ago"—

She let him finish. Then she remarked:

"Two weeks ago when I gave you a quarter you told me that same story. Then you said that you had been wrecked three days before. Now you say the same thing."

And she looked at the negro severely.

He threw back his head and burst forth into roars of laughter.

"Did—did I give you dat story last week?" he chuckled. "Did you give me a quarter? Well, if dat ain't a joke on me!"

And she left him standing on the sidewalk convulsed with laughter.—New York Times.

CARDS IN CHURCH.

They Were Not Uncommon In the Old Days In England.

Frequent cases of card playing occurred in churches in olden days in the high or curtained family pews that were to be found in several parts of England.

A case of card playing was mentioned by the poet Crabbe as having occurred in one of those pews in Trowbridge parish church. Mr. Beresford Hope stated that card playing was not uncommon in churches having curtained pews, where those occupying them were screened from the observation of the rest of the congregation, and that one of the Georges is credited with taking part at a game of whist in the church he attended.

The church at Little Stanmore, in Middlesex, has a luxurious room pew which is approached by a special door and staircase.

The old St. Paul's cathedral before the great fire of London was used by business men as a sort of exchange. The portico was let out to hucksters, and in those days gambling and cards are both said to have been indulged in without let or hindrance within the cathedral.—London Standard.

Outwitting a Bushranger.

In Mr. George E. Bozall's "Story of the Australian Bushrangers" the following little episode is related: A man named Michael, who went to an inn for food, found the place in the hands of the bushrangers. Fourteen guests were already disarmed and were being searched in order. Michael was compelled to take his place in line. The bushrangers handed him a pannikin of tea before they took his money. Knowing what was coming, he held the pannikin as if the tea were too hot to drink, and when the leader of the highwaymen was looking away dropped his roll of bank notes into it. He stood quite quiet, and when the bushrangers came to feel his pockets there were only a few shillings in them. The robbers appeared satisfied and allowed him to go. He carried his pannikin out with him, took his money and put it in his pocket without being observed. Then he mounted his horse, rode to the nearest police station and gave information.

Her Indorsement.

"Madam," said the teller of a bank in Baltimore to a woman who had handed him a check to cash—"madam, you have forgotten to indorse."

A worried smile came to the woman's face, but she took back the paper and wrote something on the back thereof.

When again the teller looked at the check he found that the woman had indorsed as follows:

"The —— bank has always paid me whatever it owed, and you need have no worry. Therefore I indorse this check. Very truly yours, Anna M. Blank."—Harper's.

Radishes.

Radishes originated in China, where they have been cultivated for many centuries and sometimes grow as big as a man's head. In Germany the old fashioned country mothers cure hoarseness and cough with radish juice mixed with sugar candy. The radishes of today have no flavor, no character. Formerly their sharp, biting taste made them palatable.

An Outrage.

"What makes you so late?" asked the boy's parent.

"The teacher kept me in because I couldn't find Moscow on the map of Europe," replied Johnny.

"And no wonder you couldn't find Moscow! It was burned down years ago. It's an outrage to treat a child in that way!"

His Thirst.

"My poor man, how did you acquire such a thirst?"

"It was dis a-way, mister: When de doctor operated on me for appendercitis he forgot an' left a sponge inside o' me."

OUR · BOYS & GIRLS

STEPHEN of CLOYES

What Became of His Army of Boys and Girls

By Robert H. Fuller

YOU can imagine the astonishment of the people of the city of Marseilles when they saw the army of children from all the land of France marching toward their walls. They came in troops and bands, waving their banners with the bright red oriflamme and singing their songs of how they intended to make a conquest of the Holy Land and convert the infidels by means of their persuasions. Down from the hills they came, some in silks and velvets and others in rags, some rosy and well fed and others white and thin from hunger. Down they came in crowds, filling the roads and scattering far and wide over the fields, until it seemed to the citizens of Marseilles who stood watching them from the walls of the town that there was no end of them. And in advance of them all rode Stephen of Cloyes, or Stephen the Prophet, as he was now called, sitting on his chariot under a silken canopy and surrounded by his guard of honor composed of youths who bore some of the proudest names of France.

There had been doubts in the minds of many of the followers of the twelve-year-old leader of the army, but when they actually saw the blue expanse of the sea before them, just as Stephen had said they would see it, somehow it seemed to them that it proved him to be a true prophet, and all their confidence in him revived. They fancied in their ignorance that the hardest part of their crusade was ended with their arrival at the city and that only a day or two would be required to complete the glorious task of redeeming Palestine and setting free the Christians captives there. So when Stephen halted his chariot under the walls of the city before the principal gate the twenty thousand children who had managed to complete the first stage of their journey gazed at him with much respect, regarding him who a few months before had been only a poor and unknown shepherd boy as a superior being.

"What in the world shall we do with all these children?" the chief men of Marseilles asked each other as they looked down upon the throngs. "If we admit them to the city they will certainly remain here, and as we shall have to feed them there will soon be nothing left for us."

They deliberated among themselves and decided that it would never do to let the children come inside the walls. So they went solemnly out of the great gate to inform Stephen of their decision. It was a great disappointment to the young leader.

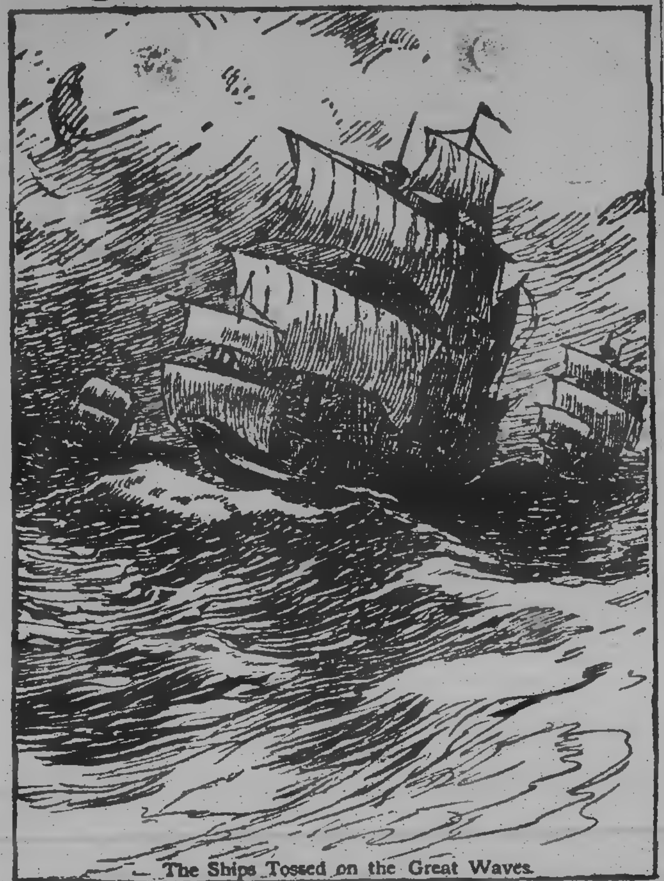
"We ask to be admitted," he said to the chiefs of the city, "and in return we promise that we shall remain with you for this night only."

"Where will you go to-morrow?" the chief men asked.

"We go that way," Stephen replied, waving his hand toward the sea.

"But you have no ships," the chief men said.

"We shall not need them," Stephen replied with a smile. "The waves that you fear so much have no terrors for us. They will open and roll back before us, as they opened before the Children of Israel in olden times, and we shall walk through them without wetting our feet until we reach the land where our journey ends."



The Ships Tossed on the Great Waves.

All the men of Marseilles were seamen and none of them really believed that the sea would roll back as Stephen had said, but as he promised to remain in the city for that one night only they consulted again and finally decided that it would be best to let the children come in. To tell the truth, their wives urged them strongly to do this, for they were sorry for the boys and girls who had come so far from their homes, and they could not help thinking how cruel it would be if their own children should wander into a strange country and fail to find food and shelter there.

So the gates were opened and the children trooped into the city, marching along the streets in rank after rank, holding their banners proudly aloft and singing their songs as loudly as they could. Never had such a sight been seen before. All the houses were filled to overflowing with children, and still there was not room for them all. Many slept in the streets as best they could, but at least there was food for every one, and some of them had enough to eat that night for the first time since they left their homes. They told the good people of Marseilles wonderful stories of their march and they were happy when they closed their eyes in the thought that in the morning they were to walk dry footed through the sea.

They were astir again, you may be sure, as soon as the sun rose, flocking to the wharves to see the waves roll back, as Stephen had promised. But, strange to say, the sea gave no sign of opening to let them through. It looked exactly as it had looked the night before, and no passage was possible to the other side. The children did not know what to think until Stephen explained to them that there must have been a mistake in the day.

"We must wait until to-morrow," he said. "The sea will surely divide then and we can continue on our way."

Permission was given to them to remain for another day in the city, but the next morning brought only another disappointment. Still Stephen asked for delay, insisting that sooner or later the sea would surely open. So the army lingered from day to day until the patience of the citizens was worn out. They quickly made the children understand that they were no longer welcome. To be sure, a few of the crusaders, who preferred to remain where they were rather than to return home, were adopted and thus found new homes in the city. Others set out to retrace their steps to their own fathers and mothers, giving up hope that they would ever reach the Holy Land. The parents of still others came to take them away.

From these causes the army lost much of its strength in numbers, but still five thousand of them clung to the promise given by Stephen and refused to abandon the crusade. They insisted something would certainly happen that would permit them to press on to the victory that they expected to win.

In this they were not disappointed, for after a delay of several days it became known throughout the city that two of the leading merchants of Marseilles, Hugo Ferreus and William Porcus, had offered to provide seven ships in which the army of children might sail over the sea to the Holy Land, since the sea refused to divide to let them pass. Great was the rejoicing when the generosity of the two merchants was told. Those who had been saying harsh things about Stephen now declared that he had been right all the time.

"What difference does it make," they asked, "whether the sea opens or whether we pass across it in ships, since in either case the way is opened to us?"

It was found that the seven ships would be large enough to carry the five thousand children, who were all that were left of the thirty thousand who had set out. It was a beautiful morning when they embarked. The people thronged the walls and waved farewells to them as the sailors spread the white sails and the ships began to move out of the harbor. The children replied by waving their oriflamme banners and singing once more their songs of triumph. The wind blew and away went the ships. At any rate, this was a great deal better than walking on the bottom of the sea, which would surely have been wet and slippery, no matter how widely the waves might have opened.

And now comes the sad part of the story of the crusade of the French children. It would be much pleasanter to say that they sailed in safety to the Holy Land, converted the infidels and returned proudly to their homes to prove to their fathers and mothers that they had been wrong in trying to make them stay at home. But what really happened was very different from what the children had hoped, and we must tell the story as it actually took place and not as we wish it might have been.

Not long after they sailed from Marseilles a storm began to blow. The ships tossed on the great waves and the young crusaders, shut up in the dark below decks, expected every moment that they would sink. The wind blew harder and harder and the seven ships became separated. Two of them at last were driven upon the rocky shore of an island in the sea. The waves dashed them against it with such force that they were broken to pieces and all the children on board them as well as the sailors who were with them were drowned. This sad shipwreck took place on the Island of Falcons, and when, long afterward, it became known the Christians built a church there in memory of the lost children and called it the Church of the New Innocents.

It was a sad fate that befell the children in the two ships that were cast away, but sadder still was the fate that awaited the children who escaped shipwreck and continued their voyage in the five ships that remained. They had no more storms and for many days they sailed on in the direction of the Holy Land. At least they thought that they were sailing toward the Holy Land, but as a matter of fact the wicked sailors turned aside to the south and took them to the northern coast of Africa, which then, as it is to-day, was in the hands of the Mohammedans. One day the hearts of the children were gladdened by the sight of land and houses and trees. The sailors told them that the land was Palestine, and they hastened to make ready for the victory over the infidels which they felt so certain of winning. Two of the ships were made fast to the wharves in the harbor and the children were permitted to step on shore. But hardly had they landed when hundreds of Mohammedans surrounded them and drove them to the marketplace, where they were sold as slaves!

It turned out that the two merchants of Marseilles, whom they had thanked so warmly for providing them with the ships, were black hearted and evil men. They had intended from the first to deliver the helpless children into the hands of the heathen when once they had them safely in their power. Unfortunately, their treachery was not known for years and so they were not punished for it, but they became so bold after a time that they were discovered in another act of treachery and both of them were hanged. It is some satisfaction to know that, even if it did not save the children.

The crusaders who were in the three ships which did not land at the first stopping place were carried further, some to Egypt and some far beyond the Holy Land which they had come to redeem. All of them were sold into slavery and of the five thousand children who sailed not one ever returned to France. In fact, for many years the friends and relatives whom they had left behind heard not a word from them. Long they waited for tidings which did not come. Of course news spread much more slowly in those days, when few people travelled at all and the post office and the telegraph had not been invented. At last a pilgrim came from the country of the infidels and brought the sad truth to the fathers and mothers, brothers and sisters who had been left behind.

And this was the result of the prophecies of Stephen the Prophet. What became of Stephen himself is not definitely known, but it is likely that he was sold to an infidel owner and had leisure during long years of toil for his master to regret his flock and his peaceful home in the village of Cloyes. He had been the means of leading five thousand companions who trusted him to captivity or death; and even this was not all the harm that he did, for his preaching spread to Germany and started a crusade among the German children, whose adventures were in some respects more wonderful than those of the French children. But these must be told in another story to be published later in the Children's Page.

To find the apteryx which is hidden in the patchwork picture puzzle proceed along the same lines as in putting together a mosaic puzzle or a jig saw puzzle, for all these puzzles are of exactly the same kind. The verse at the side of the puzzle tells the story which the picture that is to be made from the eighteen pieces illustrates. First cut out the entire mosaic and paste it on heavy wrapping paper before cutting out the separate pieces. This is merely to make it easier to handle the pieces and it will also make the puzzle last longer. After you have thus reinforced the mosaic cut out the separate pieces. The solid black parts are to be cut away. The parts which make up the puzzle are inside the fine black line. This line should be cut away so that when completed the picture will not be intersected by lines, but be very careful not to cut away too much space with the line or the pieces will not fit neatly.

Alphabet Animal Puzzles.

In the children's page to-day there is a mosaic picture puzzle in which the apteryx is hidden. This is the first of a series of patchwork or mosaic picture puzzles which will appear in the children's page in which alphabet animals will be safely hidden from prying eyes.

The Boy Soliloquizes.

On Friday night I'm always glad
There'll be no school next day;
It's [illegible] of fun to think what fun
We'll have when we can play

All day without a lesson or
A single tiresome rule,
Or anything to make us think
Of teacher or of school.

But, after all, on Sunday night
I'm glad that next day's Monday;
I've had enough of freedom with Just Saturday and Sunday.

I want to see the whole big school
And all the girls and boys,
And get out on the playground, where
There's really noisy noise.

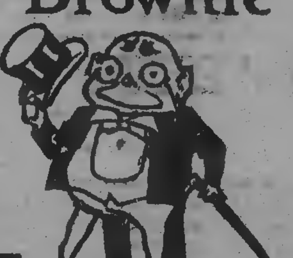
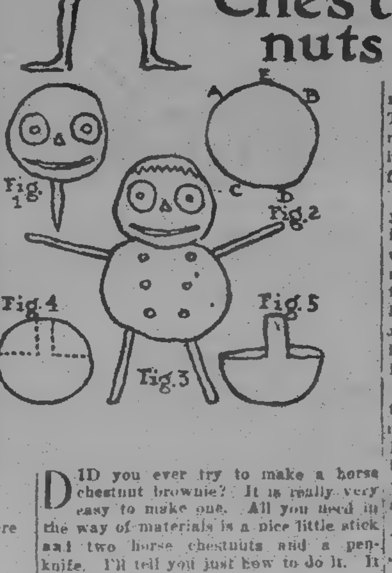
How To Make Brownie Dolls From Horse Chestnuts





DID you ever try to make a horse chestnut brownie? It is really very easy to make one. All you need in the way of materials is a nice little stick and two horse chestnuts and a penknife. I'll tell you just how to do it. It is this way:—

First, you pick out a nice round chestnut for the brownie's head, and with your penknife cut the shell of the horse chestnut out in the shape of eyes, nose and mouth, leaving the white nut showing. Then you make a tiny hole where the neck of the brownie joins the head and into this you insert a small end of a carefully whittled stick. See Fig. 1.

Third, you make five little holes in your other horse chestnut, as indicated in Fig. 2. Into these you insert four whittled sticks of the same length to make the arms and legs. Then into the fifth hole you insert the little stick which has on it the brownie's head, and when all this is done you have the nicest kind of a brownie to play with (see Fig. 3).

You can make a basket for the brownie to carry, too. Take another horse chestnut and cut out two equal portions, as in Fig. 4. Take out the nut part of the horse chestnut with your knife and you will have a dear little brown basket, with a handle for the brownie to play with.

TWO OF THE BY-LAWS ARE NOT APPROVED BY BOARD OF TRADE

Opinion of Meeting That $49,000 is Too Much to Spend on Smith St. Bridge—$30,000 too Much For Driving Park.

The following resolutions were passed at the special meeting of the Board of Trade last night:

Moved by Mr D Hughes-Charles,
Seconded by Mr W H Denham,

"That this meeting approves of the by-law for street extensions.

"That it approves of the by-law for the building of a bridge at Smith street, but that the proposed bridge is too expensive.

"That it would approve of a by-law to purchase a park to be used for exhibition purposes in the south end of the city but the proposed grounds are too expensive for such a purpose.

"And that a copy of this resolution be sent to the city council."

Moved by Mr W H Moore,
Seconded by Mr Robt. Fair,

"That in the opinion of this meeting better advertisement and the fullest information the subject is capable of should be given in all cases of money by-laws submitted to the ratepayers for approval. The meeting feels this has been neglected in the past."

A special meeting of the Board of Trade was held last night to consider the money by-laws which will be voted on at the municipal elections in January. As is generally known one is for $49,000 to build a new bridge at Smith street, one for $21,500 for street extensions and the filling in of the water-front and one for $30,000 to purchase the Driving Park to be used for exhibition and park purposes. The consensus of opinion of the meeting at which over fifty were in attendance was that a new bridge was needed at Smith street, but that $49,000 was too much for it; that exhibition grounds should be purchased but that $30,000 was too much for the property it was proposed to buy for exhibition and park purposes; that the by-law for street extensions should be passed as it would be cheaper to make extensions now than later as property was advancing in price.

Dr. Morrison, the president of the Board of Trade, outlined the purpose of the meeting which was to discuss the money by-laws to be voted on at the coming municipal elections. He called upon Mr W H Moore, KC, to open the discussion.

MR. MOORE

Mr W. H. Moore, KC, chairman of the Trent Commission, said it was well to have a full and fair discussion and criticism of measures coming before the people. The Board of Trade was to be congratulated on inaugurating the good work of calling meetings to have such measures discussed. It had often struck the speaker that matters such as the money by-laws were not properly advertised. The advertisements published in connection with the by-laws were couched in the barest legal terms and the average citizen had only a meagre idea of what they were about. More publicity should be given such matters. The expense incurred in doing this would not be large. Many a good by-law was smothered because it was not properly advertised and many a bad by-law was carried because the people were not fully informed about it.

With respect to the Smith street bridge by-law Mr Moore said that he had no doubt but that a new bridge was needed at the point in question. A new bridge was necessary as the old one was dilapidated and the point where it would be built was one of the most important entrances into the city.

As to the by-law for money to cover street extensions and the filling in of the water front, Mr Moore said that some of the money required had already been spent and some more

HORRIBLE DEATH OF A LITTLE BOY

Arthur Hodder, Eight Years Old, Ran Into Horse While Sleigh-Riding and Was Kicked in Face—Terrible Accident Near City.

As a result of injuries received from a kick from a horse yesterday afternoon, Arthur Hodder, the eight year old son of Mr. Arthur Hodder, who resides on the farm of Mr. A. E. Mosley on the Chemong road, near the city, passed away at Nicholls hospital last evening at seven o'clock.

The boy was sleigh-riding down a hill in the yard on the farm when the accident occurred. A young horse, which only a couple of days before had been newly shod, was standing along the road. The sled got off its course and owing to the swiftness with which it was travelling the young lad was unable to stop it and ran into the horse. The animal being frightened, kicked, striking the boy in the face with terrible results.

The injuries were of a horrible nature. By his agonizing cries the little fellow attracted attention and he was carried by his father, bleeding, to the house. A doctor was summoned as quickly as possible and on his arrival temporarily dressed the wounds. The boy was afterwards removed to the hospital where two doctors attended him. His nose and the bones of the face were broken, his right eye was knocked out and there was a gash four inches in length, which almost severed the upper lip from the face. The doctor in attendance attributes the cause of death to a fracture of the base of the skull. The sufferings of the young boy were excruciating.

The family have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their sad bereavement.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2.00 o'clock, from the family residence, on the Mud Lake road, to the Little Lake cemetery.

JOE MARTIN IS GOING TO ENGLAND

Former B.C. Premier May Enter Political Field in Old Country.

Vancouver, Dec. 22.—Joseph Martin, K.C., leaves Vancouver for London, England, about Feb. 1.

Mr. Martin has closed out some of his large real estate interests here. He is giving up his law practice, which is easily the second largest, if not the largest, in British Columbia. Mr. Martin will argue Canadian cases before the Privy Council, but is not yet decided whether he will seek admission to the English Bar.

It is certain that he will take a hand in old country politics in the radical and free trade interest, and may soon be heard of contesting a seat for the British House of Commons.

DRUNKEN MAN PUT BOY IN THE OVEN

St. John, N.B., Dec. 22.—John Perry, formerly living in Moncton, but now of Charlottetown, tried to roast his five-year-old son in a hot oven Sunday night. The boy was too big, and although the father jammed him into the oven, he was unable to shut the doors. Then he pulled him out and threw him against the wall.

With his head covered with blood the little fellow made his way to a neighbor's house and told his story. Perry, who was crazed with drink, was arrested yesterday.

WRONGFUL CLAIMS APPEAR IN COMMANDER SPAIN'S LIST

Auditor-General Changes Discrepancies in Account—Progress of the Marine Inquiry.

Ottawa, Dec. 22.—The probing of the Marine Department affairs to-day revealed a few more dark places that will require the light of further evidence to disclose whether or not there has been actual wrong-doing. Commander Spain, whose accounts for traveling expenses were gone into during the sittings of the commission here last June, was again asked to explain some further discrepancies in his accounts, as challenged by the Auditor-General last year. The wreck commissioner had been asked to refund about $900 by the Auditor-General, and his explanation as made before Judge Cassels last June was that this refund was made at the end of the year, when his yearly account was made up, and he found that he had this sum of money unexpended from the total amount advanced to him. Auditor-General Fraser testified that the charges for traveling expenses made last year by Commander Spain were manifestly incorrect, since on the dates for which traveling expenses to Fort William and other points were charged the departmental records showed he was holding court as wreck commissioner in Montreal. The accounts as presented by Commander Spain were initialled as correct by Deputy Minister Gourdeau. The Auditor-General said he had refused to pass the commander's accounts, and, failing further explanation, must continue to withhold payment.

Commander Spain, in giving his version of the matter, said that there must have been a mistake in the dates, and that there had in reality been no overcharge made for his traveling expenses. He had, he said, gone to Fort William last year, and only one entry appeared for expenses on that trip during the year. The date must have been wrongly entered. He will be examined again to-day, after being given an opportunity to look over his accounts and produce the Departmental record as to his out-of-town trips. This record, however, appears to be incomplete and incorrect in several instances.

The charge that exorbitant prices were charged the Government by the Canadian Fog Signal Co. of Toronto for diaphones supplied at a cost of $4,600 each was further gone into, and officials of the company gave evidence to the effect that in view of all the circumstances the price charged was quite justifiable, that the Government got extra good value for the expenditure, that the contract had been obtained in open competition after a careful report by the Department's engineers, and that a net profit of 20 per cent. was not too much to demand on a patented article for which the sale was limited.

Examination of the records of the People's Bank in Quebec during May and June, 1905, and some further evidence of Mr. Van Felsen's gave little help in solving the mystery as to the truth of the charges made by the latter regarding an alleged payment of $3,000 as a rake-off to Mr. J. B. A. Beaudreau of the Marine Department, in connection with the settlement of Holliday Bros'. account.

The rest of the sitting was devoted to an enquiry into the conduct of Departmental business at the Prescott agency, and the evidence adduced was all of a negative character in respect to any revelation of graft by the officials or employes there.

NEW VENEZUELAN CABINET NEW GOVERNMENT IN CHARGE

Port of Spain, Dec. 22.—Vice-President J. Vicente Gomez, to whom Gen. Cipriano Castro handed over the Presidency on his departure for Europe, has established a new Government in Venezuela.

He has replaced the old Ministry, the leader of which was Dr. Jose de Jesus Paul, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, who has been the one figure, outside of Castro himself, in the negotiations that culminated in the ousting of Minister De Reus and the severance of diplomatic relations with Holland, with a new body of men who represent various factions in the state and who have figured prominently in various ways in the political history of the country.

The new Cabinet is composed as follows: Minister of Interior, Linares Alcantara; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Gonzales Guinaud; Minister of Finance, Munoz Tebar; Minister of War, Gen. Regulo Olivares; Minister of Fomena (patronage), Rafael Carabano Obras; Minister of Public Works, Roberto Vargets; Minister of Public Instruction, Dr. Maldonado.

Secret advices received here from Caracas, where the strictest censorship is being observed.

OBJECTIONS DISMISSED

Justice Britton Gives Judgment in Preliminary Objections of Mr. Stratton

In the West Peterborough protest proceedings, objections were taken by the respondent, Mr J. R Stratton, MP, to the manner of service of the petition. The objections came on for hearing before Judge Britton and judgment was reserved. Judgment has now been given and this afternoon Mr W H. Moore, KC, solicitor for the petitioner, Mr Burnham, received the following telegram:

"Preliminary objections dismissed,
JAS. ED. JONES."

FELL ON THE ICY SIDEWALK

Mr. T. B. McGrath Sustained Painful Injuries—Right Arm Broken

Mrs T. B. McGrath, 382 Aylmer St. sustained severe injuries yesterday afternoon by falling on the slippery sidewalk as she was turning on Simcoe street off Aylmer street. Her right wrist was badly sprained and just above the wrist the arm was broken. A doctor was called and set the fracture and Mrs McGrath is resting comfortably today.

NOTHING HAS BEEN DECIDED

Hon. Geo. P. Graham Discusses Future of the Intercolonial.

Ottawa, Dec. 22.—With reference to the published report that the Government was now considering the proposal to lease the Intercolonial Railway either to a private syndicate for a term of years or else to one of the railway companies now operating in the Maritime Provinces, Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, stated yesterday that while he had been considering for the past year various suggestions looking to a betterment in the management of the road and the overcoming of the present annual deficits, no definite scheme had yet been evolved for consideration by the Government.

"The road is now being well managed," said Mr. Graham, "by our present staff of officials. Various proposals have been made in many quarters from time to time involving either the leasing of the Intercolonial to a private company or turning it over to a commission to operate. I am open to conviction as to any improvement that might be suggested, but as yet I am not prepared to recommend to the Government the adoption of any definite new line of policy. I have, of course, noted the various suggestions now being made in the press, but so far the solution of the question is confined more to the newspapers than to any Governmental action."

PROTECTION NEEDLESS SAYS CARNEGIE IN HIS EVIDENCE

On Steel Situation—Says That Europe Cannot Now Compete With America in Matter of Steel Production.

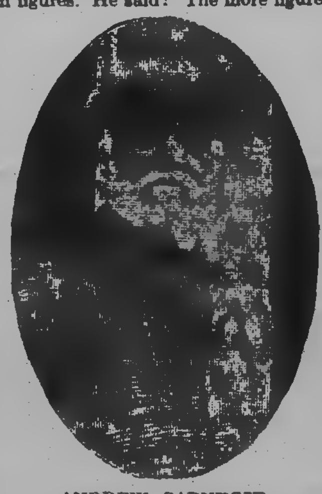
Washington, D.C., Dec. 22.—That the steel industry of the United States has reached a point where it does not need protection but can stand alone in competition with the world was the feature of the testimony of Andrew Carnegie yesterday before the committee on ways and means of the House of Representatives.

He expressed the opinion that wages would not be reduced if the tariff was lowered or removed entirely. He was utterly opposed to an income tax, believing, as he said, with Mr. Gladstone, that such a tax produced a nation of liars.

Mr. Carnegie interspersed his testimony with humorous remarks. He suggested that Congress should extend a vote of thanks to Mr. Schwab for his work in improving the methods of steel making.

"I never met his equal," said Mr. Carnegie, "and when we were partners we were a great team."

Mr. Carnegie was not willing to deal in figures. He said: "The more figures you get the more you will be befoggled. I do not judge by figures given by interested parties." He said at another point in his testimony: "I judge by results."



ANDREW CARNEGIE.

The former steel magnate said that Judge Gary had issued an annual statement showing that the United States Steel Corporation had made a profit of $158,000,000, which, he said, equalled a profit of $15.50 a ton on all steel products.

Mr. Carnegie avoided direct replies to questions as to whether the cost of producing steel at the present time, as given by Judge Gary and Mr. Schwab, was correct.

"Mr. Schwab's estimate of the present cost is based on entirely different ideas than his estimate on the cost in 1899," was all that Mr. Carnegie would say.

Replying to a question, Mr. Carnegie declared that the removal of the duty on steel would not necessarily affect the price, because Europe could not successfully compete with the American product. He said also, that if the figures given by former witnesses were absolutely correct, steel stock would be selling far below par.

Mr. Carnegie spoke of the difficulties he experienced with directors ignorant of the steel business. "I gradually bought them out and got men like Schwab around me, and we made the cheapest steel that has ever been made."

"You have been out of steel some time," said Mr. Payne, "can you tell us where we can get the figures on the present cost of making steel?"

"I don't know whether you can get the figures," was his reply. "If a judge was interested in a cause, you would not respect his decision would you?" he asked, referring to the steel manufacturers who have appeared before the committee.

Mr. Carnegie asserted that at the rate at which iron ores are being extracted the supply would be exhausted in forty years. He based his statement on the best expert opinion he could obtain, he said. He also said that England would be in the same condition in seven years.

Mr. Carnegie insisted in reply to questions that the railways were not paying too much for steel rails. The steel railmakers, he thought, were making a fair profit.

AN APPEAL TO CITIZENS

Peterborough citizens are asked to contribute towards providing Christmas cheer for the poor families of Peterborough. Gifts for the children are especially acceptable and it is hoped that there will be a generous response to this appeal. Gifts of candies, oranges, nuts, apples, children's clothing, in fact anything that will please the little folks at Christmas, are asked for.

The distribution of Christmas cheer will be under the direction of the Children's Aid Society, under the personal supervision of Mr. George Cochrane.

Gifts for the children can be left at the Review Office. Send them in as early as possible. They should all be in by Thursday noon as the distribution will be made Thursday afternoon.

Christmas Cantata

An Xmas cantata entitled "Santa's Surprise Party" will be given by the children of the Mark street Methodist Sunday school on Wednesday evening, December 23rd, in the church school room. A gift tree will be a feature of the entertainment. Admission by silver collection at the door.

LOOKS BAD FOR HAINS

Attorneys Weave a Net About Brother of Murderer—Evidence of Mrs. Annis.

Flushing, L.I., Dec. 22.—The trial of Thornton J. Hains reached a climax of dramatic intensity yesterday when Mrs. Helen E. Annis, widow of William E. Annis, in a deliberate recital, lasting for nearly three hours, pictured the killing of her husband, as he sat at the tiller of his boat, by Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr.

Mrs. Annis nearly fainted a few minutes before her examination was concluded. She swayed in her chair, but quickly recovered after drinking a glass of water and smelling a vial of salts.

It was a hard day for the defence and counsel for Hains was exhausted from the arduous cross-examination, which was directed relentlessly toward the state's witnesses in an effort to shake their testimony.

Several new points of evidence added dramatic interest to the trial, and the lawyers for the state declared last night, make for certain conviction of the defendant.

When Annis' boat came alongside the float, the widow testified Thornton Hains beckoned to his brother and led the way down the runway. The shooting followed within a few moments.

Lawyer McIntyre sought to discredit the "beckoning episode," which the state asserts proves that the author induced the army captain to the crime.

"I ran down the runway and Thornton Hains pointed his revolver at me. I turned to go back and he pressed the weapon against my back, saying, 'You get out of here or you will get the same.' I ran up the runway, and, looking back, saw my husband fall into the water."

So said Mrs. Annis in relating her story, and this new evidence, the lawyers for Hains struggled to discredit.

Local option was not repealed in Argyle, Man., as reported.

Dennis Laundry, of Montreal, a young candymaker, was asphyxiated in his room.

Sikhs For Southern States.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 22.—Ten thousand Sikhs from Northern India are to be located on the plantations of the Southern States, especially Louisiana, where labor conditions are said to be very favorable.

This is the ambitious projects Teja Singh, the leader of the local East Indian colony, plans to carry out during the coming year. Teja Singh declares that the letter and spirit of the contract labor law prohibiting the importation of aliens under contract into the United States will not be violated.

May Be Fatal Fall.

Guelph, Dec. 22.—Not wishing to disturb the boarders at the Grand Central Hotel, Harry Lonsdale attempted to gain his room by climbing an open stairway to the flat roof of a stable adjoining and jumping across to the roof of Knechtel's store. He fell to the pavement, 25 feet below, and was so badly injured that he may not recover. He had just returned from visiting his sweetheart in Brampton.

Died Saying Prayers.

Belleville, Dec. 22.—James Roach, 87 years of age, whose home was in Tyondinaga, died in this city on Sunday, while saying his prayers. Heart failure was the cause.

Bishop McQuaid Dying.

Rochester, N.Y., Dec. 22.—Right Rev. Bernard J. McQuaid, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Rochester, is critically ill and his death is expected at any moment.

Scandal In Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 22.—Seven members of the finance committee of common and select councils of this city were arrested last night on charges of receiving bribes and bribery, and the alleged corruption of other members of council.

The arrests were made at the instance of the Voters' League, a civic reform organization.

The complaints are against J. C. Mosson, chairman of the finance committee of common council, and John E. Klein of that committee; William Brand, president of common council, charges each of these men with giving and offering to give money and other rewards and bribes to influence the votes of other members of councils: T. O. Atkinson, Jacob Soffol, T. H. Melaney and Hugh Ferguson. More arrests will follow.

Companies Will Pay.

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 22.—News received here from London yesterday announced that the English insurance companies have agreed to settle all claims resulting from the earthquake and fire of Jan. 14, 1907, on a basis of 85 per cent. without adjustment and including costs. Insurers payments on claims aggregating over $3,000,000 will be commenced here Dec. 23.

Suicides In Sweetheart's Sight.

Dallas, Texas, Dec. 23.—In the presence of the young woman who had just refused to marry him, Rev. W. Woodfolk, aged 22, on Sunday night shot himself through the heart.

Seven Millions Missing.

Lisbon, Dec. 22.—The newly-elected municipal council has unearthed a scandal in the city's accounts. Over $7,000,000 has disappeared.

The former monarchical councillors lay the blame upon the Government, which they say illegally took the city's money.

Contests In Quebec.

Montreal, Dec. 22.—There will be contests in the Counties of Laval Chateauguay, St. Aneen and Quebec Centre for the Legislature vacancies. The nominations took place yesterday.

Nose Kicked Off.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 22.—A. Misener, residing at Niagara Falls South, met with a serious accident yesterday morning, and is lying at his home with a badly mutilated countenance. His nose was kicked off by a horse. Misener was drawing material for the work on the addition to the power house of the Ontario Power Co. below the bank, when his horses lipped over the edge of the cliff. As the animal fell a hoof struck Misener in the face completely severing his nose.

Tinsmith Dies From Fall.

Toronto, Dec. 22.—Richard Rowe, Chester, Ont., a tinsmith in the employ of Geo. Mathewson, fell from a second storey window in a house in course of construction at 4 Vancouver avenue, at five o'clock yesterday afternoon. He struck upon the roof of the verandah and rolled to the gronnd. His skull was fractured and he died before the ambulance arrived to remove him to the hospital.

Leiters Fighting Mine Fire.

Zeigler, Ill., Dec. 22.—With a stubborn fire slowly fighting back hundreds of men who have worked for days seeking to save the coal supply of the great Zeigler mine, Joe Leiter, Chicago millionaire, and his beautiful young wife, have joined forces with the workmen in combatting the flames.

Mrs. Leiter has bad bandages, medicines, salves, etc., brought from the commissary to the mouth of the shaft, and there she has erected a temporary hospital tent.

Thieves Raid Chatham.

Chatham, Dec. 22.—While Dr. R. V. Bray was absent in the country in answer to a call yesterday morning, a sneak thief entered his private office and took $30 from the safe.

On Saturday shoplifters were very busy in this city. Nearly every store in the city suffered, and it looks much as though there was an organized band of crooks operating in this city. A $45 fur was stolen from one of the large dry goods stores.

Two Thousand Drivers on Strike.

New York, Dec. 22.—More than two thousand cab drivers and chauffeurs employed by liveries and cab concerns are on strike to-day, according to Edwin Gould, secretary of the Liberty Dawn Association.

Unless the actions of the employers are favorable, said Mr. Gould yesterday, the tie-up of the city's cab service will be practically complete today. Several of the affected companies sent out cabs and motor cars yesterday under police guard.

Chinamen Up In Arms.

Winnipeg, Dec. 22.—An indignation meeting of Chinamen was held last night. After discussing the barbarous murder of two fellow-countrymen the meeting advised the closing of the laundries at 10 p.m. and to provide themselves with adequate weapons of defence. They scout the idea of secret societies.

THE COMMON APPLE A GREAT SOURCE OF HEALTH

The Juice of the Ordinary Apple Is One of the Best Things in the World For Keeping the Blood Pure.

Few people there are but enjoy a ripe, juicy apple. But how many realise that it is a medicine as well as a treat?

Apple juice has a very marked effect on the kidneys, increasing their power to throw off the waste products of the body, called urea, and thus prevent Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, and similar troubles that come from poisoned blood.

Similarly, other fruits stimulate the action of the liver and bowels—others of the skin. Combined, they keep the blood pure—the body clean and healthy.

To get this effect, however, one must eat a great deal of fruit, or better, eat a little fruit and take "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" are tablets in which the juices of ripe fruits, with their medicinal value intensified, are combined with valuable tonics. They act directly on Bowels, Kidneys and Skin and put them in perfect condition — thus ensuring the thorough elimination of all waste matter and poisons from the body. Trial box 25c. Regular size 50c.—6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WHERE DOES THIS STOP?

It is by no means pleasant to have to introduce into a journal that should at this season be more or less given up to Xmas literature, reference to the tremendous swindle perpetrated at Ottawa in the name of a marine and fisheries department. It can hardly be doubted that there is something very rotten in the administration of that department, from the lowest to the highest. We have confined our condemnation heretofore to the rascals as they have been exposed from time to time in the inquiry, but now we have reached another and more advanced stage. Could this widespread and systematic crookedness have gone on without the knowledge of those higher in authority? Frankly we doubt it. The Globe heads its news column detailing the inquiry with the words. "Hopeless muddle, fyles incomplete, contradicts records of department, etc." At the same time it is quite plain that there has been complicity in the plundering on the inside, and complicity could not go on for long "without permission." It is admitted even before the court that some one has "got at" the fyles of the department. This would indicate that everything is what is known as wide-open. The inquiry appears to be thorough and searching. Both the judge and the prosecuting counsel are evidently hot-foot after after the thieves great and small. But then we must remember that there would have been no investigation, no inquiry, and no prosecution if it had not been for the efforts of an opposition that has been rewarded by being allowed to remain on opposition benches. Judges, commissions, church papers, all agree that Canada has literally degenerated into the condition of brigandage characteristic of Sicily and Portugal. Have we moral fibre enough left to recover ourselves? It looks as if we had not. There is an amusedness in the criticism of the wholesale larceny that is going on that is more appalling than re-assuring. It is doubtful if Canada will ever be in a more perilous condition morally and financially, than at present. The plunderbund have been long at work and its members are numerous and apparently important.

THE COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

The commencement exercises at the Collegiate Institute last evening form a brilliant introduction to the next school term which will begin in earnest after the new year. The public is already acquiring the habit of going to the new building for pleasure and inspiration. In more ways than one we look to this admirable institution to become the centre of intellectual life in the city. A new influence will pervade the public mind. We shall hear more of Cicero, Horace, Thucydides and of the immortals both among gods and men and less of those things which while doubtless necessary enough are in no sense the attributes of what we are accustomed to call manhood and womanhood. The delight of the life intellectual is supreme. The citizens of Athens even 3,000 years ago builded monuments to philosophers whom to-day we have presumed to ignore.

Mr. Dumble, K.C., of the speakers did the heavy work and did it well. He was at his best. Rev. Father Kelly was admirable. He revived happy memories of a few years ago and seemed quite at home in the pleasant and congenial surroundings. He was frequently applauded. Both gentlemen predicted success for the new institute and did not forget to speak a word in season for athletics as a desirable part of an educational programme. Rev. Mr. Pearson was delightfully reminiscent recalling the enjoyment he experienced as a player of games. He and Father Kelly were both conspicuous figures in the ball field. Miss Davies' choristers were a feature of the evening and with Miss K. Wallis, who played excellently and Miss Myrna White, who evidently has a future as a vocalist, provided the musical part of the programme. Miss Lillian Dean in the absence of the valedictorian, Miss Gladys Crane read the address very prettily. Mr. Kenner, headmaster, made an excellent chairman.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

EDITORIAL NOTES

Leap-year for the first eleven months did not furnish any sensational reports of proposals by suffragettes to suffragists. This month, however, we understand has established a record no less than 17 engagements having taken place in the campaign, so far. The right of a woman, fair or unfair, to propose is now firmly established along with other rights. It is considered very impolite for a man to refuse although he is still expected to provide the wherewithal. It is said that some men are so paralyzed at the announcement that they are not able to speak.

Sir William Macdonald, of Montreal, has done some great things, of which the greatest of course is the creation of the Macdonald College, at Ste. Anne de Bellevue. His latest benefaction is characteristic of the man, showing his far sighted determination to do what will have great results, even if the act itself seems comparatively modest. He is sending a copy of "The Letters of Queen Victoria," just published in popular form by the King's command, to nearly 1000 rural schools in the Province of Quebec. He rightly considers that the inspiration and information contained in that extraordinary work will act like seed of the finest quality, sown first in the teacher's mind, passed on by the teacher in a form which children can receive.

"The decision given on Monday by Judge Reynolds, of Brockville, regarding the action of J. O Hutton, Kingston, district inspector of the Canada Life Assurance Company, is important. He brought suit against a cheesemaker for the amount of a promissory note given as first premium.

The defendant was eighteen years of age at the time of giving the note and repudiated the claim on the ground that the Gananoque agent had agreed that if his financial position did not warrant its payment no action would be taken. He also pleaded infancy, he being under twenty-one years of age, and that by the loss of $120 through a cut in the cheese which he made he was unable to pay the note. Judge Reynolds originally found against the defendant on the facts, but reserved judgment on the question of law. After due consideration he has handed out his decision in favor of the plaintiff, with costs.

Probably several hundred of similar notes have been given by minors for insurance throughout Ontario. Defences similar to that made by the cheesemaker may be made again. If so the life companies now know that such a defence cuts neither ice nor cheese"—Monetary Times.

SAID GOOD-BYE TO A MEMBER

Mr. B. T. Huston Honored by B. A. C. Last Night---Presented With Ring

Mr. B. T. Huston, who is leaving the city for Toronto shortly, was banqueted by the B.A.C. members at Hooper's grill room last night. A large number were in attendance and an enjoyable time was spent. Mr. Huston was presented with a gold signet ring and there were a number of speeches in which regret at Mr. Huston's departure from the city and good wishes for his success in his new position were expressed. The recipient made a suitable reply.

WRAP YOUR GIFTS DAINTILY

Of late years much more attention is paid to the manner in which one's Christmas gifts are tied up and addressed. It is a well known fact that more pleasure is derived in the receiving of a daintily wrapped parcel than in one that is hastily tied up and despatched without much care.

Nowadays no parcel is really complete without a pretty little holly card with the donor's name put inside. The parcels then the wrappings are sealed with small holly or Santa Claus seals and the address within on a holly label or tag.

There are also several styles of cards labels, tags and seals, and they are all equally pretty. They are all on sale at the Review office together with many other materials and Xmas gifts.

A STORY OF SIR OLIVER.

Thought a Difference of Job Made a Difference of Tactics Necessary.

It is said that on one occasion when the Ross Government was in office, and the late Sir Oliver Mowat was filling the post of Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, the Ministry took a certain course of action that was rather unusual, and a member of the Cabinet attended at Government House to have the papers signed.

Sir Oliver looked them over at first casually and then with a closer scrutiny.

"This action," he said, "is most unusual—most unusual. Is there, in fact, any precedent for such a course?"

"There is the very best of precedents," was the reply. "Sir Oliver Mowat when Premier of Ontario took precisely the same action."

"Indeed—indeed! And when?"

The Cabinet Minister recalled the occasion and the circumstances to Sir Oliver's recollection.

"Very true, but," said Sir Oliver, "I was not Lieutenant-Governor at that time."

Dr. Griffin, of Hamilton, may get the postmastership there.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Buffalo Is Erratic In Hog Prices.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—London cables for cattle are steady at 12½c to 14½c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10¼c to 10½c per lb.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Dec. 21.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were light—13 carloads, composed of 200 cattle, 10 hogs, 208 sheep and lambs, with 4 calves.

Exporters.

One load of export steers was reported at $5.25; and export bulls at $3.75 to $4.25.

Butchers.

Few choice cattle were on sale, but the best butchers' were quoted at $4.50 to $4.75; medium, $4 to $4.30; common at $3.50 to $3.90; canners, $1.50 to $2.

Milkers and Springers.

A few milkers and springers sold at from $30 to $50 each.

Veal Calves.

Only a limited number of calves were on sale. Prices ranged at from $2 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Trade in lambs was brisk and firmer at $5 to $5.75 per cwt.; sheep unchanged at $3.25 to $3.40 for ewes, and $2 to $2.50 for rams.

Hogs.

Gunns report prices steady at $6 for selects, fed and watered, at the market, and $5.75 to drovers f.o.b. cars at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 21.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 19 were 2648 cattle, 2456 sheep and lambs, 3254 hogs and 286 calves, while the supply for the local trade this morning consisted of 1300 cattle, 1500 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 200 calves.

Notwithstanding the extra heavy run of cattle a week ago there was an average supply on the market this morning, which was somewhat in excess of the requirements of the trade, and in consequence a weaker feeling prevailed in the market, and prices ruled fully ¼c to ½c per lb. lower. The demand was rather limited, as the bulk of local and outside buyers got ample supplies last week to carry them over, consequently only a fair volume of business was done. There were no really extra choice beeves outside of some heavy bulls. Choice stock sold at 4¾c to 5c; good at 4¼c to 4½c; fair at 3½c to 4c; common at 2½c to 3c, and inferior at 1¼c to 2c per pound.

The market for sheep is stronger, and prices show an advance of ¼c to ½c per pound, since this day week, which is due principally to the small supplies coming forward and the increased demand for the same. Sales of choice lots were made at 4¼c to 4½c; and culls at 3½c to 3¾c per pound. In lambs the feeling remains firm at the recent advance, and, as the demand was ample to absorb all the offerings, a fairly active trade was done at 5¾c to 6c for choice lots, and at 5¼c to 5½c for good per pound. The demand for calves was fair, and sales of choice, milk-fed lots were made at 5c to 5½c, and grass-fed at 3½c to 4c per pound. A firmer feeling prevailed in the market for hogs, and prices ruled a trifle higher than they were on Wednesday last, which was due to the increased demand for supplies, and sales of selected lots were made at $6.50 to $6.75 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Dec. 21.—Cattle—Receipts, 1700 head; fairly active and steady; prime steers, $6.25 to $6.75; shipping, $5.50 to $6.25; butchers, $4.75 to $6; heifers, $4 to $5.25; cows, $3 to $4.50; bulls, $3 to $4.50.

Veals—Receipts, 250 head; active and 25c higher, $7 to $10.

THE PLAYFUL PORPOISE.

A Sportive Youngster That Had Fun With a Motor Boat.

Writing of a motor boat trip on the Black sea, Henry C. Rowland in Appleton's tells of the playfulness of the porpoise:

"That evening was a lovely one, the air of a delightful temperature, very clear, and the sea like a mill pond. A big school of porpoises came over to play with the boat, and the water was so sparklingly clear and of such a glassy surface that we were able to follow all their movements even when they plunged to their fullest depth. They had not the slightest fear of the noise of the motor, but swam dangerously close to the propeller and frequently rubbed themselves against the sides of the boat.

"One sportive youngster kept getting across the stem. For almost an hour I lay on my face forward, with my head over the bow, watching him. He was playful as a puppy and at last invented a little game of his own. Lying across the stem, he would let the curve of the bow roll him over and over, presently disappearing to swim back and repeat the performance. I have watched porpoises in many waters of the globe, but have never seen any as kittenish as these."

A LONG DRINK.

The Way a Fast Running Locomotive Scoops Up Water.

Some of the great transcontinental engines take on 8,000 gallons, or 245 barrels, of water to be turned into steam for the next run of two hours, or about sixty miles. But such a vast amount of water is a burden, and new supplies are desired oftener. It is a loss of time to stop and let such vast quantities come aboard through a pipe; hence some way of taking water while rushing at full speed is desirable. It has been found. How?

If you make a scoop of your hand and swing it swiftly, the hollow side forward, into water some of it will be likely to spurt up your sleeve. That is nature's hint. Follow it up. Find a level place in the road and put down an iron trough four inches deep, fourteen inches wide and one-eighth of a mile long. The engine comes rushing along and, having passed the end, drops a scoop into this trough. There is a general splutter of water, but a tremendous stream rushes up the sleeve of the dropped hand and pours into the water tank. When it is full the fireman raises the scoop or it glides up the slope at the far end of the trough, and the engine is watered for the next run.—Epworth Herald.

Uses For Baby Carriages.

East siders in New York use their baby carriages until they literally fall apart. Of course the primary purpose is served well and often, as the family is generally a good sized one. Then the carriage is used for a market and shopping wagon, being piled high with potatoes, greens, fruit and household goods of all kinds from neighboring stores and push carts. The east sider doesn't often have his things sent home. He's not sure he would get what he had bought. Then the little boys are sent out to hover around new buildings or old ones being demolished and gather in wood to be pushed home in the baby carriage. On other occasions it is piled high with garments being rushed to or from the sweatshop. Sometimes packages of laundry are delivered from it, and, again, it is filled with coal. When it is finally worn out it furnishes a little fuel and four hoops for the children to play with.

Phenomena of Heredity.

It is one of the phenomena of heredity that a boy wants to be what his father was—if a shoemaker, then a shoemaker; if an ironworker, then an ironworker; if an artisan of any line, then an artisan in that line—and the father and mother who have come to hate the smell of leather or the grime of the smithy, the oil waste of the machine or the sweat of downright hard work cajole or coerce that boy into something that is genteelly dull or respectably stupid and kill the germ that would have produced the manufacturer, the mechanical engineer or the capitalist.

Then She Missed It.

Wiggs—Poor old soul! She doesn't believe as much in the efficacy of prayer as she did. Waggs—You surprise me. She has always been so extremely religious. Wiggs—Yes, but the other day she got ready to go into the city, and then she discovered that she had only ten minutes in which to catch the train. So she knelt down before she started and for five minutes prayed fervently that she might catch it.

Not Working.

Nellie apologized for the action of her new baby sister by saying, "You see, she hasn't got any sense yet." Her mother objected to such an idea, and Nellie replied, "Oh, of course she's got sense, but it isn't working yet."—Delineator.

The Return.

Magistrate—If I remember rightly, this is not your first appearance in court. Prisoner—No, your honor; but I hope you don't judge by appearances.

Mean Insinuation.

Long—They say, you know, that people can be killed by kindness. Strong—Is that why you are so attentive to your wife's mother?

There is but one virtue—the eternal sacrifice of self.—George Sand.

Boy Burglar In Court.

Brockville, Dec. 22.—Walter Rose, a boy burglar, was committed for trial yesterday on a charge of breaking into a King street store. He had been recently released on suspended sentence on a similar charge.

Nobleman In Fatal Accident.

New York, Dec. 22.—M. J. McGuire, a young civil engineer, was struck and killed Sunday night by the automobile of Robert C. Watson, broker and amateur golf champion.

With Watson in the automobile were Hon. Archibald Gordon, son of the Earl of Aberdeen, formerly Governor-General of Canada, and Louis Livingston of 57 West 57th street. Watson is a son of the former head manager of the Bank of Montreal.

Judge Humphrey fixed Watson's bail at $5,000. Watson said he had a two-days' old baby at home and did not want his wife to hear of the accident.

What a Political Speaker Endures.

The political stump speaker has many amusing and many unpleasant experiences. A party of us went down into the heart of the east side of New York one night with a politician somewhat handicapped by his wealth and social position, who nevertheless elected to go to the doubtful district personally. At a street corner a bunting draped cart awaited him, and, climbing to the tailboard of this, he began telling the ragged audience in well rounded periods how they should vote and why. A few jeers began to crop from the tolerance of the crowd. The jeers gained volume. He was told to "Aw, shet up!" "Close your head!" "Say, give us a drink; your talk makes us t'irsty." Somewhat disconcerted, but still determined to finish his speech, he was continuing when something hurtled past his head and splashed gently on the floor of the cart. Another something and another followed, and every one was dodging decadent tomatoes until, it becoming impossible to hear a shout above the jeers and laughter of the voters, the horses were started forward out of the soft, red bombardment and the district left to its own political sins.—John R. Winchell in Metropolitan Magazine.

Why He Did the Washing.

A man came up out of one of the little roof houses across from the woman's window with a big basket of clothes. He was followed by two small boys, carrying more clothes and clothespins. The man put the basket of clothes down and began to sort them out preparatory to hanging them on the line. The boys helped, handing him the clothespins and some small pieces, one at a time. They were a long while hanging out the clothes because of their awkwardness. It was evidently work they were unaccustomed to, but at last it was finished, and the boys went down into the little roof house, leaving the man on the roof. He stood for a moment looking at the clothes, then, going over to a parapet, sat down between two tall chimneys. The woman could see him from her window lean against one of the chimneys and by and by throw his arm across his eyes.

She found out afterward that his wife had died the week before.—New York Press.

A Little Paint Badly Applied.

The Journal des Debats in an article on "Napoleon on the Stage" tells why the play "L'Homme de Destin" was taken from the stage when its triumph was at the zenith. One evening, according to the story, the emperor, accompanied by his friend Duroc, went in disguise to the Porte St. Martin theater, where the piece was being performed, Eugene Chevalier appearing as the man of destiny. They bought a box, but had hardly entered it when the emperor broke forth in violent execrations against the "fool managers." It seemed that the decorators had left in the box pots of oil and paint, and into these the emperor had stepped. "Wild with rage," says the writer, "he rushed from the house and, to make matters worse, was recognized in the lobby. No paper mentioned the incident, but by order of the emperor the play was never produced again, and Chevalier never appeared again as the man of destiny—and all on account of a little paint badly applied."

Passengers as Bouncers.

A passenger in a full railway carriage in England has a perfect legal right to push away any one else who tries to get into it. This decision was given at Marylebone police court when a man complained that he was pushed out of a carriage at Bishop's road station by another passenger, who said the car was full. "It is the duty of conductors," said the court, "to see that the trains are not overcrowded. They are perfectly entitled to use reasonable force to prevent any one from boarding cars when they are full. If they fail to avail themselves of this right the passengers are entitled to act for themselves."

Only a Misunderstanding.

Several years ago in a well known wholesale house in a big manufacturing town an old bachelor bookkeeper, who had been many years with the firm, suddenly announced that he was to be married.

The partners gave him a week's holiday, and his fellow clerks raised a little purse and presented it to pay the expenses of his wedding trip.

A couple of days after the wedding one of the members of the firm went down to a seaside resort, and there, lounging about the parade and apparently enjoying himself immensely, he saw his recently married old bookkeeper, but alone.

"Where's your wife?" asked the principal.

"She's at home," was the reply.

"But I thought you had money given you for a wedding trip?"

"So I had," was the reply, "but I didn't understand that it was intended to include her."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Valuable Milestone.

A well known novelist was touring through Lancashire in order to learn something of the lives of the inhabitants when he came upon an old man breaking stones on the roadside and, thinking he might gain some knowledge from him, addressed him thus:

"How far is it to Fleetwood, my man?"

"You'll see a milestone a bit farther on," was the gruff reply.

"What's the use, if I can't read?" said the novelist, eager to draw the old man into a conversation.

"Then it'll just suit you, for there's nowt on it," said the old fellow.—London Graphic.

Specific Directions.

The message was transmitted to the "cub" telegrapher. As written it read: "Foundation under freight house needs attention at once."

As delivered to the general foreman the dispatch contained a rather startling bit of information. It read:

"Found a lion under freight house. Needs attention at once." To which he replied briefly:

"Feed the lion and notify the live stock agent."

Bad Luck.

"Mother," said five-year-old Jack, "how much older than you is father."

"Just thirteen years," replied the unsuspecting parent.

"Well, mother," seriously continued the child, "the next time you marry, don't marry a man thirteen years older than you. Don't you know it is bad luck?"—Delineator.

A Strong Pull.

Two men were having an argument as to their respective strengths.

"Why," said the first, "every morning before breakfast I get a bucket and pull up ninety gallons from the well."

"That's nothing," retorted the other. "I get a boat every morning and pull up the river."

A Doubtful Bag.

Salesman—Sorry we're quite out of game, but I can recommend the sausages.

Mr. Von Sharpeshooter—H'm, yes! But the wife would not believe I shot 'em.—London Half Holiday.

Assume in adversity a countenance of prosperity and in prosperity moderate thy temper.—Livy.

SUNKEN REEFS.

Sweeping the Ocean Floor Instead of Sounding.

The mishap of the cruiser Yankee brings forth the comment that it is the more remarkable as occurring on the coast "perfectly charted." Premising that the Yankee got off her course in a dense fog, it may be said that, while our coast is as well charted as that of any nation, "perfect" is not the characterization yet to be employed. The methods of surveying the ocean floor to locate reefs and shoals are now undergoing a revolution which, when fully accomplished, will reveal to the mariner many danger points which have heretofore escaped record. The old way of finding out reefs and rocks not evident to the eye was by sounding. Now the coast survey proceeds by "sweeping"—that is, by sinking to the depth a pipe bar, which is trailed along by two boats, one at each end of the cable passing through it. Any obstruction encountered is immediately perceptible and is at once noted, located and observed. Coastal waters are carefully "platted," and each plat is thoroughly gone over. The superiority of "sweeping" over "sounding" is made evident by the fact that in a comparatively limited area of the Maine coast, covering rather more than forty linear miles, fifteen reefs have been discovered heretofore uncharted. It often happens in sounding that the lead line avoids some narrow spindle of rock whose point is just below the surface of the water and which goes uncharted. When the cruiser Brooklyn was gashed by one of these unsuspected pinnacles on our coast a few years ago it was found to be isolated and surrounded with deep water up to within a few feet of its sides. Sweeping will minimize the probability of repetitions of such accidents.—Boston Transcript.

Umbrella as a Weapon.

In one of the women's fencing schools of Paris instruction in the art of attack and defense with foils has been discontinued and umbrellas instituted, says Popular Mechanics.

The first lesson the pupils learn in this up to date means of defense from attack on the streets is to baffle the watchfulness of the aggressor by skillful blows. The most simple and at the same time most effective consists in applying a flat stroke of the umbrella upon his headgear. Surprised by this stroke and perhaps blinded by the rim of the hat, he has not the time nor the presence of mind to seize the umbrella. The lunges which follow such a blow are not only effective, but dangerous. The first is known as the hors de combat blow. Seizing her umbrella near the handle with one hand and near the point with the other and advancing a step well forward, the point if well directed against the center of the aggressor's neck will drop him to the ground senseless and probably badly hurt. The same blow aimed at the pit of the stomach will probably send the recipient to the hospital and perhaps cripple him for life.

Municipal Theaters.

The first municipal, uncommercial theater in America—an endowed institution—is in successful operation in Red Wing, Minn. Red Wing is a town of only 10,000 persons, forty miles down the Mississippi river from St. Paul, and to it several years ago a citizen left $80,000 to found a municipal theater. A citizens' committee under the terms of the bequest manages the playhouse, and so well has it done its work that for the last three years a dividend on the capital invested has been paid to the town. Professor Richard Burton in a lecture on the drama, using the Red Wing experiment as a criterion, predicts that "in ten years probably and in twenty-five years certainly every considerable city in the United States will have its municipal theater."

Milk Bricks.

Milk bricks are sold in Belgium and Denmark. These bricks are milk frozen solid, and when intended for use as soon as received in the household the lacteal fluid for the tea or coffee has to be chipped off according to the quantity desired in the drink. This brick milk has grown to be a necessity in the warmer countries of Europe. The Belgium government has given a yearly subsidy to increase the trade. In Copenhagen a firm engaged in this business makes a weekly delivery of 300,000 pounds. A great deal of this goes to distant countries.

The Comet Now and Then.

Times have changed since 450 years ago, when Halley's comet, for whose reappearance astronomers are now looking, was in the heavens. Then the Christian world prayed to be delivered from "the devil, the Turk and the comet." Now it says the devil is not so black as he has been painted, the Turk is a negligible quantity, and the comet would be rather welcome than otherwise.—Boston Transcript.

Balloons and Bullets.

Experiments conducted abroad have demonstrated that balloons traveling at a height of from 600 to 2,000 yards could be hit only once out of six shots, while they were absolutely safe at a height of 3,000 yards. Even when struck the damage to the gas bag was so small that the balloon was able to continue its journey for hours before the escaping gas made a landing necessary.

The registered mail on the Souris train was rifled Saturday night, and two men were arrested.

Anticipated Cause For Sorrow.

Ina came in from the country on her fifth birthday to visit her cousin May. At night they were put to bed early. An hour passed, when heartbreaking sobs were heard from the children's bedroom.

"What is the matter, children?" asked May's mother, entering the dark room.

"From under the bedclothes Ina sobbed out, "May won't give me any of her peanuts."

"But May has no peanuts," replied her aunt.

"I know that," sobbed Ina, "but she said if she did have peanuts she wouldn't give me any."—Delineator.

Sufficiently Occupied.

A story is told of a colonel in General Lee's division in the late civil war who sometimes indulged in more applejack than was good for him. Passing him one evening leaning against a tree, the general said:

"Good evening, colonel. Come over to my tent for a moment, please."

"S-s-cuse me, g-g-en'ral, s-s-cuse me," replied the colonel. "It's 'bout all I can do to stay where I am."

The Right Foot Foremost.

Putting the right foot foremost was an old Roman ordination originally regulating the entry of persons into a house or other building and based upon the supposition that the left was unlucky. A boy was kept at the door to see that no one entered the house "left foot first." The phrase quoted is thus seen to be very antique.

It is the wise head that makes the still tongue.—Lucas.

The Secret of Success.

The motto of success was given in this tale, told at a banquet:

A Swede among the miners in the west was noted for always striking pay dirt. His fellows thought that there must be some secret to the unusual success of the Swede and questioned him as to how he always succeeded in finding the spot where the gold cropped out.

"Vell, Ay don't know ef Ay can tell anytang 'bout dat," answered Ole. "Ay only know dat Ay yust keep on diggin'."—Milwaukee Free Press.

Wrong.

A man recently entered a restaurant and ordered a steak. When the waiter served him with it the customer said, "I'm afraid you'll have to take it back, for I find I've come out without my"—

"Purse," of course interrupted the waiter.

"No," replied the man, "my false teeth!"

More Trouble.

"What's the trouble now?" demanded the janitor. "More heat?"

"No," said the tenant of the latest skyscraper, "but I want these clouds pushed away from my windows."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Not Like the Play.

"Life ain't like the plays."

"How now?"

"When I go calling no housemaid ever tells me the family history while making passes at the furniture with a feather duster."—St. Louis Republic.

THIS APPEAL IS TO YOU!

The Hospital for Sick Children

REMEMBER That Every Sick Child in Ontario Whose Parents Cannot Afford to Pay for Treatment is Treated Free.

SICK BUT NOT NEGLECTED.

The Hospital is not a local institution, but provincial. The sick child from any place in Ontario, who can't pay, has the same privileges as the child living in Toronto.

The Hospital had last year in its beds and cots 1,245 patients—368 of these were from 241 places outside of Toronto. Seventy-five per cent. were children of poor people who could not afford to pay.

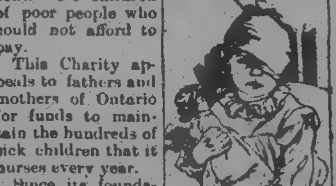
This Charity appeals to fathers and mothers of Ontario for funds to maintain the hundreds of sick children that it nurses every year.

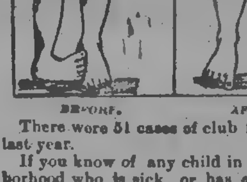
Since its foundation the Institution has treated 14,458 children. 10,800 of these were unable to pay and were treated free.



BEFORE. AFTER.

There were 51 cases of club feet treated last year.

If you know of any child in your neighborhood who is sick, or has any deformity, send the parent's name to Secretary.



"THIS IS YOUR ROOM."

The Hospital's Cry is not for Itself, but for the Children, as your Dollars go not to the Hospital but to the Children.

Please Send Contributions to J. Ross Robertson, Chairman, or to Douglas Davidson, Sec.-Treas., The Hospital for Sick Children, College St., Toronto.

LILLIAN RUSSELL AT THE GRAND

Will Appear in Famous Racing Comedy "Wildfire" To-morrow Evening

The coming of Lillian Russell to Peterborough next week, recalls quite an experience the American comedienne had when she played Ottawa for one performance last winter. A pleased patron of the play that evening was Lady Grey, who entertained a box party.

In the third act of Miss Russell's "Wildfire," Lady Grey discovered a pair of lace curtains that gave rise to a hope she had almost abandoned. Immediately after the close of the play, Lady Grey instructed her secretary to see Miss Russell and inquire where she purchased the curtains she was using in the scene. The comedienne was rather surprised by the inquiry for it was the first time the curtains had attracted any attention, and Miss Russell felt especially complimented that this attention should come from Her Excellency. She was at a loss to account for the attention, however, and did a little inquiring herself. This resulted in Miss Russell being asked to meet Lady Grey and talk the matter over. At this meeting Her Excellency told Miss Russell that the design of the curtains was one that she had been very anxious to get for her use. She said she had searched the stores of Canada, London, New York and Boston in vain and had about given up all hopes of securing the same, when to her amazement she saw exactly the design she was seeking in the curtains Miss Russell was using in the third act of her play. It was now Miss Russell's turn to add another element of surprise to the incident.

The summer before, she had visited in England, and at a country house of a friend had been particularly struck by the design of some curtains in the lady's boudoir.

When it came time to add the feminine touches of individuality to the setting of the third act of her play Miss Russell remembered the design of the curtains she had seen in England and had her seamstress in New York duplicate them for the setting in question.

This explains why she was so surprised when Lady Grey inquired as to where she had purchased the curtains.

Miss Russell also volunteered to help Her Excellency, if she could, and as soon as she reached the vicinity of New York, on her tour last season she had her seamstress come on and join the company. Under Miss Russell's supervision, she made duplicates of the curtains, and Miss Russell presented them to Lady Grey. This season, in further compliment to Her Excellency, when a new third act was written for "Wildfire," Miss Russell designed other curtains and does not use the design she had worked out last season.

NEW PROPRIETORS AT CROWN HOTEL

Transfer of License to Messrs. J. J. Cottingham and T. J. Parker—Both Successful Hotelmen

Mr. B. T. Huston, who is leaving successfully conducted for the past year and a half by Mr. F. A. Clarke, has been taken over by Messrs. J. J. Cottingham and T. J. Parker, and the transfer of license will be granted at to-night's meeting of the commissioners.

Messrs. Cottingham and Parker the new proprietors, need no introduction to the public. The former has been in the hotel business in Peterborough for 12 years and has a thorough knowledge of hotel management, and Mr. Parker has been successful and popular as the proprietor of the well known summer hotel at Idyl Wyld. Both are competent hotel men of excellent standing and will no doubt be favored with a large share of the public patronage.

PRESENTATION OF PRIZES AND DIPLOMAS AT THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

Commencement Exercises Held in the Assembly Hall Last Evening—Addresses Made by Prominent Gentlemen in Presenting the Prizes—A Large Number Present.

The commencement exercises in connection with the Collegiate Institute were held last evening in the assembly hall of the school. The spacious auditorium was well filled with the parents and friends of the pupils and judging from the applause that greeted the evening's work they were apparently well pleased with the work accomplished by the scholars during the last year in the old school.

Last evening was the presentation of the Nicholls' scholarships, the trophies and medals in connection with the annual field day of sports, the medal for writing and the lower school graduation diplomas. The presentations which were made by prominent gentlemen, were accompanied by appropriate remarks which were listened to with intense interest.

The chair was taken by the principal of the school, Mr. H R H Kenner. He extended a welcome to those present and stated that the reason why the exercises had not been held earlier in the term was owing to the fact that the hall was not in readiness.

The evening was opened with a chorus, "O Canada," by the Collegiate Glee Club, which has been under the careful and capable training of Miss Helen Davies. They sang excellently and were loudly applauded.

Mr. Kenner, in presenting the Nicholls' scholarships in the absence of Dr Park, of the Normal School, referred briefly to their splendid work during the school year of 1907-08 and consequently their high standing in the examinations at mid-summer, thus entitling them to the prizes made possible by the donation to the Board of Education of a sum of money by the late Mrs Nicholls.

The annual interest on this amount is given in scholarships.

SECONDARY EDUCATION

Mr A. Mowat, Inspector of Public Schools, who made the presentation to Miss Kate Skinner, of Mr John Crane's medal for penmanship, spoke on the advantages of secondary education. He believed that in the Public and Separate Schools of Peterborough, the boys and girls were being given a primary education second to none in the Dominion. But secondary education is quite as necessary as primary. The courses offered to pupils in the Collegiate Institute were such that after receiving any one of them, a boy or girl could go out into the world fit for the work they have chosen. The practical subjects such as writing, were the most essential.

PRESENTATION OF TROPHIES

Rev Mr. Pearson, before presenting the cup to the senior champion athlete, Mr Harry Hall, he very humorously referred to the days when he attended the old Collegiate and to his athletic career at Toronto university. He spoke of three attitudes in which one may look at athletics. One may be indifferent to them, one may oppose them and one may actively engage in them. Athletics was a splendid training for the development of character and it had a splendid influence on young life.

Rev. Father Kelly presented the junior trophy to Harold Lees. In his remarks he said that the world wanted men well trained physically and mentally. The world applauded acts of endurance and courage. A man should possess a strong intellect in a healthy body.

PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS

The lower school graduates' diplomas were presented by Mr W S Robinson and the commercial diplomas were presented by Mr D W Dumble. Both made appropriate addresses.

Mr J. H. Burnham presented the Gibson medals to Mr Harry Hall and Harold Lees and also his own medal for the cross country race. He remarked that the words "a good sport meant what every man should strive to be. They comprised a great deal.

Mr Dumble, K.C., dwelt at some length upon the seriousness of spirit in which the educational life of the individual should be undertaken. Unlike the old days when education was considered a perquisite of the gentry who thus were enabled to monopolize government the present time gave every man and woman, every boy and girl an opportunity. There was no distinction. Education was open to all and for all.

Mr W S. Robinson spoke gracefully of the advantages of education and of the improvements in equipment and opportunity. He was glad to see that his suggestion of certificates for pupils reaching the end of their Collegiate term had been successfully adopted.

THE PROGRAMME.

The musical programme was of an exceedingly high order. It included an instrumental duet by Misses K. Leary and Stella Shearer and a vocal solo by Miss Myra White. The valedictory address, written by Miss Gladys Crane was read by Miss Lillian Dean. The Glee Club sang a closing chorus after which the evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

The following is a list of winners and the prizes:

Reference was made to the excellent record made by the Collegiate Institute at the last university and departmental examinations, giving the names of the successful pupils in honor matriculation, faculty of education Normal entrance, science and arts matriculation.

HAVELOCK'S NEW SCHOOL IS BEING OPENED TO-DAY

Special to the Review.

Havelock, December 21—Definite arrangements have been made for the grand formal opening of Havelock's beautiful new school and everything is in readiness for the day, Tuesday, December 22nd, 1908. The opening ceremonies will be held in the new building at two o'clock, when the Deputy Minister of Education, Hon J. R. Colquhoun, will deliver an address and declare the building open and ready for use.

Others who will deliver addresses at this important event are Wm Mathison, chairman of the School Board, under whose direction the new building has been erected; Richard Lees, Public School Inspector, of Peterborough, Mr Jno A. Sexsmith, M.P.; Jas Thompson, M.L.P., and the resident clergymen.

In the evening the school children will commemorate the opening of the school by a grand concert which promises to be a huge success. The programme will consist of drills, dialogues, recitations, songs, etc. and during the evening Hon J R. Colquhoun, Richard Lees and others will deliver short addresses.

The proceeds of the concert will go toward a good cause, that of equipment for the school, among other things, a reference library, is badly needed. All those who are interested in the advancement of education will do well to be present and one of the chief points in educational growth in Havelock.

BUSY MAKING PREPARATIONS

For the Private Secretary—Mr. Beers Has Already Secured Some of the Company

Mr Irving Beers whose thrice given "All the Comforts of Home," made such a decided hit here is busy making arrangements for the local production of "The Private Secretary" He has already secured some members of the cast and the public will look forward with much interest to the presentation of this scintillating comedy. Rehearsals will be held at an early date.

As an appreciation of Mr Beers' skilful direction of "All the Comforts of Home," in Lindsay, the clever company of amateurs which put it on in that town have decided to repeat it for his benefit on Jan. 2nd.

TWO "VAGS." ARE GIVEN SIX MONTHS

Fred Cain and James Kerr were very much surprised this morning when Magistrate Dumble handed out to each of them a term of six months in the Central Prison. They appeared a week ago and were remanded on a charge of vagrancy

This morning they pleaded guilty, stating that their home was near Hamilton and that they had been unable to obtain work.

Three bank clerks from the Bank of Nova Scotia, Bank of Ottawa and Toronto Bank, testified to the prisoners coming into the banks and asking for assistance, or enough money to get a meal.

"What is that mark on your left hand?" asked His Worship of the prisoner Cain.

"Why there is none," he answered, looking at his hand.

"No," answered the Magistrate, "you have not hurt yourself with the pick and shovel."

The prisoners slept in the police station several nights, so the court concluded that they would be better at the Central where they would have lots to eat and a good place to sleep.

Both are young men and well able to work.

NINE THOUSAND HUNTERS OUT

Canadian Express Company Carried 2,348 Deer During Season

During the hunting season on Ontario for the year 1908, the Canadian Express Company carried 2,348 carcases of deer with a total weight of 264,308 lbs. The season included a period of fifteen days between Nov. 1st and 15th inclusive, and the figures show an increase of 181 carcasses over the year 1907. All of these shipments were from points on the northern division of the Grand Truunk Railway system, the heaviest shipments being made from Burk's Falls, Haliburton, Huntsville, Kinmount, Powassan, Scotia Junction, South River and Trout Creek. This number does not give any idea of the number of deer killed during the hunting season, and as each hunter is allowed two deer on his license and as from eight to nine thousand hunters were in the district it is probable that 10,000 to 12,000 deer were killed during the season. This is estimated from the fact that a large number of deer are eaten in the hunters' camp and a great many are transported by the settlers by other means than through the railway.

MORE MINING CASES HEARD AT TORONTO

Several of Them Must Go to the Higher Courts—One Company Enters Protest

Toronto, Dec. 22.—A large number of mining men were in the afternoon police court yesterday in answer to summonses for alleged breaches of the companies act, but no cases were heard. Instead the representatives of the Hargreaves Mining Company, the Titan Montreal River Mines Company and the Cobalt Monarch Company arranged with the court that they, together with Crown Attorney Corley, will meet during the ensuing week and prepare a statement of facts for the benefit of the Magistrate. Then if the Magistrate decides to convict the statement will go on to a higher court in the form of a stated case. This suggestion was made by Mr. A. P. Pousette, K.C., of Peterborough, counsel for the Titan Company, after a strong protest against what he termed the loose way in which the informations had been drawn up. The directors of his company against whom summonses had been issued are Messrs. J. W. Garvin, E. G. Edmonston, D. A. McPherson and J. H. McKnight. The Cobalt Monarch representatives were Messrs. J. L. Hughes, Wm Scott and J. F. McLaughlin. The Hargreaves Company were represented by Messrs. W. N. Ferguson, J. A. Shilton and G. D. Moorehead.

Mr. David Fasken, on behalf of Mr. R. E. Cowan, a director of the Mackenzie mine, admitted a technical violation of the companies act, but sentence was deferred till the 28th on the request of Mr. Corley, who said he had special reasons for the request. The special reasons he stated afterwards were that he had been told that the men whose names were on the information with Mr. Cowan's were neither directors nor shareholders in the Mackenzie mine.

JOSIE CARR HAS BEEN RELEASED

Kingston, Dec. 21.—The removal of Josie Carr, who stole a child in its go-cart four years ago and was responsible for its death, from the penitentiary was carried out Saturday, but was kept very quiet by the authorities. It was only through the alertness of newspaper men that the fact was made known.

Josie left in company with three sisters from the House of Providence for Daysland, Alta., where a new hospital has been opened, and they will be responsible for her care.

It is believed that with new surroundings and the best of care she will be far better off than behind prison walls. She is in the best of health, and during her term has been a model prisoner.

SPORTING NEWS

HOAGLAND BEAT HUBBELL IN SPITE OF HANDICAP

The Erie Despatch of Saturday, says, Willard Hoagland, the Auburn champion at the walking game demonstrated to a good sized crowd at the Casino rink last night that he has an abundance of speed stowed away in his sturdy frame, which he exhibits only on rare occasions. He defeated E. H Hubbell, of Erie last night, handicapped by three laps in 10 miles, finishing in good shape with nearly a full lap to spare. Hoagland covered the 10 miles and three laps in 1 hour and 24 minutes and 10 seconds, a half minute less than it took him to cover 10 miles in the first race a short time ago.

While the first match between the two pedestrians was witnessed by a comparatively large crowd, the attendance last night was even larger and the enthusiasm was ten times greater. The sport offered was of the best. At the start its eemed to many as though Hoagland in giving away three laps had bargained for more than he could comfortably get away with. It was not until the contestants had passed onto the fifth, mile that Hoagland gained his first lap and not until the sixth mile card had been up for several minutes did he sweep past his opponent for the final suprt. On the sixth lap of the ninth mile he passed Hubbell and when the allotted distance had been covered he was in a good way to make it four laps.

To cut down Hubbell's handicap it was necessary for Hoagland to pass his opponent on the narrow track and this caused no end of excitement. He would crowd up to the Erie man race abreast for a short distance, start as though to pass and then slacken until his opponent again held the lead.

LOCK WORKS SHOWED FORM

Beat Bankers by 26 Pins in P. B C. Tourney Last Night

The great uncertainty of ten pins was again strikingly illustrated last night in the league series at the PBC. when the Bankers, to whom everybody conceded the game, lost two of the series to the Lock Works and as a result of the unexpected reverse, the first five teams in the league are now closely bunched for the leadership and a couple of games either way will completely change the complexion of the race.

The Lock Works won last night by a majority of 26 pins.

BOWLING

A CLOSE GAME.

STRATHCONAS TO HAVE A PRACTICE

The Strathcona hockey club will hold their first practice to-night at Brock street rink between seven and eight o'clock and a big turnout is looked for. The City League champions have a bunch of good material again this year and will loom up largely in City League circles.

HOCKEY

The Montreal Star says;—From now until the end of the season things in hockey circles are to be lively. The long looked for champion Edmonton team has arrived and are causing not a little interest and speculation as to the results of the Stanley Cup struggles. Following the series the the attractions. In charge of the regular league fixtures will provide western contingent of cup-seekers is a most pleasant and congenial gentleman in the person of Fred Whitcroft, himself formerly of Peterborough, Ont. The party consisting of ten players and quite a few supporters including several officials of the club, is quartered at the Corona, on Guy street, and here Mr. Whitcroft was found by the Star quite early this morning. He was in an excellent mood to talk and in brilliant and glowing terms described the team as well as their very pleasant trip from Edmonton.

The local intermediates had a good practise last night.

TURF

There is a lot of talk among horsemen of this vicinity over the matched race to take place between Prince Hal, Bourbon Brooks and Queens Baron at the matinee of the Peterborough Turf Club on the afternoon of Christmas Day. All the three stallions can step at a lively clip and it will be quite interestnig to see which one of the three is capable of the fastest time. A side bet of $25 has been made on the result by the owners of the horses.

Some good racing is promised for the two classes A and B and the horses for both will be fast. The track is in fine cond tion and it looks as though the weather was going to stay for the Christmas season.

Nominating a President.

Until the constitutional amendment of 1804 the president and the vice president were voted for on the same ballot, the man with the second highest number of votes becoming vice president. The presidential electors have not always been chosen by popular vote.

Before 1800 it was the general custom for the state leg slatures to choose the electors, and it was not until 1828 that presidential electors were chosen in nearly all the states by popular vote. As late as 1876 the Colorado legislature chose the three presidential electors to represent that state. There is nothing in the constitution to prevent any state legislature naming its own electors without appeal to the people provided such a method of election is prescribed by the state laws.

From 1800 to 1824 presidential candidates were chosen by the members of congress in caucus. In 1824 the electoral college failed to make a choice from the candidates so submitted, and the matter went to the house of representatives. Four years later Tennessee's legislature nominated Andrew Jackson without any reference to the congressional caucus. His opponent, John Quincy Adams, was nominated in the old way, but that was the end of presidential nominations by congressional caucus.

Gathered Him In.

"You look very much excited, dear," he said when she entered the parlor where he was waiting for her.

"Well, I should think I ought to look excited," she answered. "I've just had the most awful argument with ma." And she began to weep hysterically.

"Why, what is the matter, my darling?" he inquired as he slid an arm around her waist and endeavored to soothe her. "What was the argument?"

"Oh, how can I tell you? She said you were only trifling with me and that you would never propose, and I told her she did you a great injustice, for I believed that you would propose tonight. She said you wouldn't, and I said you would, and we had it hot and heavy. Dear George, you will not let ma triumph over me, will you?"

"W-why, certainly not," answered George.

"I knew it, my darling," the dear girl exclaimed; "come, let us go to ma and tell her how much mistaken she was."

And they did, and ma didn't seem to be very much broken down over the affair, after all.

Original Sin Out of Date.

It is doubtful if there ever was a time when people were more impressed with the idea of personality than they are today. In novels and in plays, as well as in real life, it no longer interests us to know what people do. We want to know what they are. Even in the nursery the personality of a child is not only recognized, but deferred to, a fact deplored by a woman of the old school, who indignantly exclaimed: "Personality, indeed! In my young days it was called 'original sin' and whipped out of a child." Far, however, from adopting these drastic measures, the modern parent, realizing

A Historical Treasury.

There is a grey stone building on Lime street, off Leadenhall street, in London, which holds as much Canadian history within its walls as any building in the world. It represents one of the most powerful influences in the making of Canada. Thousands of documents which not a few historical writers have longed in vain to handle, are stored on shelves and in cases, containing details of voyages and discoveries, dealings with Governments and Indians, which will become only more picturesquely historical and valuable with the passing of time.

Something to Learn.

What the people need to be taught—and they have already partly learned the lesson—is not that tuberculosis is a monster to be fled from, but that it is a danger which can be effectively overcome.—Dr. Foster, Editor New York Medical Journal.

Wood's Phosphodine, The Great English Remedy. Tones and invigorates the whole nervous system, makes new Blood in old Veins. The Hat and the Title.

There is an amusing English definition of "gentleman." It is "a man who wears a silk hat and if he has no other title insists upon having 'Esq.' added to his name when letters are addressed to him."

The west end Londoner of social pretensions accepts this definition in practice. Summer and winter, in rain or shine, he wears a high silk hat in the streets of London and carries it into the drawing room when he pays an afternoon call. It is only when he takes a train for the provinces or for the continent that he ventures to use more comfortable headgear. He also expects to have the distinction of "esquire" when a letter is addressed to him and is highly offended if he finds on the envelope the prefix "Mr." As a matter of fact, the number of English gentlemen who are legally entitled to the mediaeval honor of "esquire" is insignificant. It is a self assumed title which signifies nothing that is substantial in rank or privilege. In common use in London "esquire" simply means that the person so addressed does not choose to be associated with tradesmen and ordinary working people and that he is a "gentleman" who invariably wears a silk hat.

Mixed Metaphor.

The late Mr. Ritchie when chancellor of the exchequer once asserted that "the question of moisture in tobacco is a thorny subject and has long been a bone of contention." His immediate successor in office, Austen Chamberlain, remarked at the Liberal Union club's dinner that the harvest which the present government had sown was already coming home to roost.

Sir William Hart-Dyke has two conspicuous "howlers" to his credit—the description of James Lowther as having gone to the very top of the tree and landed a big fish and the comforting assurance that his government had got rid of the barbed wire entanglements and was now in smooth water. Among other political examples of mixed metaphor are the prediction ascribed to a labor member that if we give the house of lords rope enough they will soon fill up the cup of their iniquity and an Irish member's complaint that a certain government department is iron bound in red tape.—London Standard.

A Fable.

Once Upon a Time there was a Young Man who met Two Nice Girls, who were Constantly Together. Now, he was an Astute Young Man, and he desired to say Something Pretty and Agreeable to the Ladies, but he knew that if he paid a Compliment to One of them, No Matter which, the Other would be Hurt.

So he Thought Rapidly for a moment, and then he said:

"Ah, I know Why you Two Girls are Always Together!"

"Why?" asked the Two Girls.

"Because Everybody says that A Handsome Girl Always Chooses a Homely One as a Companion, So That Her Beauty may be Enhanced by the Contrast."

After Such a Remark, either Both Girls would be Angry with him or Delighted.

And what Do you think Happened?

The Two Girls Blushed and said he was A Flatterer and went their way Together, each Happy for Herself and Sorry for the Other.—London Answers.

The Flag.

On June 14, 1777, the Continental congress resolved that the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the Union be thirteen white stars on a blue field. On Jan. 13, 1794, by an act of congress, the flag was altered to fifteen red and white stripes and fifteen stars. On April 4, 1818, congress again altered the flag by returning to the original thirteen stripes and fifteen stars, as the adding of a new stripe for each additional state would soon make the flag too large. A new star is added to the flag on July 4 following the admission of each new state.—New York American.

Force of Habit.

"The question of enlarging the church comes up tonight, John, doesn't it?"

"Yes, dear, and we expect to have a lively time. They tell me the opposition to the pastor will be strong. Where's my overcoat? Oh, yes! And now I want the tin horn and the cowbell and the big rattle."

"Mercy, John, what are you going to do?"

"Do! Why, I'm going to root for the pastor."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Estimate.

"Old man Titewad must be worth a billion dollars," observes the man with the ingrowing mustache.

"Nonsense!" says the man with the dejected ears. "He hasn't over a hundred thousand to his name."

"But I was estimating it at what he would be worth if a dollar was as big as he thinks it is."—Chicago Post.

A Human Bungalow.

Pilkson didn't impress you favorably, then?"

"No; he's just a bungalow."

"A what?"

"A bungalow. He hasn't any foundation."—Newark News.

A Freak.

Jubb—Why, Jimmy, you look as if you'd grown four feet since I last saw you. Jimmy—Huh! I wisht I had. I'd exhibit in a dime museum as the "human quadruped" and get a pile of money, I would.

THE VENICE OF THE NORTH.

A Frist View of Danzig, the Romantic City of Melancholy.

A Baltic fog rolled in from the north as my train rolled in from the south, says Robert Haven Schauffler writing of "Romantic Germany—Danzig" in The Century, bringing an ideal hour for the first impressions of a city so full of northern melancholy, a city so far from the beaten track and so romantic as Danzig. Down a street full of gargoyles and strange stone platforms there loomed through the mist a monstrous church, crowned with pinnacles and a huge, blunt tower.

A gate that seemed like the facade of an Italian palace pierced by a triumphal arch opened on a street of fascinating old gables, and beyond them rose a rathaus with a most exquisite steeple. I passed between tall, slim palaces, through the arches of a water gate and came out by the river, to fill my lungs with a sudden draft of ozone and to realize that I was almost in the presence of the Baltic.

Toward the sea swept an unbroken line of romantic architecture, narrow, sharp gabled houses intermingled with towered water gates, and, last of all, the profile of the Krahn thor, or Crane gate, Danzig's unique landmark, its stories projecting one beyond another. On the island formed by two arms of the Mottlau the black and white of half timbered granaries started strongly out of the mist.

The river bristled with romantic shipping, and as I walked along the quay I caught, between the gables, the glow of the lights of the Langemarket flushing the fog into a rosy cloud, the centre of which was the steeple of the rathaus. It was as though beauty had been given an aureole.

I turned a corner and wandered along the shore of the island, past a deserted waterway and a strange, crumbling tower called the Milkcan gate, then back again to the Green bridge. The darkness had thickened so that one could no longer distinguish the separate house fronts, but all the lamps along the shore had their soft auras of mist, and the surface of the water was one delicate shimmer, with strong columns of light at regular intervals, among which the crimson lantern of a passing boat wrought amazing effects.

Where had I known such an evening before? As memory wandered idly about the harbor of Lubeck, the bridges of Nuremberg, the river sides of Wurzgurg and Breslau, I was flashed in a trice to the "siren of sea cities," that "floating film upon the wonder fraught ocean of dreams," and it came to me with a glow of pleasure that this place had from of old been called "the Venice of the north."

This, then, was my introduction to Danzig, and I never think of it without seeing streets full of high, narrow facades, melting one into another; gently curving streets, alive with rich reliefs; statues of blurred worthies and inquisitive gargoyles, the blunt, mighty Church of St. Mary looming above them like a mountain. I can never see the name of Danzig without beholding a dusky waterway lined with mediaeval structures and—strange juxtaposition—a jewel of reformation art with its rosy aureole.

Tragedy of a Kiss.

He had not known her very long, but as she stood in the moonlight a white dress and a blue sash set off her figure so well that he thought he had never seen a prettier picture. And then he did an awful thing—he kissed her. The innocent girl shrank from him in horror, and the young man realized that he had gone too far. Indeed, as the panting girl strove to collect herself sufficiently to express the scorn surging in her bosom the young man thought of the beating he must endure the next day from her father and brothers and of the long accounts of the fight that would appear in the newspapers. Fortunately he had his hat in his hand and turned to go. But the girl struggled to speak. She would express her contempt for his action though it killed her. "When," she said in a low faltering voice, full of deep seated hatred, "are you coming again?"

The Deafness of Mr. Blobbs.

Mr. Blobbs dined the other evening with some friends. When the guests were seated the host bent his head and began speaking in a subdued tone. "Eh, what's that?" demanded Blobbs, who sat beside him and who is rather deaf. The host smiled patiently and began again in a louder voice.

"Speak a little louder. I don't catch what you say," Blobbs persisted. A low ripple of laughter went round the table. The host, his face crimson with embarrassment, raised his voice still higher. The poor old man did his best to hear, but failed.

"What did you say?" he demanded irascibly.

The host cast him an angry glance. "Hang it, I'm saying grace!" he yelled.

Why He Thought So.

"Auntie," inquired the little nephew as the unbeautiful spinster stood gazing in the long mirror, "what are you thinking of?"

"I was thinking how my figure looks in the glass, Willie."

"I thought that was it!" quickly exclaimed the youth.

"What made you think so?" asked the aunt, her curiosity getting the better of her.

"Because you made such a wry face."

Helping the Children

Mr. A. E. Checker, of Belleville, agent of the Children's Aid Society, spent several days in Madoc last week looking after a couple of families who were in destitute circumstances. Two parties were brought before the magistrate. The first one was given over to their grandparents, while the latter ones were allowed to take other quarters with a promise to do better. In each case promises were given that the children would be cared for, and the magistrate gave each one a month's respite to carry out their agreement. —Madoc Review.

TWO BY-LAWS NOT APPROVED BY BOARD OF TRADE

was needed for further extensions of streets. He considered that the council had considered the matter and he for one, would vote for giving the money for street extensions.

Regarding the fair grounds by-law Mr. Moore was not so sure that it was in the best interests of the city. He formerly had the idea that exhibitions were for the benefit of the farmers. Nowadays cities and towns were interesting themselves in such matters and the speaker did not deny that towns and municipalities were benefited by two or three day shows. But the farmers received a large share of the benefit and there was no reason why they, through their county council, should not contribute half of the sum that was required. Thirty thousand dollars was a tidy sum and the interest on it each year would be a tidy sum. Thirty acres were contained in the land it was proposed to buy. This was a tidy piece of land. Only a year or two ago the land where the King Edward School now stands sold for $600 an acre. The fair grounds were further away and yet $1000 per acre was asked for it.

Regarding the financial condition of the city, Mr Moore said that the gross debt of the city on December 31st of this year would be $1.068.569.92.—debenture debt.

The available assets of the city were $600.000. assets that were as good as money, lying in the bank. The actual debt was therefore $4.000.000. This was not a large sum when it was considered the city had an assessment of $7.000.000.

MR. LARMONTH.

Mr J. H Larmonth spoke in favor of all the by-laws to a certain extent. He believed the Smith street bridge should be built. He did not consider the amount asked for was too great considering the permanency of the nature of the bridge. As there was a park on each side of the river at the point in question, it would be well to have a good appearing bridge. It would be necessary to have the bridge built quickly in order not to delay traffic and this was one of the reasons why the estimates were rather high.

Mr Larmonth was in favor of the street extension by-law. He was also in favor of the city supporting the fair but it appeared to him that a fair grounds should be secured for less than $30 000. He considered it would be well to go further south where grounds could be secured with a water front, which would add greatly to their attractiveness. He was in favor of giving the Fair Association money to assist in erecting buildings if grounds could be secured at a reasonable figure.

MR. R. H. LEARY.

Mr. R. H. Leary, President of the Fair Association, next spoke. He agreed with Mr Moore and Mr. Larmonth regarding the Smith street bridge and street extension by-law. Regarding the fair grounds by-law, he wished it understood that the $30 000 was not wanted to buy an exhibition grounds, but to buy land for park and recreation purposes in the south end of the city. A permanent home was needed for exhibition buildings. It would have to be done or the fair would have to be dropped which would be a bad thing for the city. Mr. Leary pointed out that in Toronto Ottawa, London and other cities and towns the corporations owned the fair grounds. It would be to Peterborough's advantage to do likewise.

MR. D. HUGHES CHARLES.

Mr. D. Hughes Charles favored the Smith street bridge by-law. Nothing was more needed than a new structure at that point. A good bridge should be built. He also favored the extension of the streets. It was better to extend them now as property was raising in price all the time.

Regarding the fair grounds by-law. Mr. Hughes Charles said that property which it was proposed to buy was not intended merely for an exhibition grounds but for park purposes. He was of the opinion, however, that the property was too dear at the price asked, $30,000. The present fair buildings were of no use and no value. Grounds could be secured for less money, and then the city could afford to assist in putting up buildings.

MR. WM. LANGFORD.

Mr. Wm. Langford said he was glad that citizens had been given an opportunity for discussion. He did not look at the fair grounds by-law seriously, and was sure it would not pass.

Mr. Langford admitted that a new bridge was needed at Smith street but $50,000 was too much to tie up in it. He gave figures showing that the interest and sinking fund on this sum meant a heavy drain on the civic finances. Mr. Langford submitted an estimate which he had secured from Mr. Cooper, an eminent engineer in New York, showing that a steel bridge with an eighteen-foot roadway and two sidewalks could be built over the river at Smith street at a cost of $32,000. It would be strong enough to carry all traffic, and at slight more expense could be made strong enough to hold street cars. This, however, was not the city's business. Mr. Langford had not much faith in the proposed concrete bridge. He was not sure of its permanency. He had seen the plans for it and they reminded him of the London bridge. It was a pretty bridge, but Peterborough couldn't afford it. He could not vote for the by-law in its present form.

MR. MELDRUM.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum, was in favor of the street extension by-law, if it were necessary to extend the streets now. However, he thought the city would spend the money to better advantage by developing electric power. This was what Peterborough needed to bring it to the front.

Mr. Leary (and he though the fair directors would agree with him) said he was not hanging out for the purchase of the Driving Park. What the exhibition people wanted was a fair grounds where they could erect permanent buildings.

MR. SHEEHY.

Mr. R. Sheehy opposed the exhibition grounds by-law. Thirty thousand dollars was too much for the grounds it was proposed to buy. The property was too valuable with the rapid growth of the south end of the city to be tied up as an exhibition grounds.

Mr. Sheehy was in favor of a new bridge at Smith street at a cost of from $20,000 to $30,000. He was going to vote against the fair grounds by-law. He concurred with Mr. Meldrum regarding the necessity of the city developing electric power.

MR. D. KENNEDY.

Mr. Dawson Kennedy came out strongly in favor of the city purchasing fair grounds. It would be a black-eye for the city to have the exhibition dropped.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman said he couldn't support the fair grounds by-law in its present form. He concurred with Mr. Langford regarding the Smith street bridge.

Mr Robert Fair said he would like to see the exhibition go ahead but could not see his way clear to support the proposed by-law. He thought Mr Langford's suggestion regarding the Smith street bridge was worth serious consideration. He was in favor of the street extensions.

Mr. W. H. Denham said he would like to see Peterborough have a good fair and hoped some means could be brought about to place the exhibition on a sound basis.

Ald. Johnston explained the action of the council in asking for $40 000 for the Smith street bridge.

Ald. Gillespie also dealt briefly with the Smith street bridge by-law.

The motions were then put and carried unanimously.

A SURPRISED MINISTER

"For many years I have been a sufferer from bronchial catarrh, and had despaired of anything like a cure. Judge of my pleasant surprise when I first used Hyomei, it has been a veritable godsend."—Rev. Charles Hartley, Sardinia, Ohio.

Thousands of catarrh sufferers have given up in despair. They have tried stomach dosing, snuff, sprays and douches without success, and now believe catarrh to be incurable.

But Wm. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, holds out hope to all distressed. He sells a remedy called Hyomei which is guaranteed for catarrh, colds, coughs, bronchitis, asthma and croup.

Hyomei —pronounced High-o-me — is medicated air, full of the healthy virtues of the mountain pines. You breathe in the delightful antiseptic air, and as it passes over the inflamed and germ ridden membrane it allays the inflamation, kills the germs and drives out the disease.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including a hard rubber inhaler, costs but $1.00 and an extra bottle of Hyomei if afterwards needed, costs but 50 cents. See Wm. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, about it today.

ZION CHURCH ENTERTAINMENT

A Very Large Audience and Excellent Programme---Given on December 16th.

A very pleasant and successful entertainment was held in Zion church on Dec. 16th. Standing room was at a premium for the house was literally packed. The programme lasted fully three hours and consisted of recitations, dialogues, solos, duets, instrumental music and choruses. The manner in which the scholars acquitted themselves spoke well for themselves as well as for those who trained them.

At the close of the entertainment the pastor, Rev. S. Crookshanks, asked Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Milburn to take seats on the platform, where they were presented with two beautiful chairs while a member of the school read the following address:—

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Milburn—We feel that we cannot let this opportunity pass without showing in some small measure, our appreciation of your work among us.

You have ever been energetic, earnest Christian workers and have formed two of the strong pillars of our Sabbath school. By your Christian example you have been a great help to us and though we cannot reward you we know that God can.

As a slight token of our appreciation we would ask you to accept these chairs. In future days as you sit in these, by your fireside, and "Fond memory brings the light of other days around you," may one of the brightest and dearest memories be that of the work God gave you to do in Zion Sunday school and which you both performed so nobly—

And now our earnest prayer is
May God be with you through all the years
Your earthly lives may run;
Share all you joys, soothe all your tears.
And when your journey's done
Bring you at last to that bright shore
Where ne'er we bid adieu;
Till we meet there to part no more.
We pray "God be with you."

Zion Sunday School.

Zion, Dec. 16th, 1908.

Although taken completely by surprise, Mr. Milburn thanked the school for their beautiful gift to Mrs. Milburn and himself, and expressed his great pleasure in being permitted to work for God and the benefit of the young in the neighborhood, hoping that the few good seeds He may have scattered had fallen into good soil and would bring forth an abundance of good fruit.

HER HOUSE IN ORDER.

China Closet the Pride of Up to Date Housekeeper's Heart.

One of the first things that the housekeeper to be thinks of when she has finished ascertaining the bare necessities of the household life is the china closet and its contents.

Few are the women who do not pride themselves on their china closet. Well arranged and full of handsome wares, it ranks among the best ornaments in the house. But a common trouble is that each meal finds it depleted for the table and the harmony of its arrangement destroyed. Now, silver of any sort has no standing in the china closet. It should be kept in separate boxes in the buffet drawer, and purely ornamental objects of silver, silver-gilt and cut glass ought to be confined to the buffet, for properly the china closet holds only china, glass and heavier clay wares.

In at least half the houses it is built into the wall. This disposes of location. But it is imperative to have good shelves and plenty of them. Sometimes it is possible to make the very high shelves answer by screwing hooks on the under sides and hanging there cups, mugs and little pitchers. Hang the saucers against the wall back of the cup by means of flat wire china racks. There may be a double or even a treble row of the racks. In filling them study colors as much as possible. With saucers put the biggest at the bottom unless this arrangement disturbs the color scheme. Leave the shelf surfaces plain and cover them with heavy linen cut to fit and ornamented with a line of drawn work. Heavy butcher's linen is best, and a pad of the same will safeguard the glassware shelf.

Claret jugs can be hung from the shelves. A corner position is best for them. Salvers and other flat things may go in racks at the back. In that case the shelf needs a padded linen at the back, like the shelf proper. Test hanging things by swinging them, so as to make certain they will not strike anything else.

Keep plates carefully sorted and piled, size and pattern together. Give big platters room on the lowermost shelf. If it is not properly grooved for them tack strips of lath along it and cut the linen for it wide enough to go in and out. Stand the platters on edge, the biggest next the wall, graduating them toward the front. With a very high shelf space they look prettier on end, the highest in the middle and getting smaller toward the sides.

Make the most of every good bit and set in a row in front of the flat ones.

REGULAR MEETING OF NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL WAS HELD

North Monaghan, Dec. 21.

The statutory meeting of the Township Council was held in the treasurer's office in the city of Peterborough on Tuesday, Dec. 15th, at 2 p.m. All the members were present, the Reeve, Mr. Brown, presiding. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. O. LePlante appeared before the Council and produced a plan of survey showing a sub-division of parks 13, 14 and 15 in township lot 15, in the 11 concession, and requested the Council to consent to the registration of the said plan.

Mr. Geo. Hatton also appeared and produced a play showing the sub-division of south part 1-4 of township lot 12 in the 13 con. and asked the Council to consent to the registration of the plan.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn, the township treasurer, presented the financial statement of the township for the year. This was adopted and the clerk was instructed to have it printed and published according to law.

The following accounts were handed in;

Thomas Brown, refund of dog tax, $1.00.

Estate of A. Macdonald & Co. material for bridges, $58.39.

B. Shortley, bag for township books $1.75.

J. Madill, gravel, 23 loads, $5.30.

R. Collin, culvert road div. No. 2, $5.00.

On motion of Messrs. May and Dobbin, the accounts as presented above were passed and ordered to be paid.

The township treasurer drew the attention of the Council to an error on the part of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in an entry in the township accounts, whereby the bank would lose the sum of $16.

On motion of Messrs. Howden and Foster, an order was authorised to be issued in favor of the treasurer to pay the Bank of Commerce the difference on the township account, caused by the error.

On motion of Messrs. May and Forster, the plan showing the sub. div. of south west 1-4 of lot 12 in 13 con. of the township of North Monaghan, was approved and the reeve and clerk were authorised to sign the same and attach the corporate seal thereto for the purposes of registration thereof.

On motion of Messrs. Howden and May, the application made by Mr. Le Plante for the consent of the Council to the registration of the plan of sub duv. of parks 13, 14 and 15, in township lot 15 in 11 con., was referred to the township solicitor. Orders were issued for the payment of of the following county school monies.

County treasurer, $1,992.64.

Jas. W. Lillico, S.S. No. 1 $575.

G. H. May, S.S. No. 2, $1200.

H. T. Adamson, S.S. No. 3, $475.

J. Smythe, S.S. No. 4, $275.

WHAT CHRISTIAN TEACHING IS ACCOMPLISHING FOR CHINA

Rev. Dr. MacKay Gives Interesting Address on the Missionary Work in That Country—Chinese Realize Importance of a Western Education—Spoke at Knox Church Last Last Night.

Speaking from his own experiences and observation, and being an eloquent and descriptive speaker, the address given at Knox church last evening by Rev. Dr Mackay, secretary of foreign missions for the Presbyterian church was one of unusual interest and importance. It was heard by a large audience representative of the different young people's societies of the churches of the city and the subject was missionary work in China.

The meeting was opened by prayer by Rev. Mr Keith, and scriptural reading by Rev Mr Potter.

Previous to the address, a selection was rendered by a quartette composed of Mrs Parker and Mrs Patton and Messrs Thompson and Davenport and a solo by Mr Potter.

In opening his lecture Rev Dr. Mackay gave a picture of missionary work in China, incidentally showing the great general upheaval of conditions in that country and the wonderful awakening in every sphere. He told of one of the greatest rivers in China and dwelt upon the immense amount of commerce it conveys. The different methods of conveyance in the country were spoken of and of the easy way in which those with tidings of the gospel. The speaker also pointed out the very fine character of the Chinese Christians and of the intense interest they show in the opportunities of Christian teachings in their own land. Dr Mackay then described this missionary tour through the country illustrating the modes of travel by wheelbarrow, cart and chair. He described the natural beauty of the Chinese scenery and some features of village life, the nature of the Chinese inn, the cordiality of the people and their intense curiosity with regard to foreigners and foreign customs.

A large part of the lecture was given to the description of the order of religious services among Christian Chinese.

After an address by the missionary conversation is elicited on either the subject under discussion or another practical, moral question.

The speaker referred to the responsiveness of the Chinese and their readiness to answer questions or report their own experiences as to how they came to accept the truth, through whose influence and the effect on their own lives. One of the most interesting employments of his own life Dr Mackay said had been the delight of getting from the simple-minded people the effects of the gospel in overcoming the opium habit and cleansing their lives from immoral practices.

In the vast number of villages an audience could be gathered anywhere and at these gatherings a deep interest was manifested —an interest that a few years ago was unknown. There was a great opportunity for young men or women who had ability to teach to make the best use of their gifts. The whole country was awake to the importance of western education and would have it if not from Christian missionaries, from unchristian sources, hence the importance of action, vigorously and immediately, by the Christian church.

TO DECORATE CHURCH.

The members of the Women's Guild of All Saints church are requested to meet on Wednesday afternoon and evening to help decorate the church.

BISHOP SCOLLARD IS SEVERELY CRITICIZED BY FRENCH-CANADIANS

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—The difficulty between the French-Canadians of North Bay and Bishop Scollard last June over the alleged refusal of Father O'Brien, the pastor, to permit the repetition of St. Jean Baptiste Day, music in the church on the Sunday following the feast, was discussed by the St. Jean Baptiste Society of Ottawa, yesterday in the monument National, and a resolution was passed commending those of the nationality who had so ably stood up for their rights on that occasion.

Copies of the resolution will be sent to Mgr. Scollard, Father O'Brien and the St. Jean Baptiste Society of North Bay.

In the course of the discussion, Mgr. Scollard came in for some criticism, and there were some who advocated a resolution of criticism.

The president, Mr. J. U. Vincent, brought the matter to the attention of the meeting and read the letters of the French-Canadians and of Mgr. Scollard in this connection. It was alleged also that the Bishop had had shown himself unfriendly to the French-Canadians in the diocese by refusing to recommend a bilingual school. Mr. Vincent suggested that a resolution of regret at these motions of the Bishop be passed. Mr. A. Allard and Mr. F. Moffett urged that further information be obtained before anything was done.

During the discussion Mr. G. Boutet intimated that in many parts of Ontario the fact that the French-Canadians did not get their rights was due to the Irish clergy.

ENGINEER HAS NEW PLANS FOR SMITH STREET BRIDGE

At the meeting of the Board of Works last night the following report on the Smith street bridge was read from City Engineer Hay:

Alderman Phelan, chairman Board of Works:—

Dear Sir,—In May 1906, I submitted a plan to the Board of Works for rebuilding Smith street bridge, for a two-span steel bridge truss of 150 feet each on concrete abutments, and piers at estimate as follows: 18 ft roadway and two walks, $37,200. 24 ft. roadway and two walks, $46,200

I considered it advisable to allow for contingencies and placed the cost at $40000 and $49,000 respectively. I now submit plan for reinforced concrete 3-arched span of 100 feet each, the net estimates as follows: For 18 ft. roadway and two walks, $37,500; 24 ft. roadway and two walks, $46,500; and allowing for contingencies the amounts would be $40,000 and $49,000.

If the latest design is adopted I am of the opinion that by leaving out the north sidewalk there, would be ample space if necessary for one street railway track on the north side, still leaving a roadway of 15 feet wide which would be sufficient for the traffic carried by that bridge and will save the cost of one sidewalk —$225 —and allow almost the road capacity of the higher priced bridge.

THE CAMERA CLUB MAY HOLD LARGE EXHIBIT NEXT SPRING

The Peterborough Camera Club was pleasantly entertained last night by Mr. and Mrs. Alan McCarthy, 612 Concession street, where they were provided with an excellent supper and spent a delightful evening. The regular meeting of the club was also held and the prize winners of the camera exhibit at the Y.W.C.A. in connection with the Domestic Arts and Crafts demonstration. The presentations were made by Mr. McCarthy, in the absence of the president, Dr. Morgan. They were awarded to the following, the names being given in order of the standing at the exhibition N. A. Howard Moore, R. Picard, S. Rose, Mrs. McCartly.

It was decided to hold a club exhibit in the club rooms on January 19th and every member is expected to put in two prints. An important move was the appointment of a committee to consider the matter of holding a big exhibit open to the world. To do this successfully it would require the co-operation of local and outside exhibitors. The time suggested is next spring and the committee will consider the practicability of the proposal and see what can be done in the meantime.

The Camera Club is making encouraging progress and is doing a great deal for the advancement of its members in all departments of amateur photography. The recent exhibit at the Y.W.C.A. was an especially fine one and the quality of the work displayed was a revelation to the numerous visitors.

KING CLOSES BRITISH HOUSE

Message From Throne Refers to Successful Issue of Treaties.

London, Dec. 22.—King Edward put an end to the present session of the British Parliament yesterday. Only a small muster of members was present to attend the brief prorogation ceremonies.

Referring to the conclusion of "several important agreements which by eliminating causes of contention must tend to the consolidation of peace," the King says, "among these may be mentioned the treaties with the United States for general arbitration and for regulating certain questions between the U. S. and Canada; and an agreement for the maintenance of the existing territorial statue of the regions bordering on the North Sea."

"The affectionate reception given the Prince of Wales by all classes" during his recent presence in Canada receives especial cordial mention.

King Edward has almost entirely recovered from his recent indisposition. His Majesty returned from Brigton yesterday to sign the prorogation speech, and will go to Sandringham Castle for Christmas

NIGHT RIDER TURNS STATE'S EVIDENCE

Member of Band Testifies—Told of Many Outrages.

Union City, Tenn., Dec. 22.—Surrounded by a detail of soldiers and many armed deputies, Frank Fehringer, member of the night riders, who has turned state's evidence, was brought into court yesterday to testify against his former associates, eight of whom are on trial charged with the murder of Capt. Rankin, a prominent attorney.

The witness recounted many outrages committed by the band, and then told of the murder of Capt. Rankin. He said: "On Oct. 19 the riders learned that Rankin and Col. Taylor were at the Walnut Log Hotel. The band, including the eight defendants, proceeded that night to the hotel. Garrett Johnson gave the orders to Rankin and Taylor to dress quickly.

As the rope was put around Rankin's neck, Fehringer said to the victim: 'Do you want to say anything to the Lord? If you do, say it now.'

"Rankin said: 'I have attended to that.'

"Just as they pulled the rope, witness said, "Bob Hoffman shot Rankin, and Sam Applewhite then said: 'I know he is dead, for I put a load of bicyle ball bearings in him.'"

WILKINS SAYS HE AND MALONE WERE PARTNERS

Simcoe Had Fine Police Force

Wounded Officer Admits Having Stolen Furs---Why The Chief Shot Him.

Simcoe, Dec. 23.—Constable Wilkins, who is lying in the local sanitarium with four revolver bullets in this body, has confessed to having stolen between $200 and $300 worth of furs from the store of S. M. Sovereen, and he says that Chief Malone, who is locked up in the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to murder him, also had a hand in the robbery.

This admission, if true, may go far towards confirming the wounded constable's explanation of a motive for the attempt made upon his life, namely, that Malone wanted to get rid of him because he "knew too much."

When he was owning up to the fur robbery, Wilkins said he was willing to go ahead and explain a whole lot of depredations that have occurred in this town within the past year, but those to whom he was talking would not permit him to speak further, advising that he keep his information until Malone's hearing comes off.

Wilkins' confession was made to S. M. Sovereen, dry goods merchant, and his son, Arthur, who visited the sick man to enquire how two fur coats and a quantity of women's furs, which had been stolen from the store, came to be found hidden away in his house.

The search of Wilkins' house was made Monday. Malone's trial was adjourned yesterday until Tuesday at 10 o'clock. It is altogether improbable that the physicians attending Wilkins' will pronounce him recovered sufficiently by that time to give evidence. In the latter event the hearing will be again traversed.

Malone still protests his innocence of the attempt upon his colleague's life, and declares his acquittal is certain.

Wilkins' desire to "tell more," if encouraged would doubtless have thrown considerable light upon many criminal mysteries that had been puzzling the Simcoe people for months prior to the shooting affray.

Unaccountable robberies, burglaries, thefts and fires occurred frequently and almost regularly, all of which stopped suddenly when the police force was in jail or in bed.

It also appears that the music store of Martin Bros. was burglarized some time ago and twenty piano draperies stolen. Ten of these were found on the verandah of Mr. L. Y. Atkinson's house last week, and Mr. Martin, learning of Mr. Sovereen's find, proceeded to Wilkins' home, where he found the remaining ten draperies.

P. C. Wilkins, learning that the stolen goods had been discovered, sent for Mr. Sovereen Monday night and confessed to him that he had entered his store at the suggestion of and accompanied by Chief Malone, and that the chief had insisted on his taking the coat while the chief appropriated the other articles. He explained that the door was left unbolted, but Mr. Sovereen is of the opinion that a skeleton key was used. Wilkins also stated that it was Malone who forced him to take the piano draperies out of Martin's store on a Saturday night, and that they divided the twenty between them.

Wilkins states that he did not assist at the burglary of Madden Bros.' store, where the till was broken into and about $150 stolen, but he knows that this was Malone's doing. The theft of about $1,500 worth of furs from the store of the H. S. Falls Co. was not, in his opinion, the work of the chief. The theft of about $160 in cash and checks from the E. H. Jackson Co. he also disclaims any knowledge of, but states that he will not clear the chief of that act.

It is also stated that the return of the stolen goods was the outcome of the investigations of a private detective engaged by the defence. Detective Miller is still in town investigating the case on behalf of the crown.

CHALLENGED NORMALITES TO A DEBATE

The Philomathean Society of the Collegiate Institute has forwarded a challenge to the Normal School students to meet them in a debate. The subject proposed is, "Resolved, that a lawyer should not defend a prisoner of whose guilt he is cognizant."

The debate will likely take place early in January."

WROTE WHILE BABES STARVED

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 23.—In a little cottage in Pasadena, the rooms of which are bare of furniture, but heaped with books and typewritten manuscripts one child is dead and physicians are fighting for the lives of two others, who are critically ill from starvation.

The father of the babes, Warren Edward Brokaw, admits that while he and his wife busied themselves in writing books the children went hungry.

Brokaw was once editor of The Single Tax Courier of St. Louis, and was an intimate associate of Henry George. He says that he got down to his last dregs of poverty in an attempt to work out a theory of balanced land tenure.

TRIAL OF THE NIGHT RIDERS

Eight are Brought Handcuffed Into Court to Answer for Outrages.

Union City, Tenn., Dec. 23.—The eight defendants in the night riders trial were brought into court yesterday handcuffed in pairs with a detail of two soldiers for each pair. The soldiers with rifles halted at the court room door, and other soldiers armed with revolvers met the prisoners at the threshold and escorted them to the bar.

Judge Shaw was the first witness. He said the riders forced him to give them oil to pour on the fish docks when they were burned and later whipped him when he tried to go before the grand jury.

They gave him his choice of a switching or hanging. He told them he was not anxious to endorse either, but that if he had to make a choice he would prefer the whipping.

Martin Leonard, another farmer near Reelfot Lake, was visited by the riders and was given five days to move under penalty of being hanged. His home was burned.

EXPRESSES THANKS TO THE CITIZENS

Who Assisted the English Consumptive---$112.90 Received

City Relief Officer Finch Miller, has received the following letter of thanks from Fred J. Farthing, the man who is suffering from consumption and for whom the money was collected to send him and his wife and two children to the Old Country. It is as follows:

227 Park St,
Peterborough, Ont.

F W Miller, Esq.,

Dear Sir,—Allow me to thank the generous and open hearted friends who so readily contributed to the fund raised on my behalf. Also to the local press for the assistance which they rendered and yourself for the interest you have taken. I fully appreciate every effort made on my behalf and deeply regret that my health forces me to leave the city where I met with so much kindness.

Yours thankfully,
FRED J. FARTHING.

Received from F W Miller, tickets $102.90 and cash $10.00.

At Hamilton market $6300 were collected in fees this season.

Mrs Hill, wife of Venerable Archdeacon Hill of St Thomas, is dead.

AN APPEAL TO CITIZENS

Peterborough citizens are asked to contribute towards providing Christmas cheer for the poor families of Peterborough. Gifts for the children are especially acceptable and it is hoped that there will be a generous response to this appeal. Gifts of candies, oranges, nuts, apples, children's clothing, in fact anything that will please the little folks at Christmas, are asked for.

The distribution of Christmas cheer will be under the direction of the Children's Aid Society, under the personal supervision of Mr. George Cochrane.

Gifts for the children can be left at the Review office. Send them in as early as possible. They should all be in by Thursday noon as the distribution will be made Thursday afternoon.

MANY ACCIDENTS IN PETERBOROUGH

Several Casualties of Recent Happening---Woman Fell Over Tub and Fractured Ribs---Limbs Broken by Falls.

Yesterday was a day of accidents in Peterborough. If it was Friday, the 13th, there might be some accounting for it. The slippery sidewalks were responsible for three of the accidents.

Fractured Shoulder Blade

Mrs. Muskrat, from the Indian reserve at Hiawatha, met with a bad accident while crossing the Hunter street bridge yesterday afternoon. She slipped and fell and fractured her shoulder blade. She was removed to St. Joseph's hospital where she is getting along nicely.

Two Ribs Fractured

Mrs. Tetro, who resides at 505 Bethune street, was the victim of a peculiar accident yesterday afternoon. While walking about the house she slipped on a piece of damp oil cloth and fell over a tub. She was severely shaken up and when a doctor arrived he found that the unfortunate woman had fractured two ribs. She is getting along as well as can be expected.

Gash in Forehead

The little son of Mr. Harry Riches, 141 George street, fell off a chair last evening and in alighting struck his head on a sharp piece of tin. A severe gash was inflicted. A doctor was called and several stitches were required to bind the cut.

Fractured Leg

Michael Murphy, Louis street, had the misfortune to have his left leg broken this morning. He was walking along the street when he slipped and fell, falling in such a manner that a small bone in his left leg was fractured. Dr Young was called and the injured man was removed to St. Joseph's hospital, where he is now progressing favorably.

Right Arm Broken

Mr J. S Martin, 224 Dublin street sustained painful injuries yesterday afternoon while walking along the street. He too fell on the slippery sidewalk and broke his right arm at the wrist. A doctor was called and set the injured limb.

CHEAPER CABLES

Predicted by Hon. R. Lemieux in New York---Change in Tariff.

New York, Dec. 23.—That not only cheaper, but very much cheaper, rates for cablegrams across the Atlantic are near at hand, was the confident assertion of Rodolphe Lemieux, the Postmaster-General of Canada, yesterday afternoon on the eve of his departure for Canada after a day spent in this city following his arrival from Europe Monday night.

"The reform has been accomplished on the Pacific," declared Mr. Lemieux, "and it will soon come about on the Atlantic."

Mr. Lemieux said the movement had recommended itself to influential interests in the United States also, but he declined to be questioned as to whether or not the United States Government had been or would be approached by Canada or Great Britain in the matter.

If the cable companies would make the reductions that would satisfy the Governments, according to Mr. Lemieux, then there would be no new cable laid across the Atlantic, and he believed that that was what was likely to happen. In any event, he added he had received such assurances in London that he felt almost certain that the day of very much cheaper cabling between Europe and America was not distant.

Mr. Lemieux said the demand on the Atlantic cable companies, which was expected to come to a conclusion this spring, was not for an ordinary rate of two pence, namely, four cents a word, as he said was erroneously supposed in many quarters. It had been proposed, instead, that messages be divided into several classes, such as urgent, semi-urgent and deferred, for instance, and charged for accordingly, but in any event the rate to be considerably lower than the prevailing shilling or 25 cent rate. Mr. Henniker Heaton, known in England as the father of penny postages, who has taken an active part in the movement for lower cable rates, wanted an even lower charge, namely a penny or two cents a word, he said. If a state-owned cable is to be laid, it is the belief of Mr. Lemieux that it would eventually admit of a charge of five cents a word.

SLIDE OPENS THIS EVENING

Tobogganists Will Enjoy Sport at Jackson Park---Rink Open Christmas Day

The street railway's company's toboggan slide at Jackson Park opens for the season to-night. This is an announcement which the lovers of this popular sport in Peterborough have been awaiting for some time, and there will be a big crowd of them on hand for the opening to-night.

Several improvements have been made at the slide, and the assurance is given that it will be found in first-class condition. A check room has been fitted up in the building where the box-bowling alley was formerly located. Coats, parcels, skates, etc., can be picked there. A refreshment booth will also be conducted, where hot rinks and other refreshments can be secured at reasonable prices.

The open air skating rink will be ready for Christmas day, when there will be skating, morning, afternoon and evening.

TURKEYS IN GREAT DEMAND AT MARKET

Christmas Market To-day a Large One---High Prices

The Christmas market was held this morning. A large number of buyers and sellers were in attendance. Turkeys and geese were much in demand and quickly picked up. Turkeys sold at from $1.25 to $3.50 and geese from one to two dollars. Butter sold at 26 cents a pound and eggs at 30 cents per dozen

BECAME ILL ON THE TRAIN

Mr. Baker of Peterboro' Fainted on Platform at Port Hope

Port Hope, Dec. 22—Mr Baker, a passenger on the 1.07 train from the east was taken suddenly ill at the station here today. He was unwell when he boarded the train at Cobourg, and the hot car increased his illness. When he stepped off here the sudden cold atmosphere was too much for him and he fainted falling full length on the platform. It caused quite a commotion for a time but Dr. Powers was soon on hand and administered to the sufferer. Mr Baker remained in the station until 4.20 when he left for his home in Peterborough.

The new wing of the Collegiate Institute at Brockville has been opened.

Joseph Evans accidentally shot himself with his own gun near Elk Lake British Columbia.

GOMEZ FOILS PLOTTERS; TWO ASSASSINS ARRESTED

EXPENDITURE IS JUSTIFIED

Hays Says Saving in Haulage Will Pay for Big Investment.

Montreal, Dec. 23.—General Manager Hays of the Grand Trunk, who returned from London yesterday, says he called particular attention while abroad to the fact that the grades of the Grand Trunk Pacific lines are exceptionally low.

Over 2,000 tons can be put into Prince Rupert behind a single engine, while the nearest to this that can be done by any transcontinental line in North America is 572 tons, which is accomplished by some of the United States railways.

It is in getting these low grades and the huge benefits resulting from them that the "generous expenditures" which opponents make so much talk about are being made, declared Mr. Hays. When it is realized that the easy grades mean a hauling capacity per engine vastly greater than that of any other transcontinental road, Mr. Hays thinks the expenditure is fully justified.

A Chimney Fire

The fire brigade were called to a chimney fire at 510 Charlotte street, at 6.15 last night. The blaze was soon put out and no damage resulted.

Conspiracy To Kill The New Ruler

Frustrated by Nervy Action of Latter---Plotters Seized in the Barracks.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 21, via Willemstad, Curacoa, Dec. 23.—The downfall of President Castro in Venezuela was completed Saturday last with the frustration of a desperate plot to assassinate Juan Vincente Gomes, the acting President of the republic.

A prominent lawyer has filed an accusation in the High Federal Court charging President Castro with complicity in the attempted assassination and proposing his impeachment.

There was a meeting Friday night of the plotters in the residence of Garbinas Guzman, who was Secretary-General in the last Castro Cabinet, and who was placed in charge of President Castro's personal business in Venezuela when the President left for Germany.

The conspirators decided upon a coup d'etat. They determined to assassinate Acting President Gomez, Jose De Jesus Paul, the Foreign Minister; Gen. Leopoldo Baptiste and other prominent men; seize the administration of the country and with the army terrorize and overcome the population.

Torres-Cardenas, who was at one time Minister of the Interior under President Castro and later his personal secretary, was the active leader of the conspiracy. He was entrusted with the carrying out of the plot. He had as lieutenants the commanders of three battalions.

In spite of the precautions taken an intimation of what was on foot reached the ears of Acting President Gomez. As soon as he had satisfied himself of the truth of the reports he took immediate steps to frustrate the attempt.

Early Saturday morning he went alone on foot to the barracks in Caracas, where a mutinous regiment under the command of President Castro's brother was quartered. With unexampled courage he entered the building and placed the brother of the President under arrest. The cool nerve of Gomez made it possible for him to carry out this dangerous manoeuvre successfully.

He then went to the "yellow house," the executive mansion, where he had a brief interview with Torres Cardenas. The chief of the conspirators maintained a defiant attitude and denied the existence of any plot. Gomez would not be deceived by such assurances. He seized Torres-Cardenas by the shoulders, and, shaking him roughly, said: "I have discovered your plot to assassinate me. You are my prisoner."

Torres-Cardenas tried to use his revolver on the acting President, but Gomez was too quick for him. He pinioned the man's arms and called the guard. Torres-Cardenas was seized and disarmed and hurried away to jail.

These two arrests, made single-handed by Gomez, broke the back of the plot.

The public rallied to the support of the new President, and are well pleased with the new state of affairs. Venezuela's international disputes will be immediately settled.

The Bank of Venezuela has cabled its correspondent at Berlin and Paris cancelling the unlimited letter of credit given to President Castro.

There is to be a general reorganization of the Government. The fall of President Castro leaves no obstacle in the way of settling the various international questions confronting the republic.

The new Administration has revoked the decree prohibiting the transhipment at Willemstad of goods destined for Venezuelan points. This measure has been the principal difficulty in the strained relations between Holland and Venezuela, and revocation is regarded by well-informed persons as meaning practically the settlement of the dispute between the two Governments.

THE WEATHER

Fair and cold. Thursday a little higher temperature.

LICENSE NOT YET TRANSFERRED

The news item in the Review of yesterday referring to the intended transfer of the Crown Hotel license was premature. The Review is informed that the license commissioners have not considered the question at all as yet.

FIREMAN KILLED NEAR CORNWALL

Cornwall, Dec. 23.—William Hargrave of Brockville, a fireman on an eastbound Grand Trunk freight train, fell off his locomotive on the Black river bridge, west of Lancaster, Monday night, and was picked up with a fractured skull and a broken leg. He died yesterday in the Cornwall General Hospital.

How Hargrave fell off is a mystery that will never be solved. His comrade, the engineer, did not miss him for several miles. He reported his disappearance, and section men sent out from Lancaster with a hand car found Hargrave on the bridge, which was the scene of a similar accident a couple of years ago.

PHOTOGRAPHED GRAFTING SENSATIONAL EVIDENEC

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 23.—A flashlight photograph of a member of the council in the act of accepting money from a decoy "promoter," it is said, will be one of the strongest features of the evidence to be presented to-day, when seven members of the council and two former bank officials are to be given a preliminary hearing on charges of bribery, corrupt solicitaton and other illegal acts brought by the Voters' League.

This picture, it is said, was taken in a private room in a down-town hotel Monday night, immediately before the councilman was arrested.

Besides the councilman, the flashlight photograph is said to show an agent of the Hufling Detective Agency of Scranton, Pa., which worked up the cases. This man is reported to have posed as a member of a firm anxious to sell wooden paving blocks to the city and to have become very intimate with the councilman. With other detectives concealed within hearing distance the councilman is alleged to have been induced to tell of the negotiations to secure the passage of the legislation, to name the other members who were to share in the bribe and to say that the members were tired of promises and wanted to see his real money.

Taking $100 and $500 bills from a large roll of bills, and just as the councilman reached for his allotment, the flash was ignited. The councilman, it is said, broke down and wept, and when he accused his companion of trapping him there was no denial. Then the officer appeared and made the arrest.

CHARGES MADE AGAINST THE DEPUTY MINISTER

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—The Cassels commission put in another strenuous session yesterday and hope to wind up the investigation some time to-day.

The feature of the afternoon session was the re-examination of Col. Gourdeau, Deputy Minister of the Marine Department, who was called upon to explain a large number of matters which the counsel for the commission regarded as suspicious.

Col. Gourdeau denied that there was anything wrong about a certain sale of gin he made to Mr. Cunningham of Ottawa shortly after the death of Mr. Prefontaine. He said the purchase had been made in an irregular manner from Mr. Strubbe of Montreal and when the public accounts committee got busy with the Marine Department matters he decided in order to protect the name of the Minister to sell the gin and return the money to the Receiver-General.

Cunningham had paid him half the price of the gin, $75, and he had put up the other half himself.

Col. Gourdeau denied that a portion of the silverware ordered for the steamer Montcalm had been delivered at his house. It developed that in 1905 a boat which Col. Gourdeau had sold for $300 early in the summer was re-purchased in November by Mr. Fraser, commissioner of lights, for $750. Col. Gourdeau said that he did not know till six months after the purchase that it was the boat he had once owned. Between the time of the sale by Col. Gourdeau and the purchase by the Department a new engine was installed in the craft.

THE LATEST CABLE AND TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Fire In New York Theatre.

New York, Dec. 23.—Fire broke out in the Herald Square Theatre at Broadway and Thirty-Fifth street just after the audience left the theatre last night.

The fire was under control within a half hour, comparatively little damage having been done to the building.

Some time after the fire was practically out, the theatre gallery fell and a moment later 35 feet of the roof on the Broadway end of the building came down. The loss is estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000. Lee Shuber and Lew Fields are the lessees of the theatre.

Forty-Five Stables Crippled.

New York, Dec. 23.—Strike leaders yesterday ordered out 1,000 men still at work in 15 stables. This means that 2,600 men will be on strike and 45 stables badly crippled or idle.

Disorders broke out last night, when stone-throwing at cabs in operation were reported to the police.

Suicides In Cell.

North Bay, Dec. 23.—Hetesphore Boileau, aged 25, with a wife and two children in Matheson, committed suicide in the police station last night by hanging, tearing a blanket into strips for the purpose. Boileau had been drinking for several days.

Windsor, Dec. 23.—Edward Brian, son of M. A. Brian of the plumbing firm of Pennington & Brian, has been appointed city engineer, to succeed George Hanes, who has accepted a position in Vancouver.

Testimony Manufactured.

Flushing, N.Y., Dec. 23.—Lawyers for Thornton Jenkins Hains assert to-day that every effort will be put forth to shatter that part of Mrs. Helene E. Annis' testimony that the defendant beckoned his brother and the two men went to the float where Capt. Hains shot and killed William E. Annis as he was making a landing with his boat.

This evidence Hains' counsel declare was suggested to Mrs. Annis in order that her testimony might bring the defendant within the meaning of the statute that there must be some overt act to show that he induced or procured his brother to commit the crime.

Unfair Rates.

Washington, Dec. 23.—Forty-two flour milling concerns filed a complaint against the Great Northern Railway Co., and 27 other interstate carriers, alleging that the rates—all rail and rail and water—from Minneapolis to the Atlantic seaboard on flour are excessive, unreasonable and discriminatory, in that it costs them more to ship their flour from Minnesota points to the Atlantic seaboard than it costs Buffalo millers to ship spring wheat from Duluth points to Buffalo and the ground flour from Buffalo to Atlantic seaboard points.

Sues Fowler For Share.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 23.—A. B. Pugsley of Sussex, cousin of Hon. Dr. Pugsley, is suing George W. Fowler, ex-M.P., for one-thirtieth share of the profits in the famous Fowler-Pope-Lafurgey land deal.

B. C. Apples Are Good.

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—J. S. Larke, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Sydney, Australia, comments favorably upon the timely shipments of British Columbia apples, which have just reached the Australian market, being a trifle larger than the fruiters are accustomed to handle. The apples are being retailed for three pence apiece, and are bringing splendid prices.

Lucky Q.O.R. Officers.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Sir Henry Pellatt and the staff officers of the Queen's Own Rifles have been invited to review the Twenty-Third Regiment at New York. The review is to be held on Jan. 16. Sir Henry Pellatt said last night that the invitation will probably be accepted.

The Queen to Gen. Booth.

London, Dec. 23.—Queen Alexandra's well known interest in the Salvation Army was emphasized in a telegram to Gen. William Booth, commander-in-chief of that body, who was on Friday operated upon for a cataract, saying:

"I have felt so much for you and hope the operation may be successful. I trust you are getting on towards complete recovery and that the sight you need so much will soon be entirely restored."

Gen. Booth's physicians believe he will recover his sight.

Dental Office Robbed.

Woodstock, Dec. 23.—Burglars effected an entrance into Dr. Davidson's dental office some time Monday night and carried off $40 worth of gold-filling and false teeth valued at $100.

The door of the office had been forced with a "jimmy" and the job was done in a professional manner. There is no clue to the perpetrators, who are thought to be an organized gang.

Bridegroom Sent to Jail.

Chatham, N.B., Dec. 23.—William Mahaney and bride, formerly Mrs. Roselle McCarthy, who broke quarantine two weeks ago in order to get married, were released from quarantine yesterday morning, and were before Magistrate Connors on a charge of breaking quarantine regulations. Each was fined $40. Mahaney could not pay the fine and was sent to jail for forty days.

City Wants Legislation to Save $[illegible].

Kingston, Dec. 23.—The City Council Monday evening passed a resolution asking the Ontario Government to change the law whereby Kingston's magistrate requires to be given a salary of $2,000 a year and cease the practice of law.

The lawyers of Kingston are all agreeable to Police Magistrate Farrell being allowed to continue as at present to receive a salary of $1,400 from the city and continue his law practice.

War on Social Clubs.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 23.—The liquor department is busy conducting an unostentatious law effective campaign on social clubs in this city where liquor is dispensed to members, although so quietly that the general public is not aware of the movement.

Hotelmen are credited with the temperance movement, as the clubs infringe on their prerogatives.

THE PROTEST

It will be remembered that the respondent's counsel, Mr Watson, K.C. in concluding his argument against the service of the protest said, "The petitioners have allowed the protest to fail for reasons best known to themselves." This insult was wholly needless and cannot be accounted for on any other ground than that of a desire to inflict injury where it was hoped an opportunity would open for further explanation or redress. The motion to dismiss the protest for want of proper service has been itself dismissed. The Examiner talks a lot of nonsense about the plain reading of the statute. In the section referring to the service of the petition of protest the word "shall as employed by the Examiner, is not there at all. A direction for service is given in the statute necessarily, but it in no sense excludes either by implication or otherwise, the rules of High Court procedure upon which the judge's answer to the respondent is founded. In fact, these rules of procedure govern all statutes or emanate from them and while a drowning man catching at a straw might not be to adopt the first idea that occurred to him, a more reasoned and logical course would be as has been herein proven that which the judge himself has approved. There will, no doubt, be other motions and appeals seeking to delay the progress of the protest on its way to trial but it will "get there" in the end there need be no fear of that. We have been highly amused at various "alarming rumors" that have been circulated from time to time which will now have to be revised or explained away as the Examiner attempts in its issue of Tuesday evening. When we get the proper judgment we will publish it so that the facts of the case so far may be placed before the public as they are and not with any local colour attaches to them. But the base imputation of Mr. Watson will long be remembered as a cowardly attempt to besmirch the reputation of men at least as honest and as honourable as himself.

THE CASSELS INQUIRY

The Cassels inquiry resumed at Ottawa on Wednesday, has made some progress, but leaves much to be learned of greater importance than the matters disclosed. The Court spent most of the first day in pursuit of a payment of $500 sent by the Polson Company of Toronto to Commander Spain, who was then in Victoria, B.C. Mr. Spain admitted that the money was sent him by Mr. Polson by wire, but declared that Mr. Polson sent it to be invested by Spain in land at Fort Simpson, whither the Commander expected to go with Mr. Prefontaine. He did not go to Simpson, and swears that he returned to Mr. Polson in Toronto a few weeks later the very money he had received. But the Polson firm books set forth that the $500 was charged as a firm account to disbursements, and that there is no record of repayment. Mr Polson is dead and the officers of the firm could throw no light on the matter.

THIS IS LARGER GAME.

While pursuing this subject, government counsel ran into several large payments by the firm to what is called "special" account. These payments were made in cheques payable in "cash." Mr. Tindall, treasurer of the Polson Co., testified that he drew the cheques and sometimes took out the money, giving either the cheque or the money to the late F. B. Polson. At this time Mr. H. B. Miller practically owned the Polson business and Mr. Polson was the manager with a share in the profits. The strange thing is that neither the treasurer, Mr. Jeffrey, the secretary, or Mr. Miller himself, who supplied the money, knew what became of these sums. Mr. Miller was asked:

"Did you ever ask Polson about it?"

"I may have asked him, but I never got an answer, if I did."

"Were you content to let it go at that?"

"Yes, I trusted Mr. Polson."

Now these payments included $4 000 on the 20th of October, 1904, and $10,000 on the 18th. When it is remembered that the Dominion elections took place Nov. 3rd, 1904, and that between September, 1902, and January, 1906, the Department of Marine paid the firm $686 456, it would appear that these matters were as well worth investigation as Commander Spain's $500.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"The family is the basis of our social and national life and the purity of marriage is the basis of family life," said Dean Farthing as he began his sermon to students now in the city, in St. George's cathedral, at evensong, on Sunday. "The status of marriage is the barometer of a nation's power," he went on and then showed how the fall of the older nations of the world had come when women ceased to be man's companion and the marriage bond came to be held in light regard.

Touching on divorce, the preacher said that it was to the everlasting glory and honor of the Canadian church that she had, at general synod in 1905, forbidden her priests to remarry those divorced, no matter what the cause. "The mysterious, God-made union of life, could never be dissolved by the decree of man.

The dean has small patience with a woman striving to be a man's equal. "She is his equal now, but in a different way. Them each is the helpmeet for the other." In scathing tones and words the preacher denounced those who talk of a "good" marriage for a girl, meaning thereby, that the man has money, when most likely he is a gilded reprobate. "Love, true pure, love, is the only possible basis of a "good" or happy marriage, and children its crowning joy. Pity the home where there is not the softening influence of a little child." The dean quoted Augustine's words: "If God wanted woman to rule man, He would have taken her from his head; if He desired her to be his slave, He would have taken her from man's feet but as He intended woman for man's companion, He took her from his side". "And so, side by side, in the joy and the sorrows of life they go; till their true, pure love is merged in the great love of God."

Of late years much more attention is paid to the manner in which one's Christmas gifts are tied up and addressed. It is a well known fact that more pleasure is derived in the receiving of a daintily wrapped parcel than in one that is hastily tied up an despatched without much care.

Nowadays no parcel is really complete without a pretty little holly card with the donor's name put inside. The parcels, then the wrappings are sealed with small holly or Santa Claus seals and the address within on a holly label or tag.

There are also several styles of cards labels, tags and seals, and they are all equally pretty. They are all on sale at the Review office, together with many other materials and Xmas gifts.

The Sale of Debentures

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—To avoid trespassing on your space I cut short my last letter in reply to the Mayor and dealt only with the large deficit on current account. Unfortunately a rush of other matters has prevented me writing a reply to his answer re the sale of debentures until to-day, but would like now to correct some mere "misleading" statements in the Mayor's defence.

Mr. Rush admits that the sale made this year of debentures was extravagant and costly, but seeks to throw the blame on the Council of 1907 for their failure to sell these debentures. What are the facts? When the Council of 1907 took office they found $53,000 of debentures nearly ready for sale for sewers and sidewalks of the two preceding years, all computed at four per cent. and no sale possible at that rate. We made an arrangement with the Commissioners of the city trust to take up those for the sewers and had to raise the rate to 4 1-2 per cent. in order to sell those for sidewalks. At no time during the year could we have sold our debentures at less than 4 1-2 per cent., and rather than sell at that rate 12 1-2 per cent. higher than the rate at which we had been selling for years—the Mayor, the Finance Committee, the whole Council of 1907, agreed to hold back the sale and if necessary pay the bank an increased rate for temporary loans. Mayor Rush knows, or ought to know, these facts, and he has no right to misrepresent the facts to throw blame on his predecessor.

How does the action of the present Mayor compare. Instead of trying to save the money of the present and future taxpayers he sells an unprecedented quantity of debentures at the worst possible time. Instead of trying to satisfy the Bank by partial sale he sells $190,000 of debentures to cover an overdraft of $138,000, when he took office. To get down to exact figures. It would have been cheaper for the city to have paid the bank 16 per cent. and sold the debentures at the rate now prevailing than to have made such a sale as Mayor Rush made this year. If the rate goes down to 4 per cent. before the spring, as seems probable, the city would have been better off paying 22 per cent. for one year. It is publicly said that there are $3,000,000 on deposit in the banks of this city. Does anyone mean to say that an offer from the city to pay 6 per cent. for one year loans in small amounts would not have been jumped at by people getting 3 per cent. in the banks to an amount far in excess of the $300,000 required by the city. All that was needed was a little grit and foresight in the Mayor's chair and the city will pay $1,500 a year for the next thirty years for the lack of these qualities at a critical time.

One other remark. The Mayor would like to hide behind the responsibility of the Finance Committee. The Mayor knows that almost the same men composed that Council last year and that it did nothing in regard to the finances except with their approval, but when I was being attacked in the last elections and when he was permitting himself to be the instrument of an attack, which he knew to be false, did he say one word about the responsibility of the Finance Committee, instead of the Mayor. Does the Mayor consider it an honorable course to win an election under false colors and then squirm when the same test is applied to him.

I charge that both in the sale of debentures and in the spending of this year's funds the present Mayor's management has been the most reckless and most extravagant that this city has known in a generation and as I said before I am prepared to stand by this charge at any public meeting.

Yours faithfully,
R. F. McWILLIAMS.

The Suffragettes

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Enclosed you will find an interesting account of Mrs. Philip Snowden's famous speech in Carnegie Hall, Dec. 4th. Mrs. Snowden is a leading English suffragette.

Yours, etc.,
READER.

"That the women of the United States are not indifferent to the struggle going on in Great Britain for the enfranchisement of their sex, was evidenced by the crowds who sought to enter Carnegie Hall on the evening of Dec. 4th. For an hour before the meeting opened there was a constant procession of carriages and automobiles driving up to the main entrance. The boxes were all sold weeks ago, and all day there had been a constant demand for orchestra and balcony seats. About ten per cent. of this vast audience were men, while the majority of the women present were more or less prominent with the city's social and charitable activities. The speakers were Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of an English M.P., who told of the work of the women in Great Britain; Dr. Charles F. Alred, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church; Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Rabbi of the Free Synagogue, and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the Women Suffrage Association, of New York. Mrs. Philip Snowden is unlike as possible the "suffragette" of newspaper notoriety; she is neither spectacled, drowsy, untidy nor ugly; in fact, she is a handsome young woman, with a clear, refined, penetrating voice, and was beautifully gowned. "If I were to do what my soul longs to do," she began "I would appeal to you to remember your womanhood, but my work is mapped out for me and I must tell you of what the brave women have been doing in England.

"You have heard in this country," she said, "that in England we behaved like female Hooligans; that we descended upon the House of Commons and upset their theories, and incidentally, the members hung on the necks of policemen and begged to be arrested, and did many things of that sort. I will admit that certain women have done things that were unwise, but a cause cannot be judged by the weakest person in it. Let us judge this cause from the strong, noble men and women who are fighting for it." She dwelt for a short time on the earlier movements, leading up to that of John Stuart Mill, in 1867. From that time up to three years ago, women had endeavored to convert Parliament and the country by the strictly pacific and constitutional means of argument—meetings, addresses and petitions. Over three thousand petitions had been presented from 1870 to 1906. One gigantic appeal signed in 1896 by 257,000 women, with names systematically arranged in books according to Parliamentary constituencies, was allowed to remain on exhibition in Westminster Hall for one week, but that was the end of it. And now and again a woman suffrage bill would find its way into Parliament, one passed its second reading by a majority of 30 as long ago as 1870, another in 1897, went through its second reading with a majority of 70—and still another in 1904 by 114. But nothing more was heard of these measures, their discussions were not taken seriously being looked upon as something to relieve the real business of Parliament. The public was not interested. The press would not even take the trouble to report. Meetings multiplied and the ranks of the suffragists daily increased, but the public cared nothing, understood nothing—the movement suffered from deadly apathy and indifference. But within the last three years all this has changed and "woman suffrage" is now in the front rank of political questions. The agitation for woman franchise has ceased to be academic and has become instead eminently and indeed painfully practical. Its organizers had long before been conscious that reforms such as they were seeking had never been conceded in Great Britain by argument. Argument played some part, no doubt in the great agitations of 1832, '67 and '74 for franchise reforms, but the operative factor was force or the threat of it. Politicians act because they are compelled to, because not to act means loss of votes or popularity. They have little regard for abstract justice. In the matter of the franchise concessions have never been granted but always extorted. Those within the fold do not open the gate, it is those without who force it. So the women reasoned it it is a law of English politics that only those who made themselves a power to be dreaded could obtain an effective the suffragists was to adapt themselves, then the obvious course of selves to their environment.

For the last two or three years they have preceded along the line of masculine agitation. This was not always pleasant, nor were the consequences pleasing to the suffragist. To be pelted with all kinds of missiles on the public streets, to be followed by ignorant and howling mobs, to be locked up for months in an unhealthy cell, these were trials to delicate women, not indulged in for sport or to provide copy for the British papers. All that could be said about natural rights has been said long ago, now we press home the disabilities under which women suffer and the reforms we believe could be brought about if we had the vote. We have over 6,000,000 women wage earners in Great Britain, of whom 96,000 are in the cotton industry alone; with wages averaging $3.50 per week, a sum that even an unskilled male laborer would scorn to accept. We are continually receiving messages from our sisters in all parts of the world who are not so happily situated as ourselves, from Turkey, Africa, Russia and British India; they are looking to English women to fight this great battle of the emancipation of our sex. Our danger lies not in opposition, but in the apathy of women, who are selfishly content in their own well being and care nothing for the wrongs and disabilities of the great multitude." Rev. Dr. Alfred, warned the American woman lest she be displaced from her position as leader in the civilization of the world. "You cannot rule by virtue of the past. The world will not stand still because you do not choose to move. To turn back Niagara River over the Horseshoe Falls would be a sane and serious endeavor compared with the attempt to stay the onward march of European womanhood towards light and power." Dr. Wise spoke eloquently of the cause of equal rights for men and women.

Mrs. Catt in her closing remarks paid her respects to ex-President Roosevelt for his expression of "tepid" feeling towards the suffrage movement as expressed in a letter read by Dr. Lyman Abbott at the Anti-suffragist meeting. She said some men reminded her of a little tree toad. "Mr. Roosevelt is out of office now and we are better able to discover precisely where he stands. Mr. Taft is in office and he says he is with us."

Mr. McWilliams' Letter

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Mr McWilliams does not seem to remember that when he ran against Mayor Rush he did not receive the support of the council. The aldermen were almost, if not quite, unanimous in asking for another Mayor. If Mr McWilliams does not realize it yet, he will soon learn that explanations are not what the people want. They want skill and the first man who begins a failure is blamed for the whole trouble. Mr. McWilliams did not show either promptness or grasp as Mayor. I know he thinks he did but he did not. The council is all in favor of Mayor Rush for a second term.

Yours.

Miners Not Protected.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—The recent double fatality at the Beaver Consolidated Mining Co.'s shaft, Cobalt, is to be the subject of a presentation by the Ontario Government. Owing, it is alleged, to the illegal method in use of lowering and hoisting men in a bucket two men were killed. They were Andy Ospiren and John Aha.

A charge has been laid against the mining company before Magistrate Atkinson, Haileybury, of an infringement of the mining law for failure to have a ladder in the shaft as required by the statute. There is a heavy per diem fine presented for the offence.

Company to Blame.

North Bay, Dec. 23.—An inquest begun yesterday before Coroner McMurchy into the accident at the mine of the Temagami Gold Reef Co. The jury brought in a verdict attributing the accident to negligence of the company in using inferior powder and employing inexperienced miners. Mine Inspector Corkill was present at the inquest.

Lauder's Effects Ruined.

Buffalo, Dec. 23.—While a truckload of Harry Lauder's stage effects was being loaded into a baggage car at the Exchange street station last night, a yard engine backed a string of cars down upon it. The truck was overturned and $5,000 worth of stage property converted into splinters.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

A Song About Canada.

London, Dec. 23.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A song entitled "Canada," sung in music halls by Harriet Vernon, asks:

"Why send your sons to Canada, tell me, John Bull?
Where hunger stares them in the face."

A couple of dozen Canadians, annoyed at the anti-emigration sentiment of the song, visited the Ipswich Hippodrome, with the object of singing "The Maple Leaf," but were denied entrance. The Canadian party was led by N. B. Colcock, Ontario Government agent.

Another Model Steel Town.

New York, Dec. 23.—A Milwaukee despatch says that a $10,000,000 town, on the order of the United States Steel Corporation's model city at Gary, Ind., is planned at the head of Lake Superior.

A Novel Christmas Present.

Boston, Dec. 23.—Mrs. Samuel L. Eaton of Newton Highlands has started for Wisconsin, taking a baby from the Florence Crittenden Home as a Christmas present to a friend, who is childless.

Boy's Long Trip.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Rex Colville, five years old, arrived at the Union station from Winnipeg, last night, having made the journey alone.

His father got off the train a few minutes before it started, and not getting back in time, missed it and came down on the next train.

Rex had to wait in the station for three hours as the second section of the Winnipeg train was late.

An elderly couple took care of the boy on the train and Policeman Reburn, on duty at the station, fed him. Depot Master Mitchell received a telegram from the boy's father and helped console the little fellow.

The freight steamer Waago, tied up at Hamilton, was damaged $300 by fire.

The Commercial Hotel and a number of stores at Warman, Sask., were burned with $50,000 loss.

King Lansdowne.

Liverpool, Dec. 23.—David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, addressing a meeting, Monday night, from which women were rigorously excluded, to prevent suffragette disturbances, denounced the veto of the Liberal bills by the House of Lords and predicted that the country would "shatter the throne of King Lansdowne," who had usurped the sovereignty that "no king had claimed since Charles the First."

With regard to old age pensions, the Chancellor said he would find the money needed "without taxing anybody's bread or interfering with any productive industry."

Death Ends Festivities.

Windsor, Dec. 23.—Christmas cheer and juvenile enjoyment gave way yesterday to sorrow and gloom at Dougall avenue school, when the announcement was made that Miss Mary Rumball, a member of the teaching staff, had died suddenly.

All the school decorations were torn down, and the Christmas exercises postponed and schools throughout the city closed as soon as Miss Rumball's death became known. Deceased was for 16 years a member of the teaching staff in this city.

Incendiary Fire.

Brantford, Dec. 23.—Incendiaries are believed to have set fire to the large grist mill of I. J. Rank, Norwich, yesterday morning. The mill was destroyed with all its contents. The latter included 12,000 bushels of wheat and 120 tons of chopped grain. The loss, which is partly covered by insurance, will reach $18,000.

The owner was identified with the local option movement and incendiarism is believed to have been the result of the bitter feeling over that question.

President Eliot on Unions.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 23.—President Charles W. Eliot for the second time in the 40 years which he has been head of Harvard yesterday delivered a regular lecture in a class room. He took the place of Prof. Taussig before the class in economics. His topic was "the strife between employers and trade unions."

Two of the greatest evils brought about by the unions, said President Eliot, were the limitation of output and the limitation of apprentices.

Must Await Turnover.

There is living in the city of Philadelphia a gentleman named Adair, who wants to come back to Canada.

But he won't come back for four more years at least, till the Conservatives are restored to power. He has his ear to the ground far away in Pennsylvania, listening for the noise that will call him home, and he hoped to hear the noise on the Monday evening of the recent election.

Mr. Adair left Canada when the Tories were defeated in 1896, and won't return till they come into their own again.

His son-in-law, a Mr. Boyd, was in Toronto before the polling. He stopped at the Elliott House, and every day or so he sent his father-in-law the latest news of the battle then in progress. The last bulletins were so cheering that the old gentleman is said to have begun packing his trunk.

Poor Angel.

"I wonder," said the sweet young thing, "why a man is always so frightened when he proposes?"

"That," said the chronic bachelor, "is his guardian angel trying to hold him back."

Marked Him.

"Are you aware who I am?"

"Sure! Didn't I just call you an old idiot?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HAVELOCK NEWS AND NOTES

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Dec 21—Mr Art Archers has returned to his home in Marmora after visiting his sister, Mrs. Charles Roberts.

Mr and Mrs B. Wellman of Springbrook are the guests of Mr and Mrs. Alex Smith.

Mrs W. H. Robinson, who was operated on at Mrs Jas. Campbell's, has recovered sufficiently to be taken to her home.

Mr. Oscar Brecken, C.P.R. dispatcher of Toronto, but formerly of the local station staff, was in town on Tuesday last.

The Round Lake Methodist Sunday School held their annual Christmas tree and entertainment on Friday evening, December 18th and an enjoyable time is reported.

The sympathy of their many friends goes out to Mr and Mrs. H B Morrison, in the loss of their little three year old daughter, Edith Elizabeth, who passed out of this life on Wednesday morning after a brief attack of membrous croup. The funeral took place to the Maple Grove cemetery on Tuesday morning.

On Christmas night, the Blairton Methodist church will hold their annual Christmas entertainment. Tea will be served from five to eight o'clock, followed by a concert in the church.

Mr A. Wilde has removed his repair shop to the west end, in connection with Mr T. H. McQuaig's blacksmith shop.

The Farmers' Institute of East Peterborough will hold a meeting in the opera house, Havelock, on January 8th The delegates will be C J Alward of Havelock, NB; one of the leading dairymen of New Brunswick, and R W Kitchen of Lovering, Ont.

Mr F. Stewart, of Marmora, will be at his photo gallery on Tuesday of each week.

The "Hockey Dance" in the opera house on Friday evening last was a great success in every particular and the hockey enthusiasts are talking of having another in the near future. Dancing commenced at nine o'clock music being supplied by Miss Smith of Norwood and Mr Wm Joyner of town. At midnight a dainty lunch was served in the basement and dancing continued until an early hour and everyone departed well satisfied with the all souled hospitality of their hosts.

Thursday last, December 17th was pay day for the employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

A GOOD STOMACH

Means Good Health, Cheerfulness, Ambition Persistency and Success.

Mi-o-na will cure your dyspepsia or any other stomach trouble by building up the flabby walls and making the stomach so strong that it will digest food without pepsin or other artificial aid.

In other words, Mi-o-na cures dyspepsia by removing the cause.

Wm. Madill is the agent for Mi-o-na in Peterborough and he says to every reader of the Review whose stomach is weak, who has indigestion or dyspepsia, that Mi-o-na is guaranteed to cure or money back.

The price is only 50 cents a large box and one box is all you need to prove that you are on the right road to health and happiness.

Mr. George Linder, of corner Mill and Park streets, Elmira, Ont., says:—"For about ten years I have been severely troubled with stomach trouble and indigestion so bad that I could not retain my food after eating. I could not eat meat or scarcely anything, and had headaches and constipation. I secured a package of Mi-o-na with the result that now after having taken two boxes I am entirely cured and can eat anything, digest perfectly and am feeling fine. Mi-o-na also overcame my constipation. I am only too glad to publicly endorse and recommend Mi-o-na."

WHAT A GREAT MAN SAID TO THE GREAT AMERICAN PEOPLE

Parisian Sage is a discovery of a celebrated scientist who spent the best years of his life in perfecting this great hair tonic.

In giving his recipe to the American people he said;—"Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world but it is more than a hair dressing. It cures dandruff by killing the germs that infest the roots of the hair; it stops falling hair; it gives vigor and strength to the hair roots. W. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, sells Parisian Sage at 50 cents a large bottle and guarantees to do all that is claimed for it or your money is refunded. NORTH BURLEIGH

Special to the Review.

North Burleigh, Dec 22—A merry little party were assembled at the home of Mr Benjamin Coones on the evening of Thursday, December 17th to celebrate Miss Annie's birthday. The following little folks composed the party; Elma Hales, Ella Brown, Flora Eastwood, Bertha Kilbourn, Charlie Eastland, George Kilbourn, and Wilbert Wilson. They spent the day in various amusements such as coasting, playing games, etc. Excellent music was furnished by Elma Hales and Ella Brown.

Miss Annie made a pretty little hostess and entertained her guests in a most pleasing manner and with the ability of an adult. She received a number of gifts which will recall in her later life fond memories of her childhood days and particularly the anniversary of her fourteenth birthday. After a sumptuous tea was served as the dusky shades of eve were falling the little party knew they had to depart for their respective homes. Before leaving toasts were given and all joined together in singing the well known song, "Should Auld Acquaintance be Forgot." —Dec. 17, 1908, will always stand foremost in each of their minds as one of the pleasantest days spent in their early life among their youthful companions.

Spider Cures.

In China spiders are highly esteemed in the treatment of croup. You get from an old wall the webs of seven black spiders—two of which must have the owners sitting in the middle—and pound them up in a mortar with a little powdered alum. The resulting mixture must then be set on fire, and the ashes, when squirted into the throat of the patient by means of a bamboo tube, are said to effect a certain and immediate cure.

Black spiders are evidently full of medicinal virtue, for they are largely employed in the treatment of ague as well. In Somersetshire, if one is afflicted with the unpleasant ailment, the way to get well is to shut up a large black spider in a box and leave it there till it dies. At the moment of its disease the ague should disappear. In Sussex the treatment is more heroic; the patient must swallow the spider.

Perhaps, after all, this remedy may not be so disagreeable as it appears, for a German lady who was in the habit of picking out spiders from their webs as she walked through the woods and eating them after first depriving them of their legs declared that they were very nice indeed and tasted like nuts.—London Chronicle.

WEDDING BELLS

RAPER—WRIGHT

The marriage of Miss Gertrude Wright, only daughter of Mr Edward Wright, to Mr Fred Raper, of Smith township, took place at the residence of the bride's father, 222 Perry street, yesterday afternoon at five o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev J. G. Potter in the presence of immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was attended by Miss Deanie Gordon, of Young's Point, and Mr John Wright, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding supper was partaken of. The happy couple, who have the best wishes of many friends, will reside in Smith township just outside the city.

WALDON---GRAY

The marriage took place yesterday afternoon at two o'clock of Miss Laura Gray, daughter of Mr Wm. Gray, 698 Harvey street, to Dr A. Waldon, of Norwood. The bridal couple were unattended and only immediate relatives were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson, pastor of the George St. Methodist church. After the ceremony a dainty repast was served.

The bride received many beautiful presents testifying to her popularity among a large number of friends.

Dr and Mrs. Waldon will reside at Norwood where the groom has a large practice

East Lynne on Friday

Joseph King's Company will be seen Christmas Day, matinee and night, in the everlasting favorite drama, "East Lynne." It will be well remembered that there are in this beautiful play moments of the greatest intensity. The company engaged for the presentation has been selected with great care and an adequate scenic equipment will furnish an effective background for the excellent performance

Joseph King's New York Company is scoring new triumphs this season in everybody's favorite play, "East Lynne." This fine attraction is booked for an appearance at the Grand, Christmas Day, matinee and night.

It is estimated that more millions of people have witnessed "East Lynne" than have seen any other play that ever was written. This remarkable truth is explained by the fact that the attack of the play on the sensibilities is irresistible—it goes home to the heart, and more surely and truly than any other drama, it "touches the spot." An exceptional presentation of this play will be given in this city by Joseph King's New York Co, Christmas Day, matinee and night. Plan is now open.

JOHN T. FAY OF "THE FAYS" ENDS LIFE WITH BULLET AT OAKLAND CAL., HOTEL

Oakland, Dec. 21.—No reason has yet developed for the suicide here last night of John T. Fay, husband and manager of Miss Eva Fay, known on the stage as a "wonder worker" and "thought reader," and whose act has been one of the most noted in vaudeville.

The Fays completed Sunday their engagement at a theatre in this city and were ready to take a train to Denver, where they were next booked. Their baggage had been checked and Fay had eaten dinner with his wife. Leaving her at the table he excused himself, went to his room and shot himself. He died soon after.

The Fays were well known to New York patrons of vaudeville theatres through their so-called mystic, or mind-reading act. John T. Fay was a tall, lean man, who wore a Vandyke beard. His wife, Eva, is a woman of rather striking appearance, with a wealth of hair which is said to have been very useful to her in the act which they gave.

The Fays with their mystifying work were well known to Peterborough. Their visit to this city three winters ago when they played a week's engagement to large audiences at the Grand Opera House, is well remembered by local theatregoers.

EXPRES S OFFIES RUSHED WITH CHRISTMAS TRAFFIC

Owing to the heavy traffic on the CPR, the noon train was quite late today. An express car was left at Toronto. The local express offices and the Customs house report an exceedingly busy time, the parcels for delivery to outside points piling up in great numbers. The number coming in is also very large. The postmen and express drivers are rushed.

The Review was informed that at the local Dominion express office, that never before had they received so many parcels for shipment to the United States. Many plum puddings and Christmas cakes are being shipped to the States.

THE JUDGMENT OF MR. JUSTICE BRITTON

Mr. Justice Britton has given judgment disallowing the preliminary objections filed by Mr. J. R. Stratton against the petition of Mr. J. H. Burnham protesting his election for the riding of West Peterborough in the recent Dominion election. This means, therefore, that unless an appeal succeeds the election protest must go to trial. His Lordship rules that Mr. J. K. Jones' objection on Mr. Burnham's behalf to the jurisdiction contending that one Judge could not alone hear or determine any matter which would or possibly could have the effect of setting aside or dismissing out of court the petition could not prevail. He rests on the provision of the statute, which says that the preliminary objections may be disposed of by one Judge, subject to an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada in certain matters, and says that Mr. Justice Osler's refusal to proceed as a single Judge in the Algoma election was in an entirely different case.

On the objection of Mr. G. H. Watson, K.C., on Mr. Stratton's behalf, that there was no jurisdiction to make the order of December 2nd extending the time for service of the petition, which had expired the day before, Mr. Justice Britton does not feel quite sure that that question is a preliminary objection within the meaning of the act. His Lordship holds that the respondent could have been served within the extended time had reasonable efforts been made for the purpose, and he says there was no evidence to show (or from which it could be inferred what the respondent was attempting to evade service.

As to the jurisdiction to make the order extending time for service, Mr. Justice Britton, holding that there was such jurisdiction, remarks that decisions are not wanting, and very clear-cut decisions, that the time for commencing the trial cannot be extended beyond the six months except by an order, applications for which must be made within the six months named. If the case of allowance for longer time for effecting service cannot be distinguished from enlarging the time for commencement of trial then, says the Judge, the petition would seem to have no further life. In determining this point the petitioner is entitled, according to the judge's ruling, to the benefit of any doubt. The respondent has knowledge of the petition and of its contents. As a matter of information the service is, of course, a merely formal matter. The respondent, on the other hand, is entitled to the benefit of every objection that can be made for non-compliance with the law. The allowance of the additional time and allowing substitutional service cannot, he says, result in any hardship.

He cannot say that there is any general rule that where jurisdiction is given to extended time, such jurisdiction must be exercised within the period first mentioned. The position of the matter as to the petitioner and the public—and in all the cases referred to by his Lordship public rights had been considered—was very different, he said, now from what it would be when parties are at issue and the petition is ripe for trial. The respondent, he holds, should be allowed to make a counter attack if he can. That is something the electors may be interested in.

As to the question whether the order of December 2nd should have been made His Lordship points out that the service of an election petition and notice, according to section 17 of the act is to be made as nearly as possible in the manner in which a writ of summons is served which, according to consolidated rule 146, is to be by personal service or if it appears to the court or a Judge on affidavit that the plaintiff is unable to effect prompt personal service, the court or Judge may order substituted or other service by advertisement or otherwise. Section 18, as he says, contemplates two applications if necessary by reason of special circumstances of difficulty in effecting personal service—1 For longer time, and 2, for subtitutional service. If within the longer time allowed personal service could not be effected.

The Judge says that it did appear to him on affidavit that the petitioner was unable to effect prompt personal service and so in the exercise of his discretion he made the order. The respondent, being a business man of large interests in different parts of Canada, the service upon his clerk Roland Glover, or upon the clerk in charge of his office at Peterborough, should, he holds, be deemed as good as personal service. And assuming his jurisdiction to allow further time, he does not think the order bad by reason of its directing substitutional service, as well in one order.

As to the objection that the service was not in accordance with the order made, his Lordship finds it not open to him now to interfere. If the order was not made in the proper exercise of a judicial discretion, and if that is the subject of appeal, the matter will rightly be disposed of by the Appellate Court.—Globe.

BELMONTS CLUB'S PRESENTATION

To Mr. Norman Brown Before Leaving for Toronto

Mr Norman J. H. Browne, more familiarly known as "Buster" left on Monday morning for Toronto where he is now on the staff of the Bank of Montreal in that city. Before leaving town "Buster" was made the recipient of an address and presentation by the members of the Belmont club. The address was read by the president, Mr Oliver Milburn. Short impromptu speeches were made by several of the members, all expressing regret at Mr Brown's departure, and extending to him their best wishes for his future success.

VERY LIBERAL CONTRIBUTIONS

To Solicitations on Behalf of Poor by St. Paul's Sunday School Committee

The campaign for Christmas donations for the poor of the city carried on by the committee of the Sunday school teachers of St. Paul's met with a most hearty response, and a large quantity of contributions from various sources was distributed last night and this morning.

In connection with the contributions a programme was given last night at St. Paul's schoolhouse, and a great many things were brought by different members of the congregation. The programme was a most entertaining one, and consisted of songs, recitations and several selections by the George street orchestra. Mr. Wm. Madill, superintendent of the Sunday school, was in the chair.

MRS. D. E. McKENZIE.

The funeral of the late Mrs. D. E. McKenzie, of Beaverton, who departed this life on the 17th inst., took place from her father's residence, Mr. Jas. Wilson, of Kinmount, Ont., on Saturday 19th inst., and proceeded to St. James' Episcopal church, of which congregation the deceased lady was a consistent and beloved member. It was here that she was christened when but a child and in later years confirmed, and the bell than ran out its joyous peals at her marriage with love, hope and joy, Saturday tolled the knell of her departed life.

She was born in the village of Kinmount on June 25, 1878, where she had lived all her life up to two years ago since which time she has lived with her husband in the town of Beaverton. The remains were taken to Kinmount cemetery for interment. The services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. C. Cummer. The pall bearers were Messrs. George Train, C. Welstood, J. Graham, G. Dettman, A. Train and Alex. Moore, all members of the Masonic fraternity.

The deceased lady leaves a husband and a little daughter, besides her father, Mr. James Wilson, Kinmount, and three brothers, Mr. Fred Wilson, of London; Gell, of Kinmount and William, of Manitoba, to mourn her loss.

The death of the late Mrs. McKenzie is deeply deplored by a large circle of friends whose sympathies will be extended to the bereaved husband and relatives.—Lindsay Warder.

Meeting of Trades and Labor Council

A special meeting of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council will be held on Wednesday evening, Dec. 23rd, at nine o'clock, in the Foresters' Hall, George street. Every local union in the city whether affiliated or not, are requested to have delegates present as business of importance will be discussed. By order, J. Alexander, President, (per W. A. Mowry.)

ANNUAL TEA AND ENTERTAINMENT

Held at Murray St. Baptist Church ---Many Were in Attendance

The annual tea and entertainment held by the Murray street Baptist Sunday school last evening was as successful as it always is. The school room was so crowded that standing room was at a premium. The various numbers on the programme were excellently rendered in all cases, and were much enjoyed by the audience. Much credit is due Messrs. Wilfrid Shiner and George Martin for their excellent stage arrangements.

Some years ago this Sunday school decided to change the character of their Christmas festival to conform with the truth that "it is more blessed to give than to receive" and from that time the members of the school have at these entertainments been giving rather than getting. Last evening the gifts, amounting to about fifty dollars, were for distribution by the pastor to those who are in need.

The following programme was rendered;—

Chorus—Primary Class.
Dialogue—Mrs. Martin's Class.
Chorus—Miss Garrett's Class.
Sketch—Mrs. Dunlop's Class.
Chorus—Miss Hardwick's Class.

Cyclone Burns Does Things to the Sultan's Favorite Wrestler

Brockville, Ont., Dec. 22. — Cyclone Burns and Hassan Abdallah, the terrible Turk, met here to-night in a wrestling match at the Grand Opera House before a small audience. It was the best two in three at catch-as-catch-can, Burns gaining both falls on a bar-nelson in 23 minutes and 9 minutes respectively. The Cyclone had the best of the argument all the way, keeping his opponent almost constantly on the defensive. Only once was he in danger, when the Turk secured an effective hold and it looked as though he could get Burns. Only Burns' strong neck saved him from being pinned to the mat.

The most aristocratic audience that ever attended a fight in Australia will see the Burns-Johnson go on Saturday next. Premier Wade will be there and also the whole vice regal staff, including the King's representative in Australia, Earl Dudley. A number of the seats have sold at $50.

SPORTING NEWS

BURNS IS A 5 TO 4 FAVORITE FOR FIGHT WITH JOHNSON

New York, Dec 22—Advices from the scene of the coming Johnson-Burns fight are to the effect that Burns is the favorite at 5 to 4, with much money wagered both ways.

Hugh McIntosh, the promoter of the mill, in a statement received from him, gives these details concerning the battle:

"The fight will take place at 11 am, December 26. The early hour is fixed to enable patrons to get to Randwick afterwards to see the running of the Summer Cup one of the biggest of Australian horse races.

"The prices of admission range from $5 to $50 and already a considerable number of the best young sporting bloods have paid fifty dollars for seats. The success of the figh financially is already assured and the crowd is expecte dto be a record breaker.

It has been figured out that there is about fifteen hours difference in time between this country and Sydney, Australia, and that when Burns and Johnston enter the ring at Sydney at 11 o'clock in the morning of December 26th it will be about 8 o'clock in the evening here of December 25th. The fight will not go to a finish. After all, as Burns has insisted upon a twenty-round limit. The men will meet in a twenty-four foot ring in a new arena which has been erected at an outlay of $20,000. The fight will be photographed, and the men will battle for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Burns will receive $30,000, win, lose or draw; a film of the fight worth $1750 and two tickets to London; valued at $1250, his total share being about $33,000.

Johnson will get $5000 for his end of the mill, three round trip tickets to England worth $2000 and $500 for the picture privileges.

It is evident therefore that both Burns and Johnson intend to return to England before coming back to America.

Sam Fitzpatrick, Johnson's manager cabled to a friend here the other day that the big negro, barring accidents, would win by a knockout inside of fifteen rounds.

MAHMOUT LOOKS GOOD TO GIVE GOTCH AN AWFUL BOUT

Joe Rodgers, the big American heavyweight wrestler, is said to have stated that he threw Yussiff Mahmout in a workout with the Turk grappler, at Brown's gymnasium, New York. Harrington, the Turk's manager, is very hot over Rodgers' claim, and very eloquently denies it. He refers to the latter as a dub, a "big stiff," and hands him several other complimentary names. He wants to make a match between Mahmout and the giant American, and states that the Oriental will be able to dispose of Rodgers just as easily as he has defeated Yankee Rogers, Jenkins, Beell and other good ones.

But what the Turk's manager really wants is a match between Mahmout and Gotch. John Considine, of New York offered a purse of $10,000 for the bout. A great many followers of the mat game in America think Mahmout would beat Gotch. From the way he has been handling his opponents on this side of the water the bet looks a comparatively safe one, although a terrible bout would take place before either man could claim victory.

FIRST PROTEST OF TOURNEY; GAMES AT P. B. C. ALLEYS

The first protest of the ten pin season was entered last night by the Belmonts who will ask the executive committee to decide whether a properly qualified foul line judge was appointed for their games against the Iroquois. The dispute arose on Pollard's last frame in the final game when a foul was called on the bowler that cost him seven pins and the game. The Belmonts had won the first and second games and had the alleged foul not occurred they would also have captured the closing contest by a single pin.

The Belmonts were back in something like their old form again, Wareham being particularly effective, hanging up an average of 187 for his three games, a new record for the league. Wareham also held the old record with a total of 552 for three games.

In the second game of the double-header Hutch's Hams took the first of the series from the Pacifics but dropped the last two. The Pacifics wanted the three games in order to tie with the Bankers for first place but the unexpected happened and they are still a game behind the leaders.

THE STRATHCONAS WILL BE STRONG

Had Practice Last Night---Should be Heard From in City League Series

The Strathconas had a great practice last night from 7 to 8. They will apparently have just as good a team as they had last season, and will be dangerous factors in the race for the city league trophy.

The following men were out last night: Wilson Dobson, Weatherstone, night;—Wilson, Dobson, Weatherstone, Seymour, McMillan, Ellis, Curtis and Long.

The ice was in splendid condition.

SPORTING TALK

The Peterborough Review says hockey players are only as old as they think they are. By a herculean stretch of imagination Chris. Graham may be "sweet sixteen." — Lindsay Warder.

Harry Westwick states that Fred Whitcroft is one of the hardest workers in the game. He isn't a brilliant player, according to the "Rat," but one who is going all the time, helping both the defence and forward line. One of the stock that Pud Glass comes from.—Ottawa Citizen.

RINK WILL OPEN TO-MORROW NIGHT

The South City Athletic Club's rink on Chamberlain street will be open for skating tomorrow night. It is 160 feet long and 60 feet wide and there will be a fine sheet of ice.

The Grand Trunks, Otonabees and Open Air Club hockeyists will practice tonight from seven to eight o'clock.

THE RING

London, Dec. 22.—Burns writing to London friend, says;—"You bet I am confident, and the man who doesn't come through all right will know that he has been up against something.

Sam Fitzpatrick, Johnson's manager, in a letter to the Sportsman, says already somebody has been accused of trying to have the fight stopped. So with the natural interest it causes and some sly work going on, you cannot tell what is going to happen.

ARE SUEING WEST PETERBORO' AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

Suit Being Heard by Judge Weller To-Day—In Connection with Payment of Prize Money to Manager of Walter G.—Horse Was Protested at Fair Races.

Peterborough horsemen are interested in the civil case being held today before His Honor Judge Weller. Dr. Leach, owner of Holland Boy, and Gerald Dunsford, manager of Hazel Belle, are suing the West Peterborough Agricultural Society for money which was paid to Mr. Hodgins, Orillia, manager of Walter G, the horse that was protested by them under the suspicion that he was Little Hector or in any event that the horse was not the one claimed to be. Hazel Belle and Holland Boy, started with the Orillia horse on the first day of the races at the Peterborough Fair last fall in the 2.20 class and owing to the fact that the Walter G was protested, first and second money, respectively is claimed for them.

Dr. Johnston, president of the Peterborough Turf Club and chairman of the speed committee for the exhibition directorate and Mr Martin Connors, the starter at the races testified at the hearing of the suit today that they notified Secretary Hall of the Agricultural Society that Walter G was under protest and instructed him not to pay Hodgins any money pending the outcome of the protest. It is alleged that Mr Hall acting under instructions of President Leary of the Agricultural Society paid the money over to Hodgins.

The Peterborough Turf Club was given authority to settle the protest by the National Trotting Association under whose rules the races were conducted. The track at the fair ground is an association track.

The protest was decided against Hodgins and in view of this the above mentioned parties decided to sue for the money which they claim is legally theirs.

Mr George W. Hatton is appearing for the plaintiffs, Mr F D Kerr for defendants, and Mr Tudhope, of Orillia, for Mr Hodgins.

The hearing began this morning and is being continued this afternoon.

FRANK SMITH KILLS GIRL THEN SHOOTS HIMSELF

Detroit, Dec. 22.—In full view of several girls, inmates of the place, Frank Smith, trotting horse judge and race horse follower, shot his mistress, Mary Kuniasky, a handsome girl of 22, through the heart, in a Macomb street resort at 10 o'clock to-night and then put a bullet through his own brain, from the effects of which he will probably die before morning.

Smith who resides at 951 Michigan street, Buffalo, came to Detroit yesterday with the avowed intention of compelling the woman to return to Buffalo with him or of killing her in case she refused. Witnesses of the tragedy are conflicting in their statements but it seems clear that Smith exhausted every argument with the woman before resorting to violence

The whole affair was over in less than a minute. The woman died instantly. No arrests were made.

The news of the tragedy will come as a shock to local horsemen. Frank Smith was one of the most widely known horsemen on the continent, and was a prominent starter at race meets. He has acted in that capacity at local races. He conducted a column in the Buffalo Horse World and was an authorative and capable writer. He devoted considerable of his time to news of the Canadian tracks.

PETERSON WINS CHAPIONSHIP

The grand world's championship Graeco-Roman wrestling tournament in Paris has been concluded and the final bout between Peterson, the Danish wrestler, and Paul Pons, resulted in a decisive victory for Peterson. He is recognized as the master of the Graeco-Roman art. Neither Paul Pons nor Padoubny can lay claim to being his equal.

A dispatch says Peterson showed his quality in his bout with Pons. It is impossible to doubt that he is the champion of the world.

THE JANUARY "ROD AND GUN"

The New Year number of Rod and Gun appears as bright and interesting as ever. The long and varied list of contents of the January issue of this magazine, which is published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont., is in keeping with the position taken and so thoroughly well maintained by this leading Canadian publication of outdoor life. Exploring and pioneering stories are intermingled with hunting and fishing yarns of the best, all redolent of the woods and of the actual, and far above, from the sportsman's view point, the average of such contributions. In addition, there are many short but interesting papers on various phases of life in the open, all of the deepest interest to the ever-increasing army of such devotees. The game laws for the past year, the efforts at improvements and the changes made form the subjects of an interesting article, while an illustrated account of the survey of the Selkirks should bring vividly home to Canadians some of the wonders of these mountain regions. The Voyages of the Vikings is a dive into the early history of Canadian exploration, while a story of the experiences of pioneers in the Ontario bush may be usefully read at the same time, both doing something to picture those days which are so far off when measured by actual progress but near in the history of a new country. Whatever inclination individual sportsmen may follow they cannot fail to find matter of interest to themselves in this number.

Saving Uncle Henry.

By Avard Ridgeway.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Colton caught up the desk telephone that stood at his elbow and smiled as he recognized his wife's voice. One of the arguments in favor of the removal to the suburbs had been that the reduction in rent was vastly greater than Colton's commutation and Mrs. Colton's occasional trips to town. They had not counted on the telephone bill, which more than made up the difference.

"What's the matter now?" he asked good humoredly. "The cook left?"

"That's only part," came the answer. "The cook left, and the Nelsons have just had word that his sister is dead, and they can't come."

"That will help some," declared Colton encouragingly. "There won't be so many to cook for."

"But Eleanor will have to get the dinner," wailed Mrs. Colton. "That takes the three Nelsons and you and her away from the table. Don't you see that it leaves just thirteen?"

"Thirteen's lucky," cheered Colton. "You should be glad that Eleanor is there to get the dinner."

"But Uncle Henry is frightfully superstitious," reminded Mrs. Colton. "It's bad enough that you can't come and that my own sister must stay away to get the dinner, and we'll have to tell him that she is out of town, but when we ask him to sit at a table with twelve others—Bob, you must send out some one. Can't that nice looking bookkeeper come?"

"On his vacation—but I'll get some one. Don't worry, Vida."

Colton hung the receiver on the hook, and Mrs. Colton beamed as she turned from the instrument. Bob was dependable, and that worry was off her mind.

It was the first dinner party in the new home, and her uncle was to be the guest of honor. It had seemed hoodooed from the start. First Colton had been compelled to remain in town to attend an important conference of the trade and could not possibly get out.

Her sister, Eleanor Norris, had been called into service to replace the cook, who had left, declaring that she would see her employer and the guests separately and individually condemned before she would cook for eighteen persons, and then at the last moment the Nelsons had sent regrets, cutting the number at table down to the thirteen abhorrent to Uncle Henry, from whom the Coltons had "expectations."

Vida had noticed that her husband's bookkeeper was an extremely good looking young fellow, and she had telephoned Colton to send him out. Probably he would send out the bookkeeper's relief, and Vida gave no more thought to the matter save to offer up a fervent supplication that his table manners should be good.

The others had arrived when there was a ring at the bell, and in her anxiety Mrs. Colton herself rushed to the door. A tall, clean cut young man stood at the entrance, and at his inquiring "Mrs. Colton?" Vida fairly dragged him across the hall and into the dining room, where she carefully closed the door.

"I'm awfully sorry," she began. "Mr. Colton asked you to come out because we wanted to avoid thirteen at the table. But it happens that a Mr. Grimsby could not come either, and so now you would make the thirteenth."

"I see," he said, with a light laugh. "Then I'll head back for town."

"I couldn't let you do that," cried Vida, with a gasp. "There is no train until 9:57. You will not get to town until almost 11. You must stay here and have some dinner. I'm sure you won't mind eating in the laundry."

"I'd rather like it," was the genial response. "If you will indicate the general direction I'll head that way and let you get back to your guests."

Vida pointed to the door to the butler's pantry. "Go through there and tell them who you are," she directed; then she hurried back to the waiting diners. Her uncle was standing by the door.

"Was that another guest?" he demanded uneasily.

"Just a helper that Bob sent out from town," she explained glibly, and Uncle Henry breathed a sigh of relief.

"I'm rather glad that Bob was detained in town," he said. "It will prevent there being thirteen at the table. I'm not superstitious, but I know of two cases where there were thirteen at the table, and each time one died before the year was out. I'm getting to be an old man, Vida, and, while I'm not superstitious about it—well, it's just as well not to tempt fate."

Vida smiled her understanding of the case, and as Norah appeared in the doorway to announce that dinner was served they all filed out.

Vida sustained a shock of surprise when she saw the man her husband had sent out standing ready to serve, but his face was as impassive as though he had been a butler and not a bookkeeper all his life, and it was with a little flutter of pride that Vida realized that the local guests would suppose that they had imported a butler from town for the occasion.

The dinner passed off splendidly. The butler acquitted himself with the greatest credit, and Eleanor did her cooking school training full justice.

Before the coffee was served Uncle Henry was whispering to his niece that he was going to make her a present of the house for Christmas and attend himself to some details of decoration.

Vida had hoped to lead him to the subject of new rugs, and this voluntary promise delighted her. As she led the way back to the parlor she fairly radiated delight.

It was some time before she could manage to slip away from her uncle, and she was just about to go to the kitchen to see how Eleanor was getting along when Norah, the maid, poked her head cautiously between the curtains and made a signal that she wanted to see her mistress.

"I think you'd better come out in the kitchen, ma'am," she whispered. "That strange man and Miss Eleanor do be carrying on something awful. He kissed her when he thought my back was turned, but I saw them in the silver tray. They've been at it ever since he came."

"He is annoying Miss Eleanor?" asked Vida correctingly. It was out of the question that Eleanor should enjoy his attentions.

"Divil a bit she's annoyed," insisted Norah. "She likes it."

With dignified tread Mrs. Colton moved toward the kitchen and threw open the door. Her sister was wiping a huge platter, and the bookkeeper had taken advantage of her plight to steal another kiss. As Vida appeared in the doorway the platter went crashing to the floor.

"I'll buy you a whole set, Vida," cried Eleanor penitently.

"The loss of the china is immaterial," was the austere reply. "What does this—er—flirtation mean?"

The man advanced toward her, with glowing face.

"It means that I've found my little girl again, Mrs. Colton, and this time I've captured her before she could run away, as she did from Newport."

"It's Dick Hempstead," enlightened Eleanor. "Bob sent him out instead of the new bookkeeper, and I just had to say 'Yes' to atone for the cavalier fashion in which you hustled him into the kitchen."

"But he didn't tell me"— began Vida.

"You didn't give me a chance, or perhaps I gave you none. Bob told me that Eleanor was to be the cook, and I was only too glad to come. I have not seen Bob since he was married, and I did not know that he had married Eleanor's sister, or you would have seen me out here before."

"And you want to get married!" exclaimed Mrs. Colton. "What will Uncle Henry say?"

"He'll say 'Yes,'" declared Hempstead, "or at any rate he should. Didn't I save him from the thirteen hoodoo?"

"I suppose that will help some," admitted Vida. "Anyway, I'm glad you two are to be married, for with Eleanor to cook and you to be butler I shan't be afraid of any more dinner parties, only when there are but thirteen at the table."

"To save the day as well as Uncle Henry," completed Hempstead.

An eminent French art collector once bought at the Hotel Drouot a landscape by a noted "impressionist," which he showed, with much pride in his purchase, to an artist friend.

"But I think," quoth he, "that the picture lacks animation; it wants personages. Now, if you would paint for me a man or woman on that road that runs through the middle of the landscape it would greatly improve the picture."

"That is easily done," said the artist. So he carried off the painting and sent it back in a week or two with the figure of an old peasant woman going to market, with her basket and her red umbrella, introduced on the road in question, to the great satisfaction of the picture's proprietor. Meeting shortly after with the "impressionist" who had painted it, the artist remarked:

"I had the audacity to alter a landscape of yours belonging to M. X., the other day. I painted an old peasant woman walking down the road."

"Down the road? I remember no work of mine with a road in it. I should like to see the picture and judge of the effect of your alteration."

So the artist carried him off to M. X.'s, and they speedily stood before the landscape. The "impressionist" turned perfectly green with wrath and horror.

"Miserable man," he shouted, "what have you done? That is not a road that runs through the center of my work. It is a river!"—Exchange.

CHRISTMAS PIES.

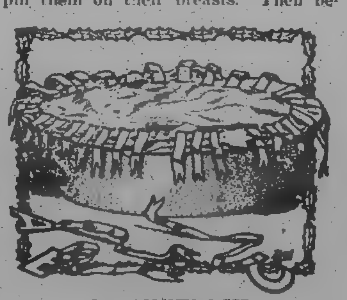
A Novel Sport For a Children's Party In Holiday Time.

Have a large pan covered with brown tissue paper to look like pie crust. Inside the pie have these letters, to which are attached ribbons, the other end of which come through the pie crust. The letters, neatly cut out are: Six a's, two m's, three e's, four r's, three y's, one c, two h's, two s's, one t, two n's, one d, two p's, one w and one i.

The children sit around the pie, each holding one thread. They sing:

Sing a song of Christmas,
A pie crust full of fun.
Find the wish we wish you
When the game is done.

Then they pull the letters out and pin them on their breasts. Then begins the fun of puzzling out how the children should stand in a line so that the letters will form a sentence.



THE CHRISTMAS PIE.

When in proper position the letters will make—

A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

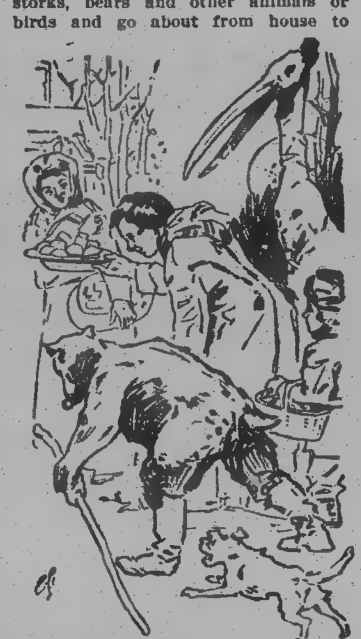
XMAS BIRDS AND BEASTS.

Picturesque Method of Celebrating Yuletide by the Poles.

The legend that the birds and beasts came to worship the infant Jesus has brought about a peculiar and picturesque method of celebrating Christmas among the Poles and other kindred peoples of eastern Europe.

Here men mask in the guise of storks, bears and other animals or birds and go about from house to house singing carols. To carry out the idea these wild birds and savage beasts are led about by keepers.

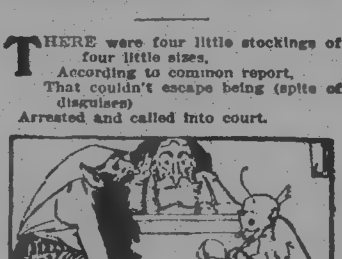


IN THE GUISE OF STORKS, BEARS AND OTHER ANIMALS.

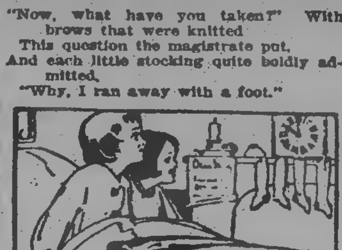
After the traditional carols are sung the inmates of the house thus honored reward the singers by gifts of cakes, sausages and other dainties. The procession then moves to another house, where the performance is repeated.

A Christmas Eve Sentence.

There were four little stockings of four little sizes,
According to common report,
That couldn't escape being (spite of disguises)
Arrested and called into court.



"Now, what have you taken?" With brows that were knitted
This question the magistrate put,
And each little stocking quite boldly admitted,
"Why, I ran away with a foot."



Then the voice of the court, shaking window and rafter,
In accents quite tragical rang,
While the children in bed also shook, though with laughter,
"I sentence each stocking to hang!"

Poor Air and Poor Living.

When Jim Bridger, the one time famous scout of the plains, grew old he thought he would like to retire from the somewhat arduous life of a plainsman and settle down to the ease of "the east," which to him meant Missouri. So he used his best endeavor to find a competent man to fill his place and went back to Missouri.

A year or two passed, and one day Captain Russell, the commandant of the post which Bridger had left, was surprised to see the old scout heave in sight. When he came in the captain asked:

"Well, Bridger, what brings you back here?"

"Captain," said Bridger, "I want to go back to scouting again."

"Indeed? Why, I thought you had settled down in the east for the rest of your life!"

"Well, cap'n, I'll tell you how it is. I went back to old Missouri, and if you'll believe it they've got a railroad station within ten mile o' the old place—yes, sir, a railroad station! And, what's more, they've got a ranch now in every four mile. I tell you what, cap'n, the air ain't pure down there no more!"

"Is that possible? But I thought you'd like the good things to eat they have down there. You like good things to eat, I remember."

"Good things to eat! Why, cap'n, I didn't have a br'iled beaver tail the whole time I was there!"

The First Cookbook.

To the Romans belong the honor of having produced the first European cookery book, and, though the authorship is uncertain, it is generally attributed to Caelius Apicus, who lived under Trajan, 114 A. D. Here are two recipes from this ancient collection:

"First, for a sauce to be eaten with boiled fowl, put the following ingredients into a mortar: Aniseed, dried mint and lazer root. Cover them with vinegar, add dates and pour in liquamen (a distilled liquor made from large fish which were salted and allowed to turn putrid in the sun), oil and a small quantity of mustard seeds. Reduce all to a proper thickness with sweet wine warmed, and then pour this same over your chicken, which should previously be boiled in aniseed water."

The second recipe shows the same queer mixture of ingredients: "Take a wheelbarrow of rose leaves and pound in a mortar; add to it brains of two pigs and two thrushes boiled and mixed with the chopped up yoke of egg, oil, vinegar, pepper and wine. Mix and pour these together and stew them steadily and slowly till the perfume is developed."—Chambers' Journal.

Which Foot Walks Faster?

You may think this a very silly question to ask, but it isn't. It is a simple, demonstrable fact, which you can prove to your own satisfaction in a very few minutes. If you will take a pavement that is clear, so that there will be no interference, and walk briskly in the center, you will find that before you have gone fifty yards you have veered very much to one side. You must not make any effort, of course, to keep in the center, but if you will think of something and endeavor to walk naturally you cannot keep a direct line. The explanation of this lies in the propensity of one foot to walk faster than the other, or one leg takes a longer stride than the other, causing one to walk to one side. You can try an experiment in this way by placing two sticks about eight feet apart, then stand off about sixty feet, blindfold yourself and endeavor to walk between them. You will find it almost impossible.

Why Not Be an Egotist?

There is much mistaken sentiment as to the sin of egotism. The fact is egotism is not a sin. On the other hand, it is somewhat of a virtue and an indispensable element in all real progress. Some phases of egotism are unpleasant to the beholder and unfortunate for the possessor, but if all of self love, or, rather, the love of other people's admiration and good will, were to be extinguished there would be little to hold society together and less to give impetus to the great enterprises which spring from individual thought and culminate in personal profit.—Leslie's Weekly.

The Retort Courteous.

A lady passing through the negro quarter in Mobile, Ala., heard an old woman chanting a dirgelike tune.

"Auntie," she observed, "that is a mournful song you are singing."

"Yassum," was the response. "I knows it's mo'nful, but by singin' dat song an' 'tendin' to my own business I spects to git to heaben."

His Luck.

"I have been engaged to at least a dozen girls," said a young man.

"And always been unlucky in love, eh?" inquired a lady.

"Oh, no—rather lucky!" was the answer. "I've never married any of them!"

An Order Not Obeyed.

An exasperated Irish sergeant, drilling a squad of recruits, called to them at last:

"Halt! Just come over here, all of ye and look at yourselves. It's a fine line ye're keepin', isn't it?"

The Resemblance.

"I was always interested in airships and flying machines, so I bought a theater."

"Why did you do that?"

"A theater has wings and flies."

All who have gardens know what a pest the green fly, or aphis, becomes. It seems to cover rose, trees and other plants like magic.

EXTENSIVE BRIDGE BUILDING DONE BY COUNTY THIS YEAR

Three New Steel Structures Among Those Constructed—Also Three Wooden Bridges—Some Interesting Information About What County Council Has Done.

The time for wooden bridges having passed in the front part of the county makes bridge building somewhat expensive and necessitates the assuming of more bridges by the county in order to place at the disposal of the travelling public permanent structures suitable to carry the immense traction engines, road crushers, etc., so necessary to the farmer at the present time. It becomes necessary for the county to assume certain bridges or else guarantee the loan to municipalities to raise funds to meet the heavy expenditure.

The past year from the above reasons, has been a record year in the line of bridge building.

There have been three new heavy steel bridges built this year.

One over Indian River in the township of Otonabee, covering a span of 80 feet, with strong concrete abutments and suitable substantial stone approaches with guard rail.

One over the Ouse river at Norwood 80 feet span with pedestrian sidewalk and suitable stone approaches with sidewalk and guard rail and concrete abutments. One over North River, 32 feet span with quarry stone abutments, built with cement mortar and suitable approaches of stone with a guard rail.

There were also built three wooden bridges of heavy cedar timbers and flooring.

One over Black Lake Creek in Cavendish, 67 feet long with 3 substantial stone piers and long approaches filled in with stone in order to shorten the bridge proper to the above length with suitable guard rail to approaches and bridge.

One over Deer Bay Creek in Harvey 97 feet long with extensive approaches in order to shorten bridge proper with solid stone piers and proper guard rail, 6 in. cedar flooring and heavy cedar timbers.

One over a stream in Chandos not yet built but provided for, similar to the other two cedar bridges.

FLOATING BRIDGES.

The Gannons bridge having broken away with the going of the ice in the spring was responsible for the extra bridge expenditure also.

Considerable repairing and improvements were made to the Pigeon Creek and Chemong Lake floating bridges.

OTHER BRIDGE RENEWING.

The Lakefield bridge was refloored, repainted and generally repaired, as was also the Burleigh Falls bridge, the canal bridge Dummer, and less or more ordinary repairs that become necessary every year.

GRANTS.

The usual grants to the poorer townships was made this year as well as some help by way of a grant given on Monaghan to assist in defraying the expense of the Cavan drain coming through part of the township of Monaghan.

HOUSE OF REFUGE.

There are at present in the House of Refuge 35 inmates, 20 male and 3 female, and although the aggregate number of days of the inmates maintained this year as compared with 1907, is nearly doubled, yet the cost of maintenance will, it is estimated, be reduced from $2.55 to considerably below $2.00, but of course, last year being the initial year, had its drawbacks by way of supplies not being raised on the farms for the first 7 or 8 months.

Financially the year has been very satisfactory from the fact that a great amount of permanent work was done and the current standing of the county at the close of the year, it is estimated, will show nearly an even balance on both sides of the ledger.

THIS IS THE BUSY SEASON OF THE LETTER CARRIER

Plum Puddings Make the Mails Heavy—Staff Working Overtime—A Tip to the Postmen is Acceptable

There is an unmistakable Christmas odor around the general post office today. It assails one's nostrils and there is no getting away from it.

"My, that smells good," were the words on more than one citizen's lips.

The cause was that Peterborough's yearly consignment of ye olde English plum duff arrived in town last night and today the employees of the post office are busy sorting it for distribution.

The pudding is done up in all manners and shapes. Considerable of it is contained in earthenware crocks, more of it has the original wrapping in which it was boiled while the next is done up in linen, cardboard, or paper.

The clerks at the office are busier than ever before. In spite of the fact that all of the staff has been increased, everyone has to work overtime to keep things straight. Yesterday, under ordinary circumstances would have been a day of rest for many of them, but instead they were at their sorting cases with coats off, some of them till midnight.

One has to pity the postmen as he sees them leaving the office. They are loaded down "to the gunwale," to use a nautical phrase, and one is in momentary fear that the load will topple over and be spilled on the streets. So heavy are the deliveries that an extra man has to go along with a sleigh similarly loaded. The carriers pay this help out of their own pockets and expect to be able to withstand the expense by the customary Christmas tips.

In every department of the postoffice there is an increase. Like the rest the money order department is in line. The man in charge this morning informed the Review that the ones received to be paid in England and elsewhere are ten per cent in advance of last year, while the ones payable here are 50 per cent in advance. Last year exceeded all records, and it was thought at the time that a mark was set which would take some years to equal. However they have gone by the records.

FUNERAL OF ALFRED PARKER

Took Place Yesterday Afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery --- Cortege Was a Long One.

The funeral of the late Alfred Parker, who passed away so unexpectedly on Saturday night, took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the family residence 384 Park street, to the Little Lake cemetery. The cortege was a large one, many prominent citizens turning out to pay their respects to one who for so many years had been such a well-known and highly esteemed citizen. The floral tributes were very beautiful and numerous.

The services were taken by Rev. E. A. Pearson, of George street Methodist church, and Rev. G. W. Henderson, of Charlotte street church. The pall bearers were Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, R. Winch, R. Neill, Dr. Morrison, B. Shortly and Mayor Rush.

PRISON FOR THE LABOR MEN THREE OF THEM SENTENCED

Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison go Down.

For One Year, Nine Months and Six Months Respectively for Contempt of Court.

Washington, Dec. 24.—The famous contempt case of the Buck Stove and Range Co. against President Gompers, Vice-President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, was decided yesterday by Justice Wright of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, adversely to the federation officials.

Gompers was sentenced to twelve months imprisonment, Mitchell to nine months and Morrison to six months.

Pending an appeal to the United States Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, all three defendants were released on bail, the amount being fixed as follows: Gompers, $5,000; Mitchell $4,000, and Morrison $3,000.

A local surety company furnished the bonds.

The Bucks Company's prosecution of the officials of the federation began in August, 1907. The original action was a test case, wherein it was sought to enjoin the labor unions from using the "Unfair" and "We don't patronize" lists in their fight against firms and individuals.

Justice Gould of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, issued an injunction which later was made permanent, forbidding the publication of the company's name in these lists. President Gompers in an editorial in The Federationist of January last, made known his intention not to obey the court's order, contending that the injunction issued was a derogation of the rights of labor and an abuse of the injunctive power of the courts. Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison subsequently were cited for contempt.

Judge Wright's decision recites the conditions anteceding the injunction and refers to the fact that for 25 years the Bucks' plant has operated as a 10-hour shop, and always has maintained an open shop. He also spoke of the numerical strength of the American Federation of Labor, with its 2,000,000 members, and, of its repeated endorsement of the boycott of the Bucks' Stove and Range Co. through The American Federationist, the federation's official organ; speeches by the defendants, letters, circulars, etc.

The court referred to the use of the "we don't patronize" list and "unfair" list of the labor organizations, and said that members of labor unions were forced and coerced into supporting it "whether individually willing or unwilling, approving or disapproving" by various methods. The court read extracts from numbers of resolutions of labor organizations bearing on the Bucks' case as tending to show the methods of influencing members of unions "and these methods," the court remarked, seem to the known as "persuasion."

The customers of the stove company, the court said, had been intimidated, browbeaten and coerced out of their business relations with their customers "by direct interference with and boycott of their (the customers) trade relations with their own customers and the public generally."

Unjust Decision.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 24.—First Vice-President James Duncan of the American Federation of Labor said last night: "I am of the opinion that the pardoning power of the President could be used right away in causing the release of President Gompers. If President Gompers is compelled to spend the year's term in jail, he will conduct the affairs of the federation from the jail in which he is confined. I think the decision is the most unjust that I have ever heard."

ENTER SUITS TO RECOVER GOODS

Montreal, Dec. 24.—Action has been taken in the Superior Court against several prominent Quebec men who were formerly connected with the Great Northern Construction Co. concern, formed expressly, according to the complaint of the liquidator, John Hide of Montreal, for the purpose of building a line of railway for the Great Northern Railway from a point upon the lower Laurentian Railway in the Province of Quebec to Hawkesbury, Ont.

Among the names mentioned by the liquidator are Vesey Boswell, J. T. Ross, Cyril Eessier, V. Chateauvert, G. Lemoine and J. G. Scott. It is also understood that action will be taken against Hon. John Sharples and the estates of the late Hon. R. R. Robell, Hon. P. Garneau, Hon. E. J. Price and others.

The first of these actions is against Vesey Boswell of Quebec to recover bonds of the Great Northern Railway to the amount of $15,000 par value or $17,000 cash and costs.

ASKED LOVER TO GO TO WORK

Italian Girl is Stabbed on Street in Montreal---Assailant Captured.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—In full view of a dozen pedestrians on University street, one of the leading residential streets of the city, an Italian plunged a dagger three times into the side of a young woman with whom he was walking late yesterday afternoon, and then took to his heels, followed by a number of pursuers

After a long chase the man was captured and received rough-handling before he was turned over to the police. The woman is now in the Royal Victoria Hospital in a very serious condition.

The affray caused much commotion and it was only after a determined chase that the would-be murderer was captured. To the police he gave his name as Francisco Varlo. The woman had been living with him for some time and the alleged cause of the assault is that she asked him to go and get work. The stilletto thrusts was his answer.

CHURCH BURNED AT MONTREAL

Catholic Edifice Worth $50,000 is Destroyed at Coteau du Sac.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—At 10.30 last night fire broke out in the parish church of Coteau du Lac, forty miles west of Montreal on the main line of the G.T.R., and at midnight the structure valued at $60,000 was a mass of smouldering ruins.

There was no fire-fighting appliance in the little village of 300 people, and the inhabitants were obliged to stand by after rescuing some of the valuables.

Help was summoned from Montreal and was being prepared to leave on a special train when word came that the fire had burned itself out. The church was fifty years old. The cause of the fire is unknown.

A convent fifty feet away was saved from a similar fate by the absence of wind. The inmates, over 300 nuns and pupils, sought refuge in the presbytery and other houses of the village until all danger was over.

FYLES WERE TAMPERED WITH DOCUMENTS HAVE BEEN ADDED

Marine Inquiry Closes at Ottawa and Report of Commission Will be Presented Early in Session of Parliament---Spain Again on Stand to Explain Irregularities.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—The investigation before Mr. Justice Cassels into the general charges of "lack of conscience," extravagance and carelessness in the expenditure of public money, preferred against the staff of the Civil Service Commissioners last spring, was concluded yesterday afternoon, after an exhaustive and thorough inquiry, covering practically all the agencies of the Department, and lasting since May last, with the exception of a period of summer vacation. The report of the commission will be presented to Parliament early in the coming session.

Proceedings at yesterday's final sittings of the commission were devoted in the main to supplementary evidence in explanation of a number of transactions previously probed. At the morning sitting it was developed that some fyles of the Department had been gone over by the officials during the progress of the present inquiry; and while no letters were shown to have been abstracted, it appears that new documents have been added. It was also shown that Mr. J. B. Fraser, Commissioner of Lights, now under suspension, while certifying to prices paid for marine supplies at Prescott as being "fair and just," was himself getting some things at a discount of 33 per cent. from the prices paid by the Department.

At the afternoon session Commander Spain was again given an opportunity to explain discrepancies in his accounts for traveling expenses last year, but was unable to add anything to his previous incomplete explanation.

Mr. W. W. Stumbles of the Marine Purchasing Branch, was examined as to the destruction of fyles. Mr. Watson said he heard that fyles of the Department had been taken to a storeroom in the basement, that J. F. Fraser, Col. Gourdeau, and W. W. Stumbles had gone into that room and the fyles had never come out, the presumption being that they had been destroyed.

Mr. Stumbles declared he had not been in the room in question for three years, knew of no fyles being taken there, and had never heard of Mr. Fraser or Col. Gourdeau destroying any.

J. E. McCleneghan who had charge of the fyles, said he had not given J. F. Fraser any fyle after that official had been suspended. He had heard a rumor that fyles had been taken from the Commissioner of Lights Branch to the basement storeroom where J. F. Fraser had access to them. He had not heard of any fyle being destroyed. He had heard of a fyle which was with Mr. Fraser for a long time. When the Minister finally got it back, there had been additions to it of documents which had never gone through the records branch. There did not seem to be anything taken away. This was about the time of the suspension of Mr. Fraser. There might have been a dozen or more fyles to which additions had been made.

Percy White, clerk in the Commissioner of Lights office, said that after J. F. Fraser had been suspended he had gone into the office and obtained the fyles which the Civil Service Commission had used. White took them to the storeroom in the basement and spent a day and a half with Fraser going over the fyle, and checking it with the commissioners' report. He knew of no mutilation of or addition to the fyles.

Questioned by his counsel, Senator Belcourt, Col. Gourdeau stated that Mr. J. F. Fraser was given access to the fyles for a time, by direction of the Minister of Marine, who wished to have the report of the Civil Service Commission checked for accuracy. He said that he was in error when on Saturday he had said the agreement to increase the payment for Holliday's boat, the King Edward, from $125 to $200 a day was made on June 18, 1904. Senator Belcourt called attention to a copy of a letter which asked Agent Gregory if the Holliday boat was worth $200 a day. Tuesday this letter was attributed to Col. Gourdeau and commented upon because he knew when it was written that the increased amount was to be paid.

The letter copy book showed that this letter was written by Mr. Magee for Col. Gourdeau, who was absent in British Columbia at the time. He said that the Minister had given the order to increase the price of the King Edward from $125 to $200 a day.

They were committed for trial and each were allowed to go on bail of $500. They will appear in Whitby for trial on January 5th.

GRAFTING IN PITTSBURG BIG MUNICIPAL SCANDAL

STUDENT KILLED BY A BURGLAR

New York, Dec. 24.—Van Dwight Sheldon, aged 19, in the school of engineering at New York University, lost his life in a battle with a burglar in the cellar of the home of Dean Snow of the school of engineering yesterday. The murderer escaped after a long chase across the snow-covered campus.

Young Sheldon, a cousin of Dean Snow, made his home at the dean's residence. He had gone to the cellar when he heard a movement behind the coal bin and went over to investigate. As he did so a man jumped out and struck the young man in the face. "Let me alone and don't make a sound or I'll kill you," he said, but Sheldon grappled with his assailant and began to call for help. The man, shaking him off whipped out a revolver and fired.

ATTRACTIVE WINDOW AT SCHNEIDERS

In dressing a jewellery window for Christmas display there is always plenty of opportunity for a rich and attractive setting, on account of the superior quality and value of the articles the jeweller has to offer. More that usually handsome, however, is the window of Schneider's jewellery store, George street, and the decorations have been made in an artistic and tasteful manner.

The ground work is of royal purple and three white pillars on each side of the window entwined by smilax and holly make a striking and effective contrast. There are many other clever decorative ideas which lend tone to the general arrangement. The jewellery arrangement contains a wide range of things that would most appropriate and acceptable gifts for Christmas.

CHRISTMAS TREE HELD IN SMITH

A capacity audience greeted the excellent Christmas tree entertainment given Tuesday night at the 4th line of Smith schoolhouse. The decorations were attractive and a good programme of recitations, dialogues and Christmas carols was given. A feature of the evening was the distribution of the prizes to the children. Mr Russell Darling made a most acceptable Santa Claus. Miss Pollaro the popular teacher, is deserving of much credit for her splendid direction of the entertainment.

THE WEATHER

Fresh southerly to westerly winds; mostly fair and mild; light local snow or sleet to-night. Friday a few light local falls of snow or sleet, but mostly fair.

Sensational Evidence Given at Preliminary Hearing---Councilmen Were Purchasable

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 24.—Pittsburg was shaken from end to end yesterday by thunderbolts of sensational testimony in connection with the newly disclosed municipal legislative scandal.

The troubles of San Francisco are popularly declared to be tame in comparison.

Futhermore, it is stated, the developments yesterday were mere preliminaries to subsequent steps against additional councilmen and business men.

The testimony offered in court yesterday intimated strongly that over three score councilmen are "easy to reach" and the "reaching" necessitated only small sums ranging from $100 to $5, and out of a mass of testimony came an apparent disclosure that a majority of the council body had been "reached." In the passage of one ordinance alone it was testified that 60 councilmen had divided $45,000.

Sensations followed one another in rapid succession yesterday during the hearing of the seven councilmen and two former bank officers arrested on charges of bribery, corrupt solicitation and conspiracy last Monday night.

W. W. Ramsay and A. A. Vilsack, former president and cashier of the German National Bank, were first called for a hearing yesterday. It was testified that they had been approached by Councilman John Klein, one of the accused, who stated the bank would be made a depository for the city's funds "if the German National Bank would do as other banks have done." The witness further declared that after several conferences the bankers placed $17,000 on a table in a room of the bank, and that Councilman Klein and a companion entered the room and a short time later left the bank. The bankers then visited the room and the money was gone.

At the request of the directors both of the bank officials resigned last Saturday. They were held in bonds of $14,000 each.

The seven councilmen, President Brand and members Klein, Soffel, Wasson, Melaney and Ferguson of common council, and Atkinson of the select council, were then called for hearing.

The principal witnesses was Robert Wilson, a private detective and superintendent of the municipal league of Scranton, Pa., who is employed by the Voters' League of Pittsburg, which brings the complaint against the nine defendants.

Mr. Wilson's testimony was sensational. Aided by an assistant, it was told that Wilson engaged a room in a local hotel, cut holes in the door and walls of an adjoining room. Then a series of meetings were arranged with councilmen. His assistant, Herbert Jones, posed as a business man desiring certain ordinances passed, and during his conference with the councilmen, Wilson and a stenographer were stationed in the next room making a full record of transactions.

During these conferences, Councilman Klein had a great deal to say regarding how complete councils were controlled by the accused men, the detective said. It was also testified that Klein and Brand each accepted $500 from Jones in payment for securing the passage of an ordinance.

Councilman Klein, Mr. Wilson testified, said that the councilmen had different prices. Some councilmen Klein told him wanted $100, some $75, some $25, and some $5. According to Councilman Klein, Wilson related the $5 council were known as "hoodlums."

It was also possible to secure some councilmanic votes on some measures in return for a suit of clothes or for street car tickets.

Council Too Big.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—Mayor Payette is as ardently in favor as ever he was of reducing the City Council by one-half and knowing that the Council itself will not act in this matter he expressed the hope that a private bill would be presented to the Legislature for a charter amendment to reduce the aldermanic representation to one per ward.

That the present Council is too unwieldy was proved by the delays in the lighting question, which had brought the city to its present helpless position. Asked what action he would take as chief magistrate if the power company did not light the lamps after Dec. 31 next, the mayor said he would not over-step his powers, and his powers, unfortunately were nil.

Fire Evicts a Thousand.

New York, Dec. 24.—More than a thousand persons were made homeless and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed in a fire which burned out a block of apartment houses between Second and Third avenues and Forty-Fourth and Forty-Fifth streets, Brooklyn, yesterday. Twenty persons, overcome by smoke, were rescued by firemen.

The great Bush terminal docks were saved by a fire boat, which kept the flames from sweeping over Second avenue.

A policeman, clasping in his arms the tiny form of a little boy, was carried fainting from a hallway by his comrades. Women and children, dazed with fright, knelt in the icy street and prayed hysterically.

Toronto, Dec. 24.—The Ontario Government made the following appointments at a council meeting yesterday afternoon:

W. A. Tisdale, son of Hon. A. D. Tisdale, to be registrar of Norfolk County.

Dr. F. S. Snider of Waterford to be sheriff of Norfolk.

Allan McLellan, Kenora, to be police magistrate in place of Andrew More, removed. This is the result of an investigation by a commission appointed by the Attorney-General.

Castro Doesn't Know.

Berlin, Dec. 24.—The Foreign Office yesterday morning received advices from Caracas confirming the press reports of the overthrow of President Castro.

"The whole country rose against Castro," the communication said.

Castro, deposed by his people and discredited by his Government, is lying on a sick bed in Berlin in complete ignorance of the events at Caracas that have resulted in his downfall.

Bank Treasurer Suicides.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 24.—Frank W. Cutting, for forty years connected with the Worcester Mechanics Savings Bank, and for seven years its treasurer, was found dead by suicide at his home yesterday.

Six Below at Kingston.

Kingston, Dec. 24.—Kingston had the coldest snap of the season yesterday, the thermometer registering six degrees below zero, and ice forming on the lake.

In Grip of Frost.

Plattsburg, N.Y., Dec. 24.—Upper New York State and particularly the Adirondacks region is in the grip of one of the most severe cold spells it has ever experienced so early in the winter. The mercury at Lake Placid registered 22 degrees below zero yesterday, while at Upper Chateaugau Lake it stood at 19 below and at other near-by points from 12 to 18 below.

Up state farmers whose wells have been dry for months, and who have been depending on the streams for their winter water supply, are suffering greatly owing to the freezing of the brooks. Farmers at Ellenburg have been forced to drive five miles to Lower Chateaugau Lake for water.

For Eighteen Years Believed Dead.

Guelph, Dec. 24.—Wm. Morgan, for 18 years supposed dead, is in the city, much to the surprise of those who knew him then. In July, 1891, a report appeared in the papers of the death of Morgan, corporal of the Northwest Mounted Police, at Fort MacLeod, Alberta, who had previously left for England, and had, after leaving New York, been found dead in his berth. It was another man, however, it seems.

Boy Drowns.

Cornwall, Dec. 24.—Joseph Lashambe, the 13-year-old son of Angus Lashambe of Cornwall, was drowned while skating on a bay of the St. Lawrence, near Fraser's Point. The lad broke through at a thin point where the water was only three feet and a half deep.

Daring Burglars, These.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—While the woman of the house was powerless to protest two men yesterday broke into the home of Mrs. G. A. Lavoie, 36 Fabre street, and burglarized the house. They even broke open the slot machine attached to the gas meter.

To Unite Marine Unions.

Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 24.—The Cleveland Leader says: A movement was launched for an amalgamation of all labor unions on the Great Lakes at a secret conference of national officers in this city.

Finds $10,000 In Tomato Can.

East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 24.—Patrick Sullivan, an ice wagon driver, found a $10,000 bill in the bottom of an old tomato can, which he picked up in an alley in the residence part of the town.

Lemieux Confident.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Postmaster-General, returned to Ottawa yesterday afternoon from his mission in Europe, where he had been in consultation with the Imperial authorities regarding a cheaper cable service.

He is confident that the lower rates which prevail on the Pacific lines will be secured on the Atlantic before long.

N.P. In Vancouver.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 24.—With the object of obtaining additional terminal facilities the Northern Pacific has completed the purchase of half a million dollars' worth of lots on the north side of False Creek in the east end.

Death List Large.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—The extraordinary number of 124 fatal accidents have been reported for the month of November to the Labor Department.

No fewer than 56 lives were lost on railways or railway construction.

The railway fatalities occurred in the following provinces: Ontario 30, Manitoba 8, Quebec 7, British Columbia 4, Saskatchewan 3, Alberta 2, New Brunswick 1, and Nova Scotia 1.

The worst accident was near Dryden, Ont., where a dynamite explosion caused the death of seven construction hands.

Toronto Girl Elopes.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 24.—Miss Marguerite Cavine, a pretty young woman, eloped to Worcester yesterday with Charles E. Barnes, a man twice her age. They were married late yesterday afternoon by Rev. Vincent E. Tomlinson at his home here.

At the City Hall, where the license was secured, it was said the young woman was a nurse. According to the wedding permit she lives on Carlton street, Toronto. The middle-aged groom gave his address as 361 Ninth street, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Cold In Quebec.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—It was 13 below zero in Montreal yesterday and in some places in Quebec as low as 20 below was registered.

New Portuguese Cabinet.

Lisbon, Dec. 24.—A new Cabinet has been formed, headed by Dr. W. de S. Pereira da Lima as Premier.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

At Moose Jaw on Tuesday 600 entries for homesteads were entered.

At Baltimore, Md., Harlem Park M. E. Church was burned; loss $50,000.

At Detroit, Frank Smith (or Kowasky) formerly of Buffalo, killed his wife and shot himself.

The Postum Cereal Co. and the Reo Motor Car Co. of Lansing, Mich., are opening branches at Windsor, Ont.

Four of the largest department stores in Chicago will give their employes a Saturday holiday in addition to Christmas Day.

The writ for the bye-election in Virden, made necessary by the death of Hon. J. H. Agnew, Provincial Treasurer, has been issued for Jan. 9th.

Joe Deighton, a young Welshman, is under arrest at Orangeville charged with being a "Jack the Hugger," who has been operating there recently.

At Oakland, Cal., John T. Day, husband of Anna Eva Fay, the mental telepathy specialist, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head.

A Manchester paper states that J. Pierpont Morgan paid $120,000 for the 15 Caxtons, part of the famous library of Lord Amherst of Hackney, recently disposed of at public sale.

"THE NIGGER IN THE WOOD-PILE"

Thousands of people go through life feeling more or less miserable without ever knowing the reason. They suffer from headaches, indigestion, pains in the back, and at the slightest chill get rheumatism or neuralgia.

They try to cure these separate outbreaks, never suspecting that the root of the whole trouble is the failure of the bowels to move regularly, and in many cases the sluggish action of kidneys and skin. The result, of course, is that the whole system gets clogged with impurities, which soon turn to poisons, and show their presence in various ways.

"Fruit-a-tives"—or fruit juice tablets—promptly stir up the sluggish liver, regulate the bowels, and stimulate the kidneys and skin to do their work properly. Thus they cure all these troubles by removing the cause, and make it possible to really enjoy life. 50c a box—6 boxes for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

CHRISTMAS

The joy of Christmas! This is an impression that conveys to the inner consciousness the true idea of this religious festival.

Christmas is the time of the annual re-union in the mind of the human charities. People go to church on Christmas Day because they delight in taking part in the gladness of song and in the sweetness and purity of religious sentiments. The mystery of the universe physical and spiritual strikes with "awe and reverence," even the most material and cynical of men. The lofty thoughts of the preacher, as in his mind's eye he traces the lives and conduct of men in the world of God, applies at this season with greater force than perhaps at any other. To every man the question at some time comes "Is it worth while being honorable and good?" Those who answer themselves in the negative depart voluntarily into a world of darkness and veritable horror. They snarl or laugh as the wolf or hyaena their animal counterparts. They treat even the subtlety of Love in the same gross, material and philistinic way.

Religion is the state of mind in which those repose who when they rise again to any task undertake it with a desire to perform it honorably and well. Scheming, lying and other forms of meanness cannot find lodgement long within them. But they dread the advertising of their thoughts. Above all they abhor the thought of inconsistency.

A good man cannot be inconsistent. It is when he has fallen short that he becomes inconsistent. There is no more appalling spectacle in the whole world than that of the bad nature trying to pretend that it is a good one. It is above all things, pitiable and mean. The force of religion is that of the magnet which draws mysteriously not showily, not even apparently yet how irresistibly. The heart of the religious man or woman is a fountain from which good flows out over the world. Each Christmas, men try their hearts to see if they are dried up and rejoice to find that it is not so and best of all, others rejoice with them.

AT THIS SEASON

Peterborough is pretty well looked after at this season of the year. The Children's Aid Society, the King's Daughters, the City Charity Fund, the various church organizations, private charity—in fact the heart of the people is open at this especial period of the festive season in a way that speaks well for our humane feelings one towards the other. If we could only behave ourselves in other ways half so well we might be reasonably a bit "stuck up," as Uncle Remus used to say.

PEONAGE

It speaks very ill for the sensitiveness to wrong-doing at the present time of the people of what they are called the civilized world, that actual slavery should exist under and for the benefit of the State. It exists in the horrible form of peonage in the Congo and in the United States of America. Convicts sentenced for long or short terms have been and are farmed out to contractors and others in the southern States. Experience has shown that the hardships endured by the slave-gangs surpass those even of slavery days. Agitation has helped to a certain extent to narrow the scope of this offence but what must we think of a public opinion that can tolerate it at all?

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Every bit of food on this table," said the serving lady to Lamson as he sat down to eat at the church supper "was cooked by your wife."

"Oh, I don't mind," rejoined Lamson faintly. "I'm not a bit hungry anyway."—New York Times.

At the marriage of Thetis and Peleus, where all the gods and goddesses met together, Discord threw on the table a "golden apple." for "the most beautiful." Juno, Minerva, and Venus put in their separate claims, and not being able to settle the point referred the matter to Paris, who gave judgment to Venus. This brought on him the vengeance of Juno and Minerva, to whose skill is attributed the fall of Troy.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

Mr. Editor,—Allow me to make a few remarks on the following text from which possibly we may learn some lessons which the writer, as well as the reader, might do well to keep in memory.

"Ye shall keep my Sabbaths and reverence my sanctuary; I am the Lord," Lev. 19, 30.

The Sabbath is a holy day set apart as a sacred day of rest, from common or secular use. Every hour of the Lord's Day is holy. The sanctuary is a holy place set apart from common or secular use and consecrated to religious use and divine worship. Every court of the sanctuary is holy. To desecrate the Sabbath we have only to use it as a common day, for instance. The merchant has only to offer his goods for sale on this day, to profane the Sabbath. He may argue that all his profits of that day's business he will devote to sending the Gospel to the uttermost parts of the earth, and pleads that false doctrine that "the end justifies the means," or else let us do evil that good may come, but in vain, he is brought in guilty—both by the law of God and man—of Sabbath desecration and is punished accordingly. Sabbath and sanctuary desecration were punishable under the levitical law by death. To desecrate the sanctuary we have only to use that sacred place as a common house. What is Church? Church means the Lord's house. We may call it our church, it is in a sense but preeminently it is God's house "Ye shall reverence My sanctuary." The God of heaven is not confined to temples made with hands, for "the heaven of heavens cannot contain Him," but he has now as of old, his earthly court, where he condescends in infinite mercy to meet the children of men to speak to them by his spirit through His word, His ambassadors, etc. Yea, and in every true sanctuary His ministers from the imperial court of heaven are always in attendance ministering to the heirs of salvation, and as reporters gathering up news of sinners repenting, for publication in the upper sanctuary. It well becomes us to tread the courts of the Lord's house with reverence. "Ye shall reverence my sanctuary." Earthly kings demand strict adherence to court rules. Even so the King of heaven expects that the simple, reasonable court rules of the sanctuary be observed. Let us consider some of them Court rules for men, heads uncovered short hair. For women, heads uncovered, etc., but if I may be excused the degression, if I remark that the women of our day have over done this simple rule and have enlarged the borders of their hats to such an extent that for length, breadth, depth and height one can only compare them to ——I pause for a smile, and these large hats have come to be such a plague in some parts for of one heroic preacher, just the other day it is reported that he refused to proceed with the services of the sanctuary until the wearers of these aforesaid hats either took them off or left the church. Moral—We can get too much of a good thing. Let us consider next the court rules governing the matter of singing in the sanctuary. I would say that we as professing Christians living in a Christian country, this land of churches, are in duty bound to study court rules that we may know how to behave ourselves in the church of God. "Psalms, hymns and spiritual songs," is the simple court rule laid down for the regulating of our behaviour in the matter of singing in the courts of the Lord's house, and I would say right here that I challenge the world to disprove that statement.

We profane the Sabbath when we sing the common secular songs of the street on that day. Likewise the sanctuary is desecrated when these common songs are sung there. Desecration or sacrelege is alienating to common purposes that which has been appropriated to religious uses. To turn from right or true use, when we use the sanctuary for concerts, operettas, &c., and offer these entertainments for sale at 25 cents a head at the door of the sanctuary and as the programme calls for sing the common songs of the street—fit only for a comic show—such as Tom Tom, the Piper's Son, Yankee Doodle Came to Town or Johnnie Smoker. What are you Guilty Of? I leave my reader to judge for himself.

"Ye shall reverence my sanctuary; I am the Lord." We will consider for a moment what is included in the sanctuary. It surely includes the children's court viz., the Sabbath school. The Sabbath school might well be called the children's church. At all events it is as much a part of the church as the nursery is part and parcel of the home. If we train our children to treat the sanctuary as a common house where they may play, eat and drink to the full and romp between tables through the church, playing hide and seek under the pews to the utter dismay of the sexton. If we treat them in this way when they grow old they will not depart from it. But train them to reverence the sanctuary as a holy place, as we train them to reverence the Sabbath as a holy day, then they will as they grow older, be more likely by so doing to find the house of God to be the gate of heaven to their souls.

God, whose understanding is infinite, knew how much the law of association effected His earthly children when He said "Ye shall reverence my sanctuary."

Yours etc.,
JOHN CARLISLE.

THEY TOOK IN A BANK CLERK PLAYING BRIDGE FOR STAKES

London, Ont., Dec. 23.—The report that society women of this city are playing fan-tan under the tutelage of a Chinaman, has caused no end of discussion in all circles.

One man who dosen't mind a little game of poker occasionally, takes a flyer in stocks now and then, and who occasionally consults a form sheet has to how the ponies are running, declaed that he drew the line at bridge whist, and did so because of what he termed "common decency."

"You can't get me into this game of bridge to which how wives are so devoted," he said. "We hear about bank cashiers going wrong because they play the stock market and hold up their hands in holy horror. I think I know where they got start. I saw three gracious society women whose whose names are synonymous with public charity, trim a young fellow of $30 dollars in a way that had the old shell game beaten to a finish.

"He came of exceptionally good family in a smaller adjacent town and is now working as a junior in a local bank. He was invited to a little informal party here the other night to which I was also unfortunate enough to be roped into going to, and he came. Of course after a short time bridge was proposed, and asked if he could play, he said no he had never played game.

"Oh, Mrs. So-and-So will be your partner, and she will teach you. Sit right in at this table," said the hostess and like Samson of old he listened to the voice of Delilah and sat in.

In thirty minutes, with flushed face and feeling much humiliated he rose and said that he had lost all he could afford to, as he had no money left. He had been trimmed of $30, which sum, to a junior member of a bank or any young fellow making his way in the world, is more than he could afford to lose. The game went on however, and he was left a neglected guest because his money had run out and he could play no longer—and at the instigation of his hostess he had sat in to learn the game. That's the kind of 'learning' that bowery toughs pull off, and in the latter case it is punishable by imprisonment.

"As far as I am concerned I am glad that these women are taking to fantan. It can't be worse than bridge and it might goe better. I'll take the chance oon it being better."

This unusual matter was being discussed at one of the leading clubs the other night, and as a group of married men were discoursing on card-playing in general.

"Well, said one, "when I look at my children I am thoroughly ashamed of myself, and although a man dosen't like to critize his wife, at least four nights a week my wife is out playing bridge till midnight.

"As you know," he continued wearily, "I spend most of my nights here till a very late hour.

"I went to my wife three weeks ago and told her I would make a pact with her whereby we would both stay in nights and learn to know our children. The idea hit her beautifully, and we almost went back to courtship days, and we planned what we were going to do for weeks ahead.

"It didn't work. Two nights later came a call of bridge whist from some of the women who had been her dearest friends, and she went to another of those parties. It's the same old story now, and I hardly know my own children. I blame it all on bridge whist."

"Yes, I guess that is about right," said another slowly, "I guess that's about right. I'm tired of this place. I'd rather be home every night, but a man can't sit home alone."

Trapping Muskrats

A case of peculiar interest to local trappers and hunters will come up before Magistrate F. D. Moore tomorrow at 10 a.m. The charge is of the trapping of muskrats out of season by a Lindsay man at Marsh Lake, one of the tributaries of East Cross Creeks. Some important doubtful points will be cleared up.—Lindsay Post.

LAST CROP REPORT.

Canada's Field Crops For 1908 Amounted to $432,533,000.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—An important statement regarding the quantities and values of field crops and the condition of live stock in Canada was given out yesterday from the Census and Statistics Office.

An area of 27,505,663 acres of field crops has yielded a harvest which computed at average local market prices, has a value of $432,533,000.

Fall wheat, with a yield of 24.40 bushels per acre, shows a value of $21.10, and spring wheat, with 16 bushels, shows $12.84.

The total value of the wheat harvest in the northwest provinces is $72,424,000, and in the rest of the Dominion $18,804,000.

The value of all field crops in Prince Edward Island is $9,408,000, Nova Scotia, $20,083,000; New Brunswick, $18,042,000; Quebec, $80,896,000; Ontario, $185,308,000; Manitoba, $66,660,000; Saskatchewan, $37,614,000, and Alberta, $14,522,000. Figures for British Columbia are not available. Average value of field crops for the Dominion in the year is $15.72 per acre.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Accidentally Asphyxiated.

New York, Dec. 24.—Frederick A. Burnham, former president of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Co., who was indicted following the insurance investigation in view of his conduct while at the head of that company, was found dead in bed at his home here yesterday from inhaling illuminating gas. The gas had escaped from a small stove which was used to heat Mr. Burnham's sleeping room.

Dissolves Standard Oil.

Jefferson City, Mo., Dec. 24.—The Supreme Court of Missouri handed down a decision yesterday ousting the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana and the Republic Oil Co. from the State of Missouri, forbidding them again to do business in Missouri and dissolving the Waters, Pierce Oil Co. of St. Louis.

In addition each of the companies is fined $50,000.

To Defend a Murderer.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—It was announced yesterday that Judge Choquette has been appointed to act as a commission to secure evidence in Ireland and England as to the sanity of James Smith, who shot and killed Constable Shea and wounded Chief Carpenter last spring.

Ryan Dropping Out.

New York, Dec. 24.—Thomas F. Ryan, admittedly one of the greatest powers of the financial world, announced yesterday that yielding to the advise of his physicians he had resigned from the directorate of 34 different corporations. The only enterprises in the management of which the noted financier retains a hand are the Norton Trust Co., the National Bank of Commerce and the American Tobacco Co.

Panet For "13" Battery.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—Major A. H. Panet, D.S.O., deputy adjutant-general, will return to regimental work and will assume command of B. Battery, Kingston, next June. It is unusual for an officer of the Headquarters' Staff to return to regimental work.

Two Years For Horse-Stealing.

Brampton, Dec. 24.—Jacob Henderson came before the judge yesterday to answer the second charge of horse-stealing, he having pleaded guilty to the first charge, that of stealing a horse from Robert Williamson of Bolton. He pleaded not guilty of stealing a horse from the Canada Ice Co. of Toronto, but the evidence was very strongly against him and he was found guilty and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary on both charges, the sentences to run concurrently.

Labor Market Better.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—The Labor Gazette states that apart from seasonable causes the general tone of the labor market during November was more satisfactory than during October and considerably more satisfactory than during the same period of 1907.

The wages of unskilled labor were generally lower. The cost of the necessaries of life are generally on the increase.

Boy Guilty of Murder.

Toledo, Dec. 24.—Harvey Hazel, a 17-year-old boy, on trial for the killing of his mother, was last night found guilty of murder in the second degree. He was accused of beating his mother to death with a hammer.

A Little Paint Badly Applied.

The Journal des Debats in an article on "Napoleon on the Stage" tells why the play "L'Homme de Destin" was taken from the stage when its triumph was at the zenith. One evening, according to the story, the emperor, accompanied by his friend Duroc, went in disguise to the Porte St. Martin theater, where the piece was being performed, Eugene Chevalier appearing as the man of destiny. They bought a box, but had hardly entered it when the emperor broke forth in violent execrations against the "fool managers." It seemed that the decorators had left in the box pots of oil and paint, and into these the emperor had stepped. "Wild with rage," says the writer, "he rushed from the house and, to make matters worse, was recognized in the lobby. No paper mentioned the incident, but by order of the emperor the play was never produced again, and Chevalier never appeared again as the man of destiny—and all on account of a little paint badly applied."

Passengers as Bouncers.

A passenger in a full railway carriage in England has a perfect legal right to push away any one else who tries to get into it. This decision was given at Marylebone police court when a man complained that he was pushed out of a carriage at Bishop's road station by another passenger, who said the car was full. "It is the duty of conductors," said the court, "to see that the trains are not overcrowded. They are perfectly entitled to use reasonable force to prevent any one from boarding cars when they are full. If they fail to avail themselves of this right the passengers are entitled to act for themselves."

Every Morning.

Paul, at the age of four, was asked one morning by his papa, "What is the name of the first meal of the day?"

"Oatmeal," responded little Paul promptly.—Exchange.

An Enigma.

Tommy—Say, papa, I wish you would tell me something. Papa—Well, what is it? Tommy—When you were a little boy, who was my papa?

NORWOOD NEWS

Special to the Review,
Norwood, Dec. 22.

Mr. Fred Buck, of Toronto, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Buck, Hastings road.

Mr. Roy Richardson, of Kingston is home for the holidays.

Miss Susie Moore, who attends the High school here, is visiting at her home in Keene.

Miss Madge Patterson, who has spent the last two or three months in Sault Ste. Marie, returned on Saturday.

Mrs. McNabb, nee Rena Patterson, Sault Ste. Marie, is visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Patterson, King street.

Mrs. T. H. Elphick, of Peterborough, is visiting her father, Mr. W. H. Tucker, Spring street.

Miss Edna Wedlock and Edna Howson, who are attending the High school here, are spending their Xmas holidays with their parents in Keene.

Mr. T. Devitte and son, of Winnipeg, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Patterson, King-st.

Miss Zella Stevenson who has been visiting friends in Norwood for the past few weeks returned to her home in Palmero last week.

The Methodist Sabbath school have decided to hold their annual entertainment on or about the 15th of January. Committees are now at work training the school in songs, recitations, dialogues and drills.

Mrs. Wm. Finlay returned last week after a short visit with Mrs. Sulman, in Belleville.

Out of the proceeds of the High School "At Home," held recently in the school $5.00 have been sent to the Sick Children's Hospital and $5.00 to the Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst.

The members of the Methodist choir drove back to the home of Mr. and Miss Howson, in South Dummer, on Wednesday evening last, where they spent a sociable evening together, playing games. All report having spent a very pleasant evening.

The Presbyterian Mission Band held their bazaar on Saturday last in the vacant store in the Pierce block. Those in charge of the tables were;—

Fancy Work Table — Ella Lillie Mabel Ford, Marjorie Johnston, Helfer Anderson.

Apron Table — Pauline Weir, Mabel Lillie, Reta Nicoll.

Candy Booth—Vera Finlay, Bella Yourix, Ruby Chandler.

Tea Table — Jean Nicoll, Edith Yourix, Mrs. Robb.

Mr. Herman McNicoll and Jean McNicoll drove over to Campbellford on Tuesday.

Another pioneer passed over the border on Saturday last in the person of Mr James D Buck, of Denicoll. Mr Buck had only been ill a few days and his death came as a great shock to the community.

Mr Buck was fifty eight years of age and leaves to mourn his loss his bereaved wife, and one daughter, Pearl who is at home.

The funeral which was held on Tuesday afternoon to the Norwood cemetery was well attended.

Mr Gordon Beavis of Hastings was in town on Tuesday.

Mr Stewart of Peterborough was in town for a few days.

Miss Georgie Young, of Toronto is visiting at her home on Belmont street.

Mr T. Morrison has nearly completed the work on his house which he has been enlarging. When the house is finished it will be a great improvement.

Mr Wm Flemming has taken advantage of the cold days and now has the rink ready for use. Tonight is the first night for the rink to be open but the boys and girls have been skating on the mill pond for the last two or three weeks.

We are glad to say that Mrs W. Taylor who has been very ill is improving.

Last Friday being the last day of school the children of the fourth class in the public school prepared a good programme, during which an address was read by Mary Pickford, and four volumes were presented to Mr. Frappy, the principal, of the school who has retired from school teaching owing to ill health.

A Famous Perfume.

Queen Alexandra's favorite perfume, it is well known, is a certain scent which is a combination of rare essences, the secret of which is so carefully guarded that no money can purchase the recipe. The late Queen Victoria used this same perfume for more than fifty years. Nobody but the manufacturer knows the formula, but a Paris perfumer of long experience has pronounced it a blend of rose, violet, jasmine, lavender and orange blossom.

London's Feeble Minded Children.

There are eighty-four schools in London for the education of children who are not included under the extreme term "idiots or imbeciles," but are "feeble minded and defective." They are attended by 6,000 children, of whom about two-thirds learn some useful manual work, while the rest are hopeless and require permanent custodial care.—London Telegraph.

Persian Humor.

A recent Parisian caricature shows a bearded Turk in a turban upon the crenelated roof of his house looking through a fieldglass. "Allah is just," he exclaims. "Now that my neighbors' wives go about with faces uncovered I see that they are quite as homely as my own."

RESERVED JUDGMENT FOR A WEEK

Jacob and Jane Firnam Charged With Being Keepers of House of Ill Fame

Jacob and Jane Firnam were charged with being the keepers of a house of ill fame, at the police court this morning. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the prisoners and pleaded not guilty. The case occupied all the morning and it was a quarter to two before a conclusion was reached. His Worship reserved judgment for a week and in the meantime allowed them to go on their own recognizance.

Considerable evidence was taken both for the prosecution and the defence. Mr. George Cochrane, agent of the Children's Aid Society, and Mr. Wm. Henry, caretaker of the Shelter, stated that three children were taken from Mrs. Firnam last February and given into suitable homes.

CHRISTMAS IN THE PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS

The Inmates of the Protestant Home, Hazel Brae, House of Providence and the Hospitals Will Have Christmas Cheer To-morrow—Salvation Army Will Provide for Prisoners at the Gaol.

At this glad Christmas season it is pleasing to know, that the many poor families in the city are not to be forgotten, and no one, knowingly, will have to go without some Christmas cheer. Being a season of great rejoicing happiness seems to prevail everywhere and the greatest jojy to all seems to be the joy of giving. "It is more blessed to give then to receive," is the motto that prompts people to remember their friends with some tangible expression of their love and esteem. Particularly should the poor, the sad and unfortunate ones be remembered with some evidence of kindness at the Yuletide season. Christ, whose birth we commemorate on this happy occasion found His greatest pleasure in helping and living for others. The same spirit that Christ gave throughout His life, governs every Christian at the present time and it is the ambition of everyone to gladden the hearts of some one by the giving of some little gift.

That good cheer and genuine happiness will prevail in all the charitable institutions and throughout the city generally is assured. The public institutions are making preparations to give their inmates a pleasant day, while the Children's Aid Society, many private citizens and benevolent societies are looking after their own particular branches of the great work.

AT THE SHELTER.

Mr. George Cochrane will as usual, deliver a large number of baskets. There are eight children in the Shelter at the present time and there will be a Christmas tree on Christmas night.

BARNARDO HOME.

This Christmas will be a joyful one at Hazel Brae. It is expected that many girls will be present to participate in the Christmas festivities. The building has been artistically decorated, and from a large and heavily laden Christmas tree, presents will be distributed to each one. The public have again showed their kindness to Hazel Brae for which the superintendent is very grateful.

SALVATION ARMY.

The Salvation Army will give Christmas cheer to the inmates of the county gaol and the Nicholls Hospital. To-morrow the band will be out on their annual serenade, and on the evening of Christmas day a Christmas tree will be held at the barracks.

PROTESTANT HOME.

The old folk who make the Protestant Home their abode will be made happy to-morrow. The Home is being decorated and many good, kind citizens have remembered the inmates and sent luxuries to them. There are nineteen in the Home at the present time. To-night presents from a Christmas tree will be given to each one. Misses Archer and Aylmer have arranged for the singing of Christmas carols.

HOUSE OF PROVIDENCE.

At the House of Providence special preparations are being made to celebrate Christmas day. Special services will be held both morning and evening. The halls and rooms have been tastefully decorated and in the evening there will be the usual Christmas tree for children.

AT THE HOSPITALS.

Both at Nicholls and St. Joseph's Hospitals, extensive decorations are being carried out and all through the building suggestions of the Yuletide season are in evidence. Everything possible will be done to cheer the sick and suffering, and by the kindness of the nurses in charge, the bed of pain will be converted into one of joy and sunshine.

STRUCK IN LEFT EYE BY BELT AND MAY LOSE SIGHT

Roland J. Curtis who resides at 498 Patterson street and who is employed as a machinist at the Quaker Oats Company met with a somewhat serious accident shortly before noon to-day and as a result of it, may lose the sight of his left eye. The belt of a motor broke and struck the man in the eye, cutting his face. Dr. Eastwood was called, also the Dan Spence ambulance. Mr. Curtis was removed to the Nicholls hospital. The doctor stated that the left eye was seriously injured and it may be that the man will loose the sight of it.

HAPPY CELEBRATION OF THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Warsaw, Ont., Dec. 22.

A happy and unique event took place last night at "Place Valis," Dummer, the home of Mr. Jacob White. After fifty years of married blessedness Mr. and Mrs. White gathered their relatives around them to celebrate the golden anniversary of the day when they plighted their thoth and hand in hand were joined together to share the joys and sorrows of their life.

For the first time known here and probably anywhere, a record of golden wedding is handed down to posterity at which the presents received by the happy couple were not numerous nor were they costly, in fact they were practically nil. Those favored with invitations to this remarkable occasion were surprised to note at the bottom of their cards the public request, "No presents please," and a further surprise was in store for them.

After the guests were assembled a formal ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Marvin, during which Mr. White placed a neat gold band on the finger of his fifty years bride and they happily renewed the promises that had been so faithfully kept for half a century. When the clamour of congratulations had subsided Mr. White, prompted by the generosity which so well becomes him presented a golden sovereign to each of the sisters of Mrs. White, to each of his own sisters and also to his only surviving brother, Benjamin White, of Peterborough, and to Dr. Marvin. Mr. White also handed to Rev. Dr. Marvin a substantial cheque for the general missionary fund of the Methodist church, of which body Mr. and Mrs. White have been life long members. Dr. Marvin then read an address during which Mrs. George Grant, of Parsley, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. White, handed to Mr. White a gold pen and a gold clock to Mrs. White. Mrs. Currie, of Ottawa, niece of Mr. White, who could not be present, sent her congratulations, a large holly wreath and a clock of gold.

The wants of the inner man were repleted around the bridal table, which groaned under such appetizing viands as make Dummer hospitality famous, and the remainder of the evening was taken up with music and other enjoyable recreation. Among the musical numbers was a song composed by Mr. White and rendered as a duet by Mr. and Mrs. White. The song related to the old home of Mrs. White's young days, one of the pioneer log houses of Dummer.

Among those present were all the brothers and sisters of Mrs. White, excepting Mrs. Joseph Rowley, of Paisley, and Mrs. Samuel Hamblin, of Deloraine, Man., who could not be present, and all Mr. White's sisters and his only surviving brother Benjamin.

Mr. Jacob White is the popular and respected treasurer of the township of Dummer and one of the oldest residents.

THEATRICAL

WILDFIRE.

Wildfire, the dashing racing comedy, with Lillian Russell in the leading role, was given with great success at the Grand Opera House last night attracting one of the largest audiences that ever gathered in the local playhouse. Several situations arising from the anti-betting crusade in New York State are introduced to advantage, and the audience was kept in one continuous roar of laughter at the extremely humorous situations. So great and enthusiastic was the applause that Miss Russell was forced to respond to repeated curtain calls. The scenery throughout was beautiful and effective.

Miss Russell's portrayal of the vivacious widow who controls the racing stable, is very clever, and her performance is all that can be desired. Excellent support is extended by the other members of the company, the chief laugh-producer being Will Archie, the stable boy. Frank Sheridan appears to advantage as the trainer, while the rival claimants for the widow's favor are Sydney Booth and Thurston Hall. As the bookmaker Franklyn Roberts carries out a catchy part which contrasts strongly with the race reformer, Adolphe Lestina. The other members of the cast were T. Hayes Hunter, as a jockey's valet; Ellen Mortimer and Mary E. Forbes as "the two girls"; Ernest Truex is a new acquirement as a colored jockey; Gilbert Douglas still plays the Englishman's part, while the colored maid's role is carried out by Annie Buckley.

CHRISTMAS TREE TOOK A TUMBLE

At an entertainment held recently in Kirkfield the Christmas tree fell. It had not been securely fastened, and when the tree fell there was a scattering among the children. It fell on two or three of them, but did not injure the children in any way.

COOK STOCK CO. NEW YEAR'S WEEK

The attraction at the Grand for one week, starting Monday, Dec. 28th, will be the Carl W. Cook Stock Company. This company comes to Peterborough better equipped than the average repetoire company, both in plays and people. The specialties are far above the average and in every way this company is superior to the general popular priced attractions.

The opening bill is "Nature's Nobleman," a comedy drama of the higher type and yet full of thrills and laughable situations. The parts are in capable hands and the whole bill goes with a rush.

The specialties introduced between the acts are numerous, among them will be "Miss Edyth La Nore," the Dainty Dresden Doll; this little commedienne quickly smiles her way into favor with her audience and never fails to make friends everywhere. The marvelous Vade gives one of the most mystifying and yet laughable magic acts seen lately. Geo. F. Cotter, comedian and laugh producer, Joe Vitte, the man with the sweet voice, and others.

Ladies' tickets for Monday night. Plan opens to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

CHAMPIONSHIP TROPHY FOR THE CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE

A well-known city clergyman remarked to Mr. J. H. Burnham to-day that it was a pity, in the interests of a healthy amateur sport, that there was no trophy for the Senior Church Hockey League clubs to play for. Mr. Burnham offered to provide the much-desired article if the league committee would do the rest. The offer was accepted. It will be a silver cup and the number of times it will have to be won by a single team before it becomes the property of the team will be decided upon by the executive of the league.

The Church league has been organized this year under most promising auspices, and promises in its way to be quite as successful as the city league. There is great enthusiasm in the movement among the officers and teams in the league.

BURNS HAS WONDERFUL REACH; HAS HELPED HIM MUCH IN RING

Burns, although four and one-half inches shorter than old Bob Fitzsimmons, has a reach that is one inch longer, measuring 74 1-2 inches against 73 1-2 inches of Fitzsimmons. Jeffries' measurement from tip to tip of his outstretched arms was only 75 1-2 inches, one inch longer than that of the Canadian. A gorilla standing just about as high as Burns has a tremendous reach. He would stretch easily nine feet, as his arms hang at his sides away below his knees. No fighter of Burns' size ever drew the reach that he has, and this in a way accounts for the wonderful progress he has made in the ring against the lemon crop in England.

COUNTRY FIGHT MAD.

Australia is fight mad. Already over ten thousand tickets have been sold for the Tommy Burns-Jack Johnson match on Saturday. Demands are coming for reservations from all parts of the island, and it is expected that by the date of the battle the pasteboards will be bringing exorbitant prices. The promoters have taken every precaution to keep the tickets from the speculators, but large blocks have foun their way into scalpers' hands.

REFEREE TROUBLE.

The Canadian now insists that R. L. Baker, an Australian pugilist, act as referee. This is resented by Johnson, who believes his rival has already had too much to say as to the arrangements of the mill. As a result there is a great deal of bitterness between the two camps. Burns is the favorite, but many who have watched Johnson will place a bet on his chances. Both men are reported in excellent condition.

GOOD ON THE STAGE.

Outside the purse, which will be divided 5000 pounds to Burns and 1100 pounds to Johnson, there is a big incentive to victory. Vaudeville managers throughout the country are flooding both men with offers for theatrical engagements in case of victory. One offer of 1750 a week has been made to the winner.

THREE CLUBS HAD PRACTICE

Fresh Air, Otonabees and Grand Trunks Worked Out on Park Street Rink

The Fresh Air Club, the Otonabee Athletic Club and the Grand Trunks all worked out at the Park street rink last night. The ice was in great condition and the rink will be used a great deal this winter when weather conditions render it available.

Park street will be represented by a good team in the Church League winter.

CURLING

FIVE RINKS FROM LINDSAY.

At a meeting of the executive of the Curling Club held Monday evening it was decided to send five rinks to Peterborough bonspiel, to be held in that city on January 12th. The rinks will be skipped by L. V. O'Connor, J. D. Flavelle, G. A. Little, T. Gage and J. M. Knowlson.—Lindsay Warder.

CRESSMANS ACCEPT

Cressmans hockey team accept the challenge of the Fresh Air Club and are willing to play just as soon as the ice can be secured by the challengers.

RETURNS AT THE ORIENTAL

With their customary enterprise in sporting affairs the management of the Oriental have made arrangements to secure bulletins announcing by rounds the progress of the Burns-Johnston fight. The first returns will likely reach here by about eight o'clock to-morrow night. There is a great deal of local interest in the fight and the service will be much appreciated.

SHOULD BE A LARGE CROWD

At the Matinee of Peterborough Turf Club on Christmas Day ---A Fast Track

Everything is panning out favorably in connection with the matinee of the Peterborough Turf Club to be held at the Driving Park on the afternoon of Christmas day. The weather is just what the horsemen want, and the track will be in excellent condition.

There should be a big crowd in attendance to witness the sport, as it is the only sporting fixture of public interest for the holiday.

NATURE AS A FAKER.

She Sometimes Deceives Even the Eye of the Scientist.

On the so called table mounds of Iowa are numerous impressions of what look exactly like cloven feet. It is not surprising that superstitious people should attribute them to the devil taking his walks abroad, though as a matter of fact they are not footprints of any kind whatsoever, but merely weather worn impressions left by a species of mollusk-like animal known to science as pentamerus.

To the Smithsonian institution not long ago somebody sent from the Bad Lands of Nebraska what purported to be a fossil ham. It did in very truth look like a ham, and, to render the verisimilitude complete, the bone was actually sticking out at one end of it. Nevertheless an investigation showed that the alleged bone was in reality a "vaculite"—an extinct mollusk's shell, rodlike in form—and the rest of the "ham" was a mere accidental agglomeration of stony stuff.

One day quite recently a young man walked into the National museum at Washington and presented to the anthropologist in charge a petrified foot. It was received with many thanks, though recognized at a glance as a water worn fragment of rock which had accidentally assumed a shape resembling a foot.

Such chance imitations as these frequently occur in nature. Another one, deposited in the same institution, was supposed by the finder to be a petrified oyster. It looks as if on the half shell. All its parts are wonderfully distinct, and there is even a small pearl in it seemingly. Yet it is not an oyster at all.

Many years ago the "eozoon" was introduced as a fossil to a wondering world by Sir William Dawson, an eminent geologist. It was accepted by science for quite awhile as the earliest and oldest of known animals—the "dawn animal," as its name signifies. Recent scientific investigation, however, has proved that it is not and never was an animal at all. It is merely a curious crystalline combination of two minerals which has the look of something that once upon a time was alive.

It has recently been proved that many markings on sedimentary rocks long supposed to be fossil prints of algae and other plants are in reality tracks left by insects, mollusks and worms. Some of these alleged "plants" had actually received names and been classified into genera and species.

But it has been sufficiently shown that markings exactly similar can be produced by allowing such animals as those above mentioned to creep across a surface of moist plaster or wet clay, counterfeiting rock in a plastic and not yet hardened condition, and one well known vegetable frequently noted as fossil has in this way been satisfactorily identified with the trail of the larva of the dragon fly.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Rusty Iron Nail.

It has been discovered that a happy miller's family living in the vicinity of the battlefield of Waterloo has derived a regular income since 1815 from the sale of a rusty iron nail. It was not many years after the battle that an eccentric Englishman on the strength of an eyewitness' evidence discovered that Napoleon's hat had been hanging on that nail, the emperor having rested awhile at the mill during the battle. An offer for the old nail was immediately accepted by the previously guileless miller, who after the deal replaced it by another old nail and painted an inscription round it on the wall pointing out its historical value. One nail after another has gone to enrich collections as priceless Napoleonic relics.—Argonaut.

TRAINING FOR A WIFE.

Indian Believed He Had Made a Deal and Had to Be Bought Off

"He says he would like to trade with you for your wife!" It came out at last. It was a startling proposition indeed. For a moment we were both too breathless to comment. Finally my husband yielded to his impulse for amusement, and, smiling at me, he replied:

"Ask him what he will give for her."

"He says six ponies, lieutenant."

"Oh, tell him she is worth lots more than that."

"He will give you twelve ponies for her."

My husband again replied that he would not trade for anything like that, so the Indian kept raising his bid. He offered twenty ponies, then twenty ponies and a squaw, then finally twenty ponies, a squaw and a papoose. At length, wearying of the nonsense, my husband nodded his dismissal of the subject. But the Indian seemed to think that the apparent holding out for a higher price constituted a trade when the final offer was not rejected. He appeared satisfied, but soon signified he wished to finish the bargain. Of course my husband immediately objected. My savage admirer continued unaccountably insistent, and amicably to rid himself of the Indian's importunity my husband told him I was not fit for more travel; that I needed to go to rest at once.

The Indian was not content and continued, with some of his companions, to hang around the camp until one of the men told them they must now return to their camp, as we were all going to retire. When they had reluctantly departed my husband laughingly told the lieutenant, who had not been present during the parleying, of the incident. The latter looked grave and expressed a fear that the Indian, in the belief that he had made a trade, might cause trouble when the bargain was not kept. My husband assured him there was no agreement and the buck had no basis for such a claim. The lieutenant explained that the failure to reject the last bid and the presence of witnesses to the price haggling were all that the Indian considered necessary to make a binding affair of heart and honor.

Of course terms had to be reached and my husband, for the only time in his experience with the red men, or, as far as I know, with any man, agreed to compromise. He bought them off and appeased their disappointment by a gift of good, hard money and a lot of tobacco.

It Met Requirements.

Charles Hoyt, the farce writer, once invited a friend to go to the theatre with him.

"What play?" queried his friend.

"Mr. Blank in 'Nathan Hale,'" said the playwright, naming a very popular actor.

"I'm very sorry," said the friend, "but you'll have to count me out."

"What's the matter?" asked Hoyt in surprise.

"Well, to be frank with you, I don't like Blank in anything. I hate him personally and can't enjoy him as an actor, and, as far as I am concerned, I wouldn't mind seeing him dead."

"Then this is your play," slyly added Mr. Hoyt in his peculiar Yankee dialect. "You don't want to miss it. They hang him in the last act."

An Oversight.

The poet Landor was at the same time the most violent and brutal and most delicate and sensitive of men. He admired flowers. The gardens of his beautiful villa at Florence were full of flowers, and the poet walked among them daily, never plucking them, only bending over them reverently to admire their loveliness and their perfume. His cook one day served him a wretched dinner, and in his rage the poet threw the man out of the window into a bed of splendid roses. As the cook writhed with a broken leg below, Landor from his window exclaimed in a horror stricken voice, "Good gracious, I forgot the roses!"

Excited Individual—See here, Mr. Bangs, you're a scoundrel of the first water! When I bought that horse I thought I was getting a good sound animal, but he's spavined and blind and got the staggers. Now I want to know what you're going to do about it?

Bangs—Something ought to be done, that's a fact.

Excited Individual—Well, I should say there ought!

Bangs—Well, I'll give you the name of a good veterinary surgeon. It's a shame to allow the horse to suffer in that way.

Aesop In "Little Italy."

A schoolteacher in the Italian quarter of an American city told her children the story of the fox and the grapes. Tony was especially delighted with the story and eagerly sought his chum, Joe, who was in another class. By good luck the teacher overheard Tony's version.

In his excited, broken English he told the fable much as it is written until he came to the end. This was his rendering of the climax:

"De olda fox he say: 'Da grape no good anyhow; alla sour! I guess I go geta de banan'!"

Deadly Vipers.

Besides the lance head viper, "the most deadly of all known reptiles," there are several singularly interesting snakes in Brazil. The suru-cucu is supposed to cause death in six hours. It is sometimes found nine feet long. Its skin is a dirty, tawny yellow, with dark brown lozenges on the back. It is said to be attracted by fire, but seldom to injure travelers. The fiercest of the lance headed vipers is the jararaca, and it also is a dirty yellow, but it is brown black about the tail.

His Luck.

"I have been engaged to at least a dozen girls," said a young man.

"And always been unlucky in love, eh?" inquired a lady.

"Oh, no—rather lucky!" was the answer. "I've never married any of them!"

An Order Not Obeyed.

An exasperated Irish sergeant, drilling a squad of recruits, called to them at last:

"Halt! Just come over here, all of ye and look at yourselves. It's a fine line ye're keepin', isn't it?"

The Resemblance.

"I was always interested in airships and flying machines, so I bought a theater."

"Why did you do that?"

"A theater has wings and flies."

All who have gardens know what a pest the green fly, or aphis, becomes. It seems to cover rose trees and other plants like magic.

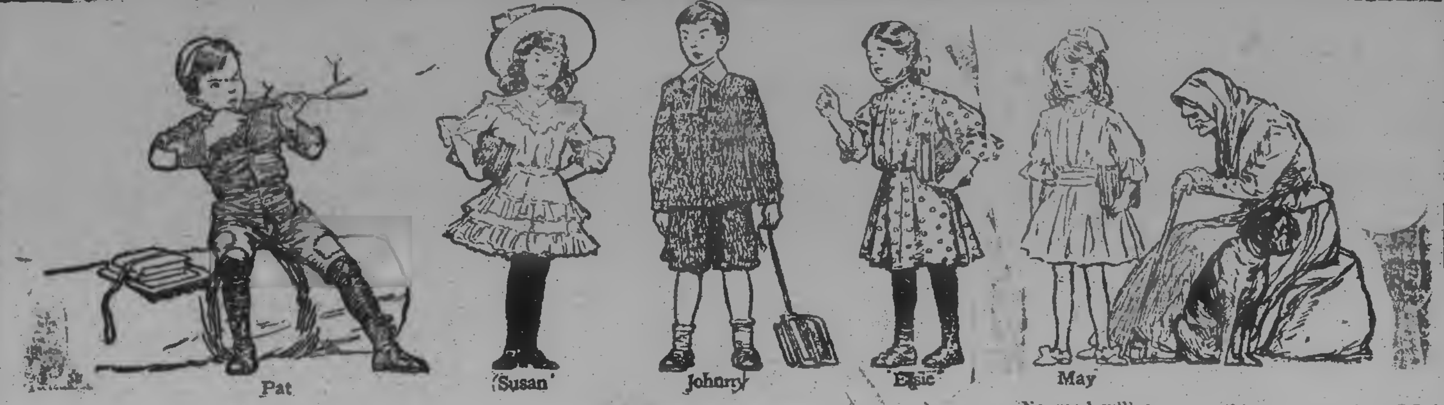
UPSIDE DOWN LAND

A play for Children

By

Marguerite Merington



NOW that the holiday season is almost here many boys and girls are looking for a play which they can perform in school or at one of the church entertainments, or merely for a social gathering. Upside Down Land is meant for just such purposes and will be found very practicable for acting. It has also the advantage of not needing much scenery or any unusual costumes. The old woman and the dog do not appear upon the stage, being represented only by a rustling in the wood. All the scenery that is necessary is a back curtain to represent a wood or an arrangement of branches and plants for the same purpose.

CHARACTERS:—JOHNNY, a thoughtless lad; PAT, a good but quick tempered lad; ELSIE, a motherly maid; SUSAN, a vain maid; MAY, a wee maid. PAT is shabby, but neat; SUSAN is finely, the others comfortably, clad. ALL have schoolbooks and lunch baskets. SCENE:—An open space in the country. At the back, in one corner, are shrubs and branches, representing the outskirts of a wood. Toward the other side, in the foreground, is a log. On this sits JOHNNY, discontentedly aiming twigs at nothing.

JOHNNY—Oh, dear! My spirit is perplexed
To know what mischief to do next!
No fruit I see that I might steal;
No babe to pinch to make it squeal.
Nor schoolgirl passing with her books
For me to mar her tidy looks,
Untie her ribbons, pull her hair.
No very little boy to scare.
Not even squirrel, dog or cat
Within my range, to throw things at!
No window near to break in play.
No bell to ring, then run away.
I'd on to school, but, sure as fate,
The fussy things would mark me late!
If home I go and illness feign
They'd clap me into bed again,
Hot water bottles to my feet,
With horrid things to drink and eat.
Oh, dear! 'Tis dreary work, I own,
This playing truant all alone!

THE OTHERS (unseen, at one side)—Hip! Hip! Hurrah!

JOHNNY—What's all that noise?

THE OTHERS—Hurrah!

JOHNNY—Why, 'tis the girls and boys!
Some one at last with whom to play,
If only some one comes this way!

(ENTER, laughing and chatting, Elsie, Susan, May and Pat. John whistles and aims a twig. They stop and exclaim.)

PAT—Why, Johnny! Pray, what do you here?

ELSIE—And are you all alone, my dear?

JOHNNY—To be called dear I do not care,
And what I do is my affair!

(Offended, the others are about to pass on. Johnny coughs to detain them and speaks.)

If you want to very much I will let you stay with me.

ELSIE (coldly)—Thank you, but I can't let such as play truant play with me!

SUSAN (to Pat)—I, too, must really hold myself aloof.
Since you, 'tis said, are poor as a church mouse
And we have a fine, new, red painted roof!

PAT—Well, we have got a mortgage on our house!
And though church mice are always poor,
Though fortune leaves them in the lurch,
Their lives they never need insure,
Since cats are not allowed in church. (The others laugh.)

ELSIE—Come, rich or poor, this lovely weather,
Let's all be friends and play together.

THE OTHERS—Aye, let us be friends and play together. (They stack books, &c., in corner.)

PAT—Now who shall choose the game?

JOHNNY—I will!

MAY—Oh, please let me!

SUSAN—I really have a claim!

ELSIE—By counting out we'll see!
Line up according to your height;
John, Susan, Pat and May. That's right!

SUSAN—To stand by Pat I really must refuse;
His clothes are patched.

ELSIE—They're clean; they won't defile!

SUSAN—But I wear shining buckles on my shoes;
My frock is flounced and frilled in latest style.
Then, feathers gay my mother's hats adorn;
Pat's mother toils; her garb is shabby, old!

PAT (clenching fist)—'Tis well for you that you a girl were born!
My blessed mammy's worth her weight in gold!

MAY (placing herself between them, takes Pat's hand, addresses Susan)—Upon her head your mother wears her wings!
My mother's wings upon her shoulders grow.
Sweet dreams from Heaven in my sleep she brings.
She is an angel. Granny told me so!

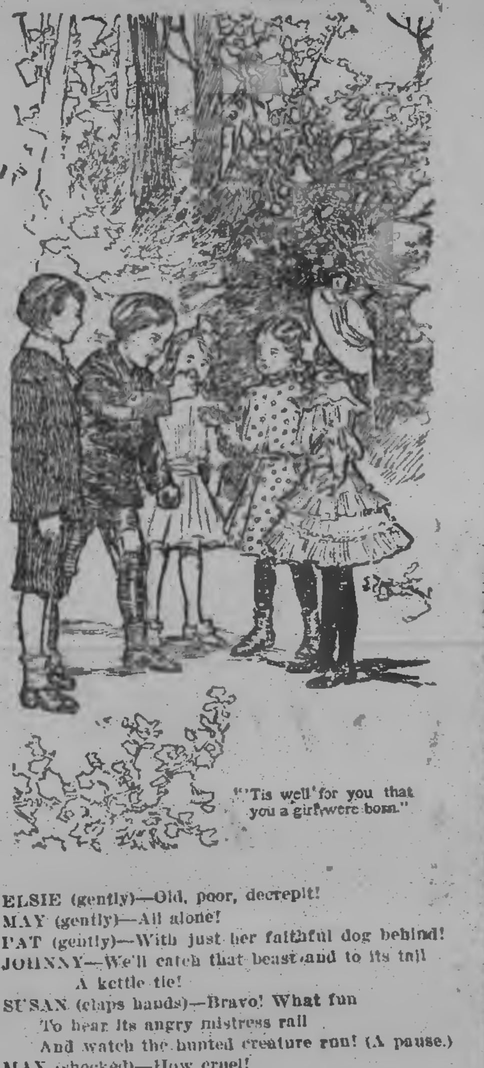
ELSIE (kisses May)—Come, line up in a row;
John, Pat, May, Susan! So! (She counts out.)
One, two, three, four, five, six, seven.
All good children go to Heaven,
Live on sweets, wear rainbow dresses,
And are princes and princesses!
What becomes of all the others?
They are torn from fathers, mothers,
Banished from Life's sunny crown land
To the depths of UPSIDE DOWN LAND,
Where the wrong time is the right time,
Night is day and day is night time;
Rivers run from sea to sources,
While the people draw the horses;
Dress, in spite of early training,
Back to front without complaining;
And, their blood with fear congealing,
Walk like flies upon the ceiling!
O-U-T spells Out! (Out falls to Johnny.)

THE OTHERS (dancing about him, clapping hands)—Johnny is Out! Johnny is it! Johnny the sport shall name!

SUSAN (suggests)—Puss in the corner!

PAT (suggests)—Prisoner's base!

JOHNNY—I have thought of a game!
(The others gather round him while he explains.)
In yonder wood there dwells a crone—
(Just as he points toward wood a rustling is heard and the branches stir.)
See! There she goes, fuel to find!



"'Tis well for you that you a girl were born."

ELSIE (gently)—Old, poor, decrepit!

MAY (gently)—All alone!

PAT (gently)—With just her faithful dog behind!

JOHNNY—We'll catch that beast and to its tail
A kettle tie!

SUSAN (claps hands)—Bravo! What fun
To hear its angry mistress rail
And watch the hunted creature run! (A pause.)

MAY (shocked)—How cruel!

ELSIE—Cruel! Truly said!
In such a sport I could not join.

PAT (to Susan)—If not a girl, if boy instead,
I'd pay you out in your own coin!

SUSAN—Whether you play or not, who cares?
My mother yours disdains to know!

ELSIE—You shall not do it! (Pat and Elsie seize Johnny's arm.)

JOHNNY—Ho! What airs!
And you a girl! Here, let me go! (Frees himself, gives Elsie's hair ribbon a tug and runs with Susan toward wood.)

PAT (calls)—A wretched beggar I would you were,
Food, shelter, vainly to implore!

ELSIE (calls)—I would you were a hunted cur
That I might drive you from my door! (Johnny and Susan laugh mockingly and disappear in wood. Elsie reties hair ribbon, shaking head sadly.)
No good will come of this!

PAT (agreeing)—No! No!

MAY (agreeing)—Oh, no!

ELSIE—As says the rhyme, in course of time
Bad children must to UPSIDE DOWN LAND go!
(The scene gradually becomes dark.)

PAT—What's this? The sunny noon is growing chill?
Heaven is dark as night. And, hark!
The birds, the very leaves, forebode some ill!

MAY (fearfully)—That aged crone perchance may be a WITCH!

ELSIE—No, little dear! You need not fear!
And yet, the trembling earth, the sky like pitch!

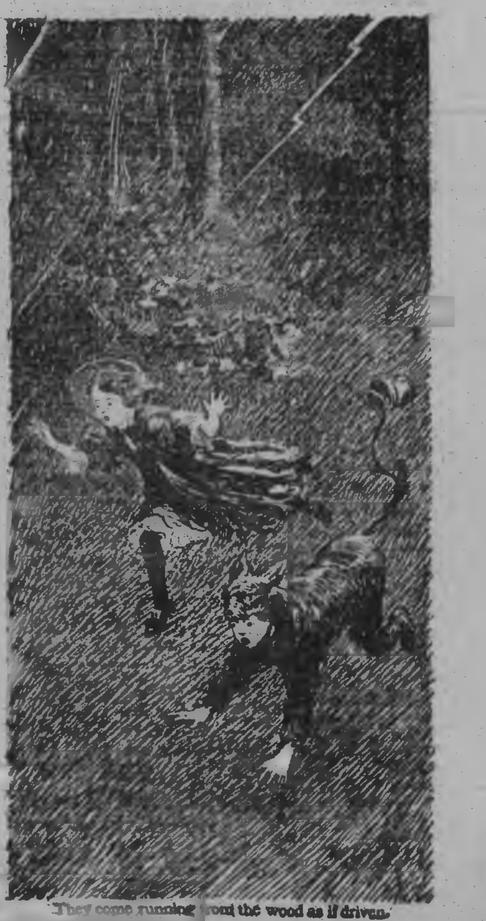
JOHNNY (yelps, then speaks)—Oh, pity a dog that is driven mad
By the wanton joke of a thoughtless lad!



They come running from the wood as if driven.

SUSAN—Oh, pity the sufferings, I implore,
Of a beggar that's turned from door to door!

ELSIE—What monster is this?

JOHNNY—I'm Johnny! My yelp
Is a cry for help,
As your hand I kiss!

PAT—What pauper are you?

SUSAN—I'm Susan! For alms
With my pleading palms
I would humbly sue!

ELSIE—Are these our playmates in this guise;
This dreadful cur, this wretched wight?

PAT—By magic changed before our eyes!
It serves them right!

MAY—It serves them right! (Johnny and Susan sob, the former sitting on hind legs, begging.)

ELSIE—And yet it grieves my heart to see their pain!

PAT—Let's beg the witch to change them back again!

MAY—Aye, beg the witch!

JOHNNY and SUSAN—Aye, change us back again! (Elsie and Pat run toward the wood, while May comforts Johnny and Susan.)

ELSIE (exclaims)—How strange!

THE OTHERS—What is it?

ELSIE—Like a dream,
Both witch and dog have vanished quite!

THE OTHERS—What shall we do? (A despairing pause.)

ELSIE—I have a scheme,
If heaven please will set things right (All listen hopefully as she explains, addressing Pat.)
'Twas by your wish and mine these twain
Were forced such graceless shapes to wear.
So let us unwish our wish again!

PAT (agreeing)—So they a true repentance swear!

SUSAN (lifts right hand solemnly)—If from this pauper state I'm freed,
To all God's creatures in their need
I'll be a friend, world without end!

ALL (solemnly)—Amen!

JOHNNY (lifts right paw solemnly)—If from this dog state I'm released,
Of all God's creatures, man and beast,
I'll be the friend, world without end!

ALL (solemnly)—Amen!

(The stage suddenly becomes pitch dark. Another lightning flash and thunder clap over wood. Then bright sunshine fills the scene, as at first. Johnny and Susan are now without disguise. All the children rub eyes, as if waking, and gaze, bewildered, at one another. Susan feels fearfully for her rags, Johnny for his tail. Both show delight at finding these gone. All laugh happily.)

JOHNNY—Elsie!

ELSIE—Well, Johnny boy?

JOHNNY—'Tis queer,
But I like work; I hate a shirk,
And I like you to call me dear! (They shake hands while the others applaud them.)

SUSAN—Pat!

PAT—Susan, dear?

SUSAN—'Tis really so;
I am not vain! Your clothes are plain,
But you're the nicest boy I know! (They shake hands while the others applaud them. Just then in the wood the branches stir.)

MAY (points)—Why, there's that poor old dame with faithful dog!

JOHNNY—I have some sandwiches for lunch;
We'll take them to that dog to munch!

SUSAN—Poor dame, we'll get her fuel!

MAY (runs to log)—Aye, the log!

ALL—Aye, let's take her the log! (All run and lift log on shoulders and prepare to carry it to the wood. They pause to address the audience, standing in a row—Johnny, Elsie, May, Susan, Sam.)
Was it a dream, or is it true?
Were we banished from this townland
To the depths of UPSIDE DOWN LAND?
I'm sure I do not know! Do you?

The King of the Century—A Game in History.

THIS is an amusing and instructive game, in which any number of players can take part. All are seated around a table or about the room and one, to be selected by lot, is requested to leave the room. He is called the King of the Century. While he is gone the other players decide on a century that he shall represent and a number of events are named quickly by all who know them.

When they are all prepared with a general idea of that century, a summary of the events of which may be read to them by the hostess, the King of the Century is called in. The first player then either censures him for some crime of the century or praises him for one of its great deeds. The King tries to guess what century is referred to. If the first player's remark does not make it clear to him he turns to the next, who says something about the century, either blaming or praising him, as the first had done.

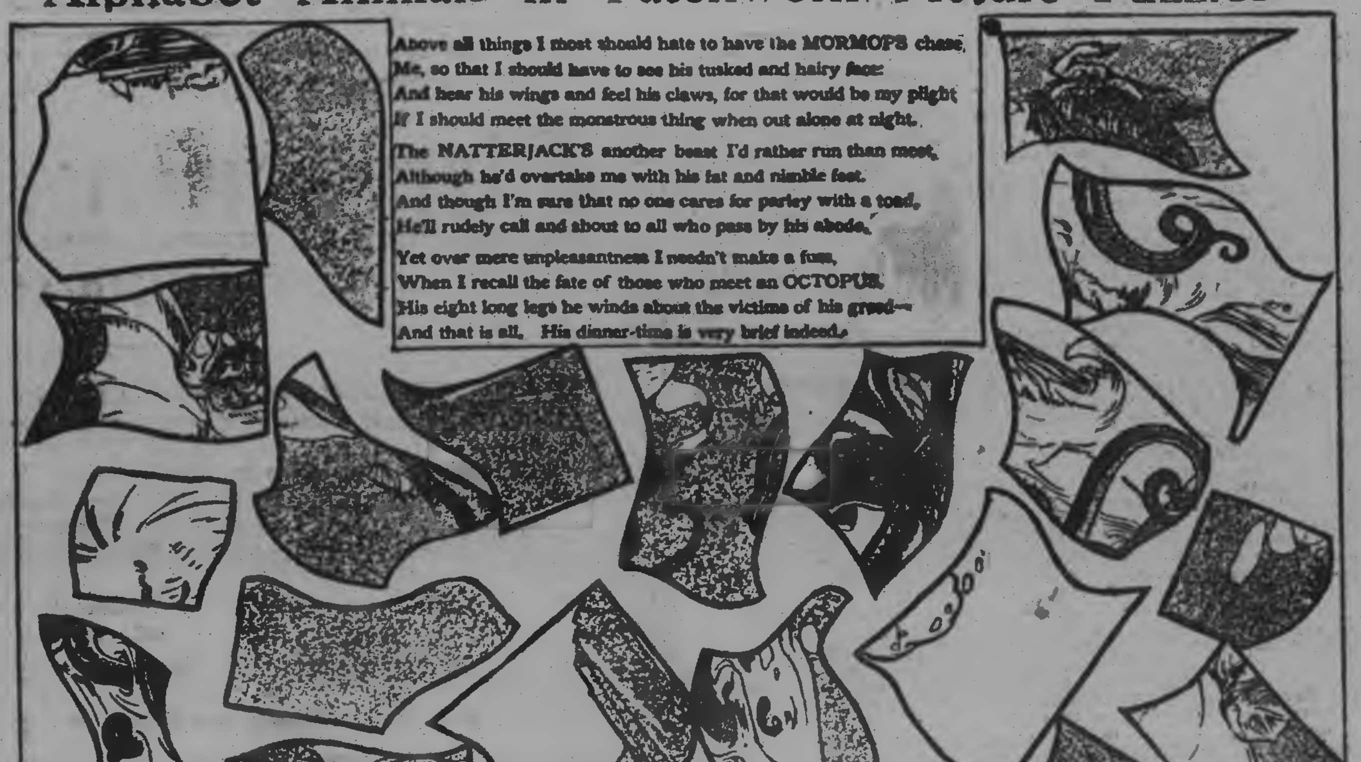
This goes on until the King guesses the century and the player whose remark enabled him to guess it takes his place as King and leaves the room. The players then select another century and the game goes on. The remarks should be made to puzzle the King as much as possible.

Take the fifteenth century as an illustration. The King might be praised for the revival of learning after the dark ages; for the many men eminent in literature and other branches of knowledge and science, as in Germany, Nicholas of Cusa, the son of a fisherman, who became one of the greatest scholars of his age; John Muller, who was considered the restorer of astronomy; Copernicus, who promulgated the true theory of the solar system, was born in this century, and Albert Durer, a famous painter and engraver, began to be recognized.

The art of printing was invented in this century. In England the long civil wars ended with the accession of Henry VII. Under this reign John and Sebastian Cabot sailed from Bristol and discovered the mainland of America.

Other centuries may be treated in the same manner in this excellent game.

Alphabet Animals in Patchwork Picture Puzzles



Above all things I most should hate to have the MORMOPS chase,
Me, so that I should have to see his tusked and hairy face:
And hear his wings and feel his claws, for that would be my plight
If I should meet the monstrous thing when out alone at night.

The NATTERJACK'S another beast I'd rather run than meet,
Although he'd overtake me with his fat and nimble feet.
And though I'm sure that no one cares for parley with a toad,
He'll rudely call and shout to all who pass by his abode.

Yet over mere unpleasantness I needn't make a fuss,
When I recall the fate of those who meet an OCTOPUS.
His eight long legs he winds about the victims of his greed—
And that is all. His dinner-time is very brief indeed.

IN to-day's patchwork puzzle, which is simply another name for a jig saw puzzle, there are three very interesting animals to be found by diligent searching. In the first place, cut out the entire puzzle and paste it on heavy paper. Then cut out all the separate pieces, of which there are twenty, cutting away the white spaces in between. After you have put the puzzle together you will be able to decide which of these three animals is the prettiest. It is true that not any one of them is noted for its [illegible] [illegible] deep voice, capable of expressing almost any emotion. With the octopus you are probably much better acquainted. This animal is [illegible] [illegible] it good-looking.

A Little Essay for Mothers.

I HAVE never been able to understand clearly nor to accept patiently the fact of the astounding disobedience so prevalent among children of the more educated classes of to-day. In justice to the child himself the truth must be admitted that in no case that I have ever witnessed has the fault been entirely due to him. On the contrary, it has been and can always be directly traceable to the parents.

The majority of mothers accept their children largely as a component part of their married existence and push and pull or shove them up the hill of life into the somewhat shaky years of their maturity with a terrible, exhausting sense of a duty accomplished somehow and the longed for period of relaxation from such responsibilities somewhere in sight.

I think that this view of motherhood is pitiable beyond words. It is such a fearfully distorted picture of a beautiful and holy fact. It seems to me that child life, aside from its material demands upon our love and care, has so much in it that can be something more than a mere duty to us if we are looking for the best that it can offer us. Not only do its developing years typify the life of a race from savagery to civilization, as I have already mentioned in these articles, and thereby open up for you a curiously interesting study, but they express to you yourself and the characteristics of the man you have married, with your conquered or developed tendencies.

"Your higher aspirations, "crucified, dead and buried," perhaps, under the stronger convictions of the duties that submerged your personal desires, arise in the life of your child to a beautiful and satisfactory fulfilment. You know what you would have needed under those conditions and out of this knowledge will come his most valued aid and your deepest pleasure, and so you will draw closer together in your unity of interests. In this lies something more for you than the mere perfunctory attention to the accomplishment of a duty you would have gladly escaped.

One always tries to turn one's eyes away from distressing facts, but sooner or later they will force one to see and accept them as realities. Out of this statement grows the conviction that you and I cannot blind ourselves to the existence of the deep dislike with which children are regarded generally. It seems to me that they are not wanted anywhere. Apartment houses do not want them, neither do hotels nor boarding houses, and, alas, not often are they wanted in our homes. What is the reason? Too plainly, I fear, you and I can see because of their unruly, unmannerly disobedience.

I have known men who train their dogs to a state of almost abject obedience while their children laugh their authority over them to scorn. I have known women whose servants obey their slightest word in respectful silence, but whose children defy their sternest command. Why is it? I have about come to the conclusion that this condition of parental authority exists because most parents actually fear their children! I realize in making that assertion that many of you who read these lines will scout the suggestion as absurd, but I do not believe you will after you have given the subject the honest and careful thought it demands and accepted the verdict at whatever cost to your pride.

I think that the reason for your position now is that somewhere back in their early childhood these young, straining wills got away from your control. Your authority, perhaps, was flung so loosely about them that they threw it off by degrees and finally broke away from you altogether. It is a tragical fact to face, but it is there before you to see now, and if you have been enlightened in time you would better strive to regain your lost prestige with them if it takes all of your time and strength. I once overheard two small boys condoling with each other over a forbidden pleasure. "Never mind," said the older of the two, "let's wait a little while and mama will forget she has told us we couldn't and then we'll go and ask her again and she'll say 'yes.' Mama'll forget she said no." How many mothers are guilty of this grave loss of memory! Do you wonder, then, that your children "forget" you said "no" to-day? I do not.

I believe that no mother has the right to deny her child anything without first focusing her attention upon the question at issue and giving it a fair trial of thought as to its harmful or impracticable results. Then, if "no" is the verdict, "no" should be adhered to with a finality in expressing it that should leave no room for argument or doubt in the mind of the child. Bear this in mind: His trivial disappointment of to-day and your extra expenditure of strength and thought at the time mean your future happiness together as mother and child.

For those who love horse racing the Driving park will be the gathering place in the afternoon, the Peterborough Turf Club holding a matinee.

PARK STREET XMAS TREE

Most Successful Entertainment---Presentations to Pastor and Superintendent

A very successful concert and Christmas tree was held last night by the Sunday school of the Park st. Baptist church.

A tree most artistically decorated by the teachers, made a happy attraction for the little folks and their joy flowed in its fulness when Santa Claus made his appearance with the presents and candies.

The school is in a very flourishing condition as the reports of the treasurer and secretary revealed.

Miss Maggie Mann, who for twenty years has been the energetic and consecrated superintendent of the school was the recipient of a beautiful piece of silverware from the teachers and officers by whom she is held in the highest esteem. The pastor was also presented with a gold-headed umbrella from his Bible Class.

The following programme was then rendered.

Opening hymn by school, "When He Cometh."

Prayer by pastor, Rev. W. C. Riddiford.

Chorus by Primary Class.

Recitation, Santa Claus Secret, Eva Booth

Duet, Wilton Tranter, Percy Hill.

Recitation, Guilty or Not Guilty, Ada Baner.

Dialogue, Stealing Apples, Boys of Mr. Eakins' Class.

Song, Thomas Dawson.

Recitation, Her Excuse, Pearl Pogue.

Recitation, Ode to Santa Claus, Jennie Peters.

Song, Master Redgeyr.

Chorus, Miss Wright's Class.

Recitation, Mr. Roy Jackson.

Song, The Schoolmaster, by Mr. Dawson.

Recitation, Roxie Castle, Just Ask Dad.

Waiting for Santa Claus, Four Little Girls.

Recitation, Lily Tranter.

FREE SKATING AT THE KNOX RINK

At the Opening To-night---Sheet of Ice is Splendid One

Knox church rink will open for the season to-night. There will be no admission fee for the opening night, and a big crowd of skaters is looked for.

The rink is located at the corner of Dalhousie and Reid streets and is 160 feet long and 60 feet wide. This is considerably larger than in past years. A new waiting room has also been erected. It is commodious and has separate rooms for ladies and gentlemen. Season tickets can be secured from Mr. Goodfellow, superintendent of the rink, H. McCannan, treasurer; Campbell Stewart, secretary, and Gordon Hall.

There will be a hockey practice on Monday night. The hockey clubs of All Saints', St. Andrew's, Charlotte street and Knox churches have alrewady arranged for practice hours. Clubs desirous of securing practice hours should communicate with Mr. Fred Reed, 84 Perry street.

THE GUEST OF SLEEP

Theodosia Garrison in Scribner's Magazine.

Sleep at the Inn o' Dreams,—
A kindly host he waits,
And all night long a goodly throng,
Comes softly through his gates.

A varied company—
Scholar and clown and king,
Or prince, or priest, or great or least,
He gives them welcoming.

For each he fills a cup
Where poppy petals swim,
Wherefrom each guest at his behest,
Drinks deeply, toasting him.

And old men drink of youth,
And sad men of delight,
And weary men drink deep again
The pulsing wine of might.

And poets drink of song,
But best, and oh, most sweet,
Above that brim where poppies swim,
The lips of lovers meet.

Sleep at the Inn o' Dreams—
A kindly host he waits,
And all night long a goodly throng,
Comes softly through his gates.

THE HOOK

"Same to you."

Santa Claus does fast work tonight.

'Twas the night before turkey.

It is reported that Mr. William Naugon, the fleet-footed sprinter, will run for alderman. He will be a white-footed favorite.

It is said that when Macaulay, a boy of six, was asked to have some more pudding he politely replied, "Thank you. I have enjoyed an ample sufficiency."

This sage reply is matched by a little Cleveland girl who when offered a second frosted cake, showed her excellent training by answering "Mamma has directed me to always refrain from taking a second piece of anything."

It is gratifying to know, however, that the childish nature promptly re-asserted itself when the little maid added:

"But you can lay it on my plate if you please."

The expression "painting the town red," has been traced to "The Divine Comedy. Dante, led by Virgil, comes to the cavernous depths of the place swept by a mighty wind where those are confined who have been the prey of their passions. Two faces arise from the mist—the faces of Francesca and Paolo. "Who are ye," cries Dante in alarm, and Francesca replies sadly: "We are those who have painted the world red with our sins."

The Rev. French E. Oliver, a Kansas revivalist of more than local fame has issued an open letter to W. J. Bryan urging the Nebraskan to become an evangelist, and predicting that Mr Bryan would become the equal of the Apostle Paul. Mr Oliver writes: "I am firmly convinced that one ambassador of Christ of your calibre is worth more to this nation than ten thousand Presidents."

WORKING A SWINDLE.

The Way That Clever Rogues Operate Through the Mails.

Uncle Sam is as proud and watchful of his mails as a father of his favorite child, yet it is through the postoffice that the succulent "sucker" is so frequently ticked for, sometimes by a thin line of correspondence reeled out 3,000 miles away, and he has been known to snap at one hook with avidity while at the time he had another in his gills.

One man engaged a small room in a downtown office building, New York, installed a single typewriter, which he manipulated himself, and from an investment of less than $300 within two months cleared over $10,000. How did he do it? Let us go back to the day that his office rent began.

First, he had his door adorned with handsome gold lettering, as follows: "Henry Harriman, Watch and Diamond Merchant."

A capacious letter box was then attached to the door, and, removing his coat, Henry Harriman, with a newspaper directory at his elbow, struck off several hundred typewritten letters to as many different newspapers throughout the country, inclosing in each letter 10 cents in stamps and asking that he be forwarded a copy of the latest edition.

As fast as copies of these papers came in he looked over the death columns and, selecting one or two likely names from the paper, sent the decedent a typewritten letter begging that he kindly remit the $10 balance due and the hundred dollar diamond ring which he had purchased would go forward by express. A neat bill was inclosed with the letter, made out as though $90 in installments had already been paid in on the diamond.

When this letter reached its destination (and with it was sent an illustrated folder of watch and diamond bargains) it was opened by the widow of the decedent, and thirteen times out of a baker's dozen the $10 was remitted in haste by the surprised yet not less pleased lady.

An early letter informed the widow that her remittance had been received and the diamond would go forward by express within twenty days direct from the importing house. Should she fail to receive it, would she be good enough to notify the firm, etc.

When the postoffice inspectors looked into the matter some two months later they found correspondence showing that Henry Harriman, watch and diamond merchant, had netted over $10,000, but that gentleman had thoughtfully betaken his person to greener fields.

Memory, Not Mystery.

"Memory can play the strangest of tricks," says a specialist, "and it is responsible for not a few superstitious fears in sensitive people.

"A lady once told me that she found herself at times in places where her surroundings seemed to have been known to her before, though she knew that she had never been there previously. Probably you will recognize this experience, which is common enough. How many people, when reading or listening to a conversation, become vaguely conscious that they have read the passage or heard the identical words in 'the dim, long past!'

"It is not a haunting mystery, but just a way that memory has. Innumerable impressions of the most trivial things are stored in the brain and will come out when called upon. In the lady's case she had probably seen a picture of the scene at some time, and a view of the actual place produced memory's feeble effort to recall it."

WRAP YOUR GIFTS DAINTILY

Of late years much more attention is paid to the manner in which one's Christmas gifts are tied up and addressed. It is a well known fact that more pleasure is derived in the receiving of a daintily wrapped parcel than in one that is hastily tied up an despatched without much care.

Nowadays no parcel is really complete without a pretty little holly card with the donor's name put inside. The parcels then the wrappings are sealed with small holly or Santa Claus seals and the address within on a holly label or tag.

There are also several styles of cards, labels, tags and seals, and they are all equally pretty. They are all on sale at the Review office, together with many other materials and Xmas gifts.

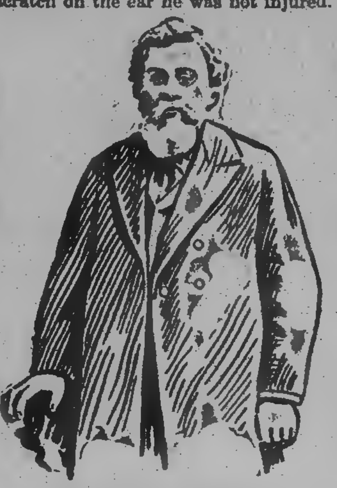
ATTACK ON FALLIERES

Royalist Jumps on French President to Pull His Beard—Lay in Wait.

Paris, Dec. 26.—While President Fallieres was taking a morning stroll yesterday, Jean Mattis, a poorly-clad individual, suddenly jumped upon the President from behind and threw his arms about M. Fallieres' neck in an effort to seize his beard.

The assailant was dragged off and turned over to two special detectives who had been following the party on bicycles.

President Falleries' cane was broken in the struggle, but beyond a scratch on the ear he was not injured.



PRESIDENT FALLIERES.

As the detectives slipped the handcuffs on the man he cried: 'I am unarmed. I simply wanted to pull the President's beard."

During the examination Mattis boasted of being a royalist and talked confusedly of having done his "duty" and obeyed the dictates of his "conscience." Heaps of Royalist reactionady literature were found by the police when they ransacked his residence.

Medals of Gen. Mercier, the former Minister of War, stamps bearing the head of the Duke of Orleans, a card of membership in the Patrie Francais and other royalist documents were found on his person.

The investigation reveals the fact that Mattis was in close relation with the royalist organization, and this gives color to rumors that he was the instrument of a royalist plot. Serious evidence in this direction, however, is lacking up to the present time, and it is more likely that he is only a crack-brained individual seeking notoriety.

PRESENTATION TO MR. WM. O'BRIEN

Was Honored by Pupils of Separate School at Mattawa

Mr. William O'Brien, who for the past two years has held the position of principal of the Mattawa Separate school arrived home on Tuesday, and will assume his duties as principal of St. Peter's school here on the re-opening in January.

During the progress of the annual concert put on in Mattawa by the pupils of the Separate school of that town, Mr. O'Brien was made the recipient of an address and presentation from his late pupils. The address was designed and executed on parchment by a fifteen-year-old pupil of the school and is most artistic in design and finish. The present, which accompanied the address, consisted of a very fine set of ebony brushes mounted in silver.

THIS TUNNEL TO BE A LONG ONE

Odessa, Dec. 26.—The "Caucasian Post" announces that the construction of the transmontane railway between Mzchet and Vladikavkas, a distance of about 120 miles, has now been finally decided on, and will be begun, probably, next spring.

This enterprise involves the piercing of the Caucasian range by a tunnel of a little over fourteen miles in length. This will be the longest tunnel in the world, the Simplon, which now holds that distinction, being only a little over twelve and a quarter miles long.

The work of construction will occupy about ten years, and the cost is computed at $32,500,000.

JUSTIFICATION IS PLEA MADE

By Editor MacDonald of Globe, In Libel Action.

Toronto, Dec. 26.—James A. Macdonald, editor of The Globe, has filed his statement of defence in the libel action brought by Hon. George E. Foster with respect to the statements and comment made in The Globe during the last Dominion campaign.

He pleads justification and further urges that any comment which may have been made was written without malice and as the matter was one of public interest bringing it within the statute.

He urges that Mr. Foster, while engaged in this controversy, secured money from the I.O.O.F., which he turned to his own use. It set out that he turned $2,000,000 into his own scheme.

It sets out that in the year 1902 the plaintiff with others formed the "Montague syndicate" to purchase unoccupied western lands and paid for these lands with $133,000, which they used their influence to have the Foresters advance to them. For this Dr. Montague, a member of the syndicate, gave a mortgage to the Foresters on the lands.

It further sets out that the plaintiff as manager of the Union Trust Co. procured that company to purchase other lands for the benefit of the syndicate, which by agreement was to receive all the profits, if any, of the deal, and further that Foster secured in one instance a commission of $6,000 from the vendors in the case of the "Carrot River Lands."

CONTRACT AWARDED

For Section No. 7 of the Trent Canal—Rice Lake to Healey Falls.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—The contract has been awarded for section No. 7 of the Trent Canal.

This section extends from Rice Lake to Healey's Falls, and is about nineteen miles in length. The work consists of a lock and dam at Hastings, and dredging throughout the section, as well as the straightening of the river.

The contractors are the Randolph Macdonald Company of Toronto, and the amount of the contract is $450,000.

THE WORLD'S CHRISTMAS DAY SOME HAPPY, SOME WERE NOT

Industrial Depression in Old Land Responsible for a Great Deal of Suffering in Large Cities---Four Asphyxiated---Babe Dies as Result of Late Breakfast.

London, Dec. 26.—The dark side of the English Christmas is the great number of unemployed and the distressing prevalence of destitution and suffering. This is seen principally in London and at Glasgow and along the Tyne and other shipbuilding centres, where many establishments have been closed and thousands of men are out of work.

A small band of shabbily dressed, miserable-looking unemployed persons have paraded the fashionable shopping streets during the past week, threading their way among the lines of motor cars and the crowds of aristocratic Christmas shoppers. The police accompanied the band as it marched in order to prevent disturbance. Its members shouted in unison as they marched, "We want work."

More than a thousand homeless men assembled on the Thames' embankment every midnight to get tickets to Salvation Army shelters. The Army, however, is able to accommodate but half the crowd, and the others disperse, many of them being obliged to spend the nights out of doors. The newspapers daily record cases of men being sentenced to imprisonment for stealing food who plead that they are starving or have families suffering from want. The appeals to charitable organizations for help were never so numerous or urgent.

The Salvation Army, and other charitable institutions yesterday gave dinners to many thousands of destitute persons, but these Christmas dinners were not a drop in the bucket when compared to the needs of the unemployed.

The number of British ships laid up in various ports this year is entirely unprecedented in the experience of ship-owners. In the Bristol Channel, the Clyde, the Mersey, the Tyne and the Thames there is an extraordinary demand for mooring accommodation for ships with no work to do. The Tyne, for instance, is literally congested with idle ships. A return shows that there are no fewer than ninety-three vessels, with a total registered tonnage of 186,000, laid up in this river alone.

According to one estimate there are at the present time in home and foreign ports between 200 and 300 idle British ships, totalling between 400,000 and 600,000 tons. At a rough estimate the value of such a fleet is between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, and this huge aggregation of capital is not only producing nothing, but is costing money for upkeep. In addition, the inactivity of so many vessels means lack of employment for some thousands of seamen and firemen.

Dinner Late; Fatal Fight.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 26.—Mrs. Turner's tardiness in preparing the Christmas Day breakfast is said to have precipitated a quarrel between William Turner and his wife yesterday, during which their ten-weeks-old boy was killed. Mrs. Turner had the child in her arms, and in the fight she dropped it to the floor. Subsequently she was either knocked down or fell upon the infant, crushing it to death. The parents were arrested.

Ten Thousand Feasted.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 26.—The new St. Louis Colliseum was given over to Christmas celebration yesterday, when the Post Despatch Christmas Festival Association gave a dinner to women and children.

Ten thousand tickets had been issued for the event. After the dinner presents were given to all the children. A circus wound up the day's treat.

Santa Claus Fatally Burned.

Detroit, Dec. 26.—Lee Wagner was fatally burned Thursday midnight while playing Santa Claus at a family re-union. Clad in a gay Santa Claus costume, which was set off by a great bunch of cotton whiskers, Wagner was leading the merriment when suddenly the cottom whiskers caught fire.

Christmas In Prison.

Ossining, N.Y., Dec. 26.—Christmas was observed in Sing Sing Prison yesterday with a more elaborate dinner than, it is said, had ever before been served to the prisoners in that institution. Chicken, many vegetables, hot tea biscuits, hot mince pie, lemon wafers, bananas, oranges and cocoa, with milk and sugar, figured on the yuletide bill of fare. The dinner was followed by a concert by the prison orchestra. The prisoners were furnished with cigars and smoked while they listened to the music.

Charity's Hand Open.

New York, Dec. 26.—Opening wide the hand of charity to make the day one of joy and gladness for the poor and unfortunate, and freely drawing upon the stores of plenty happily at its disposal to spread holiday cheer, from the highest to the lowest strata of its population, the City of New York celebrated Christmas of 1908 in a way that not only lived up to the best of its traditions, but set a new standard for the dispensing of holiday blessings upon its millions of inhabitants.

The unfortunate in the jails, the ill in the hospitals, the poor in their homes and the destitute and helpless in institutions were all remembered. That not far from 100,000 persons were assisted by means of donations of dinners and the like, is conservatively estimated, while the total of those reached at first hand and by indirection that the general outpouring of [illegible] is beyond the possibility of anything like accurate enumeration.

HOME TO VISIT, DROPPED DEAD

Alberta Man Intended to Surprise Daughter in London Christmas Day.

London, Dec. 26.—To drop dead within a few blocks of the home of his daughter and son-in-law, whom he had traveled 2,000 miles to visit, and who intended his arrival to be in the nature of a surprise, was the fate that befell Robert Gillespie of Everts, Alta., at an early hour on Christmas morning.

Mr. Gillespie is the father-in-law of P. C. Clarence Kelly, by whom he was identified yesterday morning. He arrived in the city on a late train and was proceeding to the home of Mr. Kelly, 41 Oxford street, West London, when a severe attack of heart failure caused his death.

CASE AGAIN ENLARGED

Wm. Rattray Appeared Before the Magistrate on Thursday Afternoon

Wm. Rattray appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court and pleaded not guilty to stealing between six and seven hundred dollars from Martin Connors at the City Hotel during the month of December. Considerable evidence was taken, but His Worship further enlarged the case until next Thursday.

NO ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE BOUT

No definite arrangemnts have been made for the Kaiser-Hurtubise handicap bout, the conditions of which call for Kaiser thowing the Peterborough heavyweight twice in an hour. It was intended to hold the match in the very neear future, but decisive conditions have not yet been arrived at.

TWO COAL MINERS IN NOVA SCOTIA BURNED TO DEATH

Halifax, Dec. 26.—The homes of three men at Joggins Mines were saddened at Christmas time by a terrible accident which occurred in the mines there between 10 and 11 o'clock on Thursday night, when two men lost their lives and another is so seriously burned that but slight hopes are entertained for his recovery. The dead are John H. Coleman, Jr., and George Sawyer. The injured man is Frank McNeil. All three are coal cutters and belong to the night shift. They were working at the cutting in the old slope of the Joggins Mine, now owned and operated by the Maritime Coal, Railway & Power Co. In some way not yet explained the brattice cloth, a device consisting of burlap or canvas curtains in screens which cross the cut, enabling the free circulation of air, caught fire, and before the unfortunate men were able to escape they were so seriously burned, that death in the two cases mentioned resulted almost instantly. McNeil was also terribly burned, and the latest reports are that he is living, but with very slight hopes of recovery. Both victims were terribly burned. Coleman was a young unmarried man, about 25 years of age.

Dr. J. A. Munroe, coroner, held an inquest. After hearing evidence a verdict was given: That Coleman and Sawyer came to their death by suffocation.

HARDWARE STORE ENTERED EARLY CHRISTMAS MORNING

Burglars Break Pane of Glass in Rear of A. E. Micks Building and Gain Admittance—Safe Was Not Opened — No Money Stolen.

Early Christmas morning the hardware store of Mr. A. E. Micks, Hunter street, was entered by some unknown persons and the place was ransacked, but little was taken save a few knives from the case.

Entrance to the store was gained through a window at the rear of the building, the burglar, or burglars having broken a pane of glass in order to get an admittance.

This morning, when Mr. Micks came down to the shop he noticed that the window was smashed and there were also traces of blood from the window to the office and to the case at the front of the store. The safe had not been opened and very little of anything had been taken from the case. He could not be certain until he went over the stock.

The police are working on the case.

A COUPLE OF SMALL BLAZES

At 10.20 on Thursday night a small blaze was caused by spontaneous combustion at a residence at Charlotte and Lewis streets. It was due to spontaneous combustion, some rags taking fire. The brigade was called. No damage was done. At 12.22 on Christmas morning a call was sent in for a chimney fire at the National Hotel. It was soon put out.

MUSIC CANNOT BE REPEATED

The musical portion of the services in St. Paul's church last Sunday has received many favorable comments together with a request for repetition next Sunday. For various reasons, Mr. Crane desires the Review to say, this will not be possible.

$5 SAID TO HAVE BEEN STOLEN BY MAID IN LOCAL HOME

On Christmas Day, a young girl employed as maid in the home of Rev. Mr. Riddiford, pastor of the Park street Baptist church, was left in the house to take care of the baby during the absence of the parents.

While Mr. and Mrs. Riddiford were gone, the girl, it is alleged, left the baby alone, and stealing five dollars went away and has not been seen since. The baby, it is said, was left alone for five hours.

The matter has been related to the police and this morning a warrant was sworn out for her arrest.

BOY SHOOTS HIS FATHER

In Fear of Flogging Negro Lad Kills Father With a Gun.

Amherstburg, Dec. 26.—William Thompson, 16 years old, son of Elijah Thompson, a colored man, who has been for many years a familiar figure in this section of Essex County, on Thursday morning shot his father.

Thompson is the father of ten children, of whom William is the oldest one at home. Thompson was displeased with the way in which the boy and two younger brothers had done some work he had assigned them, and flogged the two other boys.

Then armed with a whip he started to look up William, whom he blamed more particularly for the failure to do the work set out for the three boys. William saw him coming and ran upstairs to secrete himself. He found a Winchester rifle in the room and stood at the head of the stairs and fired at his father as the latter started up. The bullet passed through Thompson's liver and intestines, tearing a gaping wound in his body.

WAS THROWN FROM A CAR

Babe Thought to Have Been Born on Train Thrown From Window.

London, Dec. 26.—The body of an infant was thrown from Grand Trunk train No. 27, which left here at eight o'clock Thursday morning, about five miles west of Komoka.

Section Foreman Archie McKellar was standing beside the track, and as the train whizzed by him he saw an object thrown from a window. He picked it up and discovered it to be a dead baby. It was wrapped in ladies' underwear and the outside covering was a newspaper. McKellar notified Coroner Mitchell of Komoka, who gave it as his opinion that the baby was born on the train, which made up in London, bound for the tunnel.

By the time the wires were got working the train had passed the tunnel and the mother of the babe could not be located.

REMEMBERED THE FIREMEN

Citizens Sent in Acceptable Good Things - Merry Xmas at Fire Hall

The fire brigade are evidently in the good graces of the citizens. The Christmas, from an epicurean standpoint, was certainly well observed at the fire hall, numerous citizens sending in many good things as expressions of appreciation and goodwill. Among the contributions were oysters, baskets of nuts, candies, raisins and several dozen oranges.

Dr. Greer very thoughtfully sent in a box of cigars for each man and Ald. Johnston was kind enough to give cigars and oranges to the brigade. The members of the brigade are very grateful for the favors shown them, and appreciate very much the thoughtfulness of those who remembered them.

MR. DARLING WON $5 GOLD PIECE

At Roller Rink Yesterday--- Special Features for New Years

Christmas a great success at the roller rink. A big crowd was in attendance afternoon and evening, and the 57th band helped to make it pleasant for the skaters who were present from all parts. A number of old-timers were there, including Mr. Boycott of Ottawa; Mr. Dennison, Rochester, N.Y.; Mr Stanley, Toronto, and Mr. Spencely, Ottawa. Mr. Darling was the winner in the competition for the $5.00 gold piece.

The next big time is expected New Year's eve—skating the old year out and the new one in till after midnight. A band concert will be held in the afternoon and evening, with New Year's night masked carnival and dance. This will mark the closing of the rink till March, 1909.

WEST PETERBORO' ELECTION TRIAL

On application to-day (Saturday) to his Lordship, Mr. Justice Britton, at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, by respondent, for stay of proceedings pending the appeal on the question of the preliminary objections from his decision dismissing them, he granted a stay on condition that the respondent must proceed notwithstanding the Christmas vacation to obtain an appointment from the Supreme Court at Ottawa to fix a day for argument of the appeal and that such appointment should be obtained within eight days otherwise the petitioner would be empowered to move to dismiss the appeal.

A board fell from the top of an elevator at Harfoot, Man., splitting the head of T. Johnston.

Twins Hale at Ninety.

Babylon, N.Y., Dec. 26.—With faculties and health unimpaired, the venerable twin brothers, Samuel and William Muncy, celebrated their ninetieth birthday here on Christmas Day.

The brothers look so much alike that no one except members of the family can tell one from the other. Neither has ever used liquor, and both are supporters of the prohibition movement. Early to bed and early to rise has been their motto. Both have long been widowers, and each has a large family.

Gift From the Queen.

New York, Dec. 26.—The steamer Adriatic, which arrived here Thursday had on board six large cases containing several hundred copies of Queen Alexandra's book of photographs. They were consigned to Sir Edward S. Clouston, Bart., general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and are to be given as presents to hundreds of prominent Canadians. In the safe of the purser also was a present to Lady Laurier, wife of the Prime Minister of Canada.

Indian Head to Go.

Washington, Dec. 26.—The classic faces of the girls on the U. S. nickels and pennies are to be changed. Within a short time some prominent sculptor will be invited by the Secretary of the Treasury to submit new designs for the coins mentioned.

On the new pennies it is likely that old-fashioned Indian head dresses will be done away with. The penny coined yesterday is of the design adopted in 1864.

Comfort of Farmers.

London, Dec. 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—James Dunlop, member of the Scottish Agricultural Commission, recently in Canada, addressing a meeting of Scotch farmers, said in Eastern Canadian farms he was struck by the superior accommodations and comfort of the dwelling houses, compared with those of Ayrshire.

Speaking generally of the Northwest he said Manitoba had the best market, Saskatchewan the best land, Alberta the least rigorous winter, and British Columbia the banner province for fruit-growing.

G. T. P. Elevator Co.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—F. W. Morse, Montreal; J. E. Dalrymple, H. H. Palethorpe, W. K. Chandleir, Thomas Gillespie, J. A. Stevenson and Hugh Phillips, all of Winnipeg, have been incorporated as the Grand Trunk Pacific Elevator Co., with a capital stock of $1,000,000. The operations will be carried on principally at Fort William, but the head office will be in Winnipeg.

Death of John Stanton.

Emperor of Japan Speaks to Diet.

Tokio, Dec. 26.—The Emperor speaking to both Houses of the Diet, met in joint session yesterday, said: "Lords and gentlemen, we have much satisfaction in finding the relations between the empire and treaty powers becoming friendlier year by year and the peace of the Far East further strengthened."

Change In Bisley Rifle Weight.

Quebec, Dec. 26.—A cablegram from London announces that the council of the National Rifle Association have decided that for the year 1909 the rule restricting the weight of the barrel to 3 1-4 pounds is abolished, and a weight of four pounds is substituted therefor. This refers to all match rifles used by marksmen at the Bisley meet.

Fire In Picture Show.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 26.—As the result of smoke inhalation during a fire in a moving picture show last night, Samuel Dunlap, an assistant fire chief, and one of the best known men in the local department, is in a precarious condition at a hospital. Several other firemen were overcome by smoke during the fire.

Bigamist Arrested.

Port Huron, Dec. 26.—William Micks, aged 36 years, of Casco Township, is under arrest on a charge of bigamy. It is alleged that he married Miss Nellie Pocket of Sombra, Ont., in October, 1906, and that on June 29, 1908, in Sarnia he wedded Miss Ella Smith.

More Arrests Coming.

Pittsburg, Dec. 26.—That at least $176,000 was paid councilmen for the selection of certain banks as depositories for the city's funds has been almost positively established by evidence submitted and statements furnished by the voters' league, and the Scranton, Pa., detectives employed by the league to give this city a municipal house-cleaning.

That other arrests are to be made is practically admitted by all concerned in the case, but the present intention is to let the matter rest until after Christmas.

A Masonic Function.

Buffalo, Dec. 26.—An event notable in Masonic circles in this city will take place toward the latter part of January.

On invitation of Keystone Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, this city, the St. Patrick's Chapter of Toronto will come here by special train, bringing along a Masonic triangle that will have then made the first stage of its journey, which will pass it through the hands of every chapter in the world. The idea originated with St. Patrick's Chapter.

Big Fire at Paris.

Paris, Dec. 26.—The Harold Sanderson Screen Door and Refrigerator Factory was entirely destroyed by fire which broke out from some unknown cause in the office of the main building shortly after midnight Christmas morning.

One hundred employes are thrown out of employment at a time when the firm was about to commence overtime work.

Railway Not Absorbed.

Detroit, Dec. 26.—"There is absolutely no foundation for them," replied Henry B. Ledyard, chairman of the Michigan Central Railroad board of directors yesterday when asked about rumors that the Pere Marquette system might be taken into the New York Central the first of the year.

"The Pere Marquette is a competing line of the Michigan Central in every important Michigan town and such a combination would be illegal," he said.

Hurts Canada's Reputation.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—Officials of the Immigration Department are doing their best to discourage the advertising of winter carnivals in Canada. One says: "Any literature exhibition or any other thing which tends to create the impression that Canada is an extreme cold country is very hurtful in the work carried on by war officers in other countries.

The Patronage List is a great institution. A witness at the Marine inquiry testified that his name was on the list, but he had no goods. He joined forces with a man who had the goods, but who was not on the list. They made fifty per cent. profit each, and an uncomplaining country paid the bills. Not even the Trusts can show a record like that.—The Toronto News.

The aphis is in one way the most startling of all forms of insect life, for, although the females can and do lay eggs, its usual method of increase is by a sort of budding process, the young growing on the bodies of the parent exactly as brussels sprouts grow out of the stalks of the plant. The old produce young at the rate of twenty-five a day, and as the young are at once mature each one produces its twenty-five on the following day. It positively frightens one to work this multiplication out to a conclusion, for it means this; Supposing that the aphide could increase and multiply without interference, the twenty-fifth generation would be a number too long to quote here. Put down a 1 and follow it with 28 naughts and you will be within a few millions of it.

Frequent cases of card playing occurred in churches in olden days in the high or curtained family pews that were to be found in several parts of England. A case of card playing was mentioned by the poet Crabbe, as having occurred in one of these pews in Trowbridge parish church. Mr. Beresford Hope stated that card playing was not uncommon in churches having curtained pews, where those occupying them were screened from the observation of the rest of the congregation, and that one of the Georges is credited with taking part at a game of whist in the church he attended. The church at Little Stanmore, in Middlesex, has a luxurious room pew which is approached by a special door and staircase. The old St. Paul's cathedral before the great fire of London was used by business men as a sort of exchange. The portico was let out to hucksters, and in those days gambling and cards are both said to have been indulged in without let or hindrance within the cathedral.—London Standard.

William Hotham, a London restaurant employee, cut his hand on a tin can and he is in a critical condition as a result of blood poisoning.

A NEW CLOTHES RACK.

Designed For the Needs of Women With Little Closet Room.

A woman who has no closet room but wardrobes only in her apartment has had a carpenter make an adjustable clothes rack that may be moved wherever she goes and which when taken apart is merely two standards and a long curtain pole.

She designed the rack as follows: Two pieces of oak an inch and a half thick by four inches wide, each set in a standard eighteen inches long by two high and four wide. The uprights were six feet six inches high and were set in the center of the supports, each narrow end running the long way of the supporting blocks or feet. At each end of each of these two blocks a flat, thin piece of wood was nailed by the carpenter so that one might, if desired, use slim nails for fastening them to the floor.

Through the top of each standard a hole was cut large enough to permit an inch and a half curtain pole passing through. Across the top of each standard was also nailed a flat, thin piece of oak the same length and width as the feet or supports of the standards, running the same way.

These standards are placed opposite each other, against the wall preferably, and a ten foot one and one-half inch curtain pole is run through the holes. The standards may then be pulled nearly to the end of the pole, or they may be pushed toward each other to any desired point, or a shorter pole may be used.

The gowns or garments are then placed on the wooden clothes hangers having hooks at the top and the latter then hung on the pole, the hooks fitting the one and one-half inch pole very easily. The standards being so high permit of trailing gowns and long coats being hung on them, and the depth of eighteen inches insures the feet and the top pieces projecting beyond them.

To keep the clothes free from dust, which is everywhere, a cover must be made. This woman bought two heavy unbleached, seamless, ready made sheets and had them stitched together in a flat seam and put this over the rack, the flat boards at the top holding it out. In this case the standards are only six feet apart. If pulled out the full ten the extra wide sheeting would have to be bought by the yard and cut the desired length.

Of course any other covering of sufficient thickness will do, but unbleached muslin was chosen in this case because it could be laundered and kept clean easily and because it would look better with every laundering.

DRAINAGE DEMANDS.

The Importance of Good Plumbing, Sewerage and Water Supply.

In populous cities and towns the drainpipes and sewers are a prolific source of disease, to repel which even the most efficient safeguards are incomplete, but much is gained to health by keeping the run clear of obstruction, with an occasional flushing, with the addition of lime, soda or salt and hot water.

On moving or clearing out days we look upon the dusty pile of wornout and utterly useless rubbish brought to light and wonder where it all came from. Not one thing of all is worth saving or carrying away, and the whole obtruding collection of good for nothings should have been long before discarded from the family storehouse. We are apt to be too indifferent in respect to the environments of our country homes, which are not accessible to any general system of sewage. All waste water should be carried a considerable distance from the house and never suffered to stagnate in the open air.

If the water supply is from a well it should be located beyond the possible impregnation of objectionable deposits. We have in mind the corruption of well water in one instance by a cow yard and in another by a refinery located at a distance of a hundred feet or more.

The trouble may be years in manifesting itself, but it is sure to come in time. Open wells in frequent use are preferable to closed ones, inasmuch as they have the advantage of continuous fresh air purification.

The needful appurtenances of a country home are a series of outbuildings, including a stable, a cow shed, henhouse, etc. While these should be conveniently accessible from the dwelling, they should never be suffered to encroach upon the sanitary appointments.

Good health is the foremost consideration, and nothing should be allowed to stand in the way of it.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To cure a wart put a drop of vinegar on it three or four times a day and then put on the vinegar as much baking soda as the vinegar will absorb. Keep it on ten minutes, and in a few days' time the wart will drop off and leave no mark but a tiny white spot.

If the heart is weak, but otherwise normal, it can often be strengthened by active leg movements, such as running on tiptoes, swinging the legs back and forth and in a circular motion, flexing the foot and knees and running. This last should be begun slowly and not continued too long at first.

For burns and scalds there is nothing more soothing than the white of an egg, which should be poured over the wound. It is softer than collodion as a varnish for a burn and, being always at hand, can be applied immediately. It is the contact with the air which gives the extreme pain. White of eggs excludes the air and prevents inflammation.

Specific Directions.

The message was transmitted to the "cub" telegrapher. As written it read:

"Foundation under freight house needs attention at once."

As delivered to the general foreman the dispatch contained a rather startling bit of information. It read:

"Found a lion under freight house. Needs attention at once." To which he replied briefly:

"Feed the lion and notify the live stock agent."

The Baseball Umpire.

"That gentleman who is to umpire the game today is an old friend of mine," said the mild mannered baseball fan to his neighbor as they sat leaning forward in the grand stand. "He's one of the squarest and finest of men. Yes, sir, he's as nice a fel— Say, watch the graceful attitude of our first batter! He's got his eye with him today, too, for see how he lets this first bad one go. What did the umpire call that?"

"A strike," replied his neighbor.

"Now, what do you think of that? Ball went a mile wide of the plate! Well, umpires will make mistakes. I've seen"—

At this juncture a crack rent the air, and the ball sailed on a line toward the left field fence. The mild mannered man was on his feet in a jiffy.

"Oh, what a swat! Run, run like the dickens! Go on and make it a homer! Look at that cuss go, will you? Make it— What's that?"

"The umpire called it a foul!"

"A foul? He's crazy! Say, Mr. Umpire, put on your glasses. A foul! Say, man, you're the limit! Throw him out! Go lay down somewhere, umpire! You're rotten! Rotten! Rotten!"

And in his disgust the mild mannered fan slapped his derby hat down on the seat and sat on it.—Bohemian.

CURIOSITIES OF DIET.

How Nature Adapts Food to Man and Man to Food.

GREAT VALUE OF CEREALS.

Why People Can Eat Bread at Every Meal Without Getting Tired of It. The Fruits of the Burning Tropics and the Fats of the Frozen Arctic.

Modern science has shown that nature provides food for mankind with marvelous care and foresight. The human system requires a certain amount of proteid daily to replace wornout muscle and tissue. Fish and meat supply this in large quantities. In hot climates, however, these spoil so quickly that their use is limited. Nature, as if to compensate for this, has given to certain tropical fruits a much larger quantity of proteid than northern fruits contain. Thus government analysis shows that figs have five units or calories to the ounce, dates two and five-tenths and bananas one and five-tenths. Apples have five-tenths, peaches nine-tenths and pears seven-tenths. Probably the figs and dates tested had lost part of their moisture, and some allowance should be made for this.

The Arab can, therefore, maintain his vigor on a diet chiefly plucked from trees. Henry M. Stanley and his white companions subsisted almost entirely on banana flour for two years in the African jungle. Their freedom from disease was in part attributed to the wholesomeness of this diet. The dried banana contains 20 per cent of proteid, about double that of ordinary wheat flour.

At the opening of the mango season in Jamaica many of the natives practically live on this fruit for two or three weeks. They fairly revel in it. An Englishman who was familiar with the science of diet could not understand how they could not only maintain their health on this fare, but actually grow sleek and fat. He knew that an effort to live on the fruits of his native country would result in weakness, sickness and eventual death. Chemical analysis showed, however, that the mango contained enough proteid to supply the bodily needs.

If nature has been thus kind in adapting food to man's uses, she has been equally so in adapting man to his food. You may have wondered why people can eat bread at every meal without tiring of it. The difficulty of eating one quail a day for thirty days is well known. Even such delicacies as asparagus and strawberries cause an aversion when served too frequently. Nature sends men a never failing appetite for cereals because they are altogether the most valuable of foods. They contain a considerable amount of proteid, their salts are of importance to the organism, they are readily digested when properly cooked, and they furnish a great deal of nourishment in small bulk.

Thus wheat flour, cornmeal, oatmeal (dry) and rice (dry) have more than 100 units to the ounce. Baked potatoes have 32.7 units, cabbage has 9.2, spinach 7, asparagus 6.5, apples 18.4, strawberries 11.4, spring chicken 19.5 and tenderloin of beef broiled 5.9. If a man tried to get even half of his nutrition from the coarse vegetables, which have a considerable indigestible residue, he would have to eat pounds of them daily, and his stomach would be sadly overburdened. Nature gives us the desire for a varied diet, and science shows that this is altogether the best for us.

In the arctic regions there is little vegetation. Man must live almost wholly on animal foods. Fish and meat would not suffice, because they contain only proteids. These would replace wornout muscle and tissue, but could not be burned in the body to generate heat and energy. Fats, however, consist of carbon and hydrogen, which are the chief components of the foods of vegetable origin and supply the fuel needed by the body. The polar animals have fat in abundance, but residents of the temperate and torrid zones can eat it only in limited quantities. To them the mere thought of chewing chunks of grease is nauseating.

The children of the frozen north, however, are endowed not only with the ability to eat and to digest large quantities of fat, but with a keen appetite for it. One who is sensitive to such impressions must turn away when he sees the natives of southern Alaska, the Thlinkits, swallowing seal oil flavored by salmon berries with the gusto of a boy over ice cream. The Eskimos, farther north, will eat blubber, slightly cooked in the flames, to an indefinite number of pounds.

Her Object Attained.

"Forgive me, my dear," said the gossip humbly, "but I thoughtlessly mentioned to Mrs. Brown the things that you told me in strict confidence."

"There is nothing to forgive," replied the wise woman pleasantly. "It was for that very purpose that I told them to you in strict confidence."

Getting Even.

"You are half an hour late this morning," said a schoolmaster to a scholar.

"Yes, sir," replied the boy, who had been "kept in" the day before. "It was late yesterday when I got home!"—London Tit-Bits.

We give altogether too little importance to what we say to others and too much to what they say to us.—Eliot.

THE DOCTORS SAID "THERE MUST BE AN OPERATION"

"Fruit-a-tives" Saved Mrs. McCready Untold Suffering and Almost Certain Death.

"Publish this for humanity's sake," writes Mr. C. McCready, of Putnam, Ont., in his letter to the owners of "Fruit-a-tives." Physicians said that only an operation could save his wife's life. But again "Fruit-a-tives" proved its wonderful powers. The doctors were wrong—Mrs. McCready is to-day well and strong—and "Fruit-a-tives" have made friends of every one for miles around Putnam.

"Dear Sirs,—My wife suffered for over a year from Indigestion and Bowel trouble. Several doctors treated her for this trouble and advised her that only an operation would save her life, as they stated it was a tumor that was causing the trouble. The operation was to cost $200.00 and, while she was debating in her own mind about being operated on, she was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives," which I procured for her from our local merchant. From the first box she improved, and after having taken four boxes she is completely cured and is now as well as ever.

I decided then that "Fruit-a-tives" was the most wonderful remedy in the world and it certainly saved my wife's life. She still takes one tablet every night, we also give them to the children with excellent results, and they have to thank "Fruit-a-tives" for the fact that their mother is now with them, they fully expected she would be in her grave. Publish this for humanity's sake."

(Sgd.) C. McCready.

For Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation and Biliousness—for all troubles due to defective action of Bowels, Kidneys and Skin, "Fruit-a-tives" is a certain cure. These tablets are made of fruit juices and tonics, are pleasant to take and quick to act. Trial size, 25c—regular size, 50c a box or 6 for $2.50.

At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Without Ostentation.

The late Josiah W. Leeds of Philadelphia was notable for his lifelong fight against immodesty. He loved simplicity as he loved modesty. Ostentation he abhorred, especially the ostentation of funerals and cemeteries. He used often to quote an epitaph that he had once seen in a secluded graveyard.

This epitaph, which was cut on the simplest, cheapest stone it is possible to imagine, said:

"The monument is very plain, no doubt, but all the money in the world would not have brought our poor dear father back to us again."—Washington Star.

Too Fair For Use.

"The late Bishop Potter," said a famous beauty at a dinner in New York, "could pay charming compliments. He paid me a charming compliment when I was a young girl.

"It was at a country house in Vermont. Bishop Potter was very busy in the library one morning when I entered. He at once asked me to help him. He gave me a list of charity subscriptions to add up. As I set to work Bishop Potter, bending over me, said:

"'You must forgive me. I have grave compunctions about asking you to do anything useful. It is as if one should eat hash from a gold dish carved by Benvenuto Cellini or use for a napkin a square of venetian lace.'"

An Exciting Pursuit.

Once at an international photographic congress the question was raised which was the most exciting pursuit in connection with the camera. One member averred, "Photographing wild beasts in Africa." Another gave it as his opinion that photographing the treacherous summits of the Alps and Himalayas was the most nerve racking; another mentioned submarine photography. When they had all finished, a pale, wild eyed man got up and said: "Gentlemen, all these things are placid diversions compared with my speciality. I am a child photographer."

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Show Men Protest.

New York, Dec. 26.—More than 300 of New York City's 550 moving picture show men met yesterday and protested with more or less vehemence against Mayor McClellan's action in revoking their licenses and closing their shows Thursday night. A committee of 25 was appointed to report on a plan of organization for the purpose of contesting the enforcement of the mayor's decree.

The mayor's closing order was rigidly enforced yesterday in Manhattan and the Bronx, where all places devoted exclusively to the exhibition of moving pictures were closed.

Manitoba Cuts 'Phone Price.

Winnipeg, Dec. 26.—Announcement will soon be made by the Government of a reduction in the present telephone rates.

Under Government ownership the telephones have been a financial success, and it is expected that the profits for the first year will amount to approximately $225,000.

As far as can be learned, although nothing has yet been definitely decided, residence phones in Winnipeg will cost but $20 after the first of the year, and business 'phones will cost in the neighborhood of $30 or $35, against $50 now charged.

Choked by Peanut.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—Martha Fones, a two-year-old child, lies dead at her home, while her Christmas tree, adorned with gifts and with candles alight, stands in the room.

The baby swallowed a peanut shell, which lodged in her throat, and died at a hospital despite the efforts of the surgeons.

Applying For Divorce.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—Notice is given that Ada Ann Reed of Toronto will apply to Parliament for a divorce from her husband, Josiah Reed.

Administrator of Manitoba.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—Hon. Justice Dubuc, chief justice of Manitoba, has been appointed administrator for that province during the absence of Lieutenant-Governor McMillan.

Religious Faker Dead.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—Cyrus R. Teed, "Koresh I." self-styled "Messiah" of the notorious "sunset flat heaven" in Normal Park in 1892 is dead in the midst of his colony in extreme Southern Florida. His followers, devoutly believing in his immortality, awaited his resurrection yesterday, but nothing has yet been heard of a resurrection.

Victoria Gratin, his wife, has assumed the throne with medieaval solemnity and has issued an edict that the body of the leader shall not be buried until there has been a manifestation of divine will.

Army to Reform Inebriates.

Auckland, N.Z., Dec. 26.—The authorities are making a new experiment in New Zealand. The prison authorities got so tired of their repeated failures in reforming the inebriate that they have determined to hand over all such cases to the Salvation Army. The Army has purchased two small islands to which the cases can be transferred—one island for women, the other for men. The object is to remove them from temptation. So far the experiment has been a success, although it is too soon to pass a permanent judgment.

Dutch Ships Leave Venezuela.

Willemstad, Curacao, Dec. 26.—The Dutch cruiser Gelderland, which has been operating in Venezuelan waters, arrived here yesterday.

Her arrival formally brings to a close the Dutch demonstration against Venezuela, Holland having recalled her warships pending the outcome of the diplomatic negotiations which are to be resumed between the Netherlands and Venezuela.

Crew of Yacht Mutinies.

Teneriffe, Canary Islands, Dec. 26.—The crew of the yacht Dalia, owned by Jacques Lebaudy, "emperor of the Sahara," mutinied while off this coast and hoisted the Haytien colors. The vessel was forced to put into Santa Cruz, however, owing to lack of coal and on arriving here the mutineers were arrested. A fresh crew were placed on board the yacht yesterday.

Hon. Charles Devlin Ill.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—Hon. Charles R. Devlin took suddenly ill while leaving church at Aylmer, Que., yesterday morning and has had to cancel all his engagements in connection with Quebec bye-election. He is suffering from collapse.

Persecution of Jews.

New York, Dec. 26.—The American Jewish committee yesterday announced the receipt of a cablegram from the German Jewish committee of Berlin, saying there have been persecutions of Jews in Russia, Finland, this winter on a large scale.

It was added that many families have been driven from their homes.

No New Policies.

New York, Dec. 26.—In order that they may be certain not to exceed the limitations of new business prescribed by the new insurance laws of this state, the New York Life Insurance Co. announced yesterday that it would write no more policies, the insurance under which can be consumsumated in the present year.

Senator Bernier's Illness.

Winnipeg, Dec. 26.—Hon. Thomas Bernier, Senator for St. Boniface, who was stricken with paralysis on the street Thursday, was slightly improved yesterday, but his condition is considered hopeless.

Cough Medicine Kills.

Port Arthur, Dec. 26.—Antonio Lotko, aged four, got hold of a bottle of cough medicine Thursday morning and took a dose thirty times too large and died soon after.

An Expensive Feast.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 26.—Mock Sem, the leper who has been in the involuntary and expensive charge of the city of Harrisburg since July 7, 1907, died at the municipal hospital yesterday, tuberculosis being the cause of death.

The cost of the Chinaman's maintenance was about $175 a month. Some months it went up to $200, one occasion being when he was told he could order some goods from a Chinatown house in Philadelphia. No one knew what he was ordering and the bill was $27.50. Mock feasted for a week.

Stamp Slot Machines.

Washington, Dec. 26.—If one man can drop a penny in a vending machine and obtain a piece of chewing gum or a handful of peanuts, why not be able to drop a coin and get a postage stamp?

That is just what the United States Postoffice Department want to make a popular feature of its service, and in an order issued yesterday announcement is made that the Department is now prepared to issue limited quantities of postage stamps in rolls of 500 to 1,000 for use in stamp vending and stamp affixing machines.

Milk Bricks.

Milk bricks are sold in Belgium and Denmark. These bricks are milk frozen solid, and when intended for use as soon as received in the household the lacteal fluid for the tea or coffee has to be chipped off according to the quantity desired in the drink. This brick milk has grown to be a necessity in the warmer countries of Europe. The Belgium government has given a yearly subsidy to increase the trade. In Copenhagen a firm engaged in this business makes a weekly delivery of 800,000 pounds. A great deal of this goes to distant countries.

Fair at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Dec. 26.—Mayor W. Sanford Evans has nominated a strong committee of leading business men to consider the project of holding a centennial fair here in 1812. They will investigate the question of expense and ways and means of financing the same, and on their recommendations will largely depend whether or not the fair is to be a reality.

THEY SHOULD TRY THIS MIXTURE

Home Made Remedy Which Acts Promptly on Kidneys and Bladder

Cut this out and put in some safe place, for it is valuable and worth more than anything else in the world if you should have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or any derangement of the kidneys whatever.

The prescription is simple and can be made up by anyone at home. The ingredients can be had at any good prescription pharmacy and all that is necessary is to shake them well in a bottle.

Here it is: Fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; compound syrup of sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. A few doses is said to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble, frequent urination, pain and scalding, weakness and backache, pain above the kidneys, etc. It is now claimed to be the method of curing chronic rheumatism, because of its direct and positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It gives them life and power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood relieving the worst forms of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles. The extract dandelion acts upon the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation and indigestion. Compound sarsaparilla cleans and enriches the blood. There is nothing better than Kargon Compound for the kidneys.

This prescription is safe to use at any time.

Want Right to Mine.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—The Yellow Head Pass Coal & Railway Co. is applying to Parliament for incorporation as a mining company with the right to build one hundred miles of railway from the G. T. P. in Alberta southeast to the head waters of the Little Pembina River and 25 miles from the G. T. P. along the Embarras River toward the McLeod River.

Drowned at Chatham.

Chatham, Dec. 26.—Herbert Johnson, aged four, son of Hector Johnson, farmer, near here, was drowned in the Thames River Thursday evening, and the body was not recovered.

The boy, with a brother, walked on the ice, was warned off, but Herbert later returned with his dog and broke through the ice. The dog also was drowned.

Newspaper Man Dead.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 26.—Charles West Spalding, a pioneer newspaperman, died in Kansas City, aged 79 years.

He is said to have been the first man to receive a President's message by telegraph. During the civil war he was a special correspondent of The Chicago Times.

NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED

Excesses and indiscretions are the cause of more sorrow and suffering than all other diseases combined. We see the victims of vicious habits on every hand: the sallow, pimpled face, dark circled eyes, stooping form, stunted development, bashful, melancholic countenance and timid bearing proclaim to all the world his folly and tend to blight his existence. Our treatment positively cures all weak men by overcoming and removing the effects of former indiscretions and excesses. It stops all drains and quickly restores the victim to what nature intended—a healthy and happy man with physical, mental and nerve power complete.

For over 20 years Drs. K. & K. have treated with the greatest success all diseases of men and women.

If you have any secret disease that is a worry and a menace to your health consult old established physicians who do not have to experiment on you.

We guarantee to cure NERVOUS DEBILITY, BLOOD DISEASES, STRICTURE, VARICOCELE, KIDNEY AND BLADDER DISEASES. Consultation Free. If unable to call, write for a question Blank for Home Treatment.

MY FREE TRIAL TREATMENT MAY CURE YOU

ORANGE LILY

Kingston, Ont., June 6th, 1904.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—I feel so very much better after using the ten days' treatment of Orange Lily you were kind enough to send, that I will not require any more. In fact, I feel entirely well, and it is now a month since I stopped using the treatment. (Miss) F. T. W.

Similar letters to the above are not infrequent, though, of course, such cases are not of long standing. Most women who have suffered for any length of time will require to use Orange Lily longer than the Free Trial Treatment in order to effect a complete cure, but in every case they will be perceptibly benefitted. Further, the benefit will be permanent, whether they continue to use Orange Lily or not. It is not taken internally, and does not contain any alcohol or other stimulant. It is an applied treatment, and acts directly on the suffering organs. In all cases of women's disorders, these organs are congested to a greater or less extent, and Orange Lily will relieve and remove this congestion just as positively and certainly as the action of ammonia or soap on soiled linen. It is a simple chemical problem, and the result is always the same—a step towards better health and complete cure.

In order that every suffering woman may prove its good qualities, without cost, I will send enough of Orange Lily for ten days' treatment, absolutely free, to each lady who will send me her address.

PIGEON LAKE IS FROZEN OVER

Mr. Ab. Hunt came across Pigeon Lake on Monday on foot, and reported four to six inches of ice. Tuesday morning Dr. Boyd crossed from Thurston to Sandy Point with his horse and cutter, and traffic with South Harvey is now open.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

Good Stock

The House of Refuge has earned a great reputation with regard to the stock raised there. A pair of Durham calves born last March were weighed recently and tipped the scales at 1075 pounds. Mr. Bervis considers this hard to beat in view of the fact that the animals only received ordinary care.—Lakefield News.

Only teas grown at an elevation of 50000 feet are used in "Salada," thus making it richer, more fragrant and infinitely more delicious than other teas.

A USEFUL ARTICLE

Is Conceded To Be the Most Acceptable New Year's Gift

Let me suggest a nice pair of Gold-rimmed Spectacles for Father or Mother. This would certainly be appreciated during the long winter evenings, when fitted with the proper reading lenses. You can buy them now and have them fitted after the holiday season without any extra cost. We also carry a nice line of Opera Glasses and Eyeglass Chains, which makes very suitable gifts at this time of the year. Everything we sell is guaranteed.

THEY KEPT THE SALVATION ARMY BANNER FLYING IN VILLAGE OF LAKEFIELD

The following is from the Christmas number of the "War Cry."

The conduct of some lone salvationists has been nothing short of heroic. In a few small places where the Salvation Army has for a time been obliged to suspend operations, a few, or perhaps one, Salvation soldier has kept the flag flying in a noble manner, that has turned the tide of war and enabled the Army to renew operations on most successful conditions.

Some six years ago, a great stir was created at Lakefield, Ontario, by the promotion to glory of "Dutchy" Stone, at the age of 75 years. He and his wife were the sole representatives of the Salvation Army in that little town, and for twenty years they kept the flag flying. They were remarkable characters in many ways, and surprised the people by regularly appearing on the streets, Sunday after Sunday, one beating the drum and the other carrying the flag. The costume of Father Stone was a marvel to all beholders. He always wore bright red pants, vest and coat, while on his head was an old German military helmet. To draw the attention of the crowd, he carried a ram's horn, which he blew at intervals.

People listened to this strange old man with the Dutch accent—listened in wonder and with pleasure, listened, and were compelled to respect this fearless advocate of God and of the Salvation Army; they listened and were blessed.

In order to avoid the suspicion of keeping the Army money for himself, he always took up the offerings in a G.M.B. box, which was opened periodically by the officer specially appointed to that wrok. He was one of those earnest, cheerful, true hearted and believing souls, who are honored of God in blessing hundreds of others, and though, during his lifetime, the villagers had smiled at his oddities, they turned out en masse at his funeral, to pay their last respects to this fearless advocate of God and the Salvation Army.

His devoted wife was as loyal and faithful as himself, and toiled hard at selling War Crys and collecting for special efforts. Though very poor they gave a generous donation themselves. Two sons survive, one being the Rev. William Stone, a missionary amongst the B.C. Indians.

The old drum, which has a much battered appearance after twenty years' service, now hangs as a trophy in Peterborough Barracks, a silent testimony to the faithfulness of a humble, but ardent Salvationist.

THERE WAS ONE LOAF OF BREAD TO SPARE THURSDAY

Children's Aid Society Distributed Christmas Cheer—Many Homes Brightened by Visit of Mr. George Cochrane.

The Children's Aid Society distributed Christmas cheer to fifteen families in Peterborough. Mr. George Cochrane had the role of Santa Claus on Thursday afternoon and the little folk—and the older ones too—in the homes visited were gladdened by the gifts he brought. Citizens were generous in the appeal for donations and there was enough and to spare. After the seventeen families had been supplied there was a loaf of bread left and this was given to the King's Daughters who were also engaged in distributing Christmas cheer to those whose Christmas would perhaps not be bright were it not for the generosity of those in better circumstances.

IT WAS A HAPPY DAY FOR CHILDREN AT THE SHELTER

It has been learned by the Globe on inquiry as to the progress of protests in election matters, that the late Chief Justice Strong in full court, once gave expression, in adjudicating on an appeal, to the opinion that, although he doubted the right to appeal from such an order, which was discretionary in its nature, yet even if an appeal did lie, it would require an extraordinary case to warrant the Appellate Court in interfering with the judgment of a judge upon the preliminary objection. Just what effect this decision may have upon the election protests now before the courts, is a problem which may give some of the lawyers an anxious time.—The Globe.

WOMAN ALLEGES THAT HER HUSBAND HAS ANOTHER WIFE AND FAMILY IN TORONTO

Chas. Rotchford was charged in the police court this morning with creating a disturbance at his home on George street north on Christmas eve. He was remanded for a week in order that the chief of police might investigate the story of the prisoner's wife as told in the witness box this morning.

She stated that Rotchford had a wife and family residing in Toronto. She had been in this country four years. The prisoner married her before coming to Canada, but he had been out here previous to that and had left his first wife and her children in Toronto. She had not learned of his first marriage until about two months ago and he destroyed her marriage lines. She stated further that Rotchford was wanted by the police for having shot two men with intent to kill.

On Christmas eve he came home with a sleigh and two other toys. He said that he had got them by concealing them under his overcoat.

He wanted his little son to go with him to steal more things, she said, but the little son refused. He then got the axe and smashed the sleigh and had it within an inch of the boy's head when the witness rushed forward and grasped it.

She had to work to support her children and would be pleased if the court would grant her a separation.

The prisoner admitted that he had another wife, and said that his wife knew it before she married him.

His Worship remanded him for a week and Chief Roszel will investigate the matter.

"THE GLOBE" ON AN APPEAL

Nowhere in the city was Christmas Day more happily celebrated than at the Children's Aid Shelter. It was a day of supreme joy for the eight little people who are under under the care of Mr. and Mrs. Henry and for a large number of the children of the neighborhood, who came in in the evening to join in the rejoicing. A "Christmas tree" was the feature of the evening, and it was a splendid one too. It was beautifully decorated and amply loaded with gifts of many kinds for the children. Mr. Angus McLean, of Fenelon, Mr. Henry's brother-in-law, was Santa Claus and distributed the presents. The house was literally filled with children in the evening and one could not imagine a happier gathering. It was the most successful Christmas tree ever held at the Shelter.

CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR PASTOR

Rev. Mr. Potter Presented With Mimeograph by Ladies Aid of St. Andrew's

A much appreciated Christmas gift is an Ellams Mimeograph, which was presented to Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's, by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church. The mimeograph is a particularly handsome one of suit case type and is highly prized by the recipient.

BE A CHARMING WOMAN

You never saw a beautiful woman who didn't have beautiful hair. The charms of a beautiful woman lie in her hair. Many women do not realize the attractions they possess because they do not give proper attention to the care of the hair.

The women of the "400" are famed for their beauty not because their facial features are superior to those of other women, but because they know how to keep young by supplying vigor, lustre, and strength to the hair.

Up to a few years ago Parisian Sage could hardly be obtained in America. But now this delightful hair restorer can be had in every town in America. Wm. Madill sells it in Peterborough for 50 cents a bottle, and he guarantees it to grow beautiful luxuriant hair; to turn dull, lifeless hair into lustrous hair; to stop itching of the scalp. Understand, Wm Madill will give you your money back if it fails.

THEATRICAL

EAST LYNNE.

A superior offering of the perennial favorite, "East Lyne" was given at the Grand Opera House for matinee and night performances yesterday and made a splendid Christmas attraction. Large audiences saw the play and endorsed the acting of the company.

A strong cast was headed by Miss Avis Paige, in the emotional role of Lady Isabel, and she gave a splendid portrayal of the part, her splendid acting being an outstanding feature of the play. The others of the company did most satisfactorily, and the presentation was decidedly above that usually seen of this sterling drama.

Michael O'Brien was awarded $1,200 damages at St. Thomas against the M.C.R. Co., for injuries.

SPORTING NEWS

THE MATINEE PRODUCED SOME SPLENDID RACING

Required Six Heats to Decide the Named Race—Queen's Baron and Holland Boy Won Their Events —Races Were Most Interesting and Satisfactory.

The best racing matinee ever held in Peterborough was the general opinion of the enthusiasts who saw the Peterborough Turf Club matinee at the driving park yesterday afternoon. All of the races were well contested. The heats were of the regulation matinee distance, half a mile. There were no flukes or flaws in the entire programme and every heat furnished interesting going. The track was a little heavy for the bikes but the horses stepped lively and good time was made. On the whole the matinee was most satisfactory from the standpoint of the spectators, the horsemen and officials. The crowd, while fairly good, was not as large as it might have been, but in view of the good sport and general satisfaction a big gathering should be on hand for the next race meeting of the Turf Club.

SIX HEATS FOR THIS RACE.

The named race wwas a surprise to everyone. When it looked as though the first money would go to Lou Keswick, Queen's Bourbon, with Jack Gibson up, shot to the front and captured the fourth heat quite handily. This flamed up a further interest in the event, which was a good one from the first heat. Bourbon took the next two in succession and earned first money. The concluding heat had the crowd thoroughly warmed up and the win was a popular one.

The second last half was done in the dusk, and for the final one it was comparatively dark. So dim was it that the horses could not be distinguished after they had passed the first turn.

When the fourth heat was over there was some indecision as to whether it would be advisable to continue the race or postpone it until to-day or let it stand as it was and make the money division accordingly. The majority of the horsemen were in favor of racing it out, and that ruling went. When the fifth heat had been run off the only horses to contend for first three moneys were Quezn's Bourbon, Lou Keswick and Harry Mack. The other three were drawn and the race was concluded as mentioned. When it come to the question of the three still staying with it, two of the horsemen were in favor of finishing the race then and there, so they wheeled around for another start with the railbirds hanging hard to see the end of the sport.

QUEEN'S BARON WINS.

There were three horses carded for this race, Queen's Baron, Bourbon Brooks and Prince Hal. The last named horse did not start however and Queen's Baron and Bourbon Brooks had the duel betwween themselves. It was best two out of three heats and the horses stepped in remarkably even fashion. At no time was there much to pick between the two and the finishes were bang up and sensational. In the first heat Queen's Baron didn't get away from under the wire as soon as Bourbon Brooks and the latter horse maintained a lead and kept in the lead until the finish. In the next two heats Queen's Baron showed a fine turn of speed and proved that he can negotiate the halves with any of them.

FREE FOR ALL.

The free for all like the stallion trot produced some nip and tuck racing. Only two horses started, Holland Boy and Patterson, but the field was a very select one and the crowd were given their money's worth in real battling. The times of the heats were the fastest of the matinee, and although the first two saw the horses travelling at a fast clip the last heat was the speediest of the day, the time being 1.14.

Holland Boy took the race in three straight heats, but Patterson made him go for every inch of the ground.

A feature of the afternoon and one that was thoroughly appreciated by the spectators was the fact that there were no delays in getting the horses to score and the waits between the heats were short.

THE SUMMARY.

The summary is as follows:

JOHNSTON IN 14th; EASY FOR NEGRO

Police Interfered to Save Canadian From Further Punishment—Johnston Outfought Champion From First Round — Best Fight Seen in Australia.

Sydney, N.S.W., Dec. 27.—Jack Johnson, the big negro from Galveston, Texas, is the world's champion heavyweight pugilist. He won the the title yesterday in the big arena at Rushcutters' Bay from Tommy Burns, the Canadian, who had held it since James J. Jeffries relinquished it, and after a chase of Burns that had led half way round the world.

The end came in the fourteenth round, when the police, seeing Burns tottering and unable to defend himself from the savage blows of his opponent, mercifully stopped the fight. Previously it had been arranged that if the police interfered a decision should be rendered on points, and Referee McIntosh without hesitation declared the big black man the winner, for all through the fight he had shown himself Burns' master in every style of fighting.

Burns, whose real name is Noah Brusso, in an interview after he had gone to his dressing-room, said: "I did the best I could and fought hard. Johnson was too big, and his reach was too great."

Johnson appeared fresh after the fight, while Burns' eyes were badly puffed and his mouth swollen to twice its normal size. The Canadian fought a game battle and showed indomitable pluck, but he was no match for the big Texas black.

The fight was for a purse of $35,500, of which Burns received $30,000 and Johnson $5,500. The ring was a 24-foot one and was pitched in the centre of a big arena built especially for the purpose at Rushcutters' Bay. The bout was to have been for 20 rounds.

The day dawned overcast and cool. Thousands of persons from all parts of the country were attracted to the scene and many reached there Christmas night and slept in the open. They came by street cars, automobiles, carriages and horseback, and at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, one hour before the fight was scheduled to start, every seat was occupied. The prices of seats ranged from $25 to $2.50.

The crowd was estimated at between 18,000 and 20,000 persons, and it kept perfect order throughout the fight.

PRESENTED WITH A CANE

Mr. Gabriel Switzer Honored by His Sunday School Class

Bethel, Emily, Dec. 24.—Christmas time has come again with the spirit of giving presents. Mr. G. Switzer was the recipient of a handsome gold-headed cane presented to him by his Sunday school class consisting of young men.

Mr. Switzer, who is the superintendent of the Bethel Sunday school, has also a class of young men who took advantage of Christmas time to show their appreciation of his services by presenting him with a cane and the following address:

Dear Teacher,—Again the happy season of Xmas has arrived, bringing with it the usual feelings of peace, good will and Christmas fellowship, the members of your class (No. 7), believe this is a good time to show forth our appreciation of your services to the Sunday school but especially to our class.

We are sensitive of the difficulty under which you labor, being superintendent as well as teacher. We also know how tedious it is to teach when we have made little preparation of the lesson, nevertheless, you have always maintained a cheerful spirit and we have always enjoyed your teaching to the fullest extent. Therefore please accept this cane as a slight acknowledgement of the esteem with which we regard you. That you may live many years to use it is the sincere wish of your class.

Signed on behalf of,— Allan Case,
William Guthrie,
Isaac Guthrie,
Roy Howden,
Harry Deyell.

NOMINATIONS TAKE PLACE ON MONDAY

Monday is nomination day. The nominations for Mayor, Water Commissioner and Board of Education will take place at ten o'clock at the City Council Chamber. The nomination of aldermen will take place at the same place at twelve o'clock on the same day. The retiring Water Commissioner this year is Mr. T. F. Matthews. The terms of four members of the Board of Education expire at the close of the year. The retiring members are Messrs. D. F. Ackerman, M. A. Morrison, Robert Fair and W. S. Robinson.

Chairman Mabee, at Montreal, severely scored the Quebec, Montreal and Southern Railway for its poor train service and equipment.

WORKING A SWINDLE.

The Way That Clever Rogues Operate Through the Mails.

Uncle Sam is as proud and watchful of his mails as a father of his favorite child, yet it is through the postoffice that the succulent "sucker" is so frequently ticked for, sometimes by a thin line of correspondence reeled out 3,000 miles away, and he has been known to snap at one hook with avidity while at the time he had another in his gills.

One man engaged a small room in a downtown office building, New York, installed a single typewriter, which he manipulated himself, and from an investment of less than $300 within two months cleared over $10,000. How did he do it? Let us go back to the day that his office rent began.

First, he had his door adorned with handsome gold lettering, as follows: "Henry Harriman, Watch and Diamond Merchant."

A capacious letter box was then attached to the door, and, removing his coat, Henry Harriman, with a newspaper directory at his elbow, struck off several hundred typewritten letters to as many different newspapers throughout the country, inclosing in each letter 10 cents in stamps and asking that he be forwarded a copy of the latest edition.

As fast as copies of these papers came in he looked over the death columns and, selecting one or two likely names from the paper, sent the decedent a typewritten letter begging that he kindly remit the $10 balance due and the hundred dollar diamond ring which he had purchased would go forward by express. A neat bill was inclosed with the letter, made out as though $90 in installments had already been paid in on the diamond.

When this letter reached its destination (and with it was sent an illustrated folder of watch and diamond bargains) it was opened by the widow of the decedent, and thirteen times out of a baker's dozen the $10 was remitted in haste by the surprised yet not less pleased lady.

An early letter informed the widow that her remittance had been received and the diamond would go forward by express within twenty days direct from the importing house. Should she fail to receive it, would she be good enough to notify the firm, etc.

When the postoffice inspectors looked into the matter some two months later they found correspondence showing that Henry Harriman, watch and diamond merchant, had netted over $10,000, but that gentleman had thoughtfully betaken his person to greener fields.

Memory, Not Mystery.

"Memory can play the strangest of tricks," says a specialist, "and it is responsible for not a few superstitious fears in sensitive people.

"A lady once told me that she found herself at times in places where her surroundings seemed to have been known to her before, though she knew that she had never been there previously. Probably you will recognize this experience, which is common enough. How many people, when reading or listening to a conversation, become vaguely conscious that they have read the passage or heard the identical words in 'the dim, long past!'

"It is not a haunting mystery, but just a way that memory has. Innumerable impressions of the most trivial things are stored in the brain and will come out when called upon. In the lady's case she had probably seen a picture of the scene at some time, and a view of the actual place produced memory's feeble effort to recall it."

Ample Cause.

"What on earth possessed you to become engaged to Herbert?" a young lady asked her friend. "You don't love him an atom!"

"I know," was the candid reply, "but that horrid Jones girl does!"

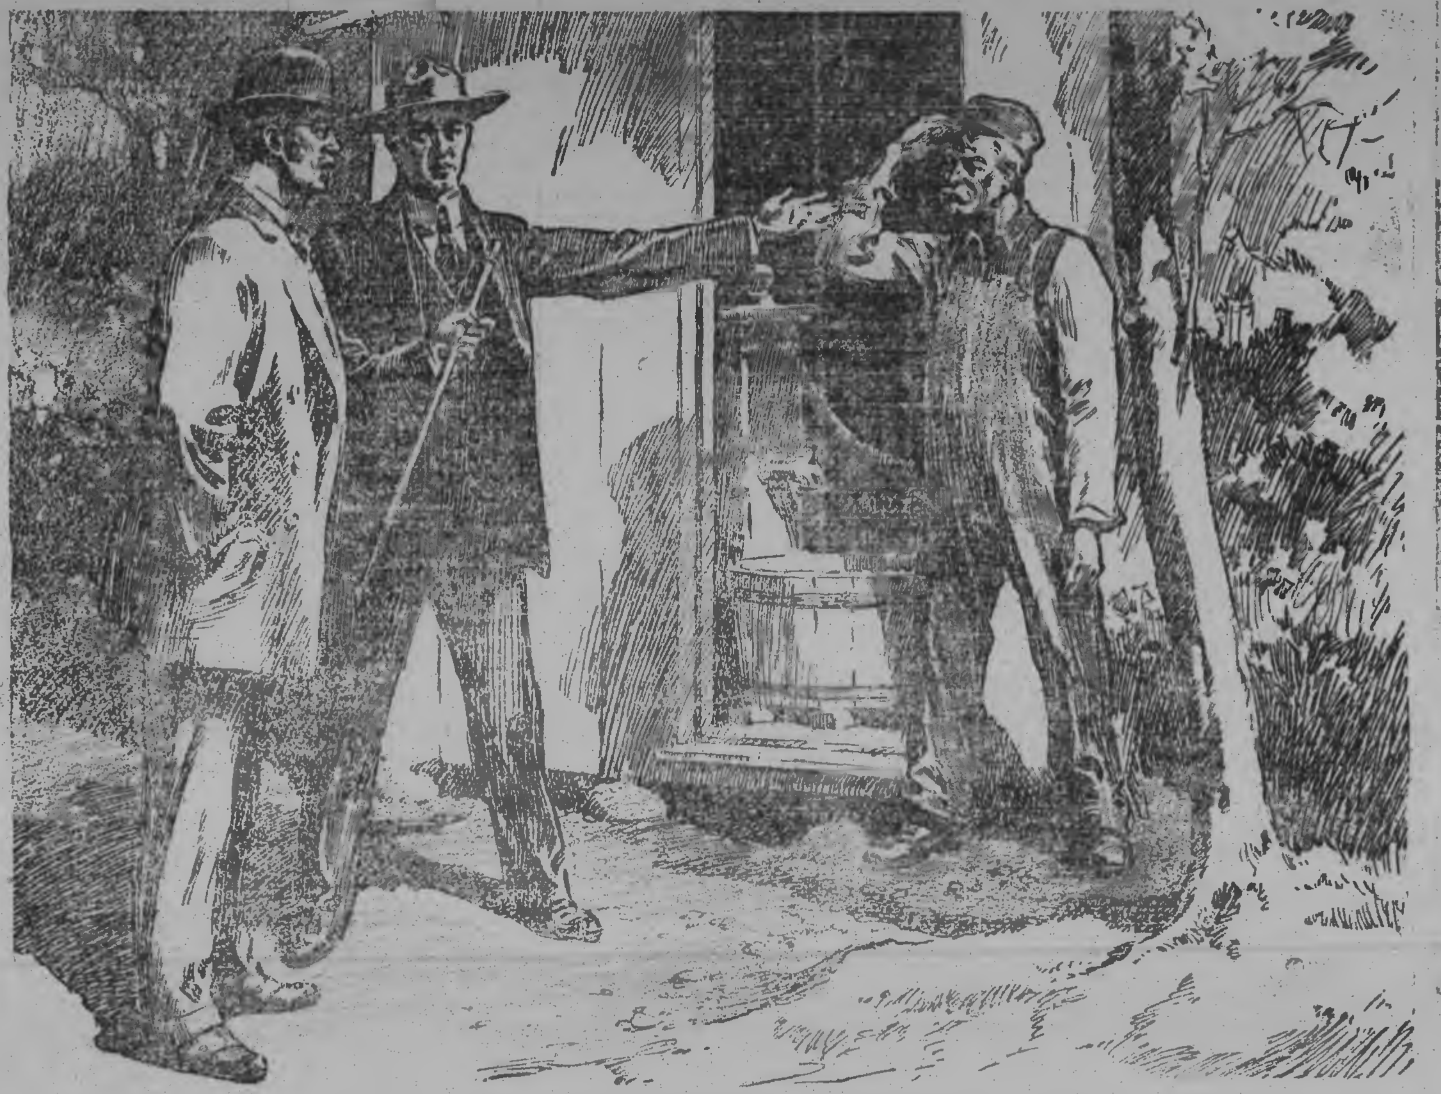
George Street, Peterborough 20 Kent Street, Lindsay

The Brine Lake Deal.

By Peter K. Gray.



AT THE DOOR STOOD A MAN IN OVERALLS.

THE Halonia was bound for New York. Among the passengers were Cornelius Q. Tandell and Everby Johnson Skimms, Americans, and Colonel George P. Wivilliscombe, a retired British naval officer, who had just fallen heir to many thousands, which he wanted to invest in America.

"You don't know, my dear Mr. Tandell," said the Colonel, "how greatly I shall appreciate anything that may come from you respecting my intentions regarding putting some money—a few thousand pounds, you know—into something that offers a reasonable return in the way of profit. I trust that you will pardon me, an entire stranger to you, for thus trespassing on your consideration, but I feel that you are in a position to be of great service to me in this connection. I do, really."

"No bother at all, Colonel," replied Tandell, almost gruffly. "But I must pass. Perhaps you have noticed that I don't stand in on the advice game. If you play adviser you don't get any thanks for it if it turns out all right, and if it don't the other fellow doesn't forget by no means to blow you up and call you down for putting him up against a no account claim."

The Colonel nodded in apparent appreciation of the wisdom of Mr. Tandell's philosophy. Tandell replied not but frowned slightly for some moments. Then, suddenly:—

"I'll tell you what I will do, Colonel. I'll give you a note of introduction to a man who has as much practical knowledge of the West as the next one. He represents a whole bunch of Western interests in New York, and usually has a few good things either on hand or about to be. Of course, like all the rest of us, he's human and makes blunders, but he is about as sound a piece of horseflesh as I know. You are safe in his hands, especially so when he knows you're a friend of mine. Clackett—Mase Clackett—is my friend's name, and he's stopping at the Hotel Superb in New York. Mind you, I don't ask you to do or even listen to what Clackett says or recommends, but I don't know anybody that I would sooner steer you up against inside the American surf line than Mase."

It was close on midnight when the couple parted. Half an hour later the Tandell stateroom door opened, Tandell himself stepped out and, after casting an inquiring eye up and down the deserted passageway, went to the purser's office. There he filed a wireless message, addressed to "Clackett, Hotel Superb, New York." The message ran cryptically thus:—"Thunder, pebble, wire, ruby, aged, pup, babble, mold."

Two hours later Manson J. Clackett, one of the permanent guests of the Superb, suspended his labor of opening wine for a couple of ruddy faced men with provincial earmarks strong upon them in order to scan the marconigraph. He drew a very small code book from a very much hidden inside pocket. As he read and compared he smiled as one smiles on hearing good news.

Early the next day the Halonia made fast to her dock and the Colonel rushed to the Superb. Before he went to bed that night he sent his card and Tandell's letter of introduction to Mr. Clackett.

Mr. Clackett was a big man with a thick neck, high cheek bones, round blue eyes and a thick lipped, good humored mouth partly hidden by a vast mustache. He had a ripe, thick voice. His manner was like unto that of Tandell's only a trifle more aggressive.

"Glad to know you, Colonel," said he. "Glad to know any one who knows Tandell."

"Thanks. I'm sure Mr. Tandell deserves your implied compliment," said the Colonel. "He has greatly impressed me as a—ah!—very good sort indeed. And thank you for your reception of his note of introduction."

"Not at all," cried Mr. Clackett heartily. "Tandell picks his friends and I bet on 'em every time. Never knew him to make a mistake yet, Colonel. Do you smoke, Colonel? I see," glancing at Tandell's letter, "that he wants me to post you on the West or what I know of it."

"Yes; if you will be so good."

"Why, sir, I come from the West—Topeka way—I live out of the West by developing some of its interests, and I keep in touch with the West all the time—all the time—because I have to do so for business reasons."

The Colonel nodded appreciatively.

"But," went on Mr. Clackett, "what I may tell you about the West may be a trifle different than what I tell the usual client. When it's strictly business, Colonel, one has to sometimes sugarcoat the pill of truth. Human nature is such that, when it's buying, it demands that the thing purchased shall be neither flawed, fingermarked nor shopworn. Yet it knows quite well that nothing that's salable or buyable is perfect. This, in so far as the world in general is concerned, but when it comes to one of Tandell's friends the case is different. His business and personal good will is a thing worth having. Tandell is a power in the West."

Here Mr. Clackett nodded emphatically, and, keeping his eyes fixed on the Colonel, rose and sought with a practised finger for the electric button.

"Permit me," cried the Colonel, rising also. "I really beg of you."

"Your rooms," replied Mr. Clackett. "I know the proprieties, Colonel. I know. But I'm going to violate them."

"Now," said Mr. Clackett, as he and the Colonel clinked glasses, "I'm not going to talk another word about business for the rest of the day. Have you any engagement? No? And as Tandell says in his note, this is your first trip to New York? Well, Colonel, I am at your disposal if you wish to see the town. Suppose you dine with me and I'll take you around."

The dinner was a good one, Albert, the head waiter, looking after the table himself. The evening that followed was to the Colonel's mind equally delightful by reason of its being so very different from evenings to which he had been accustomed. It ended by an appointment being made for the following day at Mr. Clackett's office.

Mr. Clackett's offices were on the final floor of a sky piercing structure. Once inside the office you had local coloring and atmosphere aplenty. Colored photographs of the Yellowstone region, the Grand Cañon, the Garden of the Gods, and so forth, supplied ochres and saffrons, crimson and burnt siennas, emerald greens and ultramarines in abundance. Then there was a bear rug or two, a buffalo head, some painted deer hides and a stuffed lynx, these supplying the "atmosphere," for their odor was still somewhat strange and untamed to civilized nostrils. Then there were lumps of various ores and mineral specimens, Indian weapons, sections of tree trunks, a collection of photographs of boom towns in which Mr. Clackett was interested, some gigantic ears of corn and a sheaf of tremendous wheat, each, according to its attached label, the product of a certain county in Kansas. There were framed and emblazoned proofs that Mr. Clackett was a member of a baker's dozen of agricultural and mining brotherhoods, granges, lodges, orders, conclaves, camps and whatnot, piles of Western newspapers, heaps of literature compiled by Western boards of trade for booming purposes, an alleged Daniel Boone rifle, a bunch of rattlesnake rattles and a big tumble weed that dangled from the electrolier.

The Colonel's engagement with Clackett was at noon, and Mr. Clackett began by putting his visitor through a Western course of exhaustive nature. He plied him with statements, reinforced by printed matter; he showered figures upon him, he read quotations from Congressional reports, he produced letters from individuals whom he declared to be men of note, and he opened gigantic scrap books filled with newspaper clippings that were impressive in number and alike in character in the matter of laudations of Western men, Western women, Western climate, Western products and Western interests. He saturated the Colonel with statistics. He crammed him so full of assertions, statements and suggestions regarding the fertility and advantages of the West that the Colonel's mind became incapable of even vaguely remembering that there was an Eastern section of the United States. He told stories, he related anecdotes and narrated personal experiences, all having to do with the glories, abundance and resources of the West.

But Mr. Clackett made no suggestion as to what the Colonel might or might not do. Indeed, when the latter hinted that Mr. Clackett might make some definite suggestions in regard to the Colonel's desires, the man from the West put the question by deftly, as was his wont.

"Plenty of time, Colonel; plenty of time," said he. "I wouldn't be doing justice to Tandell if I did anything in that way until you become more fully acquainted—perhaps through me or somebody else—with things and affairs in the region of the setting sun."

And so, promising to send a messenger with pamphlets and books to the Colonel's rooms, and adding that he would be glad if he would allow him (Clackett) to introduce some of his friends during the evening, he parted with the Englishman.

On his way up town the Colonel tried to realize that he was in America. But all in vain. By Clackett's advice he had taken a Broadway car. Nevertheless the crowds and the skyscrapers and all the rest of the Broadway scenes and sights and sounds passed before his vision in a haze. Clackett had done his work in a thorough and masterlike fashion. The Colonel could think nothing, see nothing, hear nothing but the West, the vast, magnificent, crowded-with-possibilities West. And by the time he reached his hotel he was in a mood that nothing short of physical detention could have prevented him from trying his luck in some of the localities so vividly described and skilfully recommended to the would be investor by Clackett.

One morning as the Colonel was having a late breakfast a waiter approached and said that a gentleman would like to speak with him over the telephone. It was Clackett, and he wanted to know if the Colonel could come to his office forthwith. The Colonel could, and did.

Clackett shut his sanctum door cautiously and slipped a little inside bolt. Then he seated himself oposite the Colonel and looked him squarely in the eyes.

"I have not said anything to you before about your taking a flyer in some Western enterprise," he began, slowly, "just because I didn't feel I had the right thing—that is, the thing that was as safe as it would be paying. But I have had something simmering for the last few months that has rather unexpectedly come to a head this morning. But," here he tapped his long, thick forefinger impressively on the table," "mind you, Colonel, there is a commercial risk in every business deal. The risk may be greater or the risk may be smaller, but it is always there. Are you prepared to take such a risk, provided that it be reduced to next to nothing? If you are I may be able to put you on."

The Colonel unconsciously stiffened himself a little. "I am not accustomed, Mr. Clackett," he said, "to abandon an intention because of a little danger, personal or financial."

"Why, of course not," replied Mr. Clackett, with a big, admiring laugh. "Of course not. That is just what I have said. And it is for this reason and for the added reason that you are Tandell's friend, that you're the first man I have spoken to about this matter—or, rather, the first to whom I have given an opportunity to get in on the ground floor—to become connected with it on the most favorable terms, you know."

The Colonel's face cleared of its rather puzzled expression, as he said, appreciatively, "Really?"

"The facts of the case are these," said Mr. Clackett, diving his hand into a pile of papers and extracting two or three documents therefrom. "We—that is, myself and some of my associates—had reason to believe that in a certain section of a county in the southern part of Kansas oil would be found. Our experts had been going over the ground for some time, outside opinions had been obtained, and even the geological sharps at Washington held the same view. We even managed to get our ideas confirmed by some oil experts. We began to dicker—to negotiate, you know—for the purchase of the land, which is in a rich farming district. The particular property we wanted belonged to a man named Stebbins, one of the most successful truck farmers of the region. He had made a modest fortune out of his land and we had a lot of trouble in persuading him to sell. Furthermore, he had a lot of fool sentimental ideas against giving it up because his grandfather and his father had been born and died there."

"I honor him for his scruples," said the Colonel.

"Well, to make a long story short, a provisional company was formed, my share of the work being its formation; the land was eventually purchased, but at a pretty steep figure, and we set our drills to work." Here Mr. Clackett threw back his head and laughed long and richly. The laugh was infectious, and the Colonel began smiling in sympathy. "We bored down," continued Mr. Clackett when he could "control" himself, "until I believe that the point of the drill came out somewhere in China, but nary a drop of oil. Yes, the joke was on us. We didn't get enough oil to grease a handkerchief.

"But," resumed Mr. Clackett, his voice changing while he tapped the Colonel impressively on the wrist, "But we tapped thirty feet down what unquestionably is a big lake of pure brine that yields a pound of the finest table salt to the gallon that was ever known. Probably you don't know, Colonel, that there are only two sources of table salt in the United States—one so far west as to be totally useless for purposes of Eastern consumption, and the other, in the lake region, that is under the control of a trust and whose product is none too good at that. There is also some salt imported, and in one or two of the Gulf States there are factories for extracting the mineral from sea water. But the Middle West, the South and the Southwest have, to all intents and purposes, to get their supply from the two sources that I have named, with the result that they pay heavily for it, owing to the cost of transportation. I won't insult your intelligence by doing more than barely outline the possibilities of this brine of ours. Around it for hundreds—no, thousands—of miles there is a market ready for the salt as fast as the brine can be evaporated. The plant for a salt factory is comparatively inexpensive. The Santa Fé line runs within ten miles of the land, and connection with it might be made either through a branch line or by cartage."

The Colonel, who had been listening attentively and with evident appreciation, was about to speak, but Clackett raised his hand admonishingly and resumed.

"This is not all. One of my associates has for years held the belief that certain species of pineapples could be raised in the United States with profit. The consumption of pineapples in this country is something enormous, amounting to several millions of dollars annually. As you know, we so far have to depend upon our supply of pineapples coming from some outlandish place, consequently the pineapple, as it is known in the United States, is a flavorless, wretched substitute for the real thing of the tropics.

"My friend has successfully raised some of the more hardy sort in the West, but only on a small scale. He has been in communication with the Department of Agriculture at Washington for a long time, and that department also has in a way worked with him in the matter, confirming his beliefs and initiating his experiments. So the matter stands. But he was one of the experts who was sent to examine our oil lands (here Mr. Clackett could not suppress another chuckle) and it immediately occurred to him that their location, richness of soil and geographical relation to the surrounding country would make it an admirable pineapple farm. So impressed, indeed, was he with this idea, that with the single eye of the enthusiast he suggested that we abandon the oil idea and go in for pineapples instead. Of course this was all right from his viewpoint, but not from the rest of those interested, and so, as I have already said, we began our fruitless boring. But it now would seem that his idea can be worked in conjunction with the salt plant, which will take up comparatively little room, leaving ample space for the raising of pineapples.

"Outside of the fresh fruit, which would obtain an immediate sale, canneries would be erected and pineapple products of an endless nature would be manufactured. The possibilities of the salt plant are almost illimitable, in view of the virgin market and the inexhaustible nature of the brine lake."

Mr. Clackett had been watching the Colonel's face closely and saw he was distinctly pleased with the description of the magnificent possibilities of the salt and the pineapples. Hence he was not surprised when he ceased speaking to have the Colonel say without hesitation:—

"My knowledge of affairs of the kind of which you have spoken is naturally limited, but I don't think really, you know, that you have in any way overestimated the profits that might be reasonably looked for from such an enterprise."

"Well," said Mr. Clackett, rising, "then think the matter over for some days, and"——

"Pardon me," interrupted the Colonel, "but why can't we talk now? What do you wish me to do or what do you offer? What would be the amount of money that would be required to procure an interest—a very definite interest—in the proposition?"

"Well," said Mr. Clackett, without resuming his seat, "that's a pretty hard matter to answer offhand. It depends largely on your own resources and the outcome of consultations that I will have to have with the others interested. I'll tell you what we'll do, Colonel. I will send you papers and other things for you to look over. Then think the matter over, try to get your ideas in good shape, and in a few days' time I'll acquaint you with the outcome of the conference that I have to have with my associates.

"Then, if there is a chance for you to come in and you think well of it, the next thing for you to do is to put yourself in the hands of a good lawyer. Then, before closing the deal, I think we would all better take a trip to see the property. Some details that still have to be arranged in connection with it necessitate a few of us going to Kansas, and if matters shape themselves, as I really expect them to, we shall not only be too glad to take you along, but shall feel that, in justice to yourself, you ought to see what you are putting your money into."

The Colonel nodded.

"One thing I must impress on you, and I am sure that I can put you on your honor in regard to it. In our business everybody is just naturally looking out for good things. If it is known that we propose developing the property in the way that I have told you, half a dozen syndicates would immediately jump in and buy up everything around us. So I must ask you to pledge your word, Colonel, that you will not say a word about what I have told you."

"I very gladly give you my word," said the Colonel.

Another three days passed, during which Mr. Skimms had, in response to a note written him by the Colonel, called at the Superb, had dined there, and had two or three hours' conversation with his host, during which the latter hinted to the lawyer that his professional services or advice might be required in short order.

"Well," said Mr. Skimms, "I am glad to earn a fee. But be careful in regard to matters which call for my services, Colonel."

On the fifth day Clackett when he left for business sent a message to the Colonel asking him to be at the office at eleven punctually. There the Colonel found three well dressed individuals, who were respectively introduced as Messrs. Clanford, Higgins and Buchanan. Mr. Clackett's introductory statement regarding them was brief but to the point.

"These gentlemen, Colonel," said he, "have interests in the West, some of which I have been the means of putting them in touch with. We own the property regarding which I have spoken to you. We, too, have paid all the expenses which resulted in our striking salt instead of oil. After consultation with them we have concluded, there was a minority report, but that don't count [here he looked at Buchanan and smiled, and Buchanan smiled back broadly] but the consensus of opinion was that we might let you enter under certain conditions, not so much for the sake of your money, perhaps, but because we believe that you have personal and perhaps business associates that might be of service to all of us. And, furthermore, Colonel, you have probably discovered that we don't chew words in this country. We know the commercial value of a name like yours, and we appreciate the privileges, the business privileges, that come from being identified with a gentleman of your reputation."

The Colonel bowed and flushed slightly.

"I thank you, gentlemen," he said stiffly, "for your very kind expressions regarding myself."

The proposition that Mr. Clackett made to the Colonel was, in brief, this:—That in return for $125,000 he, the Colonel, should be given a one-sixth interest in the company, provided that he pledged himself to interest some of his English friends in the corporation, and provided, too, that if at the end of six months he found the affairs of the company were in a satisfactory condition he would pay a further $50,000 for an added and additional one-twelfth interest. Also, he was to make payment as follows:—$25,000 in cash after an inspection of the property and notes of $25,000 each, at one, two, three and four months. After some discussion the Colonel accepted the conditions imposed, provided that they were passed upon and approved by Mr. Skimms.

Mr. Skimms and the Colonel met next day at the Clackett offices. The little lawyer exhibited an alert eagerness on behalf of his client that very much impressed the latter. He objected to several things; he insisted on changes in some clauses of the proposed deed of partnership; he fought vigorously but unsuccessfully for the extension of the time of the notes; he pored over a map of Kansas, and he scrutinized the documents relating to the property and the experts' report in a manner that betokened that he had little faith in human nature. Nevertheless, the original proposition remained, to all intents and purposes, the same as that proposed by Clackett and his associates, a fact which did not disturb the Colonel in the slightest, being assured as he was of the soundness of the project after it had been finally accepted by Skimms.

Mr. Clackett and his associates left nothing undone to make things pleasant for the Colonel during the trip to Kansas. There were stopovers at Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities, with much incidental junketing and an enlargement of the Colonel's admiration of American men, manners and methods. At Terre Haute Tandell joined the party in a most unexpected fashion, alighting a hundred miles further on.

The pineapple and brine ranch was about three hours' run from Topeka.

It was all that Mr. Clackett had declared it to be, being in the heart of one of the most fertile and picturesque farming districts in the State and within easy driving of the railroad station. About half of it was in truck, wheat and oats, a patch of woodland taking up the balance of the acreage. Its southern border was marked by a cottonwood lined little stream, which at one point widened into a miniature lake. The Colonel listened with eager satisfaction to the stories that Clackett told of how in the open season quail and cottontails abounded in the shrubbery and woods and how the lake in the fall was fairly alive with wild duck.

Clackett placed the Colonel in the care of Buchanan while he and the others walked over to a farmhouse at the further edge of the holding.

"After we discovered that there was no oil," said Mr. Buchanan, "and pending the carrying out of our plans as they have been told to you, we thought that we might just as well be receiving a rental from the land as let it lie idle. So we rented it to a man named Eichbert on a lease renewable annually, and, as you see, he hasn't been letting the weeds grow beneath his feet. Here he is, coming over to us with Clackett."

Eichbert, who was small but ponderous, with a face tanned to a brick red, was introduced and then abruptly led away by Clackett.

"He's got some pet theories about raising peas that you can eat, pods and all," explained Buchanan, "and if he once gets going on the subject in that lingo of his he'll talk your hind leg off, and, what's worse still, prevent you from talking yourself. That's why Clackett gave him the right turn so unceremoniously. And now let's go visit the brine pipe. We bored in six or eight places when trying for oil, but the holes have been filled in, with the exception of this one, that we keep open for the purpose of testing the brine from time to time."

He led the way to a small wooden hut hidden in a corner of the woodland, at the door of which stood a man in overalls, who touched his cap respectfully as Buchanan approached.

Inside was what appeared to be a hand pump and beneath its nozzle was a deep tub, filled with a liquid that gleamed blue and pellucid in the light that streamed in through the window.

"How is she to-day, Jim?" asked Buchanan.

"Pressure rather low; specific gravity about the same, sir."

"A curious fact about the brine lake below us is that it has its periods of high and low pressure, as the pump register shows—tides, I may call them. Also, the percentage of salt in the brine varies in accordance. High tide, high percentage of salt; low tide, low percentage. Remarkable, isn't it?" And Mr. Buchanan dipped his finger in the tub and applied its tip to his tongue, critically.

"Really, most remarkable," affirmed the Colonel.

"Have one with me," suggested Buchanan, affably. "Jim, a clean glass and a fresh pumping for the Colonel."

The pump came into action and a foaming, azure flood gushed therefrom and filled the tumbler.

"Hold it to the light, Colonel," commanded Buchanan.

The Colonel obeyed. It looked like a cylinder of cloudless summer empyrean.

"Pretty, isn't it? Taste!"

The Colonel obeyed, sipping cautiously. It was salt with the acrid bitterness of extreme saltiness. But though his mouth puckered at the touch of the fluid, he enjoyed the flavor nevertheless, for he thought of the vast multitudes in the West, the South and the Southwest who, according to Clackett and the experts, were saltless or nearly so, and whose thirst or rather appetite for the mineral would be shortly satisfied through the efforts of his colleagues and himself.

"'Ullo, Colonel," cried Clackett, entering suddenly. "Sampling the stuff?"

The soldier nodded. "I do not pretend to be a connoisseur of beverages of this kind, but I can vouch for the presence of a lot of salt in this particular tipple."

"Good!" cried Clackett. "Capital!" Here he turned to the others who were standing behind him in the doorway. "The Colonel likes his joke. Bully!" And everybody laughed heartily.

"Burford's waiting," said Clanford, after more talk about the salt lake, its product, eccentricities, and so forth.

"So he is. I'd forgotten all about him. Come, Colonel. Mr. Burford's our engineering expert, who wants to submit provisional plans for the evaporating plant and a new idea or two in connection with a method of keeping the interior of our well tubes free from salt incrustations. I think we'd better take him back to Topeka with us and talk things over after dinner."

"Good idea, really," said the Colonel, and that night he sat up late, listening to a whole lot of technicalities which he didn't understand in the least and in which he vainly tried to become interested.

The return to New York was made over a route which included some of the lake cities. The Colonel's mentors saw to it that no object lesson was lost whereby he might be further impressed with the boundless business promises of the United States in general and the western sections in particular. By the time the metropolis was reached he was saturated with a belief in all things Western, which largely included Kansas brine and pineapples.

The day following his return to the Superb he met Skimms and his future associates at Clackett's office, signed the necessary documents, gave a draft for $25,000 on the bank on which he had a letter of credit, gave notes for the balance under the terms of his agreement, shook hands all round and left for his hotel. He had been plumped into the American strenuous life and it had worn him out. Now he wanted a little rest—a chance to be alone.

This chance took him on a stroll up Broadway. Preoccupied as were his thoughts—pleasantly preoccupied at that—he was only mechanically conscious of a tall, soldierly man who, approaching, suddenly halted at the regulation "four paces' distance," clicked his heels and saluted. The Colonel's fingers automatically touched the edge of his hat in acknowledgment. He was about to pass on, but the fact that the other remained at "attention" interrupted the current of his thoughts and brought him back to a realization of his surroundings.

"Colonel," said the other.

"Yes?"

"Harvey, sir; Battery B."

"I remember you, Harvey—Sergeant Harvey," and such is the result of meeting one's own countrymen in a foreign land that the Colonel half extended his hand, but, remembering, withdrew it. Harvey came out of "attention," but made no attempt to pass on.

"Pardon me, but what are you doing in America, Harvey?" said the Colonel.

"I am a detective," said Harvey, with a serious look. "I want you to come to headquarters with me to identify two prisoners. I saw them with you yesterday. They are named Tandell and Skimms."

A great light dawned on the Colonel. "What do you call it in America?" he asked.

"Getting stung," replied Harvey, with a smile.

Sunday strong westerly winds with light snow falls or rain.

BLACKLIST MAN GETS ONE MONTH FOR DRUNKENESS

Cornelious Ryan was given one month in gaol for a breach of the Liquor License Act, having been found guilty of being drunk after having been placed on the black list. This is Ryan's second offence of the same nature. He was fined ten dollars by His Honor Judge Weller. The fine has not yet been paid.

In court to-day he was charged with being drunk on the 26th of November. He pleaded not guilty, but several witnesses testified to having seen him very drunk on that day, and His Worship sent him to gaol.

Ryan said that he found a flask of whiskey on Murray street.

CHRISTMAS DAY AT ALL SAINTS'

Church Was Beautifully Decorated—Large Number of Communicants

Christmas day this week lost none of its beauties to the worshippers of All Saints'. The number of communicants was 12 per cent larger than the previous largest number in the history of the parish, which was four years ago. The decorations were this year carried out more extensively than usual and made the church looked exceptionally beautiful. A lighted star of exquisite beauty hangs before the chancel window. Mottoes of green, white and gold adorn the walls, which are also festooned with liberal wreathes of Xmas greeting. The monograms of red in the chancel panels of former years have this year been replaced by symbols of the Christ and Eternity in green wreathing. The Holy Table bears its beautiful festive hangings of white, surmounted this year, not by the usual brass cross (which, by the way, is only an ornament and not a necessary part of the Holy Table, and not found at all in many leading Anglican churches), but by a cross of green, which shows to advantage with its white background.

The music was in keeping with the Christmas season. The early service was enriched by the introduction of a hymn "While Shepherds watched their Flocks." Two Christmas anthems were sung at the eleven o'clock service, at which the choir was strengthened by the introduction of a large number of boy choristers. The sermon by the rector was an expansion of Canon Cody's sentence in the Canadian Churchman. "Christmas is a day of varied beauties; it is a great home day, it is a great heart day, it is a great church day, and it is a great parish day."

The Christmas offering was a very generous one, and given to the rector, who here wishes to thank his parishioners for it.

The Xmas decorations will be left for a few Sundays and the Christmas anthems will be repeated tomorrow by the full choir. The rector will preach in the morning on "The Child Spirit—a plea to Keep Young," and in the evening, Henry Van Dyke's story "The First Christmas Tree."

SPECIAL MUSIC AT ST. PETER'S

Splendid Singing by the Cathedral Choir and Soloists

The special music by the choir at St. Peter's cathedral yesterday was of a high order. In the morning Pontifical High mass was celebrated at 10.30 at which the choir sang in a very brilliant manner Loesclis' mass in F. at offertory Adeste Fidelis. The solos were splendidly rendered in the morning and evening by Misses L. Hallihan, A. Simons, E. Primeau, and Messrs. G. Hill, E. Keon, H. Quinlan, J. King, A. Hains and J. Mercier.

At the musical vespers in the evening, "O Salutaris," was sung by the sopranos and altos, and "Tantum Ergo" with the solo by Mr. John King and chorus by the choir.

Special mention must be made of the beautiful Christmas hymn. "All Hail the Night." Miss L. Hallihan singing it in grand style with violin obligato played with much expression.

WEDDING BELLS

HUGGINS—LANG

The marriage of Miss Clara Maria Lang, eldest daughter of Mrs. E. Lang 255 George street, to Mr. John Huggins of South Monaghan, was solemnized at 6 o'clock on Wednesday evening, at the residence of the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Pogue of St. Paul's church, in the presence of twenty-five guests. The bride was assisted by Miss Pearl Mitchell, and the groom was ably supported by Mr John Blakely. The bride wore a pretty gown of Champagne silk, while the bridesmaid was attired in a dress of pink mulle over white. After hearty congratulations had been bestowed upon the bride and room, a sumptuous wedding repast was partaken of.

The groom's gift to the bride was a piano case organ, to the bridesmaid a crescent, and to the groomsman a diamond stick pin. The bride received a centre table and a rocker from the employees of the Colonial Weaving Company, where she had worked for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Huggins will reside at 255 George street.

ENTERTAINED TO A HIGH TEA

Heads and Staffs of Civic Departments Guests of Young Ladies on Thursday

A high tea was given on Thursday afternoon by the five young ladies employed in the office of the City Buildings to the heads and staffs of the different departments of the buildings and also his Worship, Mayor Bush, his Worship Police Magistrate Dumble, and Chief of Police Roszel. The tea was held in the large committee room and was a most enjoyable function. The table was beautifully decorated, the centre piece being a large yule log smothered in holly and surrounded by large flowers. The menu included turkey, goose, salads, jellies, cakes, fancy bread, Christmas cake, candies, ices and coffee.

A resolution of thanks to the young ladies was moved by Mr. Dumble and seconded by Chief Roszel. It was endorsed by his Worship the Mayor, in an appropriate address. The resolution was carried by a standing vote and musical honors.

The vote of thanks was acknowledged by Miss Edna Armstrong in a neat, prettily-worded speech that was received with applause.

The happy gathering broke up with an exchange of the season's greetings and the singing of "God Save the King."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

What are the Assets of the City?

To the Editor of the Review.

There are, I am satisfied, two kinds of assets. One that could be converted into money if placed in the market, and one that would not realize anything, or very little cash. For instance, city hall, fire hall, school buildings, etc., would sell for cash, but, of course, not for the amount of the first cost, from the fact they were built for a special purpose.

There are other assets such as water mains, sewers, sidewalks, bridges, etc., that would not bring much in the market, but that does not represent their value to the city.

The interest the city claims in the Administration of Justice buildings, of over $9,000, is an asset from the fact that in basing the award made between city and county every five years to strike the amount payable each year by the city to the county in lieu of the county meeting Ad Justice expenditures as they arise, the city is given credit for that amount invested, hence the amount is lessened to that extent.

Referring to school buildings they also must be considered an asset from the fact, if the city did not provide for buildings suitable for the purpose, it would be compelled to rent and the amount paid by the city for the old Menzie property, for a period of years is sufficient proof for that for in the paying of say, $600 a year, means a capitalized account of $12,000. The same applies to city hall, fire hall and other buildings used for city purposes, or for the benefit of the ratepayers.

Sidewalks and bridges are conveniences, and call them what you wish, they are assets that the city would be badly do without, both from a standpoint of necessity and reputation.

With regard to sewer system and water works system, they must go together, and are provided for alike, no direct revenue in either case coming into the city treasury. The cost of construction and maintenance is met in both alike by the way of a rate levied upon the ratepayers sufficient to meet the interest and set aside a sum by way of sinking fund to meet the principal when it falls due. I fail to see any revenue from the water works system; if more is realized than is necessary any year, it is either set aside for future power house or dam, or else applied to elssen the rates in succeeding years.

The taxes leived upon the ratepayer meet the cost and maintenance in both, consequently if one is an asset, so is the other.

They are both very valuable assets in as much, if properly built and controlled, they provide for the city by way of healthy surroundings and untainted water to drink, and both were instituted for that purpose.

Appearing in the financial report of the city must have under the existing circumstance a good effect both from the standpoint of advertising, and greater inducement to intending purchasers of debentures.

If with a million dollars of next existing debenture debt the city can show assets where those monies so borrowed in the past were spent and at the same time show that 20 mills on the dollar provides for the liquidation of those debentures as they fall due, together with other current expenditures then no better inducement could be offered the capitalist, and no place could such an advertisement have better effect.

Respectfully yours,
ED. M. ELLIOTT.

PE-RU-NA CHEERFULLY RECOMMENDED FOR COLDS AND CATARRH.

A Prominent Canadian Gives His Experience With the World-Famous Remedy For Catarrh.

Chronic Catarrh Always Begins With An Ordinary Cold.

So Says Dr. Hartman, the Greatest Living Authority On Catarrhal Diseases.

THE first effect of a cold is a thickening of the mucous membranes of the nose and throat.

This gives rise to a discharge, or at least a stuffiness of the nasal passages.

Sometimes fever accompanies the first attack, also a feeling of languor, dullness and aching of the bones.

If no attention is paid to it, the mucous congestion is liable to spread down into the larynx, producing hoarseness and into the bronchial tubes, producing a cough.

Even when this occurs, many people pay no attention to it.

Under such circumstances, the congestion is liable to become chronic, producing a condition of the mucous membranes known as catarrh. Catarrh lasts an indefinite time. Catarrh is essentially a chronic condition and does not leave except something is done to relieve it.

CURE COLDS—PREVENT CATARRH.

What should be done when a person catches cold is to take a few doses of Peruna.

Taken at the onset, Peruna would break up the cold and prevent all the train of symptoms which usually follow.

But, even in cases where the cold has been neglected and hoarseness or a cough has developed, Peruna can be relied upon to give prompt and permanent relief.

The frequency of coughs and colds in the winter makes Peruna a popular remedy for these ailments.

A number of the best people of various countries have given testimonials as to the value of Peruna in such cases.

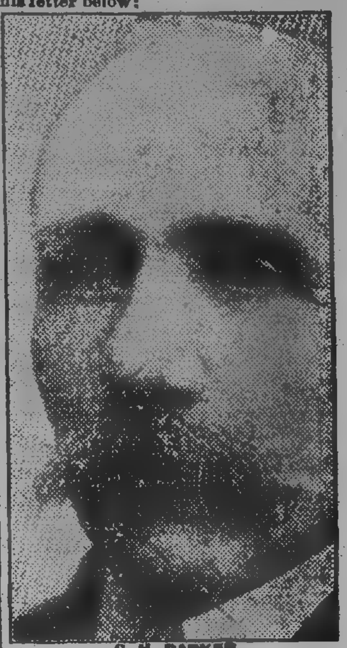
Followed Dr. Hartman's Advice—Restored to Health.

Mrs. Samuelle Vigneau, Avre au Berd, Isle de La Magdaline, Canada, writes:

"I write to tell you that I am perfectly well. I took only three bottles of your Peruna according to your advice and the directions in your book and it restored my health."

C. H. Parker, Ex-Warden of Compton Co., Quebec, has been mayor of Scotstown for a number of years. He is an influential resident in Scotstown and widely known.

He writes concerning Peruna. Read his letter below:



C. H. PARKER.

"I had several attacks of colds from time to time and finally a severe attack developed into catarrh.

"I was advised to use your celebrated catarrh remedy, and after taking three bottles I find myself completely cured, and I no longer suffer from catarrh or colds.

"I can cheerfully recommend Peruna for colds and catarrh."

If Peruna had no other medicinal value than the promptness with which it relieves common colds, it would be well worth while for any family to keep it in the house constantly.

CIRCUS IS BANKRUPT

Norris and Rowe's Show in Liquidation at San Francisco.

San Francisco, Dec. 28—Shoppers in this city next week will have the unique opportunity of buying real, live elephants, lions, and other animals of the jungle for holiday presents. This chance is afforded on account of the involuntary bankruptcy of the Norris & Rowe circus which failed last week. The liabilities of the firm are $57,874, and the entire circus is valued at $60,725.

For those who care to make expensive gifts it is announced that the four elephants of the concern can be bought for $1500 each while those of more modest means will have to be content with a laughing hyena at $100 or a trick mule at $50.

Norris and Rowe's circus showed in this district in the summer of 1907.

NARROW ESCAPE OF WHOLE FAMILY

Eight in Strathroy Have Close Call From Asphyxiation.

Strathroy, Dec. 28.—Mr. and Mrs. William Calcut and family of six children had a narrow escape from death early yesterday morning from asphyxiation.

The little daughter of nine years was awakened by fumes of escaping gas about three o'clock and began to cry, which awakened the rest of the children. Her little sister got up and attempted to quiet her, but fell to the floor overcome. A brother, who was in an adjoining room, came to the rescue, and he, too, fell unconscious to the floor; two more met the same fate.

By this time the father and mother were awakened and rushed to their rooms. Taking in the situation they threw open the doors and ran to the neighbors for help.

Dr. McDougall was on hand in a short time. All five children were unconscious, but were revived. They will recover.

Mr. and Mrs. Calcut slept in the front of the house, which accounts for them not being affected by the fumes, otherwise the situation would have been serious.

The time for filing cross petitions in Dominion election cases expired on Thursday.

POSTMASTER IS CREMATED

Terrible Death of J. H. Anderson of Tory Hill, Near Kinmount.

Kinmount, Ont., Dec. 28.—The home of John Henry Anderson at Tory Hill was destroyed by fire at five o'clock Saturday morning.

Mr. Anderson is missing and bones found in the ruins suggest that he lost his life in trying to get out of the house.

Mr. Anderson was Crown Lands agent and also postmaster and storekeeper for a number of years.

He owned the public hall there, and on Friday night John A. Kelly, ventriloquist, Toronto, was giving an entertainment. After the concert a dance was held. Mr. Anderson went home about four o'clock.

It is thought a lamp was overturned. Mr. Anderson, who was about 50 years of age, was alone in the house, Mrs. Anderson being in Toronto. He leaves six children, three boys and three girls. His mother, Mrs. Duncan Anderson, lives on Walmer road, Toronto two brothers also reside in Toronto, Dr. H. B. Anderson and Dr. Duncan Anderson.

Coroner Giles, Haliburton, was notified, but decided that an inquest was not necessary.

BAD FIRE AT THE SOO HUSSEY BLOCK DESTROYED

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 28.—Another disastrous fire visited the Canadian Soo at three o'clock yesterday morning, by which the handsome Hussey block was completely destroyed, and the Coronation block adjoining badly damaged.

One man, Alex. Kemp, aged 65, is believed to have perished in the flames. He conducted a carpenter shop in the basement, and has not been heard from since, although his coat and hat, which he wore one hour earlier, were found. He entered the building at two o'clock Sunday morning in an intoxicated condition.

The business places burned are: Careonen's large confectionary store, insurance $1,200; Partlow's second hand store; Kemp's carpenter shop; St. James' Hall, meeting place of all local Catholic societies. The following, who occupied rooms, were burned out: Mr. and Mrs. J. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Balder, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Lemon, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Martel.

On the lower floor of the Coronation block, Bemroses' large clothing stock is almost a complete loss, and on the floor above the lodge room of Bessemer Lodge, I.O.O.F., was badly damaged.

The cause of the fire, which started in the confectionery store, is unknown, but those nearby say it followed an explosion. Yesterday search has been kept up for the missing man, Kemp, but in vain, although the ruins have been partially searched.

WAS BEATEN INTO UNCONSCIOUSNESS

Burglar Entered House Near Tweed and Pounded Man Into Unconsciousness With a Club.

Tweed, Dec. 26—The house of A. Canniff, Stoco, was broken into on Tuesday night about 10.30 o'clock and Mr. Canniff beaten to unconsciousness after which the house was ransacked by the burglar. Two dollars was all the rascal received for his work.

It seems Mr. Canniff was stopping alone, his wife being in Tweed, and had retired to bed about ten o'clock. A knock came to the door and Mr. Canniff not responding the door was burst open and the burglar viciously attacked him in bed with a club or something of that nature. Mr. Canniff warded off the blows at first and kept his assailant at bay but after receiving a severe blow on the top of the head, he was rendered unconscious. While the burglar was doing his work, Mr. Canniff came to consciousness and jumped through the window, carrying both window sash and glass with him.

Mr. Canniff made his way to a neighboring house where his injuries were attended to, and today was here to his recently purchased new home. The doctor states that Mr. Canniff is badly bruised about the face and head, but the injuries are not serious and barring possible complications, there is every hope that Mr Canniff will recover. The burglar escaped and is still at large.

Mr. Canniff states that he knows the burglar well and will take steps to have him arrested.

CONTRACTOR IS ARRESTED

Montreal Stones Supply Man Charged With Forgery—Has Been Placed in Gaol.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—A big sensation was caused in the city on Saturday by the arrest of Mr. Isaac Kert, a prominent Montreal contractor, at the instance of the Harbor Commission, on a charge of forgery. Mr. Kert has for years past been supplying the Harbor Board with large quantities of stone, and of late it has been suspected that he was giving light weight. Detectives were put on the case, with the result that a warrant was sworn out charging that during the latter part of 1907 and the season of 1908 Mr. Kert forged and uttered about a hundred public weigh scale tickets. He was brought to court on Saturday, when he pleaded not guilty and was released on $4,000 bail.

The Thiel detective people allege that they have unearthed a complete system whereby the Harbor Board was constantly defrauded by the use of spurious weigh tickets, doubling up loads and the delivery of a poorer quality of stone than the contract called for. The commission is taking prompt action, and a thorough investigation will be made.

THREE NATION CONFERENCE TO DISCUSS THE RESOURCES

Roosevelt Invites Canada and Mexico—President Plans Confab of International Importance—Invitation to Earl Grey.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Announcement was made at the White House yesterday of a proposed conference looking toward the conservation of the natural resources of all North America, to be held at the White House Feb. 18 next.

Letters suggesting the plan have been addressed by President Roosevelt to the Governor-General and to the Premier of Canada, and to President Diaz of Mexico. They will be delivered to the officials in person by Gifford Pinchot, chairman of the National Conservation Commission and chief forester of the United States, whom President Roosevelt has chosen as his personal representative to convey the invitations and to confer with the authorities of the two Governments.

Mr. Pinchot will first visit Canada, leaving to-day. He will then carry the invitation to President Diaz at Mexico City. The President's letter to Lord Grey, is in part as follows:

"In May of the present year the governors of the several states and territories of this union met in the White House to confer with the President and with each other, concerning the amount and condition of the natural resources of this country, and to consider the most effective means for conserving them. The conference included also members of the Supreme Court, the Cabinet, and members of both Houses of Congress, together with representatives of the great associations of citizens concerned with natural resources. The conference was followed by the appointment of conservation commissions of the nations and a majority of the states.

"It is evident that natural resources are not limited by boundary lines which separate nations, and that the need for conservation of them upon this continent is as wide as the area upon which they exist. In view, therefore, of these considerations, and of the close bonds of friendship and mutual aims which exist between Canada and the United States. I take especial pleasure in inviting you to designate representatives of the Government of Canada to meet and consult with representatives of the states and other departments of this Government, and the National Conservation Commission, in the City of Washington, on Feb. 18, 1909. The purpose of the conference I have the honor to propose is to consider mutual interests involved in the conservation of natural resources, and in this great field to deliberate upon the practicability of preparing a general plan adapted to promote the welfare of the nations concerned.

"I have this day addressed a similar invitation to the Republic of Mexico, expressing my hope that representatives of that Government will also be present and participate in the proposed conference of the natural resources of North America.

"The conclusions of such a conference, while wholly advisory in character, could hardly fail to yield important beneficial results, both in a better knowledge of the natural resources of each nation on the part of the others, and in suggestions for concurrent action for the protection of mutual interests related to conservation."

BURNED A STORE

Fierce Feud Among Italians In North Bay Ends With a Fire.

North Bay, Dec. 28.—Early Sunday morning the store and dwelling of Carmen Sandrelli, Italian merchant, was burned to the ground, the occupants barely escaping with their lives. So quickly did the flames spread that nothing could be saved, and cash amounting to $350 was burned. The loss on the building is $5,000; contents $1,000; grocery stock $1,500; insurance $4,250.

The cause of the fire is attributed to incendiarism on account of the fierce feud existing between the Italian factions here which was intensified recently by the murderous stabbing affray in which an Italian named Amanda escaped death by a narrow margin. Amanda's deposition accused Sandrelli of the stabbing, but evidence was given throwing the blame on another Italian who left town the night of the affray, and Sandrelli was acquitted. Amanda is recovering and still accuses Sandrelli.

OLIVE BRANCH TO BOURASSA

He Declares That Laurier Wants Him Back in the Fold.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—Henri Bourassa, M.P.P., made an extraordinary statement at Ormstown Saturday evening to a joint meeting of 500 electors of Chateauguay for Ald. Mercier and H. Desrosiers, Liberal and Conservative candidates respectively.

Replying to the charge that he was a renegade from the Liberal party, Mr. Bourassa declared that so great was Sir Wilfrid Laurier's desire to get him back to the Liberal party that the Premier had offered to allow Bourassa, Lavergne and Laflamme to be returned by acclamation in the Province of Quebec.

Coming from Mr. Bourassa the statement in the face of the fact that he had defeated Sir Lomer Gouin and had denounced his Ministry on twenty platforms, is scarcely believed by the friends of the Quebec Premier, so it will be very interesting to hear from the federal leader on the question.

Mr. Bourassa also announced both at his Ste. Martine and the Ormstown meetings Saturday that he would make charges at the opening of the Quebec Legislature and with convincing documents in his hand would prove that the Ministers at Quebec were quite cognizant of the amount of $70,000 which were intended for an election fund for the provincial Liberals at the June election. This was connected with a rake-off in L'Abitibee deal.

TORONTO SHOOTING

Colored Man Shot His Wife Then Jumped Into the Bay—Was Rescued

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 28.—Wm. Seay, a colored man living at 125 Morse street shot his wife this afternoon shortly after one o'clock. The woman is not expected to live. Seay afterwards jumped into Ashbridge Bay, but was rescued. The shooting was done with a revolver. Jealous is the cause.

ST. JOHN'S DAY

Yesterday was St. John's Day, and appropriate references to the life and work of the evangelist were made in the Anglican churches of the city and at St. Peter's Cathedral.

St. John, the Evangelist, is one of the patron saints of Masonry, and on account of the day coming on Sunday the Masonic fraternity of Peterborough are observing it to-day. The officers of Peterborough and Corinthian lodges will be installed to-night, and a banquet under the joint auspices of the lodges will be held.

BULLETINS OF THE CUP GAME

Returns of Each Goal of Wanderer-Edmonton Game Will be at Oriental.

Bulletins will be received at the Oriental to-night of the Wanderer-Edmonton game in Montreal. The returns of each goal will be to hand and more than ordinary local interest is being taken in it on account of the prominent part that "Whitty" is the big chief of the Edmonton seven.

Edmonton can be looked upon to give the Montrealers a royal battle in all the games for the trophy and a large number of followers are of the opinion that the cup will go west.

All Saints' Choir.

The members of All Saints choir have received invitations to spend an evening at the home of Mrs. Dawson, 630 Bonaccord street, on Thursday evening next. The choir will make the evening a profitable as well as a pleasant one, as a full practise will be held at the time and place aforementioned.

Wants $50,000 For False Arrest.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—George W. Fitzgerald, former assorting teller of the United States sub-treasury at Chicago, has filed suit for $50,000 damages against Wm. Boldenweck in charge of the Sub-treasury and Herbert F. Young, a private detective. The suit is an outgrowth of the sensational arrest of Fitzgerald last spring charged with stealing $173,000 from the sub-treasury vaults. Fitzgerald's acquittal promptly followed Boldenweck's refusal, under orders from Washington, to testify in the case.

Robbers Torture Farmer.

Toledo, O., Dec. 28.—By burning his feet with lighted matches, two masked robbers on Friday compelled H. A. Schabew of Curtice, O., to open a safe in his farmhouse and turn over $180.

After tieing their victim to his bed and placing a gag in his mouth, the bandits went to the barn, stealing a horse and buggy and escaped. A posse is in pursuit.

King Recovered.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Dec. 28.—In a coasting accident on a steep hill in this city Saturday night, William Klein, aged 12 years, was instantly killed, his neck being broken. Thos. Reilly, aged 22 years, was fatally injured. The sleds steered by Reilly and Klein collided.

Carsley on Board.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—It is understood that William Carsley, son of the late Samuel Carsley, and the present head of the Carsleys, Ltd., will soon take his seat as director and vice-president of the Provincial Bank. It is known that the late S. Carsley went to London a year ago and paved the way for the very successful financial deal completed a few weeks ago by General Manager Tancred Bienvenue and Mr. Bosworth of the C.P.R., and also director of the Provincial Bank.

Cut Cable Rates.

London, Dec. 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Henniker Heaton, writing to the president of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, says there should not be the least difficulty in reducing cable rates by 50 to 75 per cent. as the result of the powerful pressure being brought to bear on cable companies and on foreign Governments and additional to the steps now being taken by the Imperial Government for the construction and laying of a few state-owned cables.

Rescue Station in Coal Fields.

Washington, Dec. 28.—In an effort to reduce fatalities in coal mines the United States geological survey is about to establish rescue stations in the principal coal fields.

Dr. McGuigan Dead.

Vancouver, Dec. 28.—Dr. W. J. McGuigan, pioneer physician and former mayor of Vancouver, is dead of Bright's disease. He was coroner and alderman many years.

Allan's Manager Dead.

London, Dec. 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—W. Brackett Hill, manager of the Allan line of steamers, died on Saturday at Liverpool.

Revolutionists Fight Troops.

Moscow, Dec. 28.—Baron Cotte, chief of the secret political police, was killed and Col. Muraki was wounded in a fierce encounter on Saturday with revolutionists who were entrenched in a suburban villa.

Artillery was finally brought to bombard the place, which was taken at four o'clock in the afternoon, after holding out for 24 hours.

The attacking party were astounded to find only a single body inside the building, which was identified as that of the well-known revolutionist, Tehernoff, head of the central committee of social revolutionists, who, with a comrade named Siderkin, fired 80 rounds of ammunition from Mauser rifles.

Tehernoff killed himself with the last round. Siderkin was captured, having been seriously wounded.

The Government casualties were two killed and five wounded.

Four Million Trees Cut.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 28.—The United States forest this year supplied four million Christmas trees, the forestry service estimating that one out of every four families observed the tree custom at yuletide. Gifford Pinchot, United States forester, upholds the Christmas tree custom and believes it should be maintained.

"The number of trees cut this year," he said, "is insignificant when compared to the consumption for other purposes, for which timber is demanded.

"This clearing of an area is equal to a good-sized farm should not be the subject of much worry when it is remembered that for lumber alone it is necessary to take timber from an area of more than 100,000 acres every day of the year."

Great Loss of Live Stock.

St. Catharines, Dec. 28.—The large barns of Isaac B. Culp, about a mile east of Beamsville, were completely destroyed by fire Christmas night. While no cause of the fire is evident, the origin is attributed to tramps. The whole contents of the barn, except a couple of carriages, were burned. This includes sixteen head of cattle, five horses and a large quantity of chickens and other poultry.

When the flames were first noticed Mr. Culp ran into the barn to save the stock, but was kicked in the breast by one of the horses, and with difficulty found his way from the burning building.

Bloodshed at Church Festival.

Gallipolis, Ohio, Dec. 28.—A bloody fight took place in the Baptist church at Bidwell at a Christmas entertainment. Panic-stricken men, women and children jumped from the windows and many narrowly escaped serious injury. The trouble started when Harrison Pounds, colored, of Vinton, pulled a pistol and shot Alfred E. McDaniel of Nelsonville, Ohio, three times. McDaniel stabbed Pounds several times with a knife. Both men are in a critical condition.

Hat Saves Her Life.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 28.—A Merry Widow hat with a flaring brim probably saved the life of Catherine Sheffield, a maid at the Belvidere Hotel, on Christmas morning. A milk bottle falling from the eighth floor of the hotel struck the hat just as the maid passed below and carromed off the wide brim, causing a slight wound on the top of the girl's head.

The hotel physician says the big hat alone saved the girl from a broken skull.

A MINIATURE MODEL TENT

Messrs. Turner and Sons Have Made One for the Ontario Government.

Acting on instructions from the Ontario Government, Messrs. J. J. Turner & Son's have made a miniature model of the celebrated hospital tent manufactured by them and the health department of the Government will use it for purposes of demonstration. The tent is of white silk, and a perfect reproduction in every detail.

It is very light and portable and fits into a neat oak case.

SUIT CASE FOR CHOIR LEADER

Mr. John Crane was presented with a handsome suit case by the choir of St. Paul's church of which he is leader. The suit case was sent to the house as a Christmas box.

Immigration to Canada in the last eleven months decreased 46 per cent.

James O'Brien, a veteran of the Zulu war, is dead at Cache Bay, aged 85 years.

Prof. Reginald W. Brock has been appointed head of the Geographical Survey.

COMMERCIAL ROTTENNESS

Pittsburg has furnished to the world the latest and most sensational outbreak of the graft pest. The San Francisco affair was thought to be bad enough ending with the attempted murder of Heney, the prosecuting attorney, in the court room. But Pittsburg beats them all. It is a question, however, in many quarters, if Canada cannot beat Pittsburg in rascality if given a fair chance the competition. Business men of some prominence are inclined to band themselves together on the ground that the accumulation of money is good business and that it excuses what the mere mortals objects to in the way of devious and doubtful methods. It is plain that materialism is instituting a theory of morality of its own. This theory consists simply in making the claim that it is not dishonest, that its practisers are men of good standing. In fact it consists in what may be called bluffing the moralist out of his boots. Morality is being borne down and out by sheer force of brute force, numbers and commercial weight. Money has so great a power that it is not only outflanking morality, but it seems to be pretty sure of a victory. The spirit of compromise which affects the honorable class is the real cause and origin of the terrible exposures now going on. It will not be long until the judges who alone stand out as the remaining bulwark of the nation and the world in its fight against graft, will find it useless and out of keeping with "what the people want." When this time comes history will repeat itself and a general smash-up will ensue. It is the compromisers, the jolliers, the cabinets, who are to blame and it is doubtful if after all they are not worse than the grafters. Some people seem to think that honor amongst thieves is as good as any other brand of it, and they point to a man keeping his appointment to burglarize as a triumph of the practical man over the mere theorist.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Roosevelt has scored" first blood" in the Panama canal affair. The French receiver brands the Pulitzer yarn as a foundationless falsehood.

The judge who gave out his now famous judgment to the effect that Gompers would go to gaol and his compagnion Roosevelt to Africa bears every evidence of being in the pay of Standard Oil.

The North Bay incident which involved a desire on the part of French Canadian parishioners to have a French church and a French service is closed. The parishioners went to Bishop Scollard who gave them some episcopal advice upon their improper course of procedure whereupon they begged his lordship's pardon and renewed their adherence to the parish church and received his especial blessing.

Senator W C Edwards, of Russell, Ont. startled the delegates to the conference on the Preservation of Nations. Resources at Washington when he made the statement that there were in Ottawa yards two hundred million feet of Canadian lumber not sold owing to the enormous amount which the country imported from the States at a cheaper price than could be accepted. It had been the general opinion that the Americans always thought that it was the Canadian lumber that was discounting theirs, and that a good deal more Canadian wood found its way to the States than vice versa.

THE HOOK

1908 is on the home stretch.

How about New Year resolutions.

Might as well start practicing writing 1909.

A balloonist at Los Angeles has been demonstrating the horrors of aerial warfare by dropping make-believe bombs upon the city from a dirigible balloon. And now tourists will have to dodge make-believe bombs as well as fleas and land sharks.

Despite all the sentimental songs about "Old Kaintuck" what with its feuds and night-riders it does seem as though there are more pleasant spots in which to live on this planet. Kentucky has been regarded in song and fiction as the home of chivalry but when we read of mobs of armed men dragging women from their beds at midnight and brutally whipping them one is apt to conclude that the boasted chivalry of Kentucky exists only in fiction.

THE PIGEONS WON.

In Spite of Clipped Wings They Get Back on Time.

The colonel was something of a pigeon fancier and had so much confidence in a certain strain of homers he was making a hobby of that when his friend the major proposed a wager the colonel removed the limit.

"We'll make it a suppuh," said the major. "Yo' black boy will tote a paiah ovah to the cyahs an' ship them to St. Louay, whaah they ah to be libahrated on ahrival. I wagah they ah not back in two days, sah."

The colonel accepted, crated his finest pair and included a note to the express agent with the charges. Meanwhile the major communed with Joe, the colored boy, and after the tendering of a certain half dollar and promises of immunity from the consequences of the colonel's wrath later Joe agreed to clip the pigeons' wings sub rosa.

Two days passed, and the major presented himself duly at the colonel's. The colonel eyed him with suspicious narrowness.

"Have they ahrived?" asked the major gayly.

"They hev, sah," said the colonel, with dignity; "they hev, but those two pidgins, sah, hev the so'est feet I evah saw on a bird, sah."—Browning's Magazine.

BE SURE YOU'RE RIGHT.

Then Take a Long Think and Mind Your Own Business.

The other day a man traveling on a shore line train noticed, protruding from an overhead rack, a dress suit case which he recognized as belonging to a friend. He knew that his friend always got off at the station which they had just passed, and as he was not in the seat the conclusion was inevitable that he had jumped off the train and forgotten it.

The man called the conductor and explained the case to him. After some discussion and a mild protest on the part of the conductor that it wasn't a part of his duty, the suit case was put off at the next station, with instructions to send it back on the first train the other way.

The man, feeling that he had done an able and friendly act, settled down for the rest of his journey.

But not for long. The face of his friend, who had been in the smoker and who happened on that particular afternoon to be going on to New London to attend a dinner party—loomed before him.

The moral of this is, of course, quite evident.

Be sure you're right and then mind your own business.—Life.

Overboard.

"Overboard" is engraved on a metal label fastened to many articles of paraphernalia seen about the decks of a modern war vessel. It means that the article so marked should be thrown overboard whenever action with an enemy's ship becomes imminent. Alcohol chests, turpentine tanks, paints, spare spars, unnecessary hatches and other articles easily destroyed or splintered by shell fire are thus labeled. The president of Occident college, California, is said to have given the word a new meaning in civil life when he used it to indicate those who are unfit, useless or inapt in the struggle of life. It is a strong word and as such can be appropriately applied to men and things which when a ship must go to battle are not necessary or material to the end desired.—Army and Navy Life.

Her Own Doctor.

A Washington woman recently hired a negress. Going to the kitchen one day, she was amazed to find the negress sitting on the floor, with her hair standing out from her head like a black nimbus. The girl was pulling one curly lock and then another in such a way as to suggest that she had suddenly lost her reason.

"What on earth are you doing, Mary?" gasped the lady of the house.

"Nawthin', ma'am; only I has got a sore throat an' was jest tryin' to find de lock dat would pull mah palate up an' relieve de tickle."

The Fickle Shopper.

"That woman always keeps me guessing," said the grocery clerk as she went out. "I never can tell till the last minute what she is going to buy. Just now she priced the coffee. I gave her the prices—25 cents, 28, 30, 35, 40.

"'Is your twenty-five cent coffee any good?' she asked me.

"'Yes,' said I; 'bang up.'

"'Then,' said she, 'give me a pound of your forty cent, ground fine.'"

Ample Cause.

"What on earth possessed you to become engaged to Herbert?" a young lady asked her friend. "You don't love him an atom!"

"I know," was the candid reply, "but that horrid Jones girl does!"

Mistaken For Bear.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 28.—Mistaking an intoxicated man clad in a long buffalo overcoat, for a bear, Thomas Deckman, a well-known farmer, shot and instantly killed Thomas Andrews.

Andrews had been in jail but was paroled that he might go home for Christmas. He visited several saloons and later sat down in the doorway of a residence, where he fell asleep. The family thinking Andrews was a bear, called Deckman, who prodded the form with his gun, and getting no response, fired.

A coroner's jury rendered a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Carnegie to Clean Up Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 28.—It is said that Andrew Carnegie has put up about $150,000 in order to clean Pittsburg up morally, following the municipal bribery scandal in which it is alleged 88 councilmen, all but six have been found to be venal.

The story told in the fashionable Duquesne Club and the Pittsburg is that the same men who told Pittsburg conditions to President Roosevelt also went to Andrew Carnegie and laid an array of facts before him.

The result, according to rumor, was that he authorized expenditure of $150,000 in detective work, etc.

French Ships to Call.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—The Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, the French shipping company, will extend its operations to Canada.

Excited Individual—See here, Mr. Bangs, you're a scoundrel of the first water! When I bought that horse I thought I was getting a good sound animal, but he's spavined and blind and got the staggers. Now I want to know what you're going to do about it?

Bangs—Something ought to be done, that's a fact.

Excited Individual—Well, I should say there ought!

Bangs—Well, I'll give you the name of a good veterinary surgeon. It's a shame to allow the horse to suffer in that way.

Aesop In "Little Italy."

A schoolteacher in the Italian quarter of an American city told her children the story of the fox and the grapes. Tony was especially delighted with the story and eagerly sought his chum, Joe, who was in another class. By good luck the teacher overheard Tony's version.

In his excited, broken English he told the fable much as it is written until he came to the end. This was his rendering of the climax:

"De olda fox he say: 'Da grape no good anyhow; alla sour! I guess I go geta de banan'!'"

Deadly Vipers.

Besides the lance head viper, "the most deadly of all known reptiles," there are several singularly interesting snakes in Brazil. The suru-cucu is supposed to cause death in six hours. It is sometimes found nine feet long. Its skin is a dirty, tawny yellow, with dark brown lozenges on the back. It is said to be attracted by fire, but seldom to injure travelers. The fiercest of the lance headed vipers is the jararoca, and it also is a dirty yellow, but it is brown-black about the tail.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Found Dead In Bed.

Chatham, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Files of Dover, aged 27, was found dead in bed on Saturday morning. Deceased had not been ill, and when she retired at night she was in the best of health. At three o'clock in the morning the baby, which slept in the room, awakened Mr. Files, who tried to arouse his wife. It was then found that she was dead. Heart failure is supposed to be the cause of death.

Auto Ambulance Struck by Train.

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 28.—In a collision between an automobile and a train, Samuel Knela was perhaps fatally injured. John Petty of Oakland and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Riley of Berkeley were badly hurt. The machine was dashing along at a furious pace, carrying to the hospital a man who had been injured by a trolley car.

Tug Sinks; Four Drown.

Frankfort, Mich., Dec. 28.—The 15-ton fish tug Rhine of Frankfort, Mich., was wrecked against one of the harbor piers here Saturday night, trying to make the harbor in a strong southwest gale. The little vessel was broken in two and the four men comprising her crew were drowned.

Plot Against Wilbur Wright.

Demane, France, Dec. 28.—Just before making a flight on Saturday Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplanist, discovered that some one had filled the oil box of his aeroplane with gasoline. The discovery probably prevented a serious accident.

Fatally Hurt at Coffin Fire.

Providence, R.I., Dec. 28.—The plant of the Clarke Manufacturing Co., coffin manufacturers, was burned, with a loss of $40,000. Ben Brown, a fireman, fell from a ladder and was fatally injured.

Burglars at Ridgeway.

Ridgeway, Dec. 28.—Saturday night burglars entered the general store of H. Box and stole about $200 worth of goods.

Body Thrown on Track.

Vancouver, Dec. 28.—During a row with drunken companions, Odlin Lee of Wharnock, was murdered. Standing by the track side he was hit over the head with a bottle. His companions are believed to have thrown him across the track, and the incoming train from Seattle ran over him.

Germany Willing.

London, Dec. 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Le Liberte, referring to Hon. Mr. Fielding's visit to Paris, says that Germany is watching the outcome of the hitch and will be only too glad to take the place of France with a German-Canadian commercial treaty.

Hold-Up at Woodstock.

Woodstock, Dec. 28.—The police are working on a sensational case. Roy Ingles, a young man employed in the Thomas Organ Factory, was held up on Queen street Friday night by five men and robbed of $50.

They bound him and under threat sent him to Henry Craig, cooper, with a note which demanded $1,000 to be sent by the bearer under pain of having himself and his property burnt up.

So far the police have made no arrests, but developments are looked for. This is the second note of the kind that Mr. Craig has got.

Shoots Sister and Self.

Cincinnati, Dec. 28.—James Leary, a brakeman on the Cincinnati Southern Railroad, shot and killed his sister, Mrs. Lydia Dillon, at a family reunion at his father's home in Mount Zion Village, Kentucky.

After firing all the bullets in his pistol into the body of the woman, Leary walked into a store several blocks away, bought additional cartridges and returned. He went into the parlor where lay the body of his dead sister and killed himself. She had reproved him for drinking.

Juvenile Shoplifters.

New York, Dec. 28.—An unusual case of shoplifting developed in one of the big departmental stores on Saturday, when three little girls, the oldest 13 and the youngest eight years of age, were arrested by the store detective, charged with stealing goods valued at about $40.

The list of stuff included three teddy bears, seven dolls, a doll's dress, two veils, a set of dishes, rings, child's boots, a pistol and a sewing-box.

Shooting Was Fatal.

Cuthbert, Ga., Dec. 28.—Chas. Worrell, a member of Mercer law class, and son of Judge Worrell, Saturday afternoon killed Will Lewis, a negro, in a shooting affray here, in which Alex. Glenn, another negro, was killed, the latter by Alex. Bridges, white.

The double shooting threw the negroes into a state of excitement and a general outbreak between the races is feared by some as a result of the trouble.

A Mountain Tragedy.

Chillicoate, W. Va., Dec. 28.—Edmund A. Williams, 41 years old, a typical mountaineer, was found guilty of murder in the first degree for shooting Beno Swiger, 74 years old, who was a guest in the Williams' home.

The defence was that Swiger had given one of the Williams' children so much whisky that the little girl became intoxicated.

Crazy Man's Crime.

Nicholasville, Ky., Dec. 28.—Becoming suddenly insane, Mat Young shot and killed his uncle, Deputy Jailer Logan Young, and seriously wounded Deputy Sheriff George C. Holloway. Young and Holloway had been sent to take Young into court for a lunacy hearing. The crazed man then escaped on horseback, heavily armed.

MISGUIDED GENIUS.

A Sculptor Who Devoted Himself to Producing Fake Antiques.

One of the most astonishing examples of genius devoting itself to forgery was that of the Italian Bastianini. Born in 1830 in the midst of abject poverty, he had, properly speaking, no systematic education, either literary or artistic. But he had real genius.

An antiquarian of the name of Freppa employed him for 40 cents per day to produce "antiques" which might be sold at a good profit. So this became Bastianini's life work—the production of forgeries.

One of his most celebrated works is the bust of Savonarola. Persuaded that here was a real fifteenth century bust, two public spirited gentlemen collected $2,000 and purchased it from Freppa to prevent its sale and exportation.

One critic, Dupre, declared that he must assign it to Michelangelo for its force and to Robbia for the exquisiteness of its treatment, regarding it as a wonderfully beautiful work of art.

Sir Frederick Leighton, the noted English painter, having received a photograph, placed it, "like a sacred image, at the head of his bed." It is said that the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia and Lippart seriously thought of building a temple to house this wonderful bit of art.

But, notwithstanding the plaudits of those who "knew," the bust was a fake. Rumors having become current that the piece of terra cotta was not what it purported to be, one of the purchasers abruptly demanded of Bastianini one day at his workshop whether he was the creator of the bust. And he admitted that he was.

But this was not the only great "success" of Bastianini. A terra cotta bust of Benevieni, a sixteenth century poet of Florence, was regarded as a contemporary work of art and purchased by the Louvre for $2,600 and installed in a room containing work of Michelangelo himself.

Remarkable Railway Garden.

Between Bedford and Luton, on the embankments of the Midland Railway, in England, a piece of effective landscape gardening without parallel may be seen. On each side of the railway line at short intervals hawthorn bushes have been planted, and skillful hands have pruned these bushes into a variety of shapes, grotesque and symmetrical; peacocks, roosters, tables, chairs, bowers, plumes, and other striking models are clearly depicted. The effect is quite remarkable. In the season the tail of a rooster was a mass of white bloom, and in another the nodding plumes in a lady's hat were in full flower. As these ornamental trees occur at every few yards' distance for about twenty miles, some idea of their number may be estimated. It seems remarkable that, although thousands of passengers pass through this unique panorama daily, public attention has seldom been directed to it.

Only a Secondary Matter.

"Yes," said the affable theatrical manager, "our next production is to be something really wonderful in the way of comic opera."

"Got something new?" asked the interviewer.

"Yes, indeed. I have engaged Drillem Daily, the famous stage manager, to devise the evolutions and groupings of the chorus. I have retained Cuttan Fittem, the celebrated costumer, to plan and prepare the garments worn by the principals and the chorus, and I have engaged Redden Yaller, the renowned scenic artist, to execute the stage settings. Can you beat that?"

"But who are to write the music and the libretto?"

"Pooh! Haven't had time to think about that yet."

An Apt Comparison.

His Majesty's inspector was testing the class in general knowledge.

"Now, lads," he said gravely, "your teacher, I expect, has explained to you the meanings of most of the mottoes which apply to the months of the year. Thus, 'If February gives much snow, a fine summer it doth foreshow,' and 'In January if sun appear, March and April pay full dear.' But I wonder which of you can remember what comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb?"

There was an awestruck silence for a few moments, and then a pale looking boy said:

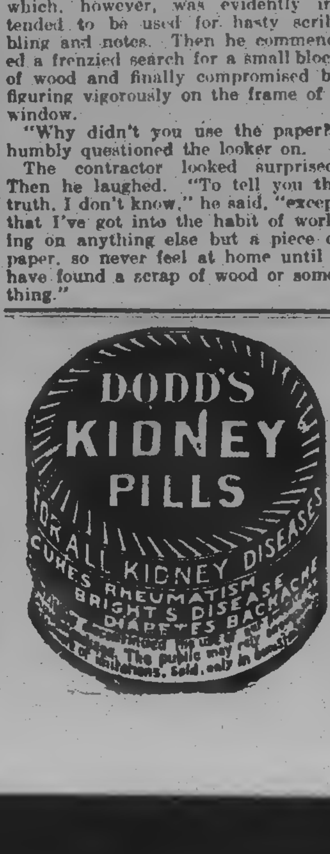
"Please, sir, it's our landlord when he gets his arrears paid up!"

Prefers Wood to Paper.

The looker on was watching a contractor doing some figuring where his men were building a house. He took out his pencil and carefully put away in his pocket a small block of paper, which, however, was evidently intended to be used for hasty scribbling and notes. Then he commenced a frenzied search for a small block of wood and finally compromised by figuring vigorously on the frame of a window.

"Why didn't you use the paper?" humbly questioned the looker on.

The contractor looked surprised. Then he laughed. "To tell you the truth, I don't know," he said, "except that I've got into the habit of working on anything else but a piece of paper, so never feel at home until I have found a scrap of wood or something."



THE SANCY DIAMOND

Legend of Louis de Berquem and the Celebrated Gem.

A NIGHT LAMP FOR A KING.

Checkered Career of the Brilliant Stone After the Death of Charles the Timid. Some Facts About the Invention of Diamond Cutting.

Louis de Berquem, says tradition, was a poor jeweler's workman, but he fell in love with the daughter of a wealthy jeweler. This avaricious father would not give his daughter in marriage to any man not possessed of gold. Louis, having neither "expectations" from relatives nor favor at court, sought to make his fortune. He had often heard the father of his beloved remark that the man who discovered a method of cutting diamonds would become very wealthy, for up to that time they knew nothing more than to scrape off the gravel, and the diamond was left in its native state. Neither lime, fire nor the mill could affect the diamond.

After many investigations and deep thought Louis bethought himself that iron is fashioned with steel, which is only hardened iron, and it occurred to him that perhaps the diamond would yield to the diamond. He made an experiment, which was at once crowned with success.

A few days later he presented himself before the rich jeweler with two diamonds cut into facets. He obtained the hand he sought and amassed a great fortune by his secret, which he divulged only after he had become wealthy.

King Charles the Timid was the principal customer of Louis de Berquem. The fastidious enemy of Louis XI. then possessed a large diamond, since become celebrated, accounted among the finest of precious stones. But this diamond was ill shapen, and the fires which it held burned in vain.

Louis de Berquem cut and polished this stone, and nothing could equal the joy of Charles the Timid when the jeweler brought him the great diamond, so glittering with light that it lit up the darkness, and this to such an extent that the prince said, "It will serve me as a night lamp." Berquem received 3,000 ducats for his work.

As for the diamond, this is the one which was found in January, 1477, on the body of Charles the Timid after the battle of Nancy. A soldier picked it up, sold it for one gold piece to a priest, who in turn sold it for three pieces of gold to a merchant, who took it to the Duke of Florence.

From the hands of this prince it passed into the possession of the king of Portugal. He sold it for 70,000 francs to one of the companions of Henri III., Nicholas de Harlay, baron of Sancy. Since this time the first large diamond to be cut is known as "the Sancy."

This legend leads to other considerations of the cutting of diamonds ascribed to Louis de Berquem at Brussels in 1465.

Hardly any one will assert boldly that no diamonds were cut before that date, but it is reasonable to suppose that Louis de Berquem regulated cutting by arranging the facets.

Long before the birth of Louis de Berquem cutting was known in India. Even in Europe we find among the treasures of the churches thick diamonds cut into table and culet, the upper sides beaten into sections. In 1360, according to the inventory of the jewels of Louis, duke of Anjou, is found an entire series of cut diamonds. There is mention of a flat diamond with six sides, of a heart shaped diamond, of a diamond with eight sides, of a lozenge shaped diamond, of a diamond pointed on four sides and of a reliquary in which was set a diamond cut in the shape of a shield.

History informs us that 150 years before the first work of Louis de Berquem there were at Paris, at the corner of the Corroyerie, several diamond cutters.

The Duke of Burgundy, after a fastidious repast given at the Louvre to the king and the French court in 1403, offered to his noble guests eleven diamonds estimated to be worth 786 pieces of gold, the money of the period.

It is hardly possible to suppose that these were uncut diamonds; all of which goes to prove, notwithstanding some opinions, that Louis de Berquem did not invent the process of diamond cutting.

It is no less interesting to follow the fortunes of the Sancy a little further. It remained in the Sancy family some time, and Henri III. took it from them. It was destined to serve as a pledge for the raising of a body of Swiss soldiers, but the servant intrusted with bringing this diamond to the king was attacked, put to death, and the diamond was thought to be lost. Finally it was discovered that the servant had been assassinated in the forest of Dole and through the care of the priest had been buried in the village cemetery. Then the Baron de Sancy resolved that the diamond must not be lost. In fact, they found it in the stomach of the hapless, faithful servant, who swallowed it at the moment that he fell. According to the inventory of 1791 the Sancy weighed 33¾ carats.

It disappeared in 1792 to reappear in Russia. Its value is estimated at a million francs. Before the revolution it was among the French crown jewels.—New York World.

MAKING A TIGER SIT DOWN.

Methods Used to Train the Beast For Show Purposes.

Fifteen feet of slack rope were permitted the animal as the trainer directed him once more to the seat, and once more he failed to understand. Then, says a writer in Everybody's Magazine, the order to hoist was given, and as the men pulled the tiger felt the collar tighten about his neck. His head gradually was lifted up until his fore legs left the ground, and he pranced on his hind paws. With the fear of strangulation and the instinct of self preservation, his brain became a mental mud puddle. He beat the air with his fore paws, whirled, squirmed and wriggled in a vain effort to get out of the collar that clutched his throat. Every movement of his body brought him nearer to his seat over which hung the block and tackle. When he reached it an assistant grabbed his tail through the bars of the cage and pulled him toward the little stool, while the trainer punched him against it with the iron bar.

"Swing him clear of the ground," he called. "We'll make him take that seat. All together now!" And as the men laid their combined weight on the rope the big cat was hoisted until his hind legs dangled two feet above the floor, dancing a madman's jig. The helpless, choking brute fought the useless fight of a fish out of water. Had not the muscles over the throat been like solid rubber tires he would have strangled as he curled his body into a coil, trying to escape the weight that hung from his own neck.

With much pushing and hauling the struggling beast finally was landed on the seat. But the moment he felt support under his feet he leaped for the floor. He was met by the trainer, who walloped the sore, sensitive nose with the hickory handle of his whip and followed this up by firing the burning powder of a blank cartridge straight into the nostril. The tiger turned to run, but the trainer yelled, "Lift him, boys!" And as the crew threw their weight on the rope the beast's head and fore legs were yanked from the ground, and he pranced along for a few steps with only the claws of his hind feet touching the boards. When the momentum of his own body had carried him clear of the floor he swung back, suspended in the air, more like a lifeless tiger skin than a blood filled beast of flesh and sinew.

Pepys' Sparrow.

Rider Haggard classes sparrows with rats as "vermin." However, sparrows have had plenty of friends in past ages. Cattullus' poem about his Lesbia's pet sparrow is one of the prettiest things in Latin literature and in a passage of Plautus "sparrow," "dove" and "hare" occur together as terms of endearment. Pepys, too, writes of a pet sparrow: "To dinner with my father and sister and family, mighty pleasant, all of us. And, among other things, with a sparrow that our mercer hath brought up now for three weeks, which is so tame that it flies up and down and upon the table and eats and pecks and does everything so pleasantly that we are mightily pleased with it."

They Kept Large Collars.

One hot day in the summer of 1901 ex-Speaker Reed was in Portsmouth, N.H., and, having to wait over for a train, he decided to make an impromptu toilet, changing his collar, etc. So he hied himself to the nearest haberdasher's and began a general survey of the collar display in the store.

"Waited on, sir?" queried one of the clerks.

"Not yet," responded Reed. "I would like a collar."

"What size?"

"Size twenty."

"We don't keep collars so large, but I think you may be accommodated three stores above."

Reed went to the third store above. It was a harness shop.

Expert Evidence.

At the courts a case concerning motor driving was being heard, when the chauffeur declared that when driving at forty miles an hour he could, if necessary, pull up in ten or twelve feet.

"Um!" said the judge.

Then the next witness—an expert—gave his evidence.

Said his lordship, "If a motor car were traveling at forty miles an hour and the brakes could be put on in such a manner as to stop it within ten or twelve feet, where would the driver go?"

"Depends very much on the sort of life he'd been living," said the expert.

Only a Watchdog.

A man was excitedly relating to a friend the harrowing details of a burglary in his house the night before.

"A most daring robbery," exclaimed the outraged man. "It was still early. My wife and I had not retired, and Susie and her young man were in the parlor. Our dog was in the dining room. Despite all this that crook had the nerve to enter the dining room and rifle it of every bit of silver we had. Not satisfied, he even stole the clock off the mantelpiece. What do you think of that?"

"Well," said the friend, "I don't see what else you could expect. Fido is only a watchdog, you know."

His Last Effort.

The famous mathematician Bossuet was at the point of death when his friend Maupertius came to inquire about his condition. He was told that Bossuet was dying; that he no longer could speak.

"I'll show you how to make him talk," said Maupertius, and, stepping to the deathbed, he called into his friend's ear, "Bossuet, what is the square of twelve?"

"One hundred and forty-four," the dying mathematician replied with a last supreme effort.

ANOTHER PROMINENT CITIZEN SUDDENLY PASSES AWAY

Death of Mr. Geo. J. Gumpricht, at His Residence Aylmer St. Saturday Night—Had Been Ill Only a Few Hours —Funeral To-morrow Will be Private.

Another one of Peterborough's prominent citizens passed away very suddenly on Saturday evening at half past eight, in the person of Mr Geo. John Gumpricht, 635 Aylmer street. The deceased's death came as a great shock to a wide circle of friends, the news of his death being received throughout the city with the most profound regret.

Mr. Gumpricht had not been in the best of health of late, but spent a very happy Christmas with his family and his death was quite unexpected. He had been around as usual on Saturday.

While playing the piano about 3 o'clock in the afternoon he was stricken with a paralytic stroke, suddenly falling off the piano stool. He never regained consciousness, passing away at half past eight.

The late Mr. Gumpricht was fifty-five years of age and was born in Hamburg, Germany. He came to Canada thirty years ago. He had resided in Peterborough for the past eighteen years. Before coming to Peterborough he lived in Whitby and Oshawa. He was married twenty-six years ag to Jessie Mundy, who survives him.

Besides his wife, four daughters and one son are left to mourn his loss. The daughters are Misses Wilhelmine, Georgie, Violet, and Grace and the son is Carl, all residing at home.

One brother, William, of Hamburg, Germany and one sister, Sister M. Gertrude, of Loretta Abbey, Toronto also survive him.

The funeral which will be private, will take place tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery, Rev E. A. Pearson of the George St. Methodist church will conduct the funeral services. 00

MACHINERY BEING INSTALLED IN NEW EAST CITY FACTORY

Much Progress Being Made by Peterboro' Lubricator M'f'g Co.—Orders are Pouring in—Office Opened in Toronto.

Much progress is being made in the installing of the machinery in the Peterborough Lubricator Mfg. Co. on Hunter street east for the manufacture of the automatic compressed air grease cup, of which they have the patent for the Dominion of Canada. Their machinery is all of the latest design. The two first machines ordered now on the way here, consist of two large presses, which are used in pressing out the steel parts of the cup. One of these machines is well worth a trip to the factory to see it in operation. Mr. Pennington, the superintendent, will glady show anyone how a fully shaped cup is produced in a moment's time. Great pressure is required to do this work, one of the machines having a crushing pressure when the two parts come together of 60 000 lbs.

The managing director Mr. Booreman has been untiring in his efforts to push things to a successful finish. Owing to the large number of orders to be placed in Toronto, it was found advisable to open up a sales department and demonstrating office at 127 Bay street, on the ground floor.

The success of the company is assured. Orders are pouring in which will require the factory running overtime from the start. The president, Mr. Wm Harstone, is more than delighted with the prospects.

FINED $20 AND COSTS AND BOUND TO KEEP THE PEACE

For assaulting Elton Yorke, bartender at the New Oxford Hotel, Geo. Gagnon was fined twenty dollars and costs, amounting to $20.35, to be paid forthwith, at the police court this morning. Gagnon was bound over to keep the peace, he having to give bonds for four hundred dollars, $200 and two securities of one hundred dollars each. This was done as a result of threats made by Gagnon to Yorke, Yorke stating that he was afraid the defendant might do him actual bodily harm. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. F. D. Kerr for the defendant. Gagnon pleaded not guilty.

DISPUTE OVER FIELD BETWEEN STREET CAR CO. AND CITIZEN

There is a dispute on between the Peterborough Radial Railway Co. and a resident of the west end of the city. Both claim to have leased a field in the vicinity of the toboggan slide, into which the toboggans run. The resident had the property rented from Mr. G. Walter Greene for pasture in the summer and claims that his lease does not expire until the first of April. The Street Car Co. also claim to have a lease.

The resident has built a fence to prevent the toboggans running into it, and wanted $200 from the Railway Co. before he would take it down. However, it has been put up and pulled down three times.

The City's Assets

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I observe that my remarks at the late Board of Trade meeting in relation to the city's debenture debt of one million dollars and the available assets to meet it, are receiving some attention from correspondents of the daily press. I take no exception to this for the reason that discussion of so very important a public question is quite seasonable. One writer sets out with the statement that there are two kinds of assets, one convertible and the other inconvertible. Very good, and every standing dictionary tells us that those things, lands and goods, which may be converted into money for the discharge of a debt, are assets. It follows, of course, that whatever cannot be so treated are not assets as against money liabilities. The person referred to classes sewers, sidewalks and schools as having a convertible value but we cannot continue to live in this age without these accommodations and must not, therefore, even under great stress, sell them. They are not assets any more than health and education are, which though of vital value to the individual yet in the eyes of a creditor, are of very small account. Then the writer classes sewers and waterworks together, and places the market block in line with the fire hall. This block the Hilliard farm and the waterworks represent upwards of half a million in revenue producing and convertible value and these with one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars of sinking funds on hand, are a real set-off against the million we owe, leaving a net debt of four hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars to be made up by direct taxation. I think it was well understood I was not at the time dealing with our human duties in relation to schools etc., but with the finances of the city and comparing the city's resources as against its considerable obligations, and, at the same time cautioning citizens against schemes that would make for convenience only, and are not absolutely necessary, while losing sight of the danger of crippling the city by a burdensome debt.

Your obedient servant,
W. H. MOORE.

THE CARL W. COOK STOCK COMPANY

A Week of Repertoire at the Grand Opera House.

Repertoire and vaudeville have long been a taking combination with the public. The management of the Carl W. Cook Stock Company have taken care to combine the best of both this season and in consequence have a company of real merit. This class of plays produced by this company are of the best, clean, clever and up-to-date in all respects.

The vaudeville features have been selected for their novelty and are bound to please.

In the company are Miss Edyth La Nora, a very clever and always charming soubrette, Geo. F. Cotter, the little comedian who gets the big laughs, Theodore Sharlery, Viola Bancroft, C. J. Francis, Earl Hawk, all artists of experience and ability.

One of the chief vaudeville features is Vade, the mysterious, in his world famous Magic and Mystery.

Lack of space forbids mention of other pleasing features.

Don't forget. Come and see for yourself at the Grand Theatre one week, starting to-night.

NOTICE

A RISING TOWN IN NEW ONTARIO

Some Interesting Information About the Fast-Growing Town of Cochrane

From present activities on the part of merchants and speculators in the town of Cochrane, New Ontario, which is the junctional point of the Transcontinental and T. & N.O. railways, there seems no danger that the town will be of the proverbial "nine days' wonder" type. Although the town sites have been sold only a month ago a young city has already sprung up. General stores, barber shops, storehouses, pool and billiard rooms and a post office are among the edifices already gone up. In some cases a hustling Christmas business was done in the town by men who had bought their lands but afew weeks ago and great prophesies are being uttered by land owners as to future business successes. The largest and costliest block in the town was corralled by a firm of Hebrews.

THEATRICAL

DUTY ON SHOW PAPER

Objections are constantly being made by managers of companies playing Canadian theatres of the duty on printing brought from the United States into Canada. This amounts to fifteen cents a pound, and upon the average lot of 200 pounds, used by a company the bill of $300 is thought to be excessive. Managers base their claim of injustice on the allegation that their lithographing cannot be done in Canada, as cheaply or as well and that no matter what the efficiency of lithographers here it would not pay them to have it done for only two or three cities on this side of the border.

OBITUARY

TILLIE O'NEILL.

The funeral of the late Miss Tillie O'Neill, whose death occurred in Rochester on Thursday, took place Saturday morning, from the residence of Mr. Daniel Costello of Emily, and was attended by a large concourse of friends. The cortege proceeded to St. Luke's church Downeyville, where Rev. Father McGuire conducted the funeral services and also referred to the exemplary life of the deceased, and how well prepared she was to meet the call of death. Interment took place in the parish cemetery. Among those who attended the funeral from a distance were:—Sister Thecla, of St. Joseph's Community, Peterborough, and Miss O'Neill, of Rochester, sister of the deceased.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

The City Finances

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Apart from its somewhat personal aspect the controversy now being waged between the present and former Mayor of the city should serve a useful purpose in directing attention to what appears to be a very questionable feature of our municipal financing.

Apparently the council of 1907 in the exercise of its discretion refused to float the debentures required to cover the previous year's local improvement expenditures because of the unusually high rates of interest then prevailing. So far, so good. The remarkable circumstance is that they should immediately proceed to make further and larger expenditures for similar purposes, and thus more than double the magnitude and possibilities for loss to the city, of the problem which they had thought it wise to evade.

Not only so but Mr. McWilliams, the Mayor of that Council, now comes forward and blames his successor, Mr. Rush, for floating them even the next year, and for not passing them still on further. Does this not savor of rather reckless finance? Pray, where would he have this kind of thing end?

Surely if the conditions of the money market were such as to preclude the advantageous flotation of the city's debentures that ought to have been taken as a restriction upon further similar expenditures until conditions had improved. If there is no law to prohibit Councils from accumulating such liabilities and passing them on to their successors to meet, it is manifest there ought to be.

The doing of permanent improvements on temporary loans is a species of financing that should properly be kept within the narrowest possible limits.

Yours truly,
—TAXPAYER.

The Sanctuary.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In this letter I propose to consider the rule of the sanctuary in regard to the common matter of eating and drinking. Is there any such rule, you ask. I answer most emphatically, yes, but one would think by the way we go, in this matter that we believed the rule for this was viz.; What have ye not churches to eat and to drink in, or despise the dining halls and eating houses, etc. If any man hunger let him eat in the church. The Christians at Cornith were much like us Christians of to-day. They had many good points. Paul praises them for many things. He says they came behind in no gift, etc., etc., thus he had a few things to complain of. One of these was there a mistaken notion that the sanctuary was to be used as an ordinary eating and drinking house. When we Christians to-day so far forget ourselves as to turn our churches into play rooms and eating houses, it is a bad sign. When the Israelites lost their religion and worshipped the golden calf, they fell into the same error. It is said of them, the people sat down to eat and to drink and rose up to play. And Paul refers to this in this same letter and says, now these things were written for our admonition, etc., to the intent that we should not lust after evil things. I Cor. 10, 6, 11. A good thing out of its right place may prove to be an evil thing. Pure cold water is a good thing, but let a friend meet you on the street tomorrow and pour a pail of clear cold water down the back of your neck. You will immediately awaken to the fact that you have one of heaven's greatest gifts to man in the wrong place. Not a bit more out of place than the high tea in the sanctuary. Get preacher and men sit through the church service with their nice, best Sunday hats on. "Hands up in holy horror exclaiming how unscriptural. Not more unscriptural than a hungry preacher and people sitting down to a full meal at a great fowl supper in the sanctuary. Not a bit.

A place for everything and everything in its place, is a wise rule. St. Paul though dead, yet speaketh—correcting the saints at Cornith, says, "Their conduct in coming to the meeting place of the congregation to eat and drink to the full was contempt of court. Contempt means the act of despising. That is the very word he uses. He tells them in so many words that their conduct in this matter is not praiseworthy. They had selected the wrong house for this purpose. Moreover, he tells them that their conduct puts their brethren, who reverence the sanctuary, to shame. Just as many Christians to-day are put to shame when they hear of high teas or Thanksgiving dinners advertised from the pulpit or through the press to be held in the sanctuary and sold to the public at the door of the house of God for so much a meal. So Paul sums the matter up in these words: "What! Have ye not houses to eat and drink in, or despise ye the church of God, and put them to shame that have not." R. V., yes, put them to shame that have not despised or treated with contempt the sanctuary.

Now, he proceeds to remind them of the rule for eating in the church which they had violated. He writes verse 34: "When ye come together to eat, wait one for the other; if any man hunger LET HIM EAT AT HOME." That is the rule that governed the early Methodists when they instituted the love feast. Tell me who would be so childish as to justify the modern church supper, pie social, &c., on the ground that the early Christians and Methodists held their love feasts in the church? Tell me who would think of going to a Methodist love feast for a full meal. Tell me who ever heard of a love feast being offered for sale at the door of the church for so much a meal. Paul declared to the church the whole counsel of God. In the utter absence of all counsel regulating church suppers from the Master of assemblies, we may reasonably rule them out of court out of order in the sanctuary and there is no mistake about that.

The least objectionable of all church suppers is the free congregational tea. But even this is not a nice thing to have in the church, for the simple reason that there is too much debris, rubbish, noise and confusion in connection with all such. Christ after He had cleansed the temple "would not suffer that any man should carry a vessel through the temple," Mar. 11-16. I know an elder in a certain church who at one time was quite partial to church suppers. On one of these occasions he was appointed a committee of one to slice ham for sandwiches for the great congregation. When the next church supper was proposed I heard that same official in a short, spirited speech say "Give us no more of these greasy teas in the church &c," and from his remarks one could see that in his inmost soul he believed that these things were more a means of grease in the church than a means of grace to the church. While I believe that light memorial feasts are the rule in the sanctuary, there are times when there are exceptions to this rule, for instance, in rural districts and possible other places where Christians come to their church for all day meetings, &c, where there are few, if any houses near. On such occasions and others we might mention the people may eat their meals with reverence in the church and be as blameless as David was when he and those that were with him went into the temple and ate the shew bread, which was not lawful for any but the priests to eat. But all church suppers gotten up and offered for sale at the door of the sanctuary for so much a meal, is contempt of court, of the first degree.

"These temples of His grace
How beautiful they stand.
The honor of our native place
And bulwarks of our land."

Let us reverence them more.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor for the space in your columns, I will conclude by wishing you and your readers both in the city and rural districts a Happy New Year in the truest sense. I remain.

Yours sincerely,
JOHN CARLISLE

SHOWCASE FRONT WAS SHATTERED

Wind did Damage at Richmond's Studio, Hunter Street Last Night

As a Review reporter was walking on Hunter street last night he had one of those narrow escapes a newspaper man is called upon so frequently to write of. The glass front in the showcase in front of Richmond's studio next to the Bank of Toronto was blown down with a crash by the high wind and the glass was splintered to pieces on the sidewalk and missed the passer by by the smallest margin.

Antoine Lotki, a Port Arthur infant, drank a bottle of cough medicine and died.

SPORTING NEWS

FIRST OF THE STANLEY CUP GAMES TO BE PLAYED TO-NIGHT

Montreal Dec. 26.—While considering many offers for exhibition matches after Wednesday's playing, Manager Whitcroft, of the Edmonton team, is leaving no stone unturned that may hide a suggestion or a means of strength for the struggle against Wanderers for the Stanley Cup.

He has received numerous offers to play exhibition matches after the series ends, but before considering them he is demanding strictly paying terms.

Sherbrooke was yesterday in communication with the Edmonton manager, the proposition being for Edmonton to play the Quebec senior team in the Sherbrooke Stadium on New Year's afternoon. Proprietor Pothier of the Stadium is willing to make the proposition a paying one, and Manager Whitcroft has made an appointment to meet him in Montreal this morning.

Another offer has practically been accepted. That is the one for Edmonton to play Smith's new Ottawa team, the Federals, next Saturday night.

The two teams and officials as at present decided upon will be as follows;—

Wanderers.		Edmonton.
	Goal
Hern		Lindsay
	Point
Ross		Patrick
	Cover Point
Smaill		Pitrie
	Rover
Glass		Whitcroft
	Forwards.
Gardner		Phillips
Smith		Vair
Johnson		MacNamara

Referee—Russell Bowie.
Judge of play—Chauncey Kirby.

SIMPSON HAS MADE TERMS WITH NO MANAGER YET

Fred Simpson is in the city to-day and says he will probably race Hayes or Dorando in a couple of months. Fred has made up his mind to turn professional although reports published about Tim O'Rourke handling him are without foundation he states. He informed the sporting editor of the Review that he had not yet come to definite terms with any manager but will, nevertheless, get out after the simoleons.

"The money is there," said Fred, "and I might as well have it as as the rest of them. I think I should be able to get my share of it."

If Fred makes good in his proposed races with Dorando or Hayes—or he possibly may meet them both—he will get after Longboat or Shrubb.

What do you think of a Marathon race between Shrubb and Longboat," he was asked.

"As far as I can see," the Hiawatha man replied, "it's all Longboat for that distance."

HOCKEY

ST. ANDREW'S PRACTICE.

St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild hockey team will practice to-night at Knox rink at 6.45 sharp. The following players are asked to be on hand;—R Patterson, N Rae, Geo. MacDonald, Frank Gillespie, Harry Rae, M. Miller, E Curry, W Flanagan, Ernest Reid, H McCullough, T Donaldson, Mort. Johnston, E J Dormer, Arnold Stanton, Gordon Wright, Jack Sharpe, John Logan, and any others.

THE CHAMPION AND MAHMOUT

What Americus Think of Gotch's Chances With Turk

Baltimore, Dec. 28.—Frank Gotch is going to wrestle Yussiff Mahmout for the world's championship, and the contest will take place in Chicago during March, provided the promoters of that city permit the game to live there that long. Gotch is disgusted with Hackenschmidt, and is convinced that he wants no more of his game.

No man is better able to judge of the chances in such a bout than Americus, of this city, who has met both men and had made a close study of their wrestling ability "It would be one of the best bouts in the history of the mat," said Americus, "and I do not think I could pick a winner. Mahmout is the quickest and strongest big man I ever seen. I think he has it in footwork on Gotch, but down on the mat the American looks good to me. Although Mahmout has ample endurance, as he proved with me, I would like Gotch's chances. Gotch and Mahmout are now the world's greatest wrestlers, and a contest between them would excite even greater interest than that between Gotch and Hackenschmidt.

CONCERNING JACK MILLER

An Eulogy of Former Trent Valley League Player Now With Edmonton

The Toronto Star says;

Jack Miller the crack right wing of the Edmonton hockey team is a native of Otonabee, Peterborough county, Ont. and learned the rudiments of the game in a little two by four rink in Keene. At 12 years he was playing in the Trent Valley league, and the curly-haired lad will be remembered in Millbrook and Lakefield. For two seasons he played for Norwood, and then for Midland when they were runners-up for the Junior OHA. championship.

Five years ago he went west and now, with his brother, owns and operates an ideal cattle ranch on the Hand Hill Lake, Northern Alberta. The writer spent six weeks on his ranch last summer. As a host he is a prince of good fellows, and is as reticent as he is clever. He is acknowledged the best horseman in the district, and to see him on the hurricane deck of a bucking bronco is a treat. He is an enthusiastic hunter and spent a month in the Rockies last summer

Miller keeps a number of good coyote dogs, as well as a setter and a retriever to say nothing of his famous bull terrier, "Features." On the trail or on the ice, on the 'round up' or on the "grub waggon" he is the same Jack.

ART BURN IS GOING BACK

Calgary, Dec. 26.—The Herald's annual road race, 6 1-3 miles, was run yesterday in the face of a bad dust storm. Thirteen started but the ditions caused several to drop out. Mecklenberg won easily in 36.48 1-2 James Fitzgerald, of Edmonton, finished a strong second. Art Burn who took the trophy twice previously, was badly out of condition, and did not figure prominently.

PRACTICE OF BOTH TEAMS

Seniors and Juniors Asked to Turn Out This Evening From 7 to 8.

To-night there will be a practice of the juinior and intermediate sevens from 7 to 8 o'clock. The following are asked to attend;—

Senior—Derocher, Glover, Moore, Dusty, Seymour, Long, Morgan, Graham, Weatherstone, Parnell and Dobson.

Juniors—Giroux, Faux, Wade, Roy, Pentland, Giroux, G. Hillier.

CITY LEAGUE TO HOLD MEETING AT Y TO-NIGHT

A meeting of the city league will be held tonight at the YMCA. at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be a most important one as the schedule will be drawn up.

Every team in the league is asked to have a representative in attendance.

ERIE MAN TALKS OF WALKING

Has Seen Hoagland Walk on Several Occasion---Will be Good Season

Mr. W. Engle, of Erie, Pa., is in the city to-day on a flying business visit. Mr. Engle is quite a walking enthusiast, and saw Hoagland walk in his recent races against Hubbell at Erie, and has seen the champion race on several occasions.

Mr. Engle says the pedestrian tournament held here is spoken of as one of the most successful of six day walks last season, and this had the effect of stimulating interest in the game in the Canadian field. The prospects for walking on the other side this winter are bright, Mr. Engle stated. Marathon running, however, seems at present to be the craze in indoor sport.

BLAKE AFTER JIM HARRISON

Negro Walker Would Like to Race With Local Pedestrian in Syracuse

Blake, the Syracuse negro pedestrian, writes to Jim Harrison, and states that he thinks a 25 mile walk between himself and the Canadian champion would be a big card in Syracuse. The city has a population of 150 000, and there has been no walking there lately. Blake has an important matched race on in another town in the near future.

Harrison has replied and asks for additional particulars. He should be able to defeat the clever negro, judging by his excellent time in his race here against Hoagland on Thanksgiving day.

BASKETBALL

The Montreal Witness says;—The senior team will open their season on New Year's even when they play the fast Brownie five of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. The Peterborough team have a great reputation, and have defeated all the teams in and around Peterborough. The Central Y. team are also playing a good game and will give a good account of themselves on New Year's eve. There will be a big crowd there to see the game, as the tickets are going fast. On New Year's night the clubs play the Sherbrooke Y.M.C.A. team, and will no doubt acquit themselves with credit.

Longboat Weds To-night.

Toronto, Dec. 28.—Despite reports to the contrary it appears highly probable that Tom Longboat and his affinity, Lauretta Maracle, the Mohawk maiden, will be united in matrimony to-day. The ceremony is to take place in one of the Anglican churches of the city, but just where and when is not announced.

Rev. A. H. Creegan, the Anglican rector in charge of the Indian Reserve at Deseronto will officiate.

It had been the intention to have the ceremony performed on the platform immediately after the concert at Massey Hall to-night. Objections were raised, however, by Rev. Mr. Creegan.

NOT ORIGINAL FRANK SMITH

It is said that the Frank Smith, who shot a girl and himself in Detroit, is not the Frank Smith so well known here, but another man of the same name and interested in horse racing. The Frank G. Smith, of the Buffalo Horse World, according to latest dispatches, is still alive and holding down his place on the Buffalo Horse World, where he contributes one of the brightest pages in the book.

It was a surprise to Peterborough horsemen when they heard of Smith's supposed tragic death, as he was regarded as too well balanced a man to do away with himself in the manner reported.

He is held in the highest regard in local turf circles and his numerous friends in this and surrounding towns will be glad to know that it was simply another case of a name causing confusion.

Escapes Lynching.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 28.—A startling story of an attempt at lynching was told yesterday by D. F. Jones, a negro of New Gascony, Ark., labor agent for the Gracie plantation.

Jones is in the hospital at Pine Bluff, where he is recovering from the effects of what he declares was an attempt to lynch him near Gilliam, La. He says a number of white men who were enraged because he was preparing to take out of the district a number of negro laborers, placed a rope about his neck and drew him up a pole, with the intention of hanging him. The pole broke, he says, and he managed to escape after being badly whipped. Jones is in a critical condition.

His Worship Mayor Rush will be the chief magistrate of Peterborough for 1909. At the nomination proceedings at the city hall this morning he was re-elected by acclamation, no other name being proposed for the position. Mayor Rush's nomination was moved by Ald. Robt Neill and seconded by Mr James Lynch.

Mr T F Matthews was re-elected Water Commissioner, there being no opposition. He will hold office for three years. He was proposed by Ald. W G Morrow and seconded by E F. Mason.

There were ten nominations for the four positions on the Board of Education. They included the four members whose terms of office expire at the close of the present year, Messrs. Fair, Morrison, Ackerman and Robinson. The others nominated were Messrs. E F Mason, R Hicks, W Madill and Drs. Boucher, McClelland and Frederick.

Forty-four names were proposed for aldermen. This is one more than were nominated last year. The list of names contains those of all the present aldermen.

The nomination proceedings were largely attended and much interest was evinced in the proceedings. City Clerk Armstrong presided. Nomination for Mayor, Water Commissioner, and Board of Education took place between ten and eleven o'clock and for Aldermen between twelve and one o'clock.

When eleven o'clock had arrived and there was no opposition to Mayor Rush, His Worship was called upon to speak and spoke in part as follows:—

The Mayor's Address

I take this opportunity of thanking the ratepayers for having elected me to the important position of Mayor of this city. Had I gone from door to door soliciting votes, I could not have expected a larger majority than I received. I have done the best I could and if you re-elect me I will endeavor to do my best again. That I have satisfied the Aldermen, goes without saying, for at the last meeting of the council they passed a resolution thanking me for the able manner in which I conducted the meetings.

You will be pleased to know that you own about 62 acres of land, having a frontage of half a mile on Water street, with all the buildings thereon. On this property there is gravel, stone and sand enough to last the city for years for repairing the roads, for building new concrete sidewalks bridges or any other concrete works. This property was acquired five years ago and the rents from it etc. has more than paid the interest on the investment. The City Engineer has also informed me that it has already paid back 77 per cent. of the $10.000 that was paid for it, in gravel, stones and sand. Then, again, after the gravel, etc, has been entirely exhausted, the land itself will be more valuable for building purposes, as George street can be extended through it, thus giving a frontage to be sold on each side for building lots.

We have now over 40 miles of granolithic sidewalks and about 13 miles of wooden ones yet to be replaced by concrete. We have also nearly 24 miles of sewers, half a mile of which is on streets where there is no water. A little more than a mile of sewerage has been built this year and 5 2-3 miles of concrete sidewalks both costing slightly less than that of last year.

Regarding the debentures,—

During the early part of last year times were exceptionally good, work was very plentiful, and one could only with the greatest difficulty procure laborers, the demand being so great, but instead of closing down the civic work and reserving it for a year, such as this has been sewers were built on streets where there is no water, consequently they cannot yet be used. The ratepayers are still paving 4 3-4 per cent for the use of the money it cost to construct them.

Instead of allowing the workingman to avail himself of the opportunity of obtaining employment from those who were engaged in building, and thus reserving the civic work for a time when men were unemployed, this branch of the work was kept going.

Perhaps the Chairman of last years Board of Works can explain the reason for this.

This year the first thing the Board of Works did was to pass a resolution that sewers would be built only on the streets on which there was water, thus saving the ratepayers paying interest on work that was not required.

The latter part of last year the manager of the Bank of Toronto appeared to be dissatisfied with the city account and demanded that the overdraft be reduced. Something had to be done as no other Bank in the city wanted the account in the condition that it was then in. I have a copy of a letter here—I will read it later—which was sent to the manager of the Bank, with the knowledge approval and consent of the Ex-Mayor, after the sending of which an arrangement was made, the city to pay six per cent for the use of the money they required for this year, 1908, in excess of any that might be to the credit of the other civic bodies. I find no fault with that arrangement, it was the best that could be done under the circumstances.

About two months ago, the Chairman of the Finance Committee and myself waited on the manager of the Bank and arranged for the requirements for next year, 1909, at five per cent, one per cent better.

This year's council according to the agreement made last year with the Bank, as per the letter I have just read, were obliged to sell the debentures, but the overdraft has been kept well within the limit, arranged for by last year's council and the Bank, thus saving the difference to the ratepayers in interest.

Peterborough, Ont.
December 20, 1907.

P Campbell, Esq.,
Manager Bank of Toronto,
City.

Dear Sir,—At a meeting of the Finance Committee of the City Council held last night, at which representatives from the Board of Education and City Trust Commissioners were present, the banking accommodation required in connection with the city accounts for 1908 was considered and the following resolution was adopted;

"That the City Treasurer be instructed to inform the Bank of Toronto, that the banking accommodation required next year, for ordinary and extraordinary requirements will be as follows;— On the first of January $125,000 on the combined accounts and by February 15th, debentures to the amount of $61,000 will be sold and from than time on a line of credit of $100,000 is asked for, but as near as can be estimated, taking into account the sale of $35,000 of school and waterworks debentures by March 31st, and $40,000 of local improvement debentures by June 1st, the requirements will be on February 15th, $95,000, March 31st, $75,000 June 1st $60,000, July 1st $75,000, August 1st $25,000, from which date it will gradually rise to $65,000 on November 1st, and will remain at about the same figures to December 15th, and after that date will not exceed $100,000 and that the Treasurer ask the Bank to give the terms on which it will give the civic bodies the accommodation."

Of the $43,362.43 to be transferred to the Commissioners of the City Trust account, about $20.000 will be held to 30th of June next to meet debentures maturing at that date, and about $10,000 of the remainder to pay the half year's interest to same date.

Kindly favor me with your reply at as early date as possible.

Yours truly,
(Signed) FRANK ADAMS
City Treasurer.

Mr. Matthews Speaks.

After the Mayor had finished speaking, Mr. Matthews, the newly elected water commissioner, was called upon

Mr. Matthews said he had just been informed of his election as water commissioner and thanked the ratepayers for their expression of confidence. Since the waterworks were taken over by the Water Commissioners in 1902, the Commissioners had endeavored to handle the waterworks in the same manner as if their own money was invested in them. He believed that their efforts were appreciated by the ratepayers generally. Mr. Matthews dealt briefly with the growth of the waterworks system since it was taken over by the Water Commission. In 1902 there were 92,900 feet of mains, now there were 169,700 feet, in 1902 there were 128 fire hydrants, now there were 213; in 1902 there were 1,070 services, now there were 2,464.

There had been a large increase in the amount of water used in 1908, over the previous year. The total amount of water pumped this year was 724,047,640 gallons, an increase of 53,000,000 gallons over the previous year. During the present year 9.368 feet of mains had been layed or 1.77 miles. The number of new services put in was 227. The total amount of mains at the present time was 162,400 feet.

Mr. Matthews referred to frontage tax by-law, which had been passed last January and alluded to its satisfactory operation. He believed that the by-law was based on a sound foundation.

Mr. Matthews referred to the proposition to build a new dam. It was necessary on account of the large increase in the amount of water used.

In closing Mr. Matthews again thanked the ratepayers for their renewal of confidence.

NECESSARY TO QUALIFY

Those nominated for Aldermen and Board of Education who wish their names to go on the ballots must qualify before nine o'clock tomorrow night. To be eligible they must have an assessment of $1000 if free holder and $2000 if lease holder.

In November 7,035 immigrants arrived in Canada.

Christmas Day was mild and spring-like at Winnipeg.

OF INTEREST

The Bulgarian peasants eat sparingly and drink little alcohol; their food consists chiefly of maize flour cooked in different ways, coarse brown bread and the black sour milk which is believed by some, and among them Prof. Metchnikoff, to account for the large percentage of long lived people in that country. The system of peasant proprietorship encourages every farmer to work his land to the best advantage and the women are to be seen during the summer months laboring in the fields, gathering the crops, harvesting and doing other outdoor work. They are tall and strapping, with good figures, and masses of hair generally brown, which they invariably wear in two plaits with a scarf or handkerchief bound round the head. Although magnificent hair is a national characteristic, it is an extraordinary thing even in the most remote villages for false hair to be worn and it is not uncommon to meet old wrinkled women with a pair of glorious brown plaits which a young woman might well envy. The features of the peasantry are regular and striking, their eyes as a rule blue and their bronzed skin gives them an appearance of perfect health. The purest types are to be found in the mountains as elsewhere during the period of the Turkish dominion intermarriages were inevitable.

On Sunday every village green is gay with peasants in national dress dancing the choro to the sounds of bagpipe and drum. The lads and girls dance for hours with skill and entrain proving that they are in good physical condition. Quite remarkable is their carriage and a slouching man or woman is never seen. The average age of marriage is 25 for the youths and 18 or 19 for the girls. The young man is expected to give his future wife a fair dowry which she retains should the marriage be dissolved but this seldom happens, for the standard of morality is high and the annual average of illegitimate births only 0.12 per cent, An unfaithful wife is an object of public contempt and formerly was punished by death.

During the winter the women spin and knit making most of their own clothes. They are good housewives and keep their houses neat and clean. Their children are well cared for and infants are with few exceptions, reared at the breast. In spite of this infant mortality is very high especially among the peasant class. An unhealthy baby seldom survives and it is probably owing to this that the race in general is so virile and healthy in 1893 there were living 3372 persons of 100 years and upwards.

Poverty is practically unknown in Bulgaria outside the towns, the peasants on the contrary, manage to put by some savings. An interesting and curious revival of a very ancient institution among the peasantry is the house community of zadruga. Large numbers of the same family dwell together on the same farm. They all work for a common fund their tasks being regulated by a house father and mother, whom they obey implicitly. Those who do not work around the farm practice various trades the proceeds being handed over to the community The arrangement appears to work very well.

The Bulgars are a branch of the great Slav family of mankind, to which the Servians, Montenegrins and a large proportion of the inhabitants of Russia also belong. But they possess distinct physical and mental characteristics, and are believed by ethnologists to be more nearly related to the Finns than to their immediate neighbors in southeastern Europe. Their history as a nation can be traced back, rather dimly it is true, to the middle period of the Roman empire, when they dwelt in the Volga region; they were a warlike and turbulent people, and made incursions westward which for centuries gave much trouble to the Byzantine empire as may be read more at large in the pages of Gibbon. Finally they forced their way into the Balkans, where they established a strong military state which maintained its independence until overwhelmed by that irresistable advance of the victorious Moslems which was only checked under the walls of Vienna. Though deprived of independence, of education and of even the shadow of a national life they never lost their national characteristics never deserted their Christian faith, and never despaired of the future. A race with such a history and endowed with such sterling qualities cannot fail to work out its destiny and to win a place for itself among the nations of Europe.

The Canadian Almanac

The 1909 issue of the Canadian Almanac, which forms the sixty-second of the series, is unusually valuable, and is indispensable to every office and library in the Dominion. Many of the lists given are not found elsewhere and in no other volume can so much information about Canada be found in so small a space. The Canadian Almanac has been published continuously since 1848, and is indispensable to every Canadian engaged in professional or business life. It contains among other things:—Astronomical calculations eclipses, star tables, latitude tables, tide tables, Halifax, Quebec, St. John; complete customs tariff the new French treaty, weights and measures and exchange tables, banks with branches and names of managers patents in Canada, the British Army and Navy, full Canadian Militia list, postal information, complete list of post offices, with railway on which located or nearest railway station, list of newspapers published in Canada, with their circulation and politics, titled Canadians, iron industry in Canada with directory of iron manufacturers and foundries, Dominion and Provincial Governments and names of officials, with their salaries, foreign consuls in Canada, complete clergy list of all denominations, legal and judicial information, county and township officers, barristers and solicitors educational institutions, miscellaneous societies, life assurance, with rates of various companies, bank and other stocks, showing dividends and highest and lowest prices at which sold, History Diary for 1907-8. 490 pages. NOMINATIONS IN ONTARIO

Thirty-Six Mayors and Reeves Were Elected by Acclamation.

Municipal nominations were held throughout Ontario yesterday, the feature being the small number of elections by acclamation, candidates for the various offices being plentiful almost everywhere. There are not many important questions coming before the electors in the way of bylaws compared with last year, except that some ninety odd municipalities will vote on the local option question.

Following is a list of the mayors elected: D. McLachlin, Arnprior; C. Krug, Chesley; G. Sutherland, Ingersoll; A. Loerch, Listowel; W. S. Hall, L'Orignal; J. W. Horseley, Meaford; J. de W. Randall, Niagara; R. Rankin, North Bay; W. S. Davis, Oakville; C. Hopewell, Ottawa; H. Rush, Peterborough; I. Matthews, Port Arthur; M. Mullen, Preston; J. P. Henry, Ridgetown; W. Edwards, Rockland; J. E. Hayes, Seaforth; G. Geddes, St. Thomas; M. Sawtell, Woodstock.

The following reeves were elected by acclamation: H. C. Melin, Ayr; J. W. Gage, Barton; J. F. Dawson, Ernestown; J. A. French, Glanford; E. Meekley, Matilda; A. E. Baker, Merrickville; M. Ryan, Newburgh; E. Norman, Osprey; G. A. Wallace, Pilkington; J. H. Smith, Port Colborne; W. H. Pugsley, Richmond Hill; G. Telfer, South Dumfries; Dyous, South Easthope; J. H. McKay, Tiverton; A. P. Potter, Tottenham; L. Boyce, Warkworth; W. Ronald, West Williams; J. J. Wilkinson, Woolwich.

THIS LIQUOR LAW DRASTIC

South Australia is Considering a Rigid Measure for Saloons.

London, Dec. 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Melbourne correspondent of The Chronicle writes that the South Australian Legislative Assembly has just accepted a most drastic licensed victuallers' bill. Some idea of the changes which the measure legalizes may be gathered from the following facts:

It proposes to close all hotels during Parliamentary election days (federal or state), Christmas Day and Good Friday, renders illegal single women holding licenses, unless they at present do so; abolish duplicate barrooms unless special permission is given by the magistrates; requires travelers to journey ten miles from their homes before they become bona fide travelers; tightens the provisions of existing law.

Respecting closing at 11 p.m., if the bill passes the legislative council, South Australia will have in operation the most advanced liquor law of the whole Commonwealth.

BAD FIRE AT BRACEBRIDGE

Bracebridge, Dec. 29.—Fire which broke out on Sunday night in L. E. Godson's law office, in the Sibbett Block, and spread to the McCosh Block, caused a loss of $100,000. The principal losses are: Thomas & Co., jewelry, books and stationery, and publishers of The Gazette newspaper, loss $20,000, insurance $7,000; John Carruthers, dry goods, loss $2,000, insurance $1,500; G. Simmons, goods, loss $6,000, insurance $2,000; Max Axler, general store, loss $1,500, insurance $6,000; James Whitten, hardware, loss $20,000, insurance, $10,000; Thomas E. Godson, law offices, loss unknown; G. W. Sibbett, on block, loss $14,000, insurance $8,000; John McCosh, block loss $16,000, covered by insurance.

GRAIN SHIPMENTS FOR THE SEASON

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—The Trade and Commerce Department states that of the crop of 1908 there were shipped from Port Arthur and Fort William up to the close of navigation on Dec. 12: 43,935,596 bushels of grain, as compared with 23,482,497 in the corresponding period of last year. Wheat shipments amounted to 36,017,463 bushels, as against 20,545,850; oats, 5,953,201, as against 2,040,620; barley, 1,460,864, as against 578,523; and flax, 517,913, as against 317,493 bushels.

Of the season's wheat output from Fort William and Port Arthur, 593,374 bushels were carried in Canadian vessels and 12,418,109 in foreign vessels to United States points.

Canadian vessels also carried 1,186,196 bushels of wheat to Buffalo, so that in all 13,604,605 bushels of Canadian wheat, or a total of 16,286,157 bushels of grain, found their way to export points via United States route.

NEW FIRE ALARM

Mr. George Scriver Inventor of "Life Saving Fire Alarm" is in City

"The life saving fire alarm" is an invention of Mr George Scriver, of Uxbridge and he is in the city in the interests of the alarm. Mr Scriver has great faith in the practicability and convenience of the system and thinks the ratepayers will not be slow to appreciate its value. Mr Scriver has spent a great deal of time in perfecting his invention and is having models for demonstration purposes manufactured in the city. He will be here for a few days.

NUMBER OF DEAD RUNS UP INTO THE THOUSANDS

Special to the Review.

Naples, Italy, Dec 29—Twenty-five thousand persons lost their lives in the earthquake and tidal wave that ravaged three Italian provinces and a large part of the Island of Sicily yesterday according to best estimates obtainable today.

Reports from Calabria and Sicily momentarily increase the horror of the catastrophe which it is now known was far more terrible than the earthquake that devastated this region three years ago. The beautiful city of Messina, capital of the Sicilian province of Messina, in the Commune of which there was a population of 175,000 was almost totally destroyed.

Complete reports however will probably swell the deaths to a much larger figure.

Six hundred vessels ranging from fish boats to steamships have been lost, and it is probable that few of their crews were saved.

THE DISASTROUS EFFECTS OF AN EARTHQUAKE IN ITALY

Three Lower Provinces are Swept and City of Messina is Almost Wiped Out--Dead and Dying Litter Streets--Fatalities Greater Than in Many Years---People Are Fleeing in Terror.

Rome, Dec. 29.—The three provinces of Cosenza, Catanzaro and Reggio di Calabria, comprising the department of Calabria, which forms the southwestern extremity of Italy, or "the toe of the boot," were devastated yesterday by an earthquake, the far-reaching effects of which were felt almost through the entire country.

The town of Messina, in Sicily, was partially destroyed, and Catania was inundated. In Messina hundreds of houses have fallen, and many persons have been killed.

The fate of entire regions within the zone of the earthquake is unknown, but reports received here up to a late hour last night indicate that the havoc has been great, and the destruction to life and property more terrible than Italy has experienced in many years. The uncertainty of the situation has filled all Italians with the deepest distress, for they still have fear that the day may come when that part of the country, which seems to have been most blessed by nature, will be destroyed by the blind forces of that same nature which nearly nineteen centuries ago overwhelmed Pompeii and Herculaneum.

All reports show that the present catastrophe embraces a larger area than the earthquake in 1905. The tidal wave which followed the earthshocks, on the eastern coast of Sicily sunk vessels and inundated the lower part of Catania. It is known that a number of people were killed in that place. The rushing waters carried everything before them and caused an indescribable confusion.

The Italian Government has proceeded energetically to concentrate at the points of greatest need troops and engineers. Members of the red cross were despatch to various places, and camps and provisions were immediately prepared, all available railway lines and warships being used for their transport.

The city of Messina has suffered probably more than any other place, the latest information coming indirectly from that quarter stating that two-thirds of the town was destroyed and several thousand persons killed.

The steamers Washington and Montebello, which were in the harbor later, proceeded to Catania, loaded with injured, who were so stupified by terror that they seemed unable to realize what had happened, simply saying that it looked as though the end of the world had come. Five steamers left Catania for Messina, to assist in removing the injured from that place, who are reported to number thousands.

At Catania, the panic-stricken people, fearing shocks, absolutely refused to re-enter their houses and are camping in the squares, which are free from water, and the surrounding country. The tidal wave sunk 500 boats there and did great damage to several large vessels and steamers, including the Austrian steamer Buda.

Not only did Catania suffer from the effects of a tidal wave, but a similar body of water inundated the handsome streets of Messina, which flank the harbor, covering them with a thick layer of mud, which rendered difficult the succoring of the wounded, many of whom could be seen lying under the wreckage. It is reported that the villages of Faro and Ganzirri, adjoining Messina, has disappeared. The effects of the earthquake were aggravated by fire from an explosion of gas, the flames of which swept along several of the streets, adding terror upon terror.

In Calabria, the region around Monteleone, was most affected. The village of Stefanaconi, the inhabitants of which number 2,300, was practically destroyed. Only five persons were killed, but many were injured. Mons. Morabito, the Bishop of Mileto, who distinguished himself in the earthquake of 1905, did valiant work again yesterday. He rushed into places where the ruin was the greatest and brought aid and encouragement to all.

Thousands of people abandoned their homes, although a terrific rainstorm prevailed, and filled the air with lamentations and prayers. In some places, such as Brizzo, Cotrone, Santa Severena and Piscopia, the people had the courage to enter the churches almost while they were falling and carrying out the saints. They bore these in procession through the open country, invoking the mercy of God.

In the mountainous regions inland the population has taken refuge in grottoes and caves, where peasants and priests, soldiers and persons of gentle birth are living in common. Their bed is the ground, and fires burn to keep off wild animals. In Albi alone there are 2,000 people homeless.

Cardinal Nava, Archbishop of Catania, exhorted the people to be calm. He promised that the body of St. Agatha should be carried around in procession. St. Agatha is regarded as the special deliverer from all scourges.

While the number of deaths at that place is not believed now to be large, there were several tragic occurrences. Among the children swept away by the tidal wave was a boy 15 months old, who was torn from the arms of his mother. The mother, too, was overcome by the force of the water and lost consciousness, but her body was caught by a railing and remained there until she was rescued.

Midnight reports state that Reggio, the capital of the Province of Reggio di Calabria, eight miles from Messina, on the opposite side of the strait, has met the same fate as Messina, but these reports have not been confirmed owing to the lack of telegraphic facilities.

A SYRIAN SHOOTS TWO PEDDLER KILLS BROTHER

Hawkesbury, Dec. 29.—J. M. Assaly, merchant, of this town, was fatally shot here last night about 6.30 by his brother, Salem Assaly.

The murderer then turned the revolver on a lady, who was a cousin of both, and fired one shot at her, which took effect at the base of her brain.

Both victims are still living, but the doctors hold no hope of recovery.

J. M. Assaly, one of the victims, had been a resident of this town for the past five years, and was a model citizen. The lady, who was shot, was only recently from Syria. The three lived in a house on Regent street.

Salem Assaly has been peddling goods, which, he obtained from his brother, and for some time has worried the latter for money to start a business for himself. The refusal led to frequent quarrels.

Salem again last night demanded money as the three sat at the table, and being refused, jumped up, drew a revolver and shot both.

In the confusion Salem Assaly escaped, but it is thought he will be captured.

ROYAL THEATRE WAS INSPECTED

Found in Satisfactory Condition by Fire Chief and Underwriters Inspector

Chief Howard, in company with Mr. B. Vanwinkle, underwriters' inspector for Canada, inspected the Royal Theatre and found the electric wiring, the exits, and general equipment to be quite satisfactory, and fully in accordance with regulations.

Awarded Certificate

Mr. George Pratley, River Road, has been awarded a stationary engineer's certificate by the Examining Board of the Ontario Department of Education.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The C.P.R. have appointed a freight and passenger agent at Prince Rupert, B.C., the G.T.P. terminus.

The Finance Department at Ottawa have received $100 conscience money.

While Hon. Mr. Lemieux was in mid-Atlantic on his way west on the steamer Amerika he was surprised to receive wireless messages from Lord Northcliffe, Mr. King and Fred Cook, who were passengers on the Lusitania, going east.

W. L. Mackenzie King will visit India en route to China on Hindu immigration matters.

Hon. Mr. Fielding, now in Paris, is said to be quite hopeful that the French-Canadian treaty will be ratified.

THE WEATHER

Fair today, Wednesday strong winds occasional snow or rain.

THIS BOY MUST BE A BAD ONE

Windsor, Dec. 29.—The inquest into the shooting of Elijah Thompson, a Malden farmer, by his son, will be held at Amherstburg on Thursday.

Facts gleaned by Provincial Detective Campeau would indicate that the young parricide was subject to paroxysms of passion, during which he was in the habit of threatening to kill those who excited his anger.

After young Thompson shot and killed his father, his mother held him until an officer arrived. The prisoner buried his teeth in his mother's arm and struggled to free himself, but was prevented from escaping. The charge of murder will likely be laid.

C.P.R. TO BUILD TO GOWGANDA

Montreal, Dec. 29.—The Herald yesterday afternoon says: "It was learned yesterday on good authority that, although no actual decision had been arrived at, there is every probability of the C.P.R. building a railway to Gowganda, the new silver field towards which prospectors are being drawn from all parts.

"The C.P.R. is prepared, it is said, to construct the road without a subsidy, from its system at Sudbury, which would run in a north easterly direction into the heart of the new silver country by Gowganda, Miller and Estrett Lakes, Oboshking and Hanging Stone, where thousands of stakes have been driven."

Dr R P Boucher has declared that he will not be a candidate. Messrs Fair, Ackerman and Morrison are members of the Board at the present time.

Mrs Elizabeth Loosley of Hamilton is dead.

Three labor disputes were reported in Canada for November with a loss of time in 5,715 working days.

ROY INGLES IS ARRESTED

Woodstock Youth Who Told Startling Story Admits Fraud.

Woodstock, Dec. 29.—An alleged attempt to extort money by Black Hand methods from Henry Craig landed Roy C. Ingles, about twenty years old and of respectable family, in the police cells yesterday afternoon. Last Thursday night Ingles reported to Chief Thomson that he had been held up by four unknown men about 7.30 and robbed of fifty dollars, and he said they put in his hands to deliver a note for Henry Craig demanding $2,000, with a threat that he and his buildings would be burned if he did not comply. The chief thought the story a queer one and started to investigate, and yesterday arrested Ingles at the Thomas organ factory, where he is employed.

Under close examination the young man, it is said, confessed to the whole story. He said he was not held up or robbed, that he made his nose bleed, tied the rope on one of his wrists, wrote the note himself and then went to Craig's house with the note in an endeavor to frighten money out of him. He admitted sending two other threatening letters to Craig, and said he was alone in the transaction. The prisoner is charged with having sent threatening letters demanding money, and he will appear before Magistrate Ball to-day.

PREMIER GOUIN WINS 'EM ALL

Four Bye-Elections for Vacant Seats go Liberal in Quebec.

Montreal, Dec. 29—Sir Lomer Gouin swept the green yesterday in the four bye-elections, the Conservatives losing two of the few seats won in June last.

M. J. Walsh defeated Ald. O'Connel in St. Ann's by 200 votes, while in Chateauguay H. Mercier carried the seat by 144. In Laval Hon. H. E. Leblanc, the Conservative leader, is again defeated, J. W. Levesque, who was elected in June by 6 being returned by 145 majority. In Quebec Centre Leclerc, the Government candidate, defeated Ald. Laviguer, independent, by 140.

WATCHNIGHT SERVICES

On Thursday night watchnight services will be held in several of the churches of Peterborough to spend the closing of the old year and the coming in of the new in praise, prayer and meditation. These services are always largely attended.

ENTERTAINMENT AT CHEMONG

Successful Affair Held on December 25th at Town Hall

A successful and pleasing tea and Christmas entertainment was held in Chemong town hall on Christmas day, the talent contributing being the pupils of the day school and Sunday school of the village.

The programme, which was one of merit, consisted of recitations, dialogues and singing, some most acceptable selections being given by the Chemong choir.

A feature of the programme was the clever rendition of a motion song quartette by Ruth Whetung, Clara Coppaway, Lottie Johnston and Lillian Taylor.

FORTY CHEMONG HUNTSMEN TO GO AFTER FOXES

On Friday a fox hunt will be held in the townships of Ennismore and Smith by two forces from Chemong Indian village captained by Messrs Dan Whetung and Alfred McCue. There will be about 20 hunters on each side and there will be a strong strife as each side is anxious to outdo the other for a dual purpose, first for the natural satisfaction of winning and also because the losing side will have to pay for a supper which will be provided to the huntsmen and others by the Ladies Aid of the Chemong Methodist church. The supper will be held in the Chemong town hall in the evening.

With forty fox hunters in the woods in keen competition there should be a few less chicken destroyers when the chase is over.

THE LATEST CABLE AND TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Yellow Syndicate.

Paris, Dec. 29.—The investigation by the police into the Mattis incident—Mattis is the unemployed waiter who on Christmas Day waylaid President Fallieres on the street of Paris and made an attempt to pull his beard—has revealed Mattis' relations with the "yellow syndicate," a royalist organization, and as a result the police Sunday sealed up the offices of the newspaper published by the organization, with the intention of making a thorough search of the premises.

The editor of the paper is Pierre Bietry, a deputy from Finisterre. Sunday night he defied the orders of the police and broke into his office.

Protests In P.E.I.

Halifax, Dec. 29.—Four election petitions have been filed in the courts of Prince Edward Island. The first petition is against the election of Hon. Jos. Reed, who was elected by the casting vote of the returning officer. Another is against the election of Murdock Kennedy, the only Conservative member returned in Queen's County. Others are a petition against the election of Hon. James Cummiskey and against the election of Matthew Smith as assemblyman on the usual charges of corrupt practices.

To Extend St. John Harbor.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 29.—Hon. William Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, has intimated to the city that if it and the C.P.R. will surrender to the Government control of certain property they own along the harbor front, the Government will at once begin dredging work along the lines of a further extension of the harbor facilities. The city is willing, and it is believed the C.P.R. will be.

Mexican Power Conference.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—J. H. Plummer reached the city yesterday, and E. R. Wood, C. H. Cahan and F. S. Pearson, representing both sides of the Mexican Power Tramway's conference, are expected to-day.

There seems to be a somewhat more conciliatory feeling abroad, and it is doubtful now if the meeting will generate any spectacular display of fireworks.

There will be a conference of Mexican Power directors at the Bank of Montreal to-day, after which the situation will be more clearly defined.

The 'Frisco Relief Fund.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 29.—With a balance of $397,267 on hand, the relief corporation which had charge of the distribution of the fund donated to San Francisco during the time of the fire of 1906, will turn this money over to the various charitable organizations the first of the year.

During its existence the corporation distributed $9,553,140.

Crew Lost In Collision.

Newcastle, N.S.W., Dec. 29.—The British steamer Advance, a small coaster, and the British bark Iverna were in collision off here yesterday.

The Advance went down, and, with the exception of her first officer, all the members of her crew lost their lives. The Iverna put into Newcastle leaking badly.

Back From Rome.

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—Dr. J. G. Rutherford, Dominion veterinarian, has arrived from Rome, where he was attending the international agricultural conference. He expresses himself as much pleased with the work done.

Combination In Philanthrophy.

New York, Dec. 29.—"If a combination to do business is effective in saving waste and in getting better results why is not combination far more important in philanthropic work?" In this question is set forth the text of an article by John D. Rockefeller, published in The World's Work.

The general subject of the article is "the value of the co-operative principle in giving." He says he has "seen the organization of the Roman Church secure better results with a given sum of money than other church organizations are accustomed to secure from the same expenditure."

Ask For Conciliation Board.

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—The Department of Labor has appointed Zebadie Berube and Felix Marois of Quebec to be the members of the board of conciliation under the Lemieux Act, in the dispute between the John Ritchie Shoe Co. of Quebec and its employes. This case is notable because it is the first instance in which employer and employes have agreed to submit their dispute to a board of conciliation.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has applied for a board on behalf of the employes of the Kingston & Pembroke Railway, but no action has yet been taken.

Drunkenness in Kingston.

Kingston, Dec. 29.—Dean Farthing on Sunday delivered his farewell message ere he became Bishop of Montreal. He said Kingston was on the whole a moral city, but he knew of no place where drunkenness was so evident. Surrounding the city hall were sixteen saloons. This was shameful. It was accountable for by failure of the Christian people to fight the enemies of the King of Righteousness.

Suspend the "Unfair" Lists.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—The Central Federated Union here has received from Mr. Gompers a letter saying that he has discontinued the "we don't patronize" list in future issues of The Federationist.

The Central Federated Union also decided to suspend its unfair list.

Tailors on Strike.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—Operators, tailors and pressers, numbering some 25, and employed up to yesterday morning by A. Summer & Co., clothing manufacturers, have gone on strike as a protest against working with non-union hands.

Boy Shot by Companion.

Windsor, Dec. 29.—Gordon Little, seven years old, was accidentally shot by a companion who was handling a Flobert rifle. The bullet entered his eye and may cause death.

British Steamer Captured.

Hong Kong, Dec. 29.—The British steamer Tai-On was captured Sunday by two Chinese cruisers.

The steamer several months ago ran down a junk and drowned a theatrical company which was on board.

Wilkins Will Appear.

Simcoe, Dec. 29.—The trial of Chief of Police Malone, for attempting murder of Constable Wilkins, will begin to-day. Wilkins is well enough to appear.

Bishop of 'Frisco.

Washington, Dec. 29.—Bishop D. J. O'Connell, rector of the Catholic University of America, has been appointed bishop co-adjutor of San Francisco.

Mills' Case Postponed.

Welland, Dec. 29.—John F. Mills, the Toronto promoter, who is charged with defrauding Charles Asher of this place out of $1,500 in connection with the organization of an automobile manufacturing company, appeared before Magistrate Burgar again yesterday, but no evidence was taken, the case being further changed to Jan. 6.

Hottentots on Warpath.

Cape Town, Dec. 29.—The Hottentots in German South West Africa are again on the war path.

They recently raided some cattle posts near the Bechuanaland border, and murdered two Europeans.

Seven German soldiers were sent in pursuit of the raiders, but they were all shot down by the Hottentots.

Hostler Suffocated.

St. Thomas, Dec. 29.—Michael Holleran, hostler at the Dake House, was found dead yesterday standing in his room.

He had been ill and in the night walked between the dresser and the wall, where he became wedged, and suffocated.

New Depot For New York.

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 29.—It is learned here yesterday that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad is about to make a most important move by establishing its own passenger station in New York in the vicinity of Third avenue and 34th street.

Six Months In Central.

Belleville, Dec. 29.—Wm. T. Woods, who pleaded guilty to stealing an overcoat and pair of gloves from the Temperance Hotel, was given six months in the Central.

WHAT NEXT?

The armies and navies of the "civilised" world are being increased to the breaking point. When we use the word "civilised" we do so in deference to custom not to facts. The waste of war is almost beyond comprehension. In preparing for war the loss of resources is as great if not greater than in the clash of arms itself. We point with pride to the thousands of millions that we build up in trade during the time of peace and we point with equal pride to the preparations we are making to knock it all in the head. It would seem as if the talented sons of men who can perpetrate these things should meet together for a conference on common-sense. The selfishness of men which underlies so much of their doings would then shine out as perhaps never before. Subterfuges would supply ways of escape and the old discord would break out anew. But that does not alter the fact that the world cannot keep on preparing for war. Someone has got "to give" and that means war itself. The one feature of Socialism that seems really good and practicable is that of uniting public opinion in different countries to prevent war. What Christianity seems powerless to accomplish, Socialism may.

THE DALAI LAMA

The Lama of Thibet is the spiritual and temporal head of a great body that counted millions of Asiatics as its adherents. His capital or centre of authority high up amongst the Thibetan hills has been for an age or less closed to foreigners. To attempt to visit it was for foreigners to court death. But at last adventurous outsiders such as Col. Younghusband got into the capital in defiance of the regulations of the sanctuary. Like a petted child, the Lama refused to play any more, and departed on a "voyage of expiation," with a retinue of 400 persons and a long train of camels, etc., for Pekin, the nominal head-centre of Lamaism. But the Chinese, who devoted themselves reasonably to their religious mysteries, became restive when the mysteries ceased to be as mysterious as formerly, and in addition entailed a vast deal of expense. Then the rebellion began. Slowly but surely his reverence was forced back to his desecrated capital where he will continue to practise his mysteries at less expense than formerly or go to the wall like many other institutions that, having existed for ages, suddenly lose their usefulness to humanity and collapse.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A freight train on the Buffalo and Susquehanna Ry, consisting of 72 cars, broke away this morning on a steep grade, five miles from Addison, and dashed on its way to Addison. The engineer warned the crew and they jumped. At Addison the cars tore through the station at terrific speed, jumping from the tracks demolishing the station into kindling wood and then crashing into the buildings of the Howell Company Creamery, wrecking them completely. The cars were halted here. The wreckage of the creamery caught fire and burned together with the tangled mass of freight cars and their contents. The fire spread to a number of passenger coaches on an Erie siding and burned them. The collision and fire blocked traffic on the Erie road for some hours. The only man injured was Fireman Waters of the freight who was hurt when he jumped.

As Catholics we cannot have any special interest in the union or denominational separation of the various Protestant bodies, as we are aware that whether united or separated they are inimical to the Catholic Church and its doctrines; but we do feel an interest in the preservation of the great doctrines of Christianity—those doctrines which Christ commanded His Apostles to preach throughout the world. If these doctrines are cast off one by one by a large body of professing Christians we cannot but feel that the cause of Christianity itself suffers a loss to the same extent, so far as its propagation on earth is concerned. Now, avowedly, this is just what has been done in the present instance. We have the avowal of the Rev. Mr. Day to this effect that the Congregationalists directed all their efforts not to the work of explanation of truths revealed, but to the elimination of articles of faith to which some of the contracting parties have hitherto adhered. And all other denominations of Christians are expected to look on at the work of this peace conference and throw their caps up high into the air with exultant cries to the effect that Christianity has achieved a great result by this approach towards its becoming once more one fold under one shepherd. We cannot look at the matter in the same light, when we are assured by the highly respectable gentlemen who have had a share in the work that it was all effected by "elimination."

Thus, besides what we have already quoted from him, the Rev. Mr. Day says: "The breadth of the statement of doctrine, in my opinion, gives sufficient freedom for present acceptance and for future revision and development," and the hope is expressed that the foundation is thus laid for the utmost liberty of conscience.

Dr. Patrick's statements are very much to the same effect, though he is somewhat less clear on the subject of elimination, and he expresses his pleasure that "the creed of the Church has been revised under such favorable conditions."

So far the inspiration of Holy Scripture, the Divinity of our Lord, His virginal nativity, His Resurrection from the dead, and Ascension to Heaven have been untouched by the eliminators, but when the time comes for an extension of the union so as to include the Unitarians, Universalists, and other similar sects, the reformers will probably be in a temper to eliminate again so much of what remains that there will be but little left of "the faith once delivered to the saints."—The Catholic Register

A Correction

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—In my letter to you of the 24th inst., there was a mistake of a word. In my remarks on the court rule for women in church, viz., heads covered etc., and being at a loss to think of anything under the blue dome to which to compare the big hats worn by some women in church, I said, "I pause for a simile" (comparison). Your printer made me say, I pause for a smile." Now, Mr. Editor, that is a mistake, a big mistake. They are nothing to smile at, these incomparable hats.

Yours,
JOHN CARLISLE.

MELBA IN PROPHECY.

Famous Prima Donna Speaks About Women of a Century Hence.

"It is simply fascinating to me to picture the woman of a century hence. My mind throbs with questions. What will she say and do? Above all, what will she wear?"

It was while discussing the woman's suffrage movement, to which, as stated recently, she has confessed herself an adherent, that Mme. Melba, the famous singer, drew a picture of the woman of the future. She had just returned from a tiring rehearsal at the Albert Hall, where she will make her last appearance in London until 1910.

"Instinct," she said, "seems to tell me one thing about the woman of the future. Her freedom, which she will surely win, will not rob her of her woman's love of home. Man, after he has battled with and been buffeted by the world, returns with an ever-growing longing for the peace and beauty of his home environment. Woman, when the wider book of life lies open before her, will surely find the bonds of home life drawing more tightly around her. Woman will always be woman; hard, unsympathetic facts of life will make her home seem even more of a haven.

"Will woman's beauty grow? I think it will be more refined in the future. In one hundred years' time a type of extreme daintiness will, I believe, prevail. The greater use of her brain will 'spiritualize' the future woman. Her face will be alight with intelligence."

With regard to the dress of the woman of the future, Mme. Melba prophesied rich color blendings, and sweeping, graceful effects.

"Freak fashions will die," she said "There will be harmony in dress, a daintiness of manner and speech, a shunning of hollowness and affectation."

"Linkie."

Someone once described Lord Hugh Cecil—known in the family circle as "Linkie"—who recently celebrated his thirty-ninth birthday, as a "very gawky boy," and it must be admitted that there is some justification for the description. Not only is he tall, thin, pallid, and nervous, particularly when he first commences to speak, but he seems to suffer from chronic uncertainty as to the disposition of his legs and hands. But these characteristics do not prevent others from recognizing in him the cleverest of the Cecils—and the most original. He has startled the House with his views on many occasions, but never perhaps quite so much as when he proposed to punish members who did not obey the chair with imprisonment for an indefinite period. The House angrily debated the question for two hours, and then voted as follows: For, 0; against, 426—probably a Parliamentary record in majorities. One of the funniest mistakes which Lord Hugh ever made was when he undertook to open a church bazaar at Deptford a few years ago. Not till he arrived at the Church did he discover that it was Nonconformist, which led his political opponents to slyly declare that, being a High Churchman, he had to be absolved before he could proceed with the ceremony.

How Miss Braddon Writes.

A sweet, simple gentlewoman. No better description of the famous lady novelist who recently celebrated her seventy-first birthday could be given; for, in spite of the fame which her writings have brought her, she is never so happy as when concerning herself with housekeeping and children. Miss Braddon is above all things domesticated, and has always made it a rule never to let her work interfere with her home life. Most of her novels have been written in the early hours of the morning, and a curious fact in connection with her work is that, while all her novels have actually been written with her own hand—she has never used a typewriter or employed a secretary for such work—she never writes her MSS. in the the same hand that she writes her letters. The latter are written in a bold, flowing style, while the calligraphy of her MSS. is generally cramped and pointed. It is said that she uses a quill for the one and a steel pen for the other. Before she devoted her energies to writing novels—and it might be mentioned that her output of the latter was over sixty in forty-three years—Miss Braddon wrote poetry, and was at one time an actress playing small parts in the provinces.

Railways in Malaysia.

The iron road is steadily advancing, even across the most unlikely places in the east. The Penang Gazette announces that Sir William Taylor, resident-general of the Federated Malay States, and Mr. C. E. Spooner, C.M.G., general manager of the Federated Malay States Railways, left Kuala Lumpur by train at 4.30 a.m. on Sept. 7, and arrived in Singapore on the same evening, having thus easily established the record of having slept in Kuala Lumpur one night, and in Singapore the next. The train arrived at Johore Bahru at 3.30 p.m., giving ample time thus to go on to Singapore the same afternoon. The full journey from Kuala Lumpur to Johore occupied eleven hours. In places where the line is well established, the resident-general's train traveled 35 miles an hour, but in other places, on the new sections in Johore, it slowed down to 13 miles.

A Papuan Hopper.

In the waters round Papua there is a fish equally curious in western eyes, though by no means so picturesque as the "jelly-boat." This is the hopping fish, which, in the eternal pursuit of food, contrives to spend most of his working day out of the water. To all appearance he seems to be continuously hopping in and hopping out, but, as a matter of fact, he always keeps his tail in the water, for, by one of nature's quaint reversals, it is at that end of him that he keeps his breathing apparatus. In Papuan waters Miss Grimshaw is said to have seen specimens upwards of 20 inches long. A smaller variety is found in the mangrove swamps along the northern coasts.

Kingston General Hospital has received a case of surgical instruments worth $400 from the Women's Hospital Aid Society of Napanee.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Dec. 28.—Trade at the Union Stock Yards today was fairly good and while receipts were exceptionally small, only 11 carloads, there was a good demand and everything was well cleaned up at steady prices.

Export—A few buyers were on the market and from the fact that they wanted the cattle to fill export space, there was a good demand created. There is said to be a good inquiry for really good export cattle, steers and bulls. Export bulls ran all the way from $3.75 to $4.30.

Butchers—For butchers there was a good active demand.

Milkers and Springers—Only a few milkers and springers were offered and for these from $30 to $50 was asked.

Lambs—Prices are steady and unchanged demand for both choice and medium, and the offering was soon cleared out: choice butchers' brought from $4.75 to $5; medium, $4 to $4.40; common, $3.50 to $4, and canners, $1.50 to $2.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered at the market, were quoted yesterday at $6, with $5.75 to drovers, f.o.b., cars, at country points. These prices are practically the same as a week ago.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 28.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 26 were 1043 cattle, 883 sheep and lambs, 1442 hogs and 117 calves.

The offerings this morning for local consumption were 500 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 300 hogs and 100 calves.

A stronger feeling prevailed in the market for cattle and prices were fully ¼c per lb. higher than they were a week ago. This was attributed to the limited supply and the fact that the demand from local butchers was better than it usually is at this time of year, as they generally buy sufficient stock the week before Christmas to supply their requirements until the first market is held in the new year. There has also been some demand from local exporters, and sales of few choice loads were made last week at $5.15 per 100 lbs., and some heavy bulls at 4½c per lb. There was an extra choice load of Ontario stall-fed steers on the market to-day, for which 5½c per lb. was asked; but, as this figure seemed to be higher than buyers cared to pay for stock, they will likely be exported. Cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday stated that trade was slow but prices were firm at an advance of ½c to 1c per lb. as compared with those of a week ago. The top price here to-day for the best steers was 5c, but 5¼c would have been paid for really choice stock. Good cattle sold at 4½c to 4¾c; fair at 3¾c to 4¼c, and lower grades down to 2c per lb.

There was no change in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs, prices being firm for good demand and small supply, and sales of choice lots of sheep were made at 4¼c to 4½c, and culls at 3½c to 3¾c per lb. Lambs brought 5¾c to 6c for choice, and 5¼c to 5½c for good lots, per lb.

Calves met with a fair sale at prices ranging from $2 to $8 each, as to size and quality.

The market for hogs was stronger, owing to the small offerings and good demand for the same. Selected lots held at $6.75 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

His Luck.

"I have been engaged to at least a dozen girls," said a young man.

"And always been unlucky in love, eh?" inquired a lady.

"Oh, no—rather lucky!" was the answer. "I've never married any of them!"

An Order Not Obeyed.

An exasperated Irish sergeant, drilling a squad of recruits, called to them at last:

"Halt! Just come over here, all of ye and look at yourselves. It's a fine line ye're keepin', isn't it?"

The Resemblance.

"I was always interested in airships and flying machines, so I bought a theater."

"Why did you do that?"

"A theater has wings and flies."

All who have gardens know what a pest the green fly, or aphis, becomes. It seems to cover rose trees and other plants like magic.

A Valuable Milestone.

A well known novelist was touring through Lancashire in order to learn something of the lives of the inhabitants when he came upon an old man breaking stones on the roadside and, thinking he might gain some knowledge from him, addressed him thus:

"How far is it to Fleetwood, my man?"

"You'll see a milestone a bit farther on," was the gruff reply.

"What's the use, if I can't read?" said the novelist, eager to draw the old man into a conversation.

"Then it'll just suit you, for there's nowt on it," said the old fellow.—London Graphic.

Pope Sees Joan of Arc?

Rome, Dec. 29—The Italia publishes a report, which has caused a sensation in ecclesiastical circles, that Joan of Arc recently appeared in a vision to the Pope and addressed him solemn words of encouragement, exhorting his holiness to continue his present policy, which she promised would shortly be crowned with triumph.

It was while the holy father was plunged in devout prayer and meditation in his private oratory, immediately after the ceremony of reading the degree of beautification, that the apparition appeared.

It was noticed that when the Pope came out of the oratory he was very pale, and during several days maintained a marked silence.

Longboat Is Married.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—At St. John's Anglican Church last night at seven o'clock Thomas Longboat was married to Miss Lauretta Maracle of Deseronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. H. Creegan, the rector in charge of the Indian Reserve at Deseronto.

As no announcement was made of the church in which the marriage would take place the wedding was a very quiet one. Miss Essie Clause of Albany, N.Y., was the bridesmaid, and Thomas Flanagan, Longboat's manager, acted as best man, while the bride was given away by her brother, Albert Maracle of the reserve.

Waterworks Surplus.

Brantford, Dec. 29.—The Brantford waterworks system, at present the only municipally-owned public service of this city, declared the splendid surplus this year over and above payment of interest and sinking fund of $12,400.

The net earnings were $51,793.68, being $6,000 in excess of last year. This showing is the best yet.

Killed a Greaser.

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 29.—Wm. G. Morse is under arrest at Trinidad, Cal., on a charge, it is said, of killing a Mexican. Morse, who is a son of Prof. S. F. B. Morse of telegraph fame, was a member of President-elect Taft's class at Yale.

Future of Labor.

New York, Dec. 29.—"In the future, labor is to rise still higher. The joint stock form opens the door to the participation of labor as shareholder in every branch of business. In this, the writer believes, lies the final and enduring solution of the labor question. Nothing can stand against the direct management of owners. We are only pioneers whose duty is to start the movement, leaving to our successors its full and free development as human society advances."

These are striking statements found in an article by Andrew Carnegie in the January number of The World's Work. The article is taken from Mr. Carnegie's new book, "Problems of To-Day."

Drowned In Vinegar.

Pittsburg, Dec. 28.—Caetano Coconello, aged two years, of McKeesport, is dead at his parents' home, the victime of a most unusual accident. The boy fell into a barrel of pickled peppers and was drowned in the vinegar.

Amateur Cracksmen Foiled.

Neepawa, Man., Dec. 28.—Amateur cracksmen broke open two blacksmith shops and then broke into Crawford & Co.'s store, and with stolen tools made an apparently unsuccessful attempt on the safes.

Spring at Calgary.

Calgary, Dec. 28.—This city is experiencing beautiful spring weather. Saturday games of tennis and foot ball were played. The temperatur at noon was 50.

Brutal Assault on Sister.

London, Dec. 29.—George Cook of St. Thomas was arrested yesterday on a charge of assaulting his sister, Mrs. Howell, a widow, with whom he had come to spend Christmas.

The police found Mrs. Howell hidden in a clothes closet at three o'clock in the morning with her face a mass of bruises and covered with blood. She did not regain consciousness for some hours.

Vancouver Terminals.

Vancouver, Dec. 29.—Counsel for the Hill railways announced yesterday that recent purchases of land made on the east end of Falls Creek were made, with a view to establishing permanent terminals in Vancouver. Approximately a million dollars' worth of property has changed hands during the last ten days in connection with the deal.

Strathcona Will Stay.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, who recently arrived from London, where he has been negotiating with the Imperial authorities on the cheap cable proposition, made an important statement touching the rumored retirement of Lord Strathcona from the High Commissionership last night.

There is, he declared, not a foundation for the many stories going the rounds of newspapers on both sides of the Atlantic regarding the retirement of Lord Strathcona. The Canadian High Commissioner, Mr. Lemieux stated, will, if he so desires, remain in London as the representative of the Dominion as long as there is breath in his body.

The Lemieux Act.

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—Prof. Shortt, civil service commissioner, goes to Atlantic City this week, where he will address the legislation committee of the American Federation of Labor on the working of the Lemieux Act. The labor organizations of the United States are at the present time taking a good deal of interest in the working of the Canadian law.

The Hat and the Title.

There is an amusing English definition of "gentleman." It is "a man who wears a silk hat and if he has no other title insists upon having 'Esq.' added to his name when letters are addressed to him."

The west end Londoner of social pretensions accepts this definition in practice. Summer and winter, in rain or shine, he wears a high silk hat in the streets of London and carries it into the drawing room when he pays an afternoon call. It is only when he takes a train for the provinces or for the continent that he ventures to use more comfortable headgear. He also expects to have the distinction of "esquire" when a letter is addressed to him and is highly offended if he finds on the envelope the prefix "Mr." As a matter of fact, the number of English gentlemen who are legally entitled to the mediaeval honor of "esquire" is insignificant. It is a self assumed title which signifies nothing that is substantial in rank or privilege. In common use in London "esquire" simply means that the person so addressed does not choose to be associated with tradesmen and ordinary working people and that he is a "gentleman" who invariably wears a silk hat.

Mixed Metaphor.

The late Mr. Ritchie when chancellor of the exchequer once asserted that "the question of moisture in tobacco is a thorny subject and has long been a bone of contention." His immediate successor in office, Austen Chamberlain, remarked at the Liberal Union club's dinner that the harvest which the present government had sown was already coming home to roost.

Sir William Hart-Dyke has two conspicuous "howlers" to his credit—the description of James Lowther as having gone to the very top of the tree and landed a big fish and the comforting assurance that his government had got rid of the barbed wire entanglements and was now in smooth water. Among other political examples of mixed metaphor are the prediction ascribed to a labor member that if we give the house of lords rope enough they will soon fill up the cup of their iniquity and an Irish member's complaint that a certain government department is iron bound in red tape.—London Standard.

A Fable.

Once Upon a Time there was a Young Man who met Two Nice Girls, who were Constantly Together. Now, he was an Astute Young Man, and he desired to say Something Pretty and Agreeable to the Ladies, but he knew that if he paid a Compliment to One of them, No Matter which, the Other would be Hurt.

So he Thought Rapidly for a moment, and then he said:

"Ah, I know Why you Two Girls are Always Together!"

"Why?" asked the Two Girls.

"Because Everybody says that A Handsome Girl Always Chooses a Homely One as a Companion, So That Her Beauty may be Enhanced by the Contrast."

After Such a Remark, either Both Girls would be Angry with him or Delighted.

And what Do you think Happened?

The Two Girls Blushed and said he was A Flatterer and went their way Together, each Happy for Herself and Sorry for the Other.—London Answers.

The Flag.

On June 14, 1777, the Continental congress resolved that the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, and that the Union be thirteen white stars on a blue field. On Jan. 13, 1794, by an act of congress, the flag was altered to fifteen red and white stripes and fifteen stars. On April 4, 1818, congress again altered the flag by returning to the original thirteen stripes and fifteen stars, as the adding of a new stripe for each additional state would soon make the flag too large. A new star is added to the flag on July 4 following the admission of each new state.—New York American.

Force of Habit.

"The question of enlarging the church comes up tonight, John, doesn't it?"

"Yes, dear, and we expect to have a lively time. They tell me the opposition to the pastor will be strong. Where's my overcoat? Oh, yes! And now I want the tin horn and the cowbell and the big rattle."

"Mercy, John, what are you going to do?"

"Do! Why, I'm going to root for the pastor."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Estimate.

"Old man Titewad must be worth a billion dollars," observes the man with the ingrowing mustache.

"Nonsense!" says the man with the dejected ears. "He hasn't over a hundred thousand to his name."

"But I was estimating it at what he would be worth if a dollar was as big as he thinks it is."—Chicago Post.

A Human Bungalow.

Pilkson didn't impress you favorably, then?"

"No; he's just a bungalow."

"A what?"

"A bungalow. He hasn't any foundation."—Newark News.

A Freak.

Jubb—Why, Jimmy, you look as if you'd grown four feet since I last saw you. Jimmy—Huh! I wish I had. I'd exhibit in a dime museum as the "human quadruped" and get a pile of money, I would.

The intellect of the wise is like glass; it admits the light of heaven and reflects it.—Hare.

Ed. Jeffrey, while driving across Bay Lake, lost his team worth $275 through the ice.

HEADACHES ARE DANGER SIGNALS
They Tell Us Plainly That Something Is Wrong Inside.

There are tablets and powders that will stop a headache promptly—but removing a danger signal does not take away the danger.

In nearly every case a headache—of whatever kind—is a symptom of poisoned blood, due to Bowels, Kidneys and Skin failing to thoroughly remove indigestible food and waste, worn-out tissue from the body. Then digestion is poor, causing sick headaches, or uric acid is formed and deposited on the nerves, causing neuralgia.

Not only the danger signal, but the danger itself as well, is quickly removed by "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" are tablets made of the combined juices of oranges, apples, figs and prunes, containing all their medicinal properties, concentrated and intensified. They cause the liver to secrete more bile, which moves the bowels freely and regularly, and cures the most obstinate cases of Constipation. They stir up kidneys and skin to throw off all the urea, or dead tissue, which has been poisoning the system. They sweeten the stomach, improve digestion and tone up the whole body. The headaches disappear—because the source is removed. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. Trial size, 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

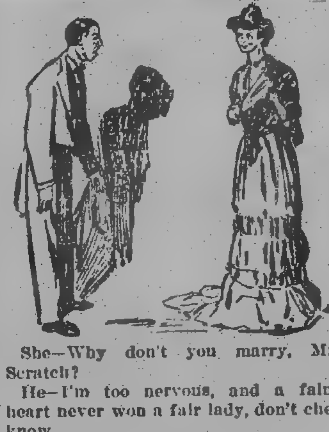
ABOUT MABEL.

Mabel puzzles me a lot,
Mabel's changeable, I ween,
Pretty Mabel, who is not
Any more than fair eighteen.
Mabel has such ruby lips,
Oh, her charms are very many!
Last year she had rounded hips.
This year Mabel hasn't any.

Mabel's eyes are azure blue,
Mabel's cheeks are rosy pink.
She would take your heart from you
If she only smiled, I think.
Yet a fickle maid she trips
Through the world in ways uncanny.
Last year she had rounded hips.
This year Mabel hasn't any.

Mabel's smile is still the same,
Mabel says her heart is mine,
Seeing her you would not blame
Me for kneeling at her shrine.
But the changes Mabel slips
Over me are far too many.
Last year she had rounded hips.
This year Mabel hasn't any.
—Detroit Free Press.

The Ingenious Maiden.



She—Why don't you marry, Mr. Scratch?

He—I'm too nervous, and a faint heart never won a fair lady, don't cher know.

She—Yes, but I'm dark.—Tatler.

Getting a Substitute.

"Never get out of trouble by bringing it on some one else," remarked a man on the train the other day. "I remember," he continued, "when I was a small boy I was one day going along the road when I came upon a man holding a ram by the horns. As I came up he said, 'Here, sonny, hold this ram till I climb over the fence and unlock the gate.' I took hold of the ram, and he went over the fence. When safely over he said: 'Thanks. I've been holding him for an hour. I hope you get rid of him as easily as I did.'"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Not Fit For Publication.

"Isn't it scandalous about the Wappsleys?"

"What about them? I understand that Mrs. Wappsley has secured a divorce, but I haven't learned any of the particulars."

"Nobody else has. The case is such a nasty one that the records have all been hidden." — Chicago Record-Herald.

He Was a Mean Man.

"What's the matter now?"

"Before we were married you used to steal kisses from me."

"You mean when your face was turned away?"

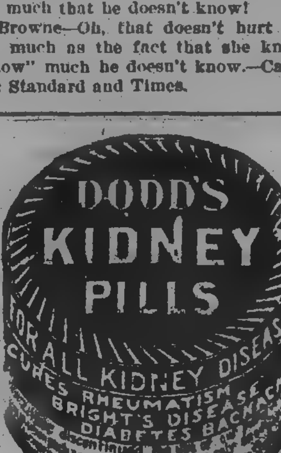
"Yes."

"Well, if you'll turn your face away I'll see if I can get up enough courage to steal one now."—Houston Post.

The Knowledge That Hurts.

Towne—So Dumley married a college woman. My, it must be fierce for him to be tied to a woman who knows so much that he doesn't know!

Browne—Oh, that doesn't hurt him so much as the fact that she knows "how" much he doesn't know.—Catholic Standard and Times.



CANADA STILL HEADS.

Despite Restrictions It Is Favorite With Britons Seeking Homes.

The British Board of Trade has issued a White Paper, which throws an interesting light upon the decrease which is to be noted this year in emigration, the recent restrictions instituted in Canada, in addition to those in America, having brought about a very remarkable difference in the total of emigrants leaving or passing through the United Kingdom.

Taking first the returns for the month alone, one finds that 14,437 persons left the British Isles for places within the boundaries of the British Empire; last July the total was 22,424. Of the total of 14,437 emigrants, 12,794 were of British origin. The foreign emigrants, except for a negligible proportion, went to Canada and South Africa, the former country taking 1,344 and the latter 219 out of a grand total of 1,643. In the case of the emigrants of British origin, Canada, despite the recent restrictions, which are stemming the tide of emigration to the extent of one-half the total for July, 1908, being 7,446, against a total for July, 1907, of 14,767, has the largest total of any country, though the tide of emigration during the month set almost as strongly to the United States, to which 7,327 Britishers emigrated in the month. Australia and New Zealand came next to the States, with a total of 3,087 emigrants of British origin. In this case the rate of emigration is on the way to doubling itself, the figures for the month in 1907 being 1,502. South Africa showed little change, there being 1,432 emigrants in July, 1908, against 1,407 last year. India attracted 301 persons, compared with 233 in July, 1907, and other British possessions are credited with a total for the month of 528 British emigrants, compared with 433 in 1907.

SNAKE IN LIQUOR STORE.

Winnipeg Merchant Horrified by the Sight of Huge Reptile.

How would you feel it, when you went to business in the morning and on opening your safe, you saw a big snake, five feet in length, coiled up in a corner beside your money and books?

That was the sight that met the gaze of J. Rosenthal recently at his store in Winnipeg, when he started work. Mr. Rosenthal was opening a wholesale liquor store and had been getting the place put into shape.

Though it would seem that a liquor store is the proper place to see snakes, the proprietor hardly expected to have that feeling himself, and when he first spied the reptile he could hardly believe his eyes. To make sure he was awake and not dreaming he promptly called a policeman, and with the aid of the law found that his eyes had not deceived him and that he was perfectly sober. The two then turned the snake out of his adopted home and killed it. The sight of the dead reptile lying on the corner of Market and Main streets drew the attention of many people.

The presence of the snake is accounted for by the fact that during the exhibition the premises were rented by a man who held an exhibition of snakes. One of his pets must have escaped from his keeping and showed up that morning for the first and last time.

Prince and the Ducks.

The fact that Lord Grey, Governor-General of Canada has been in the west on a hunting trip and was the guest of Senator Kirchoffer, will serve to remind many, who are "in the know," of the time that the Prince of Wales went duck-hunting in Manitoba.

As everybody knows, the prince is a remarkably good shot, standing perhaps second only to King Alfonso of Spain as a wing-shot among the royalties of Europe. Many a big bag had fallen to the gun of H.R.H., but it was left for Manitoba to provide a record for the royal sportsman.

He was entertained by Senator Kirchoffer in splendid style and was more than delighted to accept the invitation of the Senator to vary the monotony of receiving addresses and laying corner-stones, by a little run out after the birds.

The distinguished party proceeded to the Senator's preserve and as the dawn broke on the appointed day the heir-apparent was in the bow of a canoe being carefully and silently paddled along the shore.

How many ducks fell before the unerring aim of the royal hunter is still a question, but his bag was a record one, even for Manitoba.

"Splendid sport," H.R.H. is said to have remarked, "but I always understood that your ducks here rose rapidly and drove at a tremendous pace. I found them a trifle slow on the rise and very heavy in getting away."

And then the prince winked in a most unroyal fashion, for he had investigated a little and found his ducks were full of wheat!

How the wheat came there has yet to be officially explained.

New Ticket System.

Hamilton's new street railway is to be fashioned after the Pittsburg system, on the advice of George Blanchard, the American expert, who is here in the interests of the financial backers of the Dominion Power & Transmission Co.

One of the drastic changes to be made at once on his recommendation will be the abolition of fare boxes and tickets. Instead cards good for six and eight trips will be issued, and these will be punched by the conductor. A register system will be used in connection with the system. The company says it loses much money with the present arrangement on account of the inability of conductors to collect all fares on crowded cars.

Egyptian Head In Cathedral Wall.

A carved head, said to be of Egyptian workmanship, has been extracted from a crack in the south tower of Exeter (Eng.) Cathedral, which is undergoing repair. Some time between the eleventh and fifteenth centuries the head had been built into the wall with other rubble.

The body of Wesley Mill was found floating in the lake near Burlington on Christmas morning.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CHRISTMAS TREE

Held Last Evening at the George St. Methodist Church --- An Enjoyable Entertainment

The Epworth League of the George street Methodist church held a very enjoyable Christmas evening last night. The hall was well filled with young people. The stage was prettily arranged with evergreens and in one corner a chimney was built. From this Santa Claus made his appearance and before he distributed the presents from a large Christmas tree, situated on the platform, an informal programme was given. Several contributed songs and recitations.

Mr. Fred Myles made a splendid Santa Claus. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

THREE YEARS OF HARD LUCK LEAD FINALLY TO SUCCESS

Mining Claims Situated Near Drummond's New Ontario Home Yield Their Hidden Riches to Plucky Prospectors—The Reward of the Stayer.

One of the most interesting discoveries made in the Cobalt regions in the past six months is that on what is known as the Flynn property at the head of Cross Lake and now owned by the Pontiac Silver Mining Company. The property adjoins the Drummond Mine, formerly owned and controlled by the late Dr. Drummond, the French-Canadian poet. Its history dates back to the pioneer days of Cobalt, in the year 1903, when Paul Auger, a French-Canadian from Ville Marie, met some companions, who were sent out by a French syndicate to prospect on the "Flynn" for silver. A large calcite vein, generally the forerunner of native silver was discovered on the property and was worked with a vim by the prospectors, who knew but little of mining. Dr. Drummond's house overlooked the claim, and from the window of his library the poet had a good view of the men as they toiled and delved after the great white lucre. It is said that he was approached one day by a member of the syndicate who wished him to aid them with a little capital to continue the work. Whether or not the Dr. gave any financial backing is not known. He did, however, become interested to the extent of writing one of his famous poems on the property, "The Vein Calcite," in which he recounted the many misadventures of the Ville Marie prospectors. The property was abandoned in the fall of 1904 with still no showing other than "hTe Vein Calcite." Since then it changed hands half a dozen times and was prospected by as many companies, with the same "Larder Lake" luck. About two months ago Mr. H. P. Davis, of Cobalt, who is considered to be an expert mining man, paid a trip to the property, and from the formation on the "Flynn" and its situation with respect to the best shipping mine in Cobalt, decided to negotiate a deal for the purchase of the property. Mr. Davis was not discouraged by the ill-luck of his predecessors, as it was well known that none of them knew much of mining. Accordingly, the Pontiac Silver Mining Company was organized by him, and the property was purchased for $100,000.00. Men were immediately put to work once more, and within eight days after the commencement of operations a rich silver vein six inches in width, and averaging 3000 ounces to the ton in native silver was discovered. It has been for this time stripped for about 200 feet, and for the whole distance presents its width and values.

Mr. Davis was met on the Cobalt square by Mr. George McPherson, his mine captain, who had just brought in an elegant sample from the new discovery. He looked at the rich diabase rock and philosophically exclaimed, "It is the reward of three years' hard luck, nothing more'."

REEVE SCOTT OF SMITH AGAIN ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Reeve R. N. Scott and the council of the township of Smith were returned by acclamation at the nominations held yesterday. This is the fourth time that Mr Scott has been elected to the reeveship by acclamation and he is to be heartily congratulated. He accepted the office in June of 1905, when Mr Ed Elliott resigned to become County Clerk.

Mr Scott has proved himself a valuable servant in municipal affairs, for the people of Smith and the fact that he has again been given the office by acclamation is an evidence of the confidence reposed in him by the electors of his township.

He has also proved himself to be a faithful and efficient member of the County Council. He has done good work as chairman of the House of Refuge Committee and also of the County Property Committee. His name has been mentioned as the one to hold the Wardenship during 1909, and it is altogether likely that this proposal will not meet with any opposition. Reeve Scott thoroughly understands the county affairs and into no better hands could they be entrusted.

The council of Smith for 1909 is as follows—

Reeve—R N Scott.
Deputy Reeve—T H Graham.
Councillors —J H Garbutt, Fred McKee and Wm Davis.

MASONS CELEBRATE THE FESTIVAL OF ST. JOHN

Largely Attended Gathering of the Fraternity at the Masonic Hall Last Night—Installation of Officers Elect for 1909.

The festive of St John the evangelist, falling on the date of December 27th is an occasion celebrated the world over by the Masonic fraternity. Among the lodges and brethren of Peterborough the day loses none of its importance and is an annual gathering calling to the lodge all within reasonable reach of its borders. The ceremony of installation of the officers elect for the coming year is also a feature of the occasion.

As the city has grown and attained increased importance so the Masonic lodges have gained membership and the gathering brought to the hall nearly 300 of the brethren. The formal work was taken up at 5.30 pm. and concluded shortly after seven o'clock. Then an adjournment was made to the dining hall where an ample lunch had been laid out by Bro. Thos. Hooper, the able caterer. The tables were tastefully decorated and the viands, of the best and skillfully served.

V. W. Bro D. Spence filled the chair and handled the duties of the office He proposed "The King," which was duly honored.

W. Bro. Alex Gibson proposed the "Grand Master and Grand Lodge of Ontario, in Canada," and after being received in due and ancient forms, was responded to by Right W Bro D. Walker, who gave some interesting details of the administration work. He felt that as an administrative body it compared very favorably with any body in Canada.

To the toast of "Canada" W Bro. H R H Kenner responded, sketching briefly the intellectual progress that Canada had made, with some reference to its natural resources and ultimate development. Referring to the operations culminating in battle on the Plains of Abraham, he said that one of the victories that helped to determine the progress of nations for years to follow, the victory of Wolfe was a notable one. Canada possessed all the attributes of a beautiful land, teeming with great natural resources. Canada has only recently reached the stage where literature and art are encouraged, but in education she has done nobly, and far in advance of such progress as made by other countries. She has given to the world names which are esteemed in the field of science. What the future held for Canada no one could say. It might be independence, it might be better field of imperial federation, but the working out of her place among the nations was in the hands of the people.

W Bro John Crane proposed the toast of "The Newly Installed Officers" of the respective lodges — W Bro W G Morrow and W Bro W Hill.

W Bro Morrow of Corinthian Lodge thanked the lodge for the preference accorded him and trusted that he would so devote his energy to the work that he would prove worthy of the confidence placed in him. He could do no more, and desired nothing better than to follow the example set by his predecessors and what they had accomplished.

W Bro W Hill of Peterborough lodge said that he fully realized the importance of the position he had assumed and knowing that he had able assistance at hand he hoped to acquaint himself with credit to the lodge and the order.

W. Bro M A. Morrison gave the toast of "The Visiting Brethren," referring to a visitor present whose experience was rather unique. He welcomed the visiting brethren to the hall and the lodge at any time and extended a hearty and cordial welcome whether old or young in Masonry.

Bro. Mantle, of Tillsonburg lodge, who rejoiced in the ripe old age of 100 years, all but a few months and who is the oldest Mason in Canada, spoke and received close attention. He said he had reached a ripe old age in Masonry but recalled many years of agreeable intercourse and friendly relations. He referred to the cord that binds us together, composed of so many strands. Of these the most powerful was love—that kept the earth in motion. He felt that among Masons he was ever among friends and brothers.

The toast of "The Absent Brethren," found an able exponent in Rt. W Bro Walkey, who said that to each brother had been sent a copy of the programme, timed to reach the recipient on the evening of St John's day. He also read extracts from letters received from several of the absent brethren transmitting messages of affection and regards to the mother lodges.

Rt W. Bro R E. Wood proposed the toast of "The Retiring Officers," and W Bro. T. F Matthews and W Bro. E. E Lord, duly responded to the sentiment.

W. Bro. Matthews of Corinthian lodge, said the year of office had been to him a pleasant and instructive duty, and he acknowledged the very able assistance he had received. In feeling terms he referred to the loss by death of Bros. Pringle, McCallum and Parker, who had passed away, but he sincerely hoped all would be spared to meet again around the Masonic altar and festive board.

W. Bro Lord of Peterborough lodge had nothing but kindness, assistance and consideration to remember all of which had helped to lighten his duties and relieve the responsibilities.

In recognition of his services as Installing Master V. W. Bro, Spence received compliments on his skill and dexterity, all of which he duly acknowledged.

Other toasts and replies were given and made and the evening closed in due and ancient forms.

Following is the list of officers for each lodge for the ensuing Masonic year:

In addition to the addresses preceding and following the list of toasts a feature of the evening was the entertainment added by kindness of several of the brethren. Of these W Bro. Stocker gave a song; Bro McIlroy, a song Bro Morphet and Bro Bennet, each a song; all ably supplemented by the kindness of W Bro Crane as accompanist.

In addition Bro Rev J R Webb, pastor of Murray street Baptist church gave a short paper on "Some principles of Masonry as exemplified in the life of St John the Evangelist."

The paper was a thoughtful analysis of the subject of the discourse, and he learned as the result of study that the dominating characteristics of that great man were sincere, affection, lawful support, a man utterly faithful to every man to whom he was intimately related, absent fidelity, a high sense of duty through a long life of suffering and long after the other members of the apostle body had passed away. The crowning virtue of this great man was truth and almost the last version was to express his joy that his friends were standing together in truth.

TREE FELL ON MAN WORKING IN THE WOODS

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Dec. 28.—Mr. Fred. Vansickle, for some time a resident of town, but now residing on a farm near Vansickle post office, 15 miles north-east of here, was seriously injured on Saturday last by a falling tree. He was in the woods with other men and a falling tree caught on another, and in attempting to dislodge it he was caught under its mighty weight and severely hurt. It struck him first on the side of the head and then across the abdomen. Dr. McKecknea of Marmora, who was called to attend the injured man, was unable to tell how badly he was hurt at that time.

A Warning

One month in gaol for a blacklisted man who got drunk in Peterborough should prove a salutary warning to Lindsay's derelicts.—Lindsay Post.

THEATRICAL

Natures' Nobleman, was the bill offered by the Cook Stock Company last evening to a fair sized audience, and if the performance given last evening is any criterion of what the company intends to present during the remainder of the week, lovers of repertoire and vaudeville can make no mistake in patronizing the coming bills.

The play given last night was a bright four act comedy drama containing besides an abundance of funny situations, a fairly good plot developed in a natural and pleasing way. The specialties which were put on in the intervals between acts were bright and original, the singing, juggling and magic being of a very high order. To-night's play will be "Ranch 7-11," an attractive western drama.

ABOUT APPEALS

The late Sir Samuel Henry Strong of the Supreme Court of Canada, before he became Chief Justice, in expressing concurrence with the decision of the late Chief Justice Sir W J Ritchie, in the Shelburne election case, on the 27th and 28th October, 1887 in which Thomas Robertson appealed from the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. John Wimburn Laurie, et al., being respondents, gave utterance to a remark that probably may have some very direct bearing upon the cases at present in the courts under the Dominion controverted election act, saying that an extremely strong case should be shown to induce the court to allow an appeal from the judgment of the court below on preliminary objections. It was held by the Chief Justice that an order extending time for service of an election petition filed at Halifax, from five days to fifteen days, on the ground that the respondent was at Ottawa, is a proper order for the Judge to make in the exercise of his discretion under section 10, of chapter 9, RSC. It would seem, according to Chief Justice Ritchie, and Mr Justice Henry, that the court below had power to make rules for the service of an election petition out of the jurisdiction. Mr Justice Strong's words are as follows:

"I am of opinion that this appeal should be dismissed. In the first place, I consider the order was an exercise of discretion by the Judge, which is not properly a subject of appeal. But even if we treat it as an appealable decision I am of opinion that it was in every respect a proper order to be made. The application for an extension of time was only a proper precaution to take having regard to the short delay allowed, and to the possibility of the respondent being absent from Ottawa when the papers reached that place.

"It was held in the second Charlevoix case that an appeal did not lie from judgments on preliminary objections. Subsequently to that decision the law was altered and an act passed authorizing such appeals. I think, however, from the circumstance, that such an appeal as the present has been brought, that the court ought to be astute to find reasons for disallowing appeals of this kind, which in the majority of cases will be brought merely for dilatory purposes."

Justices Fournier, Henry and Taschereau concurred.—Toronto Globe.

HARD LUCK

It is impossible to satisfy everybody at any one time or place, on any one subject.

The old saying that what is meat to one is poison to another, applies with equal force to other departments of life besides the table.

A good example of this varied application is shown in the fact that the beautiful mild weather of the early part of the season while pleasant to be out in has caused much distress among the merchants of the country who sell clothing and expect to sell at a profit early in the season. Failing to do this, their stocks are on their hands and bills coming due failures and assignments are inevitable.

We are sorry to see our friends, Lang and Maher, the men's clothing and furnishing dealers are struggling under this disadvantage, and have been forced to place their stock in the hands of a clearance agent to dispose of in short notice.

The announcement of the affair will appear in tomorrow's Review.

FORMER RESIDENT OF PETERBORO'

Passed Away in Kingfisher, Oklahoma—Death of Mr. Thos. Menzies

The news of the death of Mr Thos. Menzies, a former well known and prominent resident of Peterborough was received in the city yesterday. He passed away at his home at Kingfisher, Oklahoma.

The late Mr Menzies was a native of Perthshire, Scotland, where he was born in January 1832. He was the only son of a family of four children who came to America in 1851. After a year's residence in New York the family came to Peterborough and Mr Menzies then about twenty-one years of age, entered into employment with a Mr Rogers, who conducted a general store in Ashburnham. After five years in the capacity of clerk Mr Menzies went into the stationery business on his own accord, in the premises now occupied by Cunningham's music store. Here he, in the course of about thirty years built up a large business in his line, subsequently adding private banking. Mr Menzies was not only devoted to and successful in, his business but found time to take an active interest in municipal matters, and was for several terms a member of the town council and was mayor for one term.

Nineteen years ago Mr Menzies and family removed to Oklahoma, where they have since resided. Mr Menzies is survived by Mrs Menzies, two sons and four daughters. The daughters are Mrs R S Davidson, and Mrs K. J Leon, city; Mrs George Lang, Kingfisher, Oklahoma, and Mrs E Watrous, Enid, Oklahoma. The sons are Stanley of Hennesy, Oklahoma, and Thomas at home. The late Mrs Robert Graham, Lakefield was a sister.

OBITUARY

MRS. BENJAMIN MOON.

The death occurred last evening at Nicholls Hospital of Mrs. Benjamin Moon, after an illness extending over some weeks. The deceased was 27 years of age and was born at Tunbridge Wells, Kent, England. Her maiden name was Jane Hallett, she being the daughter of Thos. Hallett, of this city. She came to this country with her husband three years ago. She leaves no family.

The funeral will take place on Thursday at 2.30 o'clock, from the family residence, 486 Cambridge st., to the Little Lake cemetery.

ALFRED SAMUEL WRIGHT.

The death took place at South Bend, Ind., last Sunday, of Alfred Samuel Wright, a native of Peterborough. Deceased, who came to his death as a result of a very sudden attack of heart disease, had been connected, during the past 25 years with the Studebaker Carriage and Automobile Company. He was prominently connected with the Knights of Pythias Society, having held the high position of Commander of the South Bend branch of that organization, the members of which escorted the remains to the station of that city, where they were taken in charge by an only brother, Albert, of Chicago, and brought on to Peterborough. The latter had received a letter from deceased about a week ago, in which no mention was made of his death. A few days later came very unexpectedly.

Deceased was a widower and leaves to mourn his loss only his mother and the one brother.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 192 Sherbrooke street on Wednesday at 3 p.m.

MICHAEL KYLIE.

The death occurred in Rochester of a former resident of Peterborough, in the person of Mr. Michael Kylie. He passed away very suddenly while spending Christmas with his son. He was 74 years of age and was born in Limerick, Ireland. He left here forty-five years ago.

Messrs. John, Martin, Dennis and James Kylie, and Richard, of Lindsay, are brothers of the deceased. Messrs. Dennis and James left yesterday to attend the funeral.

4 DAY HEEL AND TOE WALK TO BE HELD AT AUBURN N. Y.

A big four days' walk, open to all pedestrians, will be held in Auburn, N.Y., commencing Wednesday, Jan. 13th. This will be an opportunity for Ontario pedestrians, as the walk promises to be a success from every standpoint. The following communication has been received by the sporting editor;—

Auburn.
December 26, 1908.

Company M., 3rd Regt., N.G.N.Y., will promote a grand International 10 hour 2 1-2 hours per night "Square Heel and Toe" walking match at the State Armory, Auburn, N.Y., on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, January 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th, 1909.

Contestants to walk from 8 o'clock until 10.30 each evening.

50 per cent. of the gross door receipts to be divided into six prizes. For full particulars address J. O Thomas, Auburn, N.Y.

GOOD WORK OF B.A.C. TEAM BEAT BELMONTS AND MIDGETS

The B.A.C. captured four games of a double-header in the ten pin league series last night at the P.B.C., taking two each from the Midgets and Belmonts. Their first engagement was with the Belmonts, and the latter being off color, the Scotchmen had no difficulty in winning the first two games. The Belmonts showed their old form, however, in the final game and won out by seventy pins, enough to give them the greatest plunage for the three games. Bruce was easily the best of the winners, though McRae was well up in the last two games. The highest score for the three games was made by Pollard.

In their second game the B.A.C. duplicated their earlier performance, taking the first two games and losing the last, the Midgets winning the final contest by a very narrow margin. Their victory in this game came about in a very peculiar way, a foul by onw of their own bowlers giving them the contest. Hanrahan, who had replaced Craig, was the offender on the last frame. His first ball was called foul by Chief Adams and it was indeed a luck transgression of the rules as the bowler had left up an impossible split. When the pins were reset Hanrahan got a spare and on his extra ball toppled over enough pins to win.

Bruce was again high man, contributing a 200 score that brought his total to 493, which tied him with Pollard for the evening's high score. Campbell was making his debut as a league roller and he created a most favorable impression.

Giroux was high man for the Midgets with Hayes close up.

The Hams and Midgets will meet in a league fixture to-night and Hutch's trio expect to make their best showing of the season. They have signed Gene [illegible] and the giant wrestler will make his first appearance against the Midgets.

A number of other guests have been invited and an impromptu programme will be given.

SPORTING TALK

Fred Simpson, the Peterborough Indian, has agreed to be one of the relay to run Shrubb in New York.

Looks as if Fred Whitcroft, Tom Phillips, of Edmonton, are not equal to the occasion of lifting the Stanley Cup by a long shot. They play again Wednesday.

Tom Phillips had his ankle broken in last night's game. It will be some time before he will be able to play again.

The old-time interest in the Trent Valley Hockey League has apparently been awakened and there is every probability that the league will have a prosperous season.

To-morrow morning at 9.30 there will be a meeting of all the Y.M.C.A. boys held for the purpose of selecting teams for New Year's morning.

On New Year's day, between the hours of nine and twelve o'clock, the gymnasium of the Y.M.C.A. will be thrown open to all the boys in the city between the ages of twelve and eighteen. A hearty invitation is extended to all boys who wish to partake of the privilege so kindly accorded them, to come and participate in the morning's amusement.

HAWKING MACHINES

Catarrh Sufferers Are Nothing But Hawking, Spitting and Blowing Machines, Says an Authority.

Is it possible that in these days when cleanliness and sanitary reform is being preached in the churches, schools and at public gatherings, that thousands of people will continue to suffer from catarrh when there is an absolutely certain remedy always on hand.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is a pleasant, medicated and antiseptic air. Breathe it in and it will cure catarrh. It will stop foul breath, watery eyes and crusts in the nose in a few days.

Mrs. H. W. Wilson, of Johnson St., Wallaceburg, Ont., says:—"Yes, we are great friends to Hyomei for the reason that Mr. Wilson has had catarrh for several years and tried several remedies and doctors but nothing has relieved the trouble like Hyomei. His trouble is from pains across the eyes and a burning or huskiness in his throat. Sometimes much difficulty in breathing, the glands in his eyes and nose swollen and the disease made him literally sick all over. He cannot say enough in praise of Hyomei, and there is nothing that can give better relief to catarrh than this remedy, which we heartily recommend."

A complete Hyomei outfit, consisting of a strong hard rubber pocket inhaler and a bottle of Hyomei costs only $1.00 and extra bottles, if afterwards needed cost only 50 cents each. Wm. Madill, druggist, corner George and Hunter streets, Peterborough, sells it and guarantees it to do exactly as advertised.

Hyomei also cures Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Infant's Croup.

The Comet Now and Then.

Times have changed since 450 years ago, when Halley's comet, for whose reappearance astronomers are now looking, was in the heavens. Then the Christian world prayed to be delivered from "the devil, the Turk and the comet." Now it says the devil is not so black as he has been painted, the Turk is a negligible quantity, and the comet would be rather welcome than otherwise.—Boston Transcript.

Balloons and Bullets.

Experiments conducted abroad have demonstrated that balloons traveling at a height of from 600 to 2,000 yards could be hit only once out of six shots, while they were absolutely safe at a height of 3,000 yards. Even when struck the damage to the gas bag was so small that the balloon was able to continue its journey for hours before the escaping gas made a landing necessary.

GOOD OUTLOOK FOR TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE THIS WINTER

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Dec. 28.—Interest in the games of the Trent Valley Hockey League should run high, as there are two trophies to be contested for. A silver cup, valued at $20.00, has been donated the cup to be the property of any club winning the championship two years in succession. The donor is keeping his identity unknown until the trophy is won by some club.

Mr. J. W. Pearce, M.M.A., Hon. President of the Trent Valley Hockey League for this year, has also offered a cup, to be awarded to the team winning the championship of the league one year or two years in succession, as the executive may decide.

Havelock opens district No. 2 on Monday, Jan. 4th, in a game with Marmora. The Havelock team as yet have not been together on the ice, but the manager is quite confident of putting up a team of stick handlers that will do some fine work.

THE SCHEDULE OF THE CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE DRAWN UP

The City League had business of moment to transact last night when they drew up the schedule and elected Mr. F. D. Craig as secretary in succession to Mr. B. T. Huston, who has gone to Toronto. The president of the league, Mr. C. G. Graham, was in the chair.

The first game of the season will be played on Thursday night, Jan. 7th, and there will be two games every Thursday night until Feb. 4th. Thus the season will be extended over a period of five weeks.

The referee board will be composed of the following;—Messrs. George Lynch, W. E. Wasson and H. P. Morgan.

The schedule is as follows;—

Jan. 7—T.A.S. vs. West Ends, Strathconas vs. Belmonts.

Jan. 14—Belmonts vs. Lakefield, T.A.S. vs. Strathconas.

Jan. 21.—Belmonts vs. T.A.S., Lakefield vs. West Ends.

Jan. 27—T.A.S. vs. Lakefield, Strathconas vs. West Ends.

Feb. 4—West Ends vs. Belmonts, Strathconas vs. Lakefield.

WANDERERS RAN AWAY FROM EDMONTON IN SECOND HALF

Montreal, Dec. 28.—It does not look as though the Stanley Cup would leave Montreal for a while yet. The Wanderers piled up seven goals to Edmonton's 3, and the aggregation of eastern stars under western colors retired a badly beaten and badly battered outfit.

For the first half they looked good enough, and at the interval Whitcroft and his hired men were in the lead by 3 to 2.

That was as far as they got, however, for in the second session the cup-holders simply swamped them. It was not a great exhibition of hockey but it was nothing if not strenuous. The Wanderers started at a terrific clip and Edmonton responded, falling right into the trap, and gave back check for check. By the time the period was over they were as good as all in.

Tom Phillips was the biggest disappointment of the lot. Throughout the last twenty minutes he was nothing but a traveller.

The game was comparatively clean. Some penalties were handed out, and they were for minor offences. Every seat in the house was filled and attendance was estimated at 6,000.

QUARANTINE MAY AFFECT CANADIAN ICE RACING

The quarantine on American horses and cattle on account of the foot and mouth disease is still on and they are not allowed to pass over the Canadian border. This will affect the racing situation in Canada this winter to quite an extent if the restrictions are not withdrawn. According to the Canadian Sportsman an effort is being made to have the quarantine raised so that the American race horses will be able to start in the Canadian ice races.

The racing situation will be affected very much if the fast horses from across the line dont start. It would result in quite a clean-up in a way for Canadian horsemen but might affect the attendance at the races in view of the limitation of the field.

"HAZEL BRAE" WILL BE KNOWN AS MARGARET COX HOME FOR GIRLS

Extensive Improvements to the Late Dr. Barnardo's Home Just Completed—Large Wing Added and Building Re-papered and Re-painted—Hon. Geo. A. Cox Deserving of Great Credit.

A visit to "Hazel Brae," the late Dr. Barnardo's home for girls, reveals a completely renovated and up-to-date institution. Workmen have performed marvels in improving and repairing the old building and now as one walks through it he is impressed on every side by the brightness and attractiveness of the place. The house has been repapered and a large and spacious wing has been built.

For all these improvements great thanks is due Hon Senator Cox. The Senator owns "Hazel Brae" and when it was pointed out that unless something was done to add to the accommodation of the house, quarters in another city would have to be looked for, he very readily offered to make the changes which lately have been brought to a culmination. The superintendent and local management of the home are deeply indebted to him and are highly pleased with their now splendidly equipped building.

The new wing has been built on the north side of the house. It is three stories high with a basement fitted up with a new laundry and new lavatories. The first floor of the wing is utilized as a dining hall and the thirty or more girls who from time to time make "Hazel Brae" their home have now spacious quarters in which to eat their meals.

What constituted the old dining-room has been moved over a little west of the main building and will be used as a school for the children. The girls' new dormitory is on the second floor. It is bright and well ventilated and will accommodate forty beds, although not more than thirty-two beds is ever needed, as there is seldom more than that number there. However, in case a party arrives from the Old Country there will be ample accommodation for them on the third flat.

The first party of the New Year is expected to sail from England on the 20th of February, arriving here about March the first. The old dormitories will be used for general purposes. In the infirmary, ten can be accommodated whereas before there was room for only six.

The building is heated throughout by steam, a new furnace having been recently installed.

New oilcloth, carpets, blinds, beds and bed linen have been purchased and placed.

The house is very cosy and homelike and is the picture of cleanliness and happiness.

The name of the Home has now been changed from Hazel Brae and will hereafter be known as The Margaret Cox Home for Girls

Excited Individual—See here, Mr. Bangs, you're a scoundrel of the first water! When I bought that horse I thought I was getting a good sound animal, but he's spavined and blind and got the staggers. Now I want to know what you're going to do about it?

Bangs—Something ought to be done, that's a fact.

Excited Individual—Well, I should say there ought!

Bangs—Well, I'll give you the name of a good veterinary surgeon. It's a shame to allow the horse to suffer in that way.

Aesop In "Little Italy."

A schoolteacher in the Italian quarter of an American city told her children the story of the fox and the grapes. Tony was especially delighted with the story and eagerly sought his chum, Joe, who was in another class. By good luck the teacher overheard Tony's version.

In his excited, broken English he told the fable much as it is written until he came to the end. This was his rendering of the climax:

"De olda fox he say: 'Da grape no good anyhow; alla sour! I guess I go geta de banan'!'"

Deadly Vipers.

Besides the lance head viper, "the most deadly of all known reptiles, there are several singularly interesting snakes in Brazil. The surucucu is supposed to cause death in six hours. It is sometimes found nine feet long. Its skin is a dirty, tawny yellow, with dark brown lozenges on the back. It is said to be attracted by fire, but seldom to injure travelers. The fiercest of the lance headed vipers is the jararoca, and it also is a dirty yellow, but it is brown-black about the tail.

"What made Miss Flip look so sour at the ball last night?"

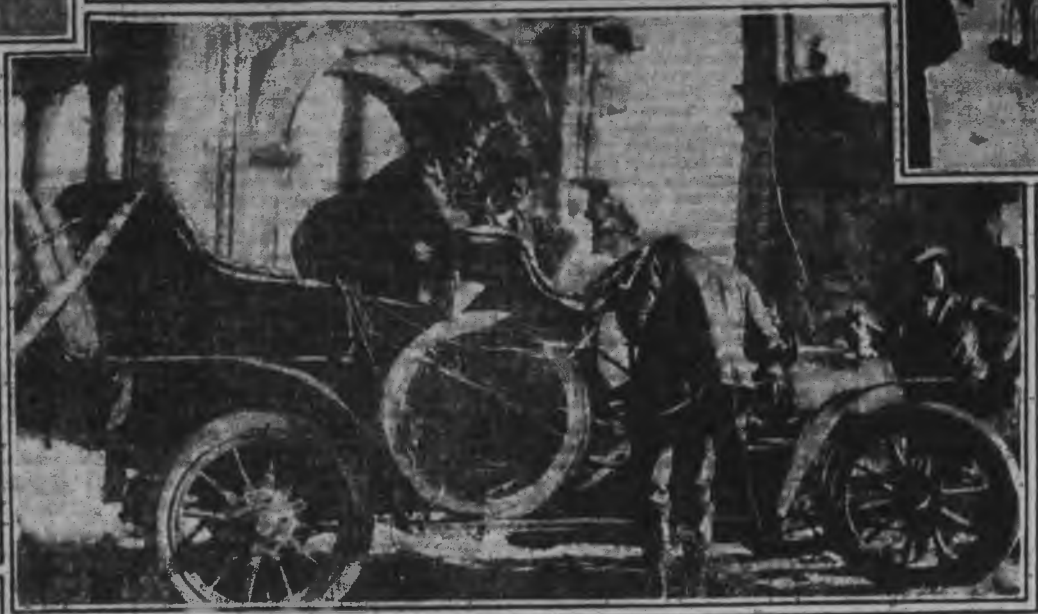
Making Repairs in the Middle of the Desert.

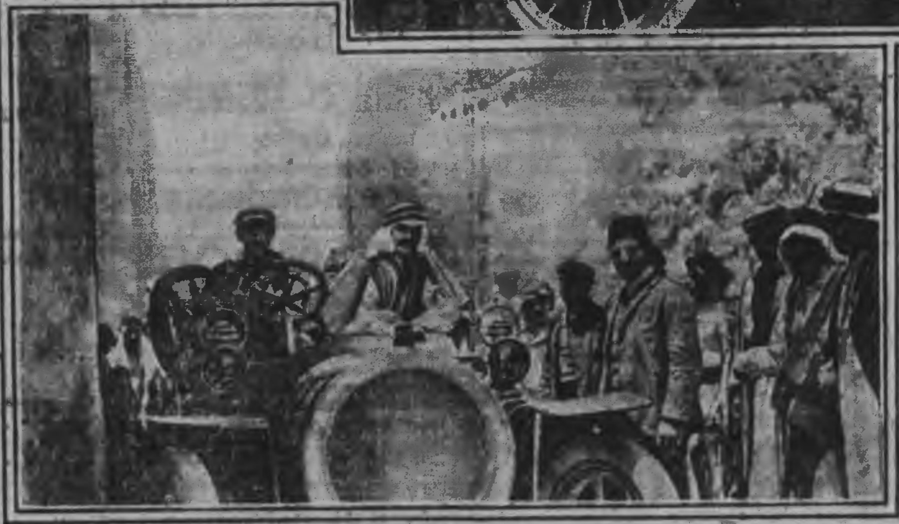
A Halt on Mt. Lebanon.

On the Outskirts of Damascus.

In the Tent of Emir Nimir, the Sebah Tribe at Kuryatan.



In Front of the Triumphal Arch in Palmyra.



Emir Nimir's Third Attempt to Ride the "Devil's Horse."

MR. PHILIP SECAF, a Damascene, was the first to import into Syria an automobile of modern perfection. I had often imagined what a great sensation this self-propelled vehicle would cause among the peasants in the interior of Syria, most of whom had never seen a railroad or even experienced the luxury of a carriage ride, but I did not expect the unusual consternation which we encountered.

Mr. Secaf invited me to accompany him on a trip across the Syrian desert. I at first feared that we might fall into the hands of hostile Bedouins. But I wished to determine the practicability of a service for tourists between Damascus and the ruined city of Queen Zenobia, in the Syrian desert, Palmyra, so I set fear aside.

Well supplied with gasolene and extra tires, we started with joyous anticipation on our initial journey from Beyrout to Damascus over the picturesque Lebanon Mountains. When we were about twenty miles out of Beyrout we stopped for refreshments for ourselves and water for the car's cooling tank. Every person in the village of Ain-Anoub who saw us climbing the steep approach gathered in the village square to look at the wonderful thing that could go without the aid of men or beast. I approached a middle aged man, who seemed to be the village philosopher, and, pointing to the automobile, I asked him what he would call it in Arabic. He looked at me with a smile as if he knew that I wanted him to express his surprise, and said:—

"You brought this devilish machine into our village and you want us to give it a name. I will, if you insist. I would call it the 'Magic Carpet.'"

Another who had recently returned from Cairo called it "Pharaoh's Chariot," and a young girl ran up and said in Yankee accent, "Why, that's an automobile; I saw hundreds of them in New York," and began to explain in her own way how the motor worked.

As we left the village and passed the orchards and vineyards we heard something like the crack of a pistol. It was the bursting of an inner tube. The roadside was full of natours (native guards), who roam about armed with guns and heavy sticks. Dozens of them quickly gathered around the machine. While the chauffeur was busy changing the tires I asked one of them to take a ride. When we had been running about ten minutes the poor fellow asked to be let off, as he was getting "seasick," and I am sorry to say that those few minutes' ride meant for him a good long walk back to his post of duty.

* * *

The summit of the Damascus carriage road is a little over 5,000 feet high, yet our car behaved remarkably well, and with all the roughness of the road (especially that part from Aleh to Shotra) we were able to travel the distance in two hours less than by rail. Future automobilists will find this road and all other roads throughout Syria fit for driving, as under the new régime graft among government officials is done away with.

On reaching Damascus there was a large crowd to meet the first automobile owned by a Damascene. Women, children and grown men came long distances, some in carriages, some on horseback and some walking. They blocked the way and pushed each other as if it were election night in Broadway.

Usually on an expedition by caravan from Damascus to Palmyra the first and most important thing for the safety of the party is the leather water bottles and provisions for the five days' journey on horseback through the desert, but our preparations were altogether different from those of any previous expedition to Palmyra. The first thing we had to consider was how many cans of gasolene and how many extra tires we ought to have. As we expected to make the journey, which was usually made in five days on horseback, in one day by automobile, we were not afraid of a water famine, but feared a shortage in our supply of gasolene and tires. One can imagine our dire predicament if such shortage were to occur. We saw the imperative necessity of loading every available space with the products of the Oil King and attaching the tires to all sides of the car.

Of the five extra tins of gasolene which we carried we used only three, so that, counting the two with which we filled the reservoir before starting, the consumption of gasolene for the round trip was five tins in all. The five extra tires were all used, and we even had to change the tires from the rear to the front wheels, and also use the spare wheel. We only carried two small leather bottles of water, one for ourselves and the other for the cooling tank, and found them ample.

* * *

We left Damascus through the street called Straight and out through Thomas Gate, thence over the Aleppo carriage road as far as Katifeih. Here we turned to the right and went by way of the village of Adameih. In my fourteen years of travel I have met many hospitable sheiks, but never have I met one whose hospitality could compare with that of Sheik Da'ass, of Adameih. This honorable chief is actually happy at the sight of strangers in his village. When we reached his village we intended to spend the night at Jaroud, three miles beyond, at the guest's house of Mohammed Pacha El-Jaroudi, but Sheik Da'ass met us at the entrance of Adameih and insisted on our coming into his house for a rest. The moment we entered he refused to sit with us unless we granted him his wish, saying:—

"Gentlemen, if you think I am worthy of your entertainment I pray you to order the men to bring in your baggage. I beg of you not to disgrace me by refusing my invitation."

This, of course, was not our plan, yet the sincere and kind words he showered upon us made it impossible for us to refuse his earnest plea. I thanked the Lord that I had no tourist with me on this occasion to say:—

"No, I cannot do it. We must go on and get back to catch the steamship."

I do not mean to say that the tourist would be less kind in listening to the appeal of our host, but, as he could not understand the language, those kind words would not be so convincing when translated.

While serving us a liberal dinner, in accordance with Eastern etiquette, Sheik Da'ass waited on us in person. Our appeals were useless, he absolutely refused to sit with us, and therefore I said to him:—

"At your request we altered our programme and agreed to stop with you. We hope for our sake you will join us at dinner."

"For your pleasure I will do anything," he answered, "but to sit at dinner with you would be to break the law of hospitality, which I am sorry to say is dying out. Of the few conservative chiefs who observe the rule I like to be one."

The following morning we left Adameih for Kuryatan. The time required for a camel driver to travel this sixty miles is seventeen hours. The desert begins about six miles east of Adameih and extends for hundreds of miles, far beyond the centre of Arabia. We went for nearly sixty miles without seeing a human being or a green tree, but we met herds of hundreds of gazelles. The desert was as level as the sea, with bare mountains on each side. It had been explained that after leaving Adameih the road would be through the desert between the two mountains. This route we took is not allowed by the government for travellers or caravans on account of the hostility of the Bedouins, and the road for ten years has been closed to traffic. A wide detour has been necessary, heretofore, to reach Kuryatan, and only with a military escort. For a time we thought we had lost our road. Going zigzag among small hills, we anxiously looked on all sides for the village of Kuryatan. We climbed many hills, hoping to see our destination. We stopped to consider our serious situation. There were many roads before us, and the difficulty was which one to take. We decided to take the road that seemed best for an automobile and started with reduced speed among the hills. Kuryatan came suddenly into view, an oasis surrounded a mile on each side by hundreds of green trees. Near Kuryatan we met a number of caravans of camels. A flying, whirring, man made motor car had invaded the land where, from time immemorial, the great method of transportation had been the camel.

* * *

How this mighty traveller of the desert flew in terror before the whistling calliope of the newcomer! How the Bedouin, who but yesterday was singing songs in praise of his beloved animal, now leaves his tent in haste to see what this commotion means! He hears the shrieks of a siren horn and sees a huge thing flying along the road and his herds of camels and cattle running in fright. Back to his tent he hastens, and, terrified, kneels and prays to Allah to protect him and his from this "devil" let loose from Gehenna!

We went on peacefully and reached the threshing village of Kuryatan. Here we were met by Faris Aga, the chief of the village, who had been attracted by the automobile's horn, which was something he could not understand. We stopped. I jumped out to shake hands with him, and he shrank from me. It was several minutes before he recognized me, and then in surprise asked me when I had returned from America.

"Where are the horses of the carriage?" he asked. "How are you able to go without something to pull the car?"

Women, children and old men were running from all directions to see the unknown object; but they were afraid to get too near until, encouraged by Faris Aga, who was now having a thorough look at the car, they dared to close in upon us until it was difficult to keep them at a convenient distance.

Our plans were to leave Kuryatan immediately for Palmyra, but Faris Aga insisted that we should come into his guest's house. I tried to explain that we were endeavoring to establish a record, and his answer was, "Plenty of time!" However, we were not able to go without him, because he is a relative of the Sheik of Palmyra, with whom I was not acquainted. We had to stay. We asked Faris Aga to go with us to his house, but he refused to ride on the "devil's horse." We were therefore obliged, according to the custom of the East, to walk with him. There were a dozen Bedouin chiefs, armed to the teeth, awaiting his return, hoping to learn from him something about the mysterious genii. When they saw him with us they backed out of our way. Leaving Faris Aga and our party, I went over to the Bedouins and addressed them in their mother tongue, which seemed to soothe their fears. The first thing they asked was:—"Have you seen the genii?"

* * *

I tried to explain that it was only a carriage, but even this they did not understand, for they had never seen one. The chauffeur brought the car around and on hearing its noise they were on the alert. I told them that this was our horse and that they need not be afraid, as we were friends of Faris Aga, and, therefore friends to his friends. I beckoned to the chauffeur, called to him to stop, and by argument brought the Bedouins to Faris Aga, who helped me to explain the unknown thing to them. We walked to where the chauffeur had stopped and I jumped in and out of the car before them, kicked it to show them there was no life in it, and tried to explain why we were able to go so swiftly. But they wanted me to show them the horses, where we kept them and how I fed them.

My friend, Mr. Secaf, who is full of fun and has had many experiences with the Bedouins, was laughing at my difficulties. Seeing that my explanations were in vain and that the Bedouins insisted on my showing the horses, he whispered something to me, and, remembering that I had under the seat a Teddy bear which was given to me before leaving New York to take to the Orient as a mascot, I got it out with my left hand, put the other on the horn and said:—"Here is one of our horses!" The noise of the horn and the unexpected sight of the bear put the Bedouin chiefs and villagers to flight. Faris Aga thought it was an altogether unbecoming, if not dangerous, joke. He was afraid the Bedouins might take up arms and seriously try to defend themselves by attacking me. Faris Aga invited them all to go into the guest's house and he called me to speak to them. I asked their chief, Emir Nimer, to ride in the motor, but he replied:—

"No! As long as my horse and camel can carry me through the desert I do not care to ride anything else."

Nevertheless, after luncheon, he consented, and took his seat beside the chauffeur. We expected some surprise, and feared he might try to jump out. But as soon as the car began to move he threw his strong arms around the chauffeur and held him so fast that we were compelled to force him to loose his grasp and thus give the chauffeur a chance to steer the car. A little later he came to me with a serious look, as if disgusted with himself for not trusting to the word of a friend.

"With your permission," he said, "I will take a short ride, provided Faris Aga comes with us."

To this Faris Aga agreed, and we had a good ride at high speed, and both of these desert bred men seemed to enjoy it immensely. The Bedouin Prince, Emir Nimer, wanted to know how much the car cost and how many horses and camels would buy him one.

* * *

In the afternoon the women of our host's family were invited for a drive. Unluckily, before they had gone far one of the tires burst, and they had to walk back. While changing the tires a large crowd which was not quite used to the automobile stood near. A young Bedouin remarked to another, "They are putting new shoes on the horses."

Leaving Kuryatan we had to travel by a rough road through ploughed fields. It was a very discouraging start. Although we were going slower than even the laws of New York city allow, we were badly shaken up and in danger of causing an accident to the motor. Faris Aga, whose custom was to travel on horseback, thought the road excellent. We left the car and scouted for a better road, and found one to the north of the village, a short distance from the so-called caravan road. To us it was anything but a road. The alkali was very thick, large chunks of it covering the entire desert, but there now lay before us a straight road to Palmyra. We should have left Kaser el-Hay to our right, but instead took the longer route by way of a deserted military post of Kaser el-Hay, to find out, for the benefit of future travellers, if water was still obtainable from the twenty fathom well that was dug there by the Turkish government. The barracks had been deserted by the Turkish troops on account of the raids of the warring Bedouins. This part of the road was the worst we came across in our journey. There were large stones in the way, which led us to conclude that there once stood here either a village or an important Palmyrian castle. Considering the heavy weight of the car and the roughness of the road, we were surprised that the motor behaved so well. It gave us no trouble whatever, but we were disappointed to find that, while the well contained plenty of water, the soldiers had taken away with them the especially imported rope, fifty yards long, without which we were helpless.

From the top of the barracks we saw to our left a long stretch of sand covered with dry grass of a yellowish color, and on account of the roughness of the caravan road to Palmyra, which extended eastward, we drove due north for about two miles till we reached the stretch of sand, which, we were exceedingly glad to notice, had a hard bottom and offered as good a road as one could wish. Looking at the sun for bearings, Faris Aga gave us a new landmark, and again we drove full east. As Faris Aga put it, "Tell him (the chauffeur) to drive for that hill, all the time keeping the sun to his right."

This direction was as accurate as that of the best transatlantic captain guiding his ship to Sandy Hook. The change in our course from a road covered with alkali to the smooth roadway of the desert sands gave the motor a remarkable opportunity to show our companions how fast we could go.

Before we were half an hour on the way we sighted Ain el-Bayadah, a Turkish military barracks built on the site of an old Palmyrian castle. Faris Aga thought it was a mirage, and rubbed his eyes to clear his vision. With the field glass the building was clear enough to me, so I drew the attention of Faris Aga to it.

"Aga, isn't this Ain el-Bayadah?"

His reply showed that he was perplexed.

"By the Prophet of Mecca, I am altogether lost. I see the place clearly, yet I do not believe it. It takes me fully seven hours on my swiftest horse from Kaser el-Hay to this place, and now it is only a few minutes since we left. Look, the cigarette I lighted at the other place is still in my hand. Upon my word, it is Ain el-Bayadah. You can see the soldiers taking their horses into the courtyard of the barracks. They are scared, and cannot make us out. No doubt they think the very devil himself got loose in the desert."

Then he became serious, and said:—"Tell him to stop. The soldiers are taking refuge on the roof; they might fire at us."

We immediately stopped out of the range of their guns.

* * *

Faris Aga turned to me and said:—"Is it a flying machine, or what is it? We certainly must have been flying, or we never would have got here so quickly. Wait here till I go and talk to them."

As Faris Aga walked toward the barracks his dress evidently had its effect upon the terrified soldiers. He waved his cane to them—the private signal of his tribe—and walked courageously within talking distance, explaining that he was in company with friends and that the thing they saw was only a horseless carriage. He beckoned to us to come nearer, and we went on very slowly.

When we reached Faris Aga he said:—"Those fellows have no particular fancy for your 'ativablo.' They agreed to let you come in only because they know me and accepted my explanation that the 'ativablo' was simply a carriage without horses."

"Didn't they ask you how it goes without any horses?" I asked him.

"Take my advice," he replied, "and do not try to explain the 'ativablo' to any people you meet, as your explanation is more perplexing than the thing itself. Say it is a horseless carriage that can go by itself."

Seeing the entrance to the barracks open, we walked in and saluted two soldiers, who, we found, were the sole occupants of the place. They might as well not be there at all. They were absolutely helpless and could render no assistance against the raiding Bedouins. They were cordial to us, however, and served us with coffee. I asked one of them what he thought of the automobile when he first saw us coming.

"We first heard a kind of buzzing," he said, "we listened and looked and saw something coming. We thought it was racing with a sandstorm. We immediately decided to take in our horses, close the doors and await your approach."

We stayed at Ain el-Bayadah about half an hour listening to the soldiers' stories of exciting adventure with Bedouins. Speaking of the well, Shawish Mohammed said:—

"Our well here is as old as the desert itself. Every traveller who has gone by this route, from the days of Solomon the Wise till now, must have acknowledged the wisdom of Sayedna Solomon in building Tadmor to shelter his commercial caravans between Jerusalem and the Assyrian Empire. This well, like many others which the modern caravans pass on the way to Bagdad, was dug by Solomon's order."

Whether it was built by Solomon or by Queen Zenobia cannot be determined; but certainly it is as old as tradition itself. The grooves cut by ropes along the inside edge of the well's mouth are four inches deep, indicating very ancient use. After tarrying here a half hour we started on the last "leg" of the trip to Palmyra. The road was rough and we lost two tires on this stretch before we reached our destination.

* * *

The entrance to the ruined city of Palmyra is a melancholy sight. The shattered and scattered columns were depressing, and those still standing had a solitary, sad appearance, as if weeping over the lost glory of the capital city of Queen Zenobia's empire, which included Egypt, Palestine and Asia Minor, and extended from the Nile to the Euphrates, and northward from Betra to beyond the Gallician gates.

The entire village and the Sheik, Abd-Allah, turned out to see the noisy visitor. Sheik Abd-Allah had been to Europe. He knew what an automobile was, soothed the fears of the people, and came out to meet us with a cordial welcome. We drove right into his courtyard. When we told him that we came that day from Kuryatan to Palmyra it was hard even for him to credit the story. Faris Aga, our desert guest, assured him that it was so.

"We left Kuryatan when the sun was high up in the sky," he said, "and the Muazin had not yet called the faithful to the noon prayer. We have done the trip from Kuryatan to Palmyra, which takes your swiftest dromedary or horse twenty-five hours, in four hours and a half in this automobile."

We went first to the Temple of the Sun. Between the fluted columns of the ancient temple, with their beautifully engraved capitals, have been built the walls of a madhouse, and the fifteen hundred inhabitants of the city, which once contained three or four thousand souls, live with their live stock within the walls of this vast temple. From here we went out to the Triumphal Arch and the Colonnade, followed by hundreds of youngsters, who were kept at a distance by the Sheik's son, who carried our bag of photographic materials. The tombs here are unique in architecture. The crypts, now robbed of their contents, were hewn out of the solid rock, and each contains from two to seven chambers, cut into the walls as receptacles for the dead.

* * *

We saw beautiful women on the way; but the prettiest girl I ever saw, except one, was in the midst of the ruins of Palmyra, filling her jar with water from the stream, just as Rebecca had done in the land of the Chaldeans. I stood and stared at her. Going down the stairway, I asked her for a drink of water. She held the jar to me. Instead of drinking, I gazed till my arms grew tired holding the jar, and I asked:—"Are you Zenobia?"

She said:—"Drink, if you please," and I drank and meekly passed the jar to my friend.

It is always the custom when going to visit a Bedouin sheik to take presents of coffee, tobacco, sugar and sometimes articles of dress, such as the [illegible] (scarfs for the head), long red leather boots and knives and other small articles for his servants. It would be an insult to offer money to a sheik.

SUPPLYING THE SHIPWRECKED.

OUT of other people's tragedies the Blue Anchor Society gets its exciting data, which, however, read like commonplace happenings in the secretary's "logbook"—so many barrels or cases of food supplies, so many bales of clothing sent to the life saving stations on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts for the use of the shipwrecked. Since the incorporation of the New York State Board of the Women's National Relief Association in 188[illegible], of which the Blue Anchor forms a subsidiary body, there have been 358 instances of relief afforded by it. The latest case is one of cases of clothing and barrels of supplies shipped to the Aleutian Islands.

Mrs. Henry J. Newton is the president of the Blue Anchor, Miss Mary Graham Young is treasurer and Miss Alice Sandford is secretary. The president only lives in Manhattan, but the society draws the bulk of its support from this city. It holds its meetings on the second Thursday of each month from two to five at the United Charities Building.

Captains of the life saving crews are instructed to notify the society by wire of cases of need, and the action of the Blue Anchor is prompt and generous. Clothing is at once despatched and food supplies follow as soon as they can be gathered and made ready. Among the members are several ladies who charge themselves with the duty of providing flour, rice, cereals of various kinds, canned meats and vegetables, hams and smoked beef—in a word, the provender which can safely be shipped to any point.

Donations of money are made every now and then to the society for the purpose of purchasing food, and its bank account is said to be generally ready for an emergency. The clothing collected for the shipwrecked sailors is stored until it is needed. But, strange to say, though garments are constantly being received by the society, when requisition is made upon them for clothes there is seldom enough to go around and emergency effort has to be made to fill the deficiency. To the credit of the officers it may be said that they have so far met bravely all the demands upon them without calling in the aid of the main Board of the relief association.

NO CONTEST FOR REEVESHIP IN NORTH MONAGHAN TWP.

Mr. John Brown Elected by Acclamation—Contest for Council—Building of Better Roads Discussed.

The nomination meeting held in the town hall, North Monaghan, yesterday, was perhaps the largest and most enthusiastic on record. Upwards of 100 ratepayers attended the meeting, and a large number of candidates were nominated for the office of Reeve and Councillors. At the close of the hour for receiving nominations a public meeting was held, the clerk, Mr. G. W. Bennett, being chairman. Each of the many candidates and other prominent electors addressed the meeting, and many moderate criticisms of the conduct of the past year's business were indulged in, and also many useful sugestions were made for the benefit of the Council of 1909. The matter of constructing permanent highways was introduced by Mr. W. G. Howden, which brought out a varied expression of opinion from amongst those present, the volume of which seemed to be in favor of the introduction of more modern methods and more permanency in the building of the highways in the township. The following were the nominations made;—

For Reeve—W. G. Howden, R. A. Dobbin and John Brown.

Messrs. Howden and Dobbin withdrew, which leaves Mr. Brown re-elected Reeve by acclamation.

For Councillors;—Wm. Robson, R. A. Dobbin, G. H. May, W. G. Howden, H J Forster, Walter McKee, J. F. Clarke, James Morrow, T. D. Young, J. E. Bell.

Messrs. Young and Robson resigned after the meeting; The old council consisted of Messrs. May, Howden, Forster and Dobbin.

WEDDING BELLS

LOWDEN---CLUTE

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Christmas evening at five o'clock, at the residence of Mr. Chas Clute, 505 Rubidge street, when his only daughter, Miss Elizabeth, was united in marriage to Mr. Edward James Lowden, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. John's church, in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride and groom were attended by the bride's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding supper was partaken of and hearty congratulations bestowed upon the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs Lowden will reside on Rubidge street.

POLLARD—COVENEY

A very pretty and quiet wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr and Mrs N F Pollard, Syndicate avenue, when Miss Florence Coveney of Peterborough became the bride of Mr William E Pollard of this city.

The bride looked charming in an empire gown of bisque eolienne with trimmings of lace and pale blue velvet, her only ornament being a sunburst of pearls, the gift of the groom

The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev Mr Haydon, pastor of the Baptist church in the presence of just the immediate relatives.

Congratulations over, the party sat down to a dainty wedding breakfast, after which the happy couple left amid showers of rice and good wishes for their new home on Frederick St. —Fort William Times-Journal.

Poor Air and Poor Living.

When Jim Bridger, the one time famous scout of the plains, grew old he thought he would like to retire from the somewhat arduous life of a plainsman and settle down to the ease of "the east," which to him meant Missouri. So he used his best endeavor to find a competent man to fill his place and went back to Missouri.

A year or two passed, and one day Captain Russell, the commandant of the post which Bridger had left, was surprised to see the old scout heave in sight. When he came in the captain asked:

"Well, Bridger, what brings you back here?"

"Captain," said Bridger, "I want to go back to scouting again."

"Indeed? Why, I thought you had settled down in the east for the rest of your life!"

"Well, cap'n, I'll tell you how it is. I went back to old Missouri, and if you'll believe it they've got a railroad station within ten mile o' the old place—yes, sir, a railroad station! And, what's more, they've got a ranch now in every four mile. I tell you what, cap'n, the air ain't pure down there no more!"

"Is that possible? But I thought you'd like the good things to eat they have down there. You like good things to eat, I remember."

"Good things to eat! Why, cap'n, I didn't have a br'iled beaver tail the whole time I was there!"

FLAMES FOLLOW EARTHQUAKE UNTOLD NUMBERS PERISH

Many Cities Are Buried by Worst Upheaval in Europe in Modern Times---Refugees Are Fleeing In Every Direction and Robbers Are Looting Remaining Homes.

Rome, Dec. 30.—One hundred thousand dead; Messina, in Sicily, and Reggio, and a score of other towns in Southern Italy overwhelmed; the entire Calabrian region laid waste. This is the earthquake's record so far as it is at present known from the reports that are coming slowly into Rome on account of the almost complete destruction of lines of communication to the stricken places.

The death list in Messina ranges from 12,000 to 50,000; that of Reggio, with its adjacent villages, numbered 45,000 people, includes almost the entire population. At Palmi 1,000 are reported dead; at Cassano, 1,000; at Cosenza, 500; and half of the population of Bagbara, about 4,000.

The Monte Leone region has been devastated, and Ripesto, Seminara, San Giovanni, Scilla, Lazzaro and Cannitelle, and all other communes and villages bordering on the straits are in ruins.

The King and Queen of Italy are now on their way to Messina, having sailed last night from Naples, aboard the battleship Vittero Emanuela. The Pope has shown the greatest distress at the calamity, and he himself was the first to contribute, a sum amounting to $200,000, to the relief of the afflicted. British, French and Russian warships are steaming towards the south, and already several of the ships of Great Britain and Russia have reached Sicily. Officers and men of these ships have performed heroic services in the work of rescue.

It is feared that many foreigners have been killed, as a number of the hotels at Messina, and doubtless at other places, were crowded with tourists. Little is known of the fate of the diplomatic representatives of the foreign powers stationed at these posts, although the Italian Government is using every effort to relieve the anxiety felt on their account.

Torrential Maelstrom.

There is the gravest danger that a pestilence will follow the destruction of the towns, where, on account of the vast havoc wrought, bodies will lie buried for days and weeks. Those who escaped death, many of whom are badly injured, are making their way by the thousands to the nearest place of refuge. Their sufferings even now must be intense, as they are without food or clothing.

Stunned at the magnitude of the calamity which has overtaken fellow-countrymen, all Italy mourns to-night for the stricken Province of Calabria and the Island of Sicily.

Accustomed for centuries to earthquakes, Italy stands ever in dread, but none was prepared for the disaster which in the fraction of a minute Monday devastated cities and towns and caused the death of thousands.

Messina, whose tragic history has been marked by tidal waves and war and which was the centre of Monday's torrential maelstrom, was shaken to ruins. Flames burst forth to complete the city's destruction and to burn alive untold numbers, helplessly pinioned beneath fallen walls and broken timbers. The Straits of Messina was shaken and twisted by the earth's trembling, for mariners report the channel altered beyond recognition. The ports and villages on both the continental and Sicilian sides were wrecked or inundated and all lighthouses along the coasts were swallowed up. Navigation now is dangerous and in some places impossible.

In the Calabrian district, which was only beginning to recover from the effects of the earthquake of 1905, Reggio was the centre of the earth's upheaval. The seaport of Reggio is reported as no longer existing, and the city proper is in ruins. The loss of life on both sides of the strait and in Eastern Sicily was enormous.

Terrible Sufferings.

Starving, bleeding from injuries and almost insane from their terrifying experience, Messina's survivors are fleeing in all directions, abandoning hundreds of their fellow-citizens to their fate, imprisoned in the wreckage of tumbling buildings.

One of those who escaped said: "The earth seemed suddenly to drop and then turn violently on its axis. The whole population who practically were precipitated from the houses rent in twain, were spun round like tops as they ran through the streets. Many fell crushed to death and others, bewildered, took refuge for the breath beside the tottering walls, where they soon met the fate of their companions."

Already British and Russian squadrons have arrived at Messina. Sailors and marines have been disembarked and they have performed courageous acts in rescuing the injured and removing the wounded.

A large number of survivors have been transferred to the warships, which are transformed into great floating hospitals. It is imperative that the dead be removed form the ruins in order to avoid a pestilence. Steamers with doctors, druggists, firemen and workmen have arrived at Messina from Cavania and other places.

Special despatches received here from Calabria confirm the destruction of Reggio. They report that the situation there is as bad as, if not worse than, at Messina. The streets in Rome are jammed with people, who snatch the special editions from the newsboys. The people are plunged in grief and lamentations are heard on all sides. Here and there one asks another "when will end this awful repetition of devastation and death in our country?"

World-Wide Sympathy.

The hands of all the nations have been extended to Italy in her affliction. From rulers have come messages of condolence, and from the people spontaneous promise that aid

MALONE TO STAND TRIAL AT ASSIZES

Constable Wilkins Goes on Stand and Tells How Malone Shot Him Because He Knew Too Much of His Depredations

Simcoe, Dec. 30.—Ex-Chief of Police A. W. Malone was committed for trial at the Assizes in February by Magistrate John Beemer yesterday afternoon on a charge of attempting to murder Constable Wm. Wilkins in Lynwood Park shortly after midnight Dec. 1.

When the magistrate announced his intention of sending the accused up for trial a decided murmur of approval swept over the 1,500 spectators.

But the real climax was reached when, after Mr. Kelly had entered another impressed plea for bail on the ground that Constable Wilkins, who laid the charge, was admittedly a thief and as deserving of being locked up as the prisoner, the venerable magistrate refused. Thunderous cheering and applause shook the auditorium as the vast crowd gave vent to its long pent up feelings. It was fully five minutes before order was restored.

Never was so much interest evinced in a trial here. For hours before the court house opened the steps and lawn weres warming with eager people. Rigs drove in from every direction, some coming 20 miles. Many families brought lunch and remained in the building through the noon intermission in order to be assured of standing room.

Wilkins and Dr. Stanton were the only witnesses produced by Crown Attorney Slaight.

Defence Counsel Kelly did not call any witnesses, and it is hinted that in the failure to balk a committal he may plead insanity of the "dementia paresis" species on behalf of his witness.

Wilkins was pale, and showed the effects of his painful experience, from which he has not fully recovered. His left eye was covered with a white patch. The sight is gone.

Briefly he rehearsed the story in what was thought to be his anti-mortem statement while in the sanitarium on Dec. 1. He further told of two robberies and several fires in which both he and Malone were implicated and assigned a motive for the shooting to the fact that Malone was afraid of him because he "knew too much" and that "dead men tell no tales."

In fact, he declared that it was Malone who did all the thieving, the holding-up of fakirs at the county fair for hush money on threats of arrest and the ignition of several buildings, including Madden's fire June 16, the race track barn Sept. 10, Assistant Crown Attorney Agar's barn, West & Peachey's boiler house and Schuyler's cellar.

Wilkins disclaimed any belief that himself was guilty of theft, so long as the plunder was given to him second hand. The best that the attorney for the defence could get from him was: 'He did it and I was there."

As the regular night duty man, it was Wilkin's duty to enter all occurrences in a book, and this volume was produced. Witness admitted that all the details of the above depredations, which were skilfully disguised so as to look quite natural, were penned by his hand; but he insisted that Malone dictated them to him. He practically had to do everything Malone told him to do, "because," he faltered, "I was afraid of him."

He said that Malone had fired Agar's barn while he was standing near, in order to get even for an unpaid bill for $5 for getting out an affidavit in a horse-stealing case.

Witness said that on one occasion when he expressed some fear of discovery if these pilferings kept up, the chief said to him: "Keep your mouth shut. Don't let anyone pump you. If you do your life won't be worth a candle."

WITNESSES SAY HAINS WAS CRAZY

Flushing, L.I., Dec. 30.—The defence of Thornton J. Hains, indicted with his brother, Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., for the killing of Wm. E. Annis, called two witnesses in yesterday's session of the trial to show certain acts of Mrs. Claudie Hains, which the lawyers of the defendants claim so affected Capt. Hains that he became mentally unbalanced.

Samuel Chester Reid of Chicago, a friend of the Hains' family, swore that Capt. Hains told him of all his marital misfortunes, and that the captain evinced signs of being irrational.

Reception at Y.M.C.A.

The Board of Directors and Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. will hold a reception at the Association building on New Year's Day from 2.30 to 5.30 o'clock. Members and subscribers, with their lady and gentlemen friends will be cordially welcomed. There will be refreshments and a musical programme.

A PATENT LAW MAY BE PASSED

U.S. May Pass Measure Requiring Articles to be Made in States.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 30.—A suggestion has been made that a way out of the tariff difficulty could be found by copying the law recently enacted in Great Britain, which makes it necessary for all patented articles for consumption there to be manufactured in that country. The House committee may investigate.

A West Virginia coal company has entered a strong protest against the free entry of coal unless a similar concession is obtained from Canada, claiming that Canada derives five times as much revenue from its importations of American bituminous coal as that received by the United States from its importations of Canadian coal, although it is claimed there were five times as much American coal sold in Canada as there was Canadian coal sold in the United States during 1907.

It is rumored that the new bill will put hides on the free list, and provides for a substantial reduction in the duties on shoes and leather products.

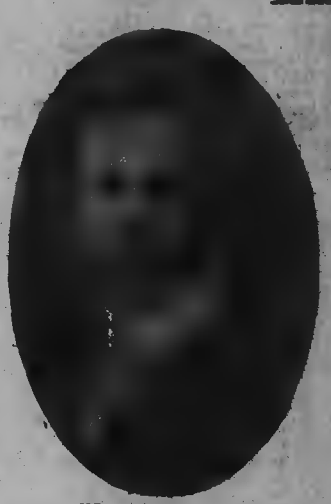
A CANDIDATE



MR. ROBERT HICKS
An Ex-Alderman Who is in the Field Again.

CANDIDATE IS ARRESTED

Would-be Mayor of St. Catharines—Is Charged With Forgery.

St. Catharines, Dec. 30.—A sensation was caused yesterday afternoon when Chief of Police Parnall, acting on instructions from County Crown Attorney Brennan, laid information against Landis C. Bradt, charging him with forgery, and upon a warrant issued later by Police Magistrate Campbell, Bradt was taken into custody.

At nomination meeting on Monday Bradt handed to City Clerk Pay a paper properly filled out, proposing himself for mayor for 1909. The paper was supposed to have been signed by Jacob Haynes and Michael McGlade.

When Haynes read in the papers that he had signed Bradt's nomination papers, he at once proceeded to make people understand that such was not the case, and to strengthen the matter, made out and signed a statutory declaration to that effect. When this reached the authorities it was considered sufficient to warrant an enquiry and reference to the nomination paper showed that all the names were in practically the same handwriting.

Chief Parnall walked out of the crown attorney's office, met Bradt on the street, and in five minutes the would-be mayor was a prisoner.

Hearing was set for Thursday morning. Bradt was admitted to bail, giving bonds for $2,000 himself and $2,000 by Charles Elliott.

Bradt appeared at the city clerk's office to file his declaration of qualification, but City Clerk Pay refused to accept it, claiming his nomination was irregular. Mayor Campbell is, therefore, re-elected for a second term.

WEST PETERBORO' ELECTION PRELIMINARY OBJECTIONS

Copy of the Judgment of Justice Britton, Delivered on December 22nd.

The following is a copy of the judgment of the Honorable Judge B. M. Britton, delivered 22nd of Dec., 1908, at Osgoode Hall, on preliminary objections;

"The petition was filed on the 21st November, 1908. The 10 days allowed by Sec. 18, of the controverted elections act for service expired on the 1st December, without service having been made.

On December 2nd, counsel for the petitioner applied, ex parte, to me for an order extending the time for service and for substitutional service. The material used in obtaining the order was first an affidavit by petitioner's solicitor that after the filing of the petition at Toronto it was sent to him for service at Peterborough and that he received the petition on November 25th, made enquiry on that day at Peterborough for the respondent and learned that he would be in Toronto the next day. He sent the petition to Toronto. The respondent could not be found in Toronto on November 26th, so petition was returned to Peterborough and on the morning of November 27, was placed in the hands of the Deputy Sheriff at that place. Second, an affidavit by the Deputy Sheriff that he had the petition at Peterborough and endeavored on the 27th, 28th and 30th of November to serve it upon the respondent, but could not find him.

The order made on the 2nd December is as follows, (omitting the formal part).

> "Upon the application of the complainant upon reading the affidavits of Frederick J. A. Hall and W. H. Moore, filed, and the exhibits therein referred to, and upon hearing what was alleged by counsel for the complainant,
>
> 1. "It is ordered that the time for service of the petition herein be and the same is hereby extended till the twelfth day of December, 1908.
>
> 2. "It is further ordered that a copy of the petition and of notice of the date of presentation thereof and copy of the deposit receipt, and of the appointment of the petitioner's solicitor may be served upon the respondent by delivering such copies to Roland Glover or such other clerk as may be in charge of respondent's office at Peterborough.
>
> 3. "And it is further ordered that the costs of this order be costs in the matter of the said petition."

After obtaining the order of the 2nd December, it does not appear that there was any further effort to effect personal service upon the respondent, but on the following day, namely, on the 3rd of December, a copy of the petition, together with the other papers mentioned in the order, was delivered to Roland Glover at Peterborough.

The respondent was not personally served with a copy of the petition and the other papers mentioned or any of them.

On the 8th day of December the respondent filed in the office of the Registrar of the High Court of Justice at Toronto, preliminary objections pursuant to sec. 19 of the act These objections are as follows;

> 1. That the security provided by statute herein was not properly given and not until sometime after the petition in question was filed.
>
> 2. The said security was not given in bank bills or in gold or in Dominion notes or in legal tender.
>
> 3. The alleged copy of the security and notice thereof were not verified.
>
> 4. The original petition herein and copies thereof were not signed by the petitioner in person.
>
> 5. The signature of the petitioner was not verified.
>
> 6. The petition herein and the copies thereof were not in form, and were not endorsed in accordance with the provisions of the statute and the rules governing the same.

An appointment was obtained from me for Monday, the 14th of December, to hear the parties upon such objections and grounds.

Mr. Watson, K.C., and Mr. Grayson Smith appeared for the respondent and Mr. J. E. Jones for the petitioner.

Mr. Jones objected to the jurisdiction contending that one judge could not alone hear or determine any matter which would or possibly could have the effect of setting aside or dismissing out of court the petition. This objection can not prevail.

> "The Court shall hear the parties upon such objections and grounds and shall decide the same in a summary manner, sec. 19."

"The Court" in the Province of Ontario is "The High Court of Justice" or any Judge thereof. See sec. 2 ss J (10).

By sec 38 two judges are required for the trial of an election petition

> "Trial Judges means the two Judges trying an election petition or performing any duty to which the enactment in which the expression occurs, has reference."

The preliminary objections may be disposed of by one Judge, subject to an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada in certain matters as provided in sec 64.

Mr. Jones cited the decision of Mr. Justice Osler in the "Algoma" election, where he declined to proceed as a single Judge. That was an entirely different case. It was a provincial election and the trial was for corrupt practices.

The summons was issued under sec 187 and 188 of the Ontario Election Act. I quite agree that under that act and the amendments then in force it was necessary that two Rota Judges should preside.

Mr Watson objected.

1—That there was no jurisdiction to which the order of the 2nd December that the 10 days allowed by sec. 18 for service having expired, and no application having been made within the time for an allowance of further time, the matter was at an end.

2—That even if there was power to make the order after the expiration of the 10 days the order actually made was not authorized, because it was not shown that there was in this case any special circumstances of difficulty in effecting personal service.

3—That the service actually made upon Roland Glover should not be deemed personal service, or allowed.

It was objected that the questions now raised are not preliminary objections within the meaning of the Act I do not feel quite sure that the question of jurisdiction to make the order, is such preliminary objection

Sec 19 deals with (what) may be done.

> "After the service of the petition and the accompanying notice." "The respondent may present x x preliminary objections on grounds of insufficiency against the petition on the petitioner or against any further proceeding therein."

It was held in the Montmagny Dominion Election case 1886, 15 SCR, that "service not made when it should have been made" and "that service was not made on the person to whom it should have been made" were properly preliminary objections and these were dealt with by the Court.

In the South Leeds Election Dominion Case. Mr Justice Osler held, June 27, 1891, that the objection that a proper notice was not served with the petition ought not to be considered as a preliminary objection but should be taken by way of motion to set aside the petition.

Having regard to the Montmagny case and sec 64 as to what is appealable I treat these objections as preliminary ones or at all events as objections I have power to deal with. Mr Watson abandons all other objections. Logically he must do so as according to his contention there has been no service. I do not think the respondent should be considered as having waived his right to press the objections named by reason of putting them in after the so-called service, relied upon by the petitioner

Upon the argument the respondent's affidavit was filed, and he was present in person and his evidence was tendered upon any point upon which information was desired by the Court or by the petitioner. The petitioner did not ask for any adjournment or for leave to put in any evidence, and the argument proceeded upon the material before me.

The respondent was not personally served and he could have been within the extended time had reasonable efforts been made for the purpose.

There was no evidence to show or from which it could be inferred that the respondent was attempting to evade service.

Was there any jurisdiction to make the order on the 2nd December allowing further time.

It was held in the Glengarry Dominion Election case, 1888, 14 SC 453 that the time within which the trial of an election petition must be commenced cannot be enlarged beyond the six months from the presentation of the petition unless an order had been obtained on application made within said six months, (the) decision of the Court was by Fournier, Henry and Taschereau. Sir W. J. Ritchie, C J, and Gwynne, J. dissented.

This decision was under secs 32, 33 cap 9 RSC 1886.

Part of 32 is—

> "The trial of every election petition shall be commenced within six months from the time when such petition has been presented." x x

Section 33—

> "The Court or a Judge may notwithstanding anything in the next preceding section from time to time enlarge the time for the commencement of the trial if on an application for that purpose, supported by affidavit, it appears to such Court or Judge that the requirements of justice render such enlargement necessary."

Henry J. in the Quebec County Dominion Election case 20 SCR at p. 447 said the order extending the time must be made within the six months Decisions are not wanting, and very clear cut decisions that the time for commencing the trial cannot be extended beyond the six months except by an order, application for which must be made within the six months named.

Prior to the cases cited it had been expressly decided otherwise.

In the Algoma Elections Dominion case in the Ontario Court of Appeal January 10, 1888, reported in the volume of Election Decisions, 1884-1891, Osler, J. at p. 483, said;

> "We have recently held in the Kingston case not reported that the time may be enlarged under section 33, notwithstanding the expiration of six months. The petition is not out of Court and having regard to the interpretation clause, sec. 2 and to sec. 35, and the construction which has in other cases been placed on language similar to that of section 33.
>
> "I think it reasonably clear that the power to enlarge is not necessarily to be exercised only within the six months but may in a proper case be exercised after that time has expired."

He refers to Wheeler v. Gibbs, Banner v. Johnston and Lord v. Lee, to which I will refer later.

If the cases of allowance for longer time (sec. 18) for effecting service can not be distinguished from enlarging the time (sec. 40) for commencement of trial then the petition would seem to have no further life. In determining whether the case can be distinguished the petitioner at this stage is entitled to the benefit of any doubt. The respondent has knowledge of the petition and of its contents. As a matter of information the service is, of course, a merely formal matter. While the respondent is entitled to the benefit of every objection that can be made for non-compliance with the law, the allowance of the additional time and allowing substitutional service cannot result in any hardship.

In attempting to distinguish between enlarging the time for trial, and extending the time, or giving further time for service, no assistance can be had from the words used, for in the ordinary legal sense to enlarge a rule, or order, or notice, means to extend the time for compliance with it, Wheeler v. Gibbs 3sc, 374, was cited in the Glengarry case. it was distinguished rather than overruled.

In Wheeler v. Gibbs an appeal was quashed because the appellant had not given notice of setting down the case for hearing, nor obtained from the Judge who tried the petition further time for giving notice as required by the 48 in sec. of the Supreme and Exchequer Court Act. Afterwards the appellant applied to and obtained from the trial Judge an order extending the time for giving notice, and upon the matter coming again before the Appellate Court it was held that the power of the trial Judge could be exercised after expiration of original time even so long after, and after an abortive attempt to get the cases argued in the Supreme Court. Henry, J., took part, and he also was with the majority in the Glengarry case. Regarding the two cases, and considering that this is only a matter of service, at the very commencement of the proceedings, when, as might well often happen, the first 10 days would be exhausted before the petitioner could know that there would be difficulty in effecting personal service, I think it could not have been the intention of the act to nip in the bud the petition because of inability to serve, and accidental omission or omission because of inability to apply for additional allowance of time within the first ten days.

Full effect should be given to all the words in sec. 18. I cannot say there is any general rule that where jurisdiction is given to extend time that such jurisdiction must be exercised within the period first mentioned.

The position of the matter as to the petitioner, and the public, and in all the cases public rights have been considered, is very different now from what it will be when parties are at issue and the petition ripe for trial.

The respondent should be allowed to make a counterattack if he can. That is something the electors may be interested in.

If the interpretation of sec. 18 is to be according to its words, then the application before the expiration of ten days is not compulsory; if one may venture outside of the words, I am bound to say that in dealing with addition of time for serving the petition, it is not the necessary meaning that the application for such additional time shall be made before the expiration of ten days from filing the petition.

Banner v. Johnston 5 E. & J. A. 157, at p. 170, the Lord Chancellor said: "What we have to look at in substance is this: Is it contrary to the meaning of the word "extend" to give longer time after the original time has passed." Time is not a material with respect to which it may be said that the matter itself having ceased, there is no further subject to operate upon. Although the time has passed, it may well be that the legislature intended to say there should be a power in the Court of Appeal to say that it would be reasonable that an additional time should be given.

Lord v Lee, L.R. 3, 2. B 404 is a case where it was held that after the expiration of time for making the award and after award was made, the Judge had power to enlarge the time for making, and the award was held valid.

Consolidated Rule 353, expressly gives power in matters to which rules are applicable to enlarge the time although an application not made until after expiration of time allowed This rule does not apply to election cases. The argument from the rule is that such rule being necessary in High Court matters, express authority to do things out of time is necessary in all matters, especially in election proceedings. I do not think the argument can be pushed to that length.

I am pressed on the one hand by the decisions in the Glengarry case, and on the other with the distinction that ought to exist and which in my opinion does exist, between the extension of time of service of a petition—like a writ of summons—and the extension of time for commencement of trial and in the result I hold that there was jurisdiction to make the order for allowance of further time for service of petition herein

2—Should the order of 2nd December have been made.

On the application for the order, my attention was not specially called to SS 2 of sec 18. The petitioner had not complied with the evident intention of the Act.

That section contemplates two applications, if necessary, by reason of "special circumstances of difficulty in effecting" personal service.

1—For longer time and—

2—For substitutional service if within the longer time allowed, personal service could not be effected.

Sec 17 is as follows:

> "An election petition under this Act, and notice of the date of the presentation thereof and a copy of the deposit receipt shall be served as nearly as possible in the manner in which a writ of summons to serve in civil matters or in such other manner as is prescribed."

No other manner is "prescribed" unless it be the personal service required by sec 18.

The service of a writ of summons in civil matters is provided for by Consolidated Rule 146 which is;

> "Where service is required the writ may be served in any county or district in Ontario and the service thereof shall be personal; but if it appears to the Court or a Judge on affidavit that the plaintiff is unable to effect prompt personal service, the Court or Judge may order substituted or other service by advertisement or otherwise."

The application was made ex parte if for want of proper information as to the facts, the petitioner has obtained an improper order, it was at his own risk. It did appear to me on affidavit, that the petitioner was unable to effect prompt personal service of the petition and notices, and so in the exercise of my discretion I made the order.

The respondent being a business man of large interests in different parts of Canada, the service upon his clerk, Roland Glover, or upon the clerk in charge of respondent's office at Peterborough should be as good as personal service, and therefore should be deemed personal service.

Assuming that at that time I had jurisdiction to make any order allowing further time, I do not think the order bad, by reason of its directing substitutional service as well in one order. Rule 146 in my opinion applies and the petitioner had up to that time been unable to effect "prompt personal service."

As to the third objection, the service was, in fact, in accordance with the order made. It is not open to me now to interfere. If the order was not made in the proper exercise of a judicial discretion, and if that is the subject of appeal, the matter will be rightly disposed of by the Appellate Court.

In the Montmagny Election Dominion case 15 S C R defective service was set up as one of the preliminary objections. The objection was dismissed by the Superior Court of Lower Canada and allowed on appeal by the Supreme Court of Canada.

That case goes a long way against what may be called substitutional service.

The decision in that case, however, is based on article 57 of the code of civil procedure in Quebec, and there is no such provision as in our Rule 146. There was no order allowing substitutional service in that case.

For the reasons given I must disallow the preliminary objections.

Costs in the matter of the petition.

Only a Misunderstanding.

Several years ago in a well known wholesale house in a big manufacturing town an old bachelor bookkeeper, who had been many years with the firm, suddenly announced that he was to be married.

The partners gave him a week's holiday, and his fellow clerks raised a little purse and presented it to pay the expenses of his wedding trip.

A couple of days after the wedding one of the members of the firm went down to a seaside resort, and there, lounging about the parade and apparently enjoying himself immensely, he saw his recently married old bookkeeper, but alone.

"Where's your wife?" asked the principal.

"She's at home," was the reply.

"But I thought you had money given you for a wedding trip?"

"So I had," was the reply, "but I didn't understand that it was intended to include her."—Pearson's Weekly.

Bad Luck.

"Mother," said five-year-old Jack, "how much older than you is father?"

"Just thirteen years," replied the unsuspecting parent.

"Well, mother," seriously continued the child, "the next time you marry, don't marry a man thirteen years older than you. Don't you know it is bad luck?"—Delineator.

A Strong Pull.

Two men were having an argument as to their respective strengths.

"Why," said the first, "every morning before breakfast I get a bucket and pull up ninety gallons from the well."

"That's nothing," retorted the other. "I get a boat every morning and pull up the river."

FLAMES FOLLOW EARTHQUAKE

which brings the world closer together in times of great calamity. Great Britain, France, and Russia have sent their warships, quick as the flush of the telegraph could carry the orders, to lend assistance to the stricken cities. Relief funds have already been started and a hundred ships and trains are on their way carrying supplies and reinforcements to the south. Rome, Milan, Florence, Naples and other cities are sending physicians, police and firemen. Yesterday all the ambassadors and ministers expressed sympathy with M. Tittoni, Minister of Foreign Affairs, whose emotion was profound.

The bourses and theatres have been closed throughout Italy and despatches of sympathy continue to pour in from all quarters of the globe.

Eight sailors from the Sapho were landed and took up the work of rescue. Officers and men from Italian and British steamers also went ashore as soon as possible, the Britishers saving a family of five who were imprisoned in a burning house. Many prisoners from the jails made their escape and looted right and left. Hundreds engaged in the work of robbing the banks and business houses. In the opinion of the officers of the Sapho half the population of Messina perished.

Robbers pillaged the ruins of shattered buildings and even stole clothing and valuables from the corpses of the victims.

Everything possible is being done to succor the wounded, but the relief measures are still utterly inadequate owing to the immensity of the disaster.

The finest palaces, churches and theatres of Messina are now heaps of ruins. Countless dead bodies are scattered through the wreckage, and their decomposition will doubtless bring pestilence to add to the horrors of the situation.

The devastation over the entire district was more or less complete. No part of the Province of Reggio de Calabria escaped.

Immense Tidal Wave.

Catania was flooded by a tidal wave which swept into the port. The intensity of the shocks may be estimated from the fact that they extended right through Italy, from Calabria to the Alps, having been appreciably felt at Somodossola, on the Simplon route, and at Moncalieri, near Turin.

Thousands of people have abandoned their homes, notwithstanding that a terrific rainstorm prevailed. They filled the air with lamentations and prayers, and in some places, such as Prizzo, Cotrone, Santa Severina and Piscopia, the people had the courage to enter the churches almost while they were falling, and carry out the saints.

Eye-Witness' Story.

Catania, Dec. 30.—The following graphic story is told by a woman who arrived here from Messina yesterday morning. She was herself badly injured. She described the horrors that accompanied the disaster at Messina in these words:

"Infernal is the only word that will adequately describe the fearful and terrifying scene. When the first shock came most of the city was fast asleep. I was awakened by the rocking of the house, windows swayed and crockery and glass crashed to the floor. The next moment I was violently thrown out of my bed to the floor. I was half-stunned, but knew that the only thing to do was to make my way outdoors.

"The streets were filled. Everybody had rushed out in their nightclothes, heedless of the rain falling in torrents. Terrified shrieks arose from all sides, and we heard heart-rending appeals for help from the unfortunates pinned beneath the ruins.

"Walls were tottering all around us, and not one of my party expected to escape alive. My brothers and sisters were with me, and in a frenzy of terror we groped our way through the streets, holding our own against the panic-stricken people, clambering over piles of ruins, until we finally reached a place of comparative safety. But this was not done before I was struck down and badly injured by a piece of furniture that fell out of the upper storey of a house.

"All along the road we were jostled by scores of fleeing people, half-clad like ourselves. The houses seemed to be crashing to the ground in whatever direction we turned.

"Suddenly the sea began to come into the town. It seemed to me that this must mean the end of everything. The oncoming water rolled in a huge wave, accompanied by a terrifying roar.

"The sky was aglow with the reflection of burning pieces and other buildings, and, as if this was not enough, there suddenly shot up into the sky a huge burst of flame, followed by a crash that seemed to shake the whole town. This probably was the gasworks blowing up."

Burglars at Stratford.

Stratford, Dec. 30.—Burglars entered O. Hiller's store early yesterday morning and stole 12 watches, four revolvers and a number of other articles of jewelry. There is no clue to the thieves.

Leg Broken While Coasting.

Stratford, Dec. 30.—Mary Keyes aged 12, had her leg broken while coasting on the postoffice hill yesterday afternoon.

Call It "Settler's Clock."

To the outside world the greatest ornithological oddity in this country is the kookaburra, says The Sydney (Australia) Times. In earlier times it was known as the "settler's clock," from the belief that its joyful paens were vented regularly at morn, noon and dusk, being quiescent through the heat of the forenoon. That belief has long been shattered. The kookaburra laughs just when the fit takes it, particularly when excited; and it laughs as readily at the violent death of its mother-in-law as it does at the enraged settler, when he falls off his hay-stack. A wounded bird makes a demoniacal row, which will bring all others within hearing into the neighboring tree, and these at once set up an echoing cackle that is repeated again and again.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—London cables for cattle are steady at 13c to 14c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10¼c to 10½c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Dec. 29.—The receipts of live stock at the City Market today were on a par with the prevailing holiday feeling, and prices, while they were inclined to be firm, were not sufficiently buoyant to induce any general rally. The deliveries totaled altogether only about thirty-five carloads, comprising about 600 head of cattle, 500 hogs and a small run of sheep.

Exporters.

One good load of export cattle, weighing between 1300 and 1400, sold at $5.35 per cwt., while another lot sold at $5.25; export bulls were firm at from $4.25 to $4.50, while medium quality bulls were wanted at from $3.75 to $4.

Butchers.

There was a good demand for this class of cattle, and with the comparatively small offerings there was no difficulty experienced in cleaning up anything negotiable.

Lambs and sheep were steady and unchanged at last week's quotations of $5.25 to $5.35 for the former and $3.25 to $3.40 for sheep; rams are worth from $3 to $2.50 per cwt.

Big Tank Topples Over.

Woodstock, Dec. 30.—The big tank, situated at the east end of the G.T.R. yards, burst at noon yesterday, and toppling over, submerged the yards and trucks.

Dr. Stevens, who was driving over Bay street bridge with a friend, narrowly escaped death by the falling timbers. As it was both occupants were almost forced over the edge of the bridge and were drenched. The horse was injured and a boy received slight injuries.

Both Victims Will Die.

Montreal, Dec. 30.—Mrs. M. Butterus, a cousin of J. M. Assaly, the Syrian merchant who was shot at Hawkesbury Monday, was brought to the Royal Victoria Hospital, and but slight hopes are entertained for her recovery.

Assaly has since died, and Salem Assaly, a brother of the dead man, who shot both, is still at liberty.

Will Ratify Treaty.

London, Dec. 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Times' Paris correspondent says there is every reason to believe that Mr. Fielding will succeed in obtaining the ratification of the Franco-Canadian treaty, and points out if Germany also obtains the advantage of the Canadian middle tariff the value of the British preference will almost disappear.

New Radial Railway.

Stratford, Dec. 30.—W. A. and N. A. Bugg were in Stratford yesterday in the interests of the People's Radial Railway, conferring with local authorities. The new line proposed will run from Woodstock to Arthur, a branch being run from New Hamburg to Stratford.

NATURE AS A FAKER.

She Sometimes Deceives Even the Eye of the Scientist.

On the so called table mounds of Iowa are numerous impressions of what look exactly like cloven feet. It is not surprising that superstitious people should attribute them to the devil taking his walks abroad, though as a matter of fact they are not footprints of any kind whatsoever, but merely weather worn impressions left by a species of mollusk-like animal known to science as pentamerus.

To the Smithsonian institution not long ago somebody sent from the Bad Lands of Nebraska what purported to be a fossil ham. It did in very truth look like a ham, and, to render the verisimilitude complete, the bone was actually sticking out at one end of it. Nevertheless an investigation showed that the alleged bone was in reality a "vaculite"—an extinct mollusk's shell, rodlike in form—and the rest of the "ham" was a mere accidental agglomeration of stony stuff.

One day quite recently a young man walked into the National museum at Washington and presented to the anthropologist in charge a petrified foot. It was received with many thanks, though recognized at a glance as a water worn fragment of rock which had accidentally assumed a shape resembling a foot.

Such chance imitations as these frequently occur in nature. Another one, deposited in the same institution, was supposed by the finder to be a petrified oyster. It looks as if on the half shell. All its parts are wonderfully distinct, and there is even a small pearl in it seemingly. Yet it is not an oyster at all.

Many years ago the "eozoon" was introduced as a fossil to a wondering world by Sir William Dawson, an eminent geologist. It was accepted by science for quite awhile as the earliest and oldest of known animals—the "dawn animal," as its name signifies. Recent scientific investigation, however, has proved that it is not and never was an animal at all. It is merely a curious crystalline combination of two minerals which has the look of something that once upon a time was alive.

It has recently been proved that many markings on sedimentary rocks long supposed to be fossil prints of algae and other plants are in reality tracks left by insects, mollusks and worms. Some of these alleged "plants" had actually received names and been classified into genera and species.

But it has been sufficiently shown that markings exactly similar can be produced by allowing such animals as those above mentioned to creep across a surface of moist plaster or wet clay, counterfeiting rock in a plastic and not yet hardened condition, and one well known vegetable frequently noted as fossil has in this way been satisfactorily identified with the trail of the larva of the dragon fly.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Rusty Iron Nail.

It has been discovered that a happy miller's family living in the vicinity of the battlefield of Waterloo has derived a regular income since 1815 from the sale of a rusty iron nail. It was not many years after the battle that an eccentric Englishman on the strength of an eyewitness' evidence discovered that Napoleon's hat had been hanging on that nail, the emperor having rested awhile at the mill during the battle. An offer for the old nail was immediately accepted by the previously guileless miller, who after the deal replaced it by another old nail and painted an inscription round it on the wall pointing out its historical value. One nail after another has gone to enrich collections as priceless Napoleonic relics.—Argonaut.

To Extend St. John Harbor.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 29.—Hon. William Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, has intimated to the city that if it and the C.P.R. will surrender to the Government control of certain property they own along the harbor front, the Government will at once begin dredging work along the lines of a further extension of the harbor facilities. The city is willing, and it is believed the C.P.R. will be.

CURE FOR CANCER.

Doctor in London Is Having Wonderful Success With Vaccine.

A new development of the vaccine treatment for cancer, originated by Dr. Doyen of Paris is now being employed daily in serious cases at St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, London, Eng., with wonderful results in the alleviation of pain.

Dr. Doyen isolated a bacillus from cancer patients which he regarded as the true organism of the disease. From this he prepared a vaccine in which he hoped lay the cure for cancer. Distinguished investigators in London placed the vaccine under slow and elaborate tests. They have come regretfully to the conclusion that the microbes are not the real thing, and that the cause and cure of cancer are still to seek. But they have evolved an improved vaccine which promises a wide modification of the present palliative treatment in advanced cases.

Dr. Doyen's bacilli, according to the London investigators, may be described as the organisms of the outcrop of cancer, and not of cancer itself. Cancer implies a lowly organized tissue, which degenerates easily and offers little resistance to the growth of harmful organisms in its vicinity. Dr. Doyen described his bacilli as neoformans, or low growths. Unfortunately they grow as the result of cancer, and are not its cause.

The new vaccine is used at St. Mary's Hospital in advanced cases which do not admit of surgical operations. It allays pain, much as morphia might, and it soothes the inflamed tissue around the cancerous growth. It may in some cases prolong life for a little while, although there is no evidence on which this can be stated with certainty.

"It is a palliative, not a specific," remarked one of the investigators who have been hard at work on the new treatment. "It performs a useful purpose, and its use will certainly be extended. But let nobody imagine, that a cure for cancer has been found. The disease is still, alas, the most baffling mystery of medical science."

A Case of Heredity.

Mr. H. B. Irving—"Irving the Second," he has been called—is undoubtedly one of our most promising actors. The eldest son of the late Sir Henry, he has inherited many of the natural gifts of his great father, and his production of "The Lyons Mail" in the west end recently arouses considerable interest, inasmuch as the double role this play entails upon him was one of his father's most notable successes. "H.B." finds an engrossing hobby in the study of the criminal classes, and, apart from his dramatic "hits," achieved considerable distinction with his book written in defence of much-abused Judge Jeffreys.

On one occasion, when Mr. Irving was playing in Ipswich, he visited a house in which Judge Jeffreys was said to have resided when holding the Assizes in that town. This house had now become a stationer's shop, where theatre tickets were disposed of, and when young Irving entered the assistant immediately recognized him. The actor-author-criminologist asked for information concerning Jeffreys' visit to Ipswich. "Well, sir," replied the assistant, looking at the booking-sheet of the theatre that was lying on the counter, "I am afraid I don't know the gentleman; but he hasn't booked any seats this week!"

In the Queen's Kennels.

No one who is privileged to see over the royal residence at Sandringham can fail to be struck with the kennels used for the Queen's pets. They are looked after by three servants, while once a month a veterinary surgeon from London inspects them.

The kennels are some distance from the house, yet, when in residence, the Queen visits them every morning, taking with her biscuits and bread for her favorites.

Her particular pets are wolfhounds and King Charles' spaniels, who often accompany their royal mistress on her walks; but all kinds of dogs are kept at the Sandringham kennels, some being considered the most beautiful in the world.

The Queen thoroughly enjoys the demonstrative marks of affection always accorded to her by her four-footed friends, who may or may not realize that the reward for them is a much-prized dainty.

Rebuking Lord Kesteven.

A few weeks ago, when Lord Kesteven was touring round inspecting small holdings to examine how the new act would work, he entered into conversation with a man he found smoking at the garden gate. They had talked for a few minutes when the wife came out of the cottage near, and exclaimed: "Don't go idling that way, while there is the hay to get in! And you," turning to Lord Kesteven, "go about your business, and let us get in the hay!" Lord Kesteven cycled off. Later on he was going over Lord Carrington's small holdings when the owner, in showing him round, came upon the same cottage where the angry wife lived. When she saw who her visitor had been, she apologized at once; but Lord Kesteven reassured her, and asked to know if the hay had been safely housed, in spite of the delay he had caused.

Cool Lord Rosslyn.

Perfect coolness is one of Lord Rosslyn's most notable characteristics No reverse ever seems to disturb his stoical disposition. When a youth, and then Lord Loughborough, he once went on a trip to Norway, and, on arriving at Trondhiem, found that the King of Sweden and Norway was also in town. Accordingly, the young Briton immediately went up to the palace and asked to see the monarch. On learning that his Majesty was "out," Lord Loughborough calmly produced his visiting-card, and said: "Well, give him this, and tell him I shall be glad to see him at my hotel." But the best of the affair is that the good-natured king took the lad at his word, and did go round to the hotel, to the no little astonishment of everybody connected with the establishment.

The body of Wesley Mill was found floating in the lake near Burlington on Christmas morning.

LOCAL ASTRONOMERS MUCH INTERESTED IN EARTHQUAKE

Owing to the Fact That Marked Disturbances Exist on the Sun at Present Time, Adding Strength to Theory That is Being Developed.

Great interest has been aroused among the members of the Peterborough Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society by the reports of the earthquake in Italy. For some time they have been working on the theory that the disturbances on the sun's surface exerted a magnetic influence on the earth which would cause a disturbance on this planet of a more or less marked nature according to the severity of the eruptions on the solar body.

Yesterday, for the first time in several days the local astronomers were able to obtain a good view of the sun as the day was bright and the sky unclouded. It was noticed that there were marked disturbances on the sun's surface, one on each limb and opposite each other. One meter and the other one is also one of the spots is 100,000 miles in diametrically large.

Those interested in astronomy here have been working on the theory that when there would be two marked disturbances opposite each other a magnetic current would be created and that the influence of the electrical waves would extend to the earth, causing magnetic disturbances on this planet. The fact that the earthquake came when just such conditions existed on the sun has aroused much interest among the members of the society here. Of course it may only be a coincidence but at the same time it adds strength to the theory that is being developed and adds interest to the work of the astronomers along this line.

SINCERE THANKS EXPRESSED

The Sisters in charge of St. Joseph's Hospital wish to return sincere thanks to the following friends of this institution, who have assisted in its maintenance by contributions at Christmas and during the year;

Peterborough Council K. of C., brass bed stead and furniture in quarter-cut oak for private ward.

Young Ladies of Sodality of the Blessed Virgin, mahogany furniture.

Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald, $50.

Rev. W. J. McColl, $5.

Rev. M. J. O'Brien, $5.

Rev. P. J. Galvin, $5.

Rev. D. O'Connell, $5.

Rev. P. J. Kelly, $5.

Mr. P. McHartin, $5.

Miss Nora Devlin, $5.

Mr. P. W. O'Brien, $50.

Quaker Oats Co., $25.

Miss Mary Grady, $25.

Mr. M. McFadden, handsome hall-rack.

Dr. McNulty, air pillow and other articles.

Miss Lundy, flowers.

Miss Mills, flowers.

Mr. John Hayes, Skibbereen, six bags of apples.

Miss Moher, turkey.

Mr. M. J. Carroll, turkey.

Morris O'Brion, $10.

Jas. J. Lynch, candy.

They also wish to thank the Review and Examiner for one year's subscription.

It will readily be seen how acceptable these donations are, for although this institution is usually regarded as self-supporting, a large percentage of the patients are every year treated free of charge. During the current year alone, ninety-seven patients, seventy of whom are residents of the city of Peterborough, have been unable to give any remuneratoin whatever.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR THE JANUARY POULTRY SHOW

The outlook for the big poultry show in the Market building next week under the auspices of the Peterborough Poultry Association is very bright, judging from the large and enthusiastic attendance at the meeting of the Association held last night in the Bank of Commerce Chambers for the prupose of making final arrangements for the show. About forty enthusiastic poultry fanciers were in attendance and they entered into the work with a vim that presages a most successful undertaking. All arrangements for the show were completed, committees appointed and everything is in readiness. Already nearly 100 entries have been received and the indications point to 1000 birds being shown.

The farmers of the surrounding country are taking an active interest in the undertaking and rightly too, as the poultry department should be a leading feature in farm work. The farmers should make it a point to attend next week's event as it cannot fail to be of profit to them. Mr Geo. Putnam, the superintendent of the Institutes branch of the Department of Agriculture has arranged to have Miss Mary Yates, one of the lecturers in connection with the Department, visit Peterborough on Jan 6th, the second day of the show and give lectures in the afternoon and evening on subjects of interest to poultrymen. This feature alone should insure the success of the show. It is expected that there will be large contingents from the surrounding districts on Jan 5th, 6th and 7th, the three days of which promises to be by far the most successful affair of its kind, that has ever been held in Peterborough.

ELECTION AND INSTALLATION OFFICERS SEARCHLIGHT LODGE

The Searchlight Royal True Blue Lodge met last evening and the officers of the order were duly elected and installed. A large number were present and an interesting and beneficial evening was spent. The progress made is most encouraging to the new lodge.

Miss Laura Laing, Outside Tyler.

Miss Zelda Bell and Miss Laura Laing, Auditors.

The regular meeting of Searchlight Lodge will be held on the 2nd and 4th Tuesday evenings of each month.

"THE PRIVATE SECRETARY" A COMEDY OF DISTINCT MERIT

"The Private Secretary," which is to be presented by a local company of amateurs under the director of Mr. Irving Beers, is a clean cut and highly interesting comedy and with a capable and well rehearsed cast will make a decided hit. The calibre of play may be judged from the fact that Mr. Beerbohm Tree, one of England's most celebrated actors, appeared in it for years in perhaps the most triumphant cosmopolitan and provincial runs of his strikingly successful career.

Mr. Beers has allotted the different parts to the local players and rehearsals will be commenced this week. Besides important members of the cast of "All the Comforts of Home," he has chosen Messrs. B. Gillespie, W. Hillhouse and Walter Davidson for three of the characterizations in the piece and the feminine section of the production will be in carefully selected and competent hands.

"The Private Secretary" is from the versatile pen of Mr. Charles Hawtrey. It is written in original mood and has an ever present vein of crisp and fascinating comedy.

HAIR SLAUGHTER

Killed by Negligence

Hair must have nourishment or die. If it does not have proper nourishment it will lose its vitality, grow weak, and become an easy prey to the ravages of the vicious and destructive germs of dandruff.

Parisian Sage is a hair nourisher; it is the result of sincere study and experiment by one of the world's leading scientists.

It should be used regularly as a hair dressing by everyone with healthy hair, because it never fails to prevent dandruff, falling hair, or any scalp disease.

But Parisian Sage is not only a preventive, it is a certain cure for dandruff; it stops itching of the scalp instantly; it makes hair grow thick and luxuriant. It is especially in demand by ladies, because it makes the hair beautiful soft and fluffy. W. Madill, the druggist, Peterborough, sells it under a positive guarantee to do all that is claimed for it, or money back. 50 cents for large bottle.

THE NORWOOD NOMINATIONS

Contest for Reeveship, Council and School Board

Special to the Review.

A very enthusiastic and well attended meeting of the ratepayers was held in the town hall on Monday evening, when Mr. Jas. Calder, returning officer, presided at the nominations for the Village Council and three School Trustees.

There will be a contest for reeve, as both nominees are in the field determined to leave no stone unturned to assure their success. At the time of writing it had not been decided who will stand for the other honors.

The nominations were read at 8.30 from the chair as follows after which the candidates were invited to express their views on the platform. Several of them responded and a few good speeches were listened to. Mr. Jas. Raddon's criticism of the late Council called forth repeated applause.

Reeve Breault ably defended the increased expenditure of the Council for the past year, pointing out several reasons why the expenditure was warranted. He also stated that now as the town hall was completed in a way everyone was justly proud of, and other permanent improvements made, he could promise that the rate of taxes would return to about their former level.

The nominations were;—

For Reeve—A. Breault, by Thos. Loughbridge and A. B. Greenslade.

C. E. Pakenham by James Raddon and G. J. Elphick.

For Councillors—B W Squire, by C O'Reilly and Wm. Spence.

John A Robb by J A Finlay and C Elliott.

Jas. Raddon, by C Searight and G. Elphick.

C Elliott, by J Robb and A. Breault.

C J Blake, by J G Keefer and H Howson.

Dr Wilson, by J Baskin and W J Campbell.

T E Finlay, by J G Keefer and C E Pakenham.

C E Pakenham, by J A Robb and T Burkell.

Hiram Fry, by A Breault and C O'Reilly.

W A Richardson by F C S Wilson and W H Brethen.

Fred Fry, by C E Pakenham and J A Finlay.

A B Greenbank, by A Davidson and A. Breault.

For School Trustees—J L Squire, by E P Cuffe and B W Squire.

G H Neible, by E P Cuffe and B W Squire.

Thomas Loughbridge, by A B Greenbank and W C Doughty.

J E Roxburgh, by E P Cuffe and Charles O'Reilly.

BACHELORS' DANCE LAST EVENING

At the Conservatory Music Hall Was a Great Success

The Bachelors' dance at the Conservatory Music Hall Monday evening proved to be the event of the season. About two hundred persons were in attendance, and a very enjoyable time was spent. Fralick's orchestra provided the music, and Mr. Thomas Hooper catered.

The committee of which Mr. Ross Cameron was secretary, is deserving of great credit for the success of the affair.

SHOULD KEEP LANGUAGE PURE

Lecture at Knox Church by Sheriff Hall—Literary Night

Last evening being literary evening of the Young People's Society of Knox church, Sheriff Hall gave a very interesting talk on "English, and How it is Spoken." He pointed out the unnecessary use of slang words in the conversation of those who have authority, and how those under them would naturally learn to use them. It was also shown that writers used these expressions in their works which did not help to strengthen the language any. Mr. Hall had the experience of hearing for years in this city improper words on the lips of boys the school age. The profane language on the streets of Peterborough was much regretted by the speaker, and he urged the young people present to do what they could in their sphere to put it down. The lecture was much enjoyed.

ANNUAL TEA AND ENTERTAINMENT

Of St. Andrew's Sunday School Held Last Evening—Presentation of Prizes

The annual tea and entertainment of St. Andrew's church Sunday school was held last evening, when the lecture room was filled with a large number of scholars and their parents and friends. Supper was served from 5.30 to 7.30 o'clock.

The programme was commenced at eight o'clock. It opened with a chorus by the primary and kindergarten department. Miss Billings gave a recitation, which was followed by several selections by the Mandolin Club.

The cantata, "The Waif's Christmas," was presented by the children in a manner which showed very careful training. Miss Bella King is responsible for the training of the youngsters. Miss Ethel Tully assisted her at the piano.

Miss Grace Evans took the part of Fairy Queen very acceptably, and Stewart S. Laing made an ideal Santa Claus.

The programme was followed by the Christmas tree and the distribution of presents to the primary and kindergarten classes.

Rev. J. G. Potter read the list of prize winners. Prizes were awarded for attendance at Sunday school and for the highest percentage of marks. A number of prizes were also donated by the Session for attendance at church.

There were 20 prizes for those receiving over 85 per cent.; 20 prizes for over 75 per cent., and 20 prizes for over 65 per cent.

Miss Jessie Stevens and Miss Laura Grant won Mr. C. S. McClelland's general proficiency prize.

Victor Thorndike received a special prize as he was at Sunday school 52 Sundays during the year.

The prizes were presented by Mr. R. Lees, and at the close Rev. Mr. Potter expressed appreciation to those who had taken part in the programme and who assisted in making the evening such an enjoyable one.

HE COMPLAINS VERY STRONGLY

Thinks Sleighing Parties are Disturbers of the Peace

A citizen very vociferously condemned sleighing parties this morning to the Review and expressed the opinion that they should be under police surveilance. He said last night he was aroused from profound slumbers by a turbulent crowd of merrymakers passing his house and did not regain his somnambulistic state until early in the morning.

"I am surprised at the poor sense and inconsideration shown by the members of these sleighing parties and I think they should be treated just the same as a loud and drunken man on the main street. If their disturbances don't constitute disorderly conduct I don't know what does. They act more like a lot of old time Indians than young men and women of a civilized country."

The picture given by the complainant is a pretty vivid one and it's safe to say does not apply to all sleighing parties.

TO ADDRESS THE POULTRYMEN

Miss Mary Yotes Will be Here on Afternoon and Evening of Janury 6th

On the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, January 6th, during the Poultry Show, addresses will be given by Miss Mary Yates, of Toronto. THEATRICAL

COOK STOCK CO.

A fair house attended the second performance of the Cook Stock Co. last evening. Although this a popular price show Company the Cook organization gives its patrons their money's worth all the time. "Ranch 7-11" was the bill offered and proved to be a bright four-act drama. The specialties were good and entirely different from those of the preceding night. To-night's performance is entitled "In His Power," a drama dealing with New England life.

It is economical to use "Salada" Tea on account of its great strength and delicious flavor. It requires little more than half as much as some other teas in the making.

SPORTING NEWS

PHILLIPS WILL BE MISSED; MILLER PLAYS TO-NIGHT

After the game on Monday Wanderers are looked upon to win the match with Edmonton to-night and especially in view of Phillips' absence from the goal getting line. With the fast forward laid up with a broken ankle the stock of the western team has taken quite a drop. Whitcroft will make a desperate effort, however, to pull through and while he may succeed in making the match interesting there is practically no Edmonton money in sight on the result.

Jack Miller, the former Keene man will play for the westerners to-night. Miller didnt' play in the first match but is considered one of the most effective players on the team.

Whitcroft is somewhat disappointed over the result, if Phillips were available, is confident that Edmonton would be able to defeat Wanderers to-night. The shooting of the Edmonton team, he thinks, was the only feature in which his team was inferior to the Montreal outfit.

The returns of the game will be received at the Oriental.

GENE HURTUBISE MADE DEBUT AS BOWLER LAST NIGHT

Gene Hurtubise made his debut as a league bowler with Hutch's Hams in their fixture with the Midgets last night and the big fellow signalized the event by rolling third high score for the evening, his work contributing in a large measure to the success of the Hams who managed to take two of the three games thus improving considerably their league standing.

Hurtubise will bowl regularly with the team during the season.

The first game was well contested throughout and only eighteen pins separated the teams at the finish but the second was a walkover for the Midgets, the Hams just as easily reversing the order of things again in the closing game. Hay was high for the winners, while Hayes carried off the honors for the Midgets.

The scores follow:

HUTCH'S HAMS
Hutchinson	114	118	110	342
Hurtubise	160	120	154	434
Hay	195	134	183	512
	469	372	447	1288
MIDGETS
Hayes	139	187	143	469
Brown	139	141	112	392
Giroux	162	123	84	369
	450	451	339	1230

WRESTLING

Chicago, Ill. Dec 29—Frank Gotch is coming back to America to meet Youssiff Mahmout, the Terrible Turk for the championship of the world. The two will meet at the Coliseum in March it is thought. The purse will be $10,000 and the match will be under the auspices of the Empire Athletic club, of which Joe Coffey, is matchmaker.

All this comes from the pen of America's champion, who is now in London filling a theatrical engagement. In a letter written to Joe Coffey, Gotch says he will meet Mahmout in Chicago as soon as he fulfils his contracts abroad.

"Possibly I might come home sooner than expected," Gotch wrote. "I am not even impressed with this foreign land, and am also confident that Hackenschmidt does not want any more of my game. He has sidestepped me and now I find he is not any better than some of the other wrestlers over here. I find he dodged many of the best men, and now he is still trying to dodge me."

"I sent Gotch word the Empire Athletic Club would hang up a $10,000 purse and post a $1000 forfeit with anyone whom he suggested as an evidence of the club's good faith and ability to give the purse offered," said Coffey today.

"I am expecting a cablegram from him any hour to the effect that he has closed his engagements and is on his way back to America.

In his letter he says he had twelve weeks more to run which would take him into February. If he fulfilled all his engagements he could be home by March 1st, and the match could be arranged for the last of the month.

"Mahmout is still here and I have his contract to articles of agreement. The Turk is certainly the best wrestler in America today having proved his superiority over Beel and Americus and in my opinion a match between Mahmout and Gotch would prove one of the greatest catch as catch can matches ever seen on any mat. 00

"I have practically clinched the Coliseum for the match several dates being offered me, which could be used to stage the championship struggle. I am certain the Coliseum would be a better place than the Mechanics' pavilion at the stock yards, as it would be better for transportation facilities to men in all parts of the city.

"You can say positively that Gotch and Mahmout will be seen in Chicago before many weeks."

A meeting of the Schedule Committee of the Church League will be held to-night at the Y.M.C.A. at 7.30. Every member is asked to be present.

UPPER FLOOR WERE WINNERS

Two Teams From Cressmans Played Last Night

The upstairs and downstairs of Cressman's last night met at Brock street rink from 6 to 7 o'clock, and the upper department upheld that position in hockey as well as in the general discourse of business. At half time the seven from the lower flat had a score represented by a blank, while the upstairs team found the nets for five. In the second half Fred Cressman was injured and the team that was behind picked up, and the final tally was 8—6 in favor of the upstairs.

The teams:—

MILLER BEING TRIED OUT AT CENTRE POSITION

The Brantford septette had a good practice Saturday. They are shaping up pretty well with the Pittsburg players appearing in good condition. Jack Marks was out for the first time Saturday and has all his old-time speed left. Throop fits in nicely at left wing and will keep them all guessing on that side of the firing line. The joy of all hearts this year will be the work of Cap. MacDonald. Cap. has a peach and cream effect in his repertoire this year which he didn't have last year. He has won the reputation of playing clean hockey. Miller will be centre for a while a position to which he has always been accustomed. Roy Brown has not yet put on skates. The manager, however, is looking after practices in great style this year, and will have the bunch doing stunts which made the old Internationals at the Canadian Soo so famous. Roy may also break into the game later.—Brantford Expositor.

SPORTING TALK

Last call for Edmonton.

Whitcroft's Stars still have a fighting chance.

Whitty might do worse than give Bill Crowley a place on the team tonight.

Bill stopped the onward rush of many a good one in the days of old.

After reading the despatches one is led to conclude that Whitcroft was as good as the best of them, perhaps a little better.

Shrubb says he will have Longboat beaten in the first three miles. Tom better take care or the Englishman will have him talked to a frazzle before they get started.

Tom Longboat will now have to endure the talk of the wits as well as that of his friend and admirer, Alfie Shrubb.

As the Stanley Cup now belongs to the pros. some prominent Canadian should donate a trophy for national competition among the amateurs. As it is now, an amateur team could not touch the Stanley silverware with a twenty foot pole.

Why should Tommy Burns be knocked? Sure he got licked, but everybody gets his in time. He started at the bottom, worked himself to the top cleaned up a big pile of money and has hung onto it, and as far as is known around these parts lives a pretty clean sort of life, which cannot be said of a lot of prize fighters. The man who trimmed Tommy had it on him in height, reach and weight. There was no disgrace in it for the Canadian. Tommy Burns, a four flusher. Nothing of the kind. He can trim any fighter of his weight who has yet poked his head into publicity for many moons.

The knockers should knock in some other quarter.

HOCKEY

The junior and intermediate teams will practice to-night from 7 to 8. The juniors will line up as follows:—Giroux Fox, Wade, Bay, Hillier, Gorman and Pentland

A meeting of the junior city league will be held tomorrow night at 7.30 at the YMCA.

TAS. had a good workout last night from 10 to 11.

The following schedule was arranged at the meeting at Picton for group No 2 OHA. junior series:

Jan 5—Picton at Trenton.
Jan 7—Belleville at Picton.
Jan 12—Belleville at Trenton.
Jan 15—Picton at Belleville.
Jan 19—Trenton at Picton.
Jan 25—Trenton at Belleville.

Note—Trenton's home games are played on Belleville ice.

FRED SIMPSON IS AMBITIOUS

New York Despatch Says Simpson Wants Position on Team to Race Shrubb

A dispatch from New York says that Fred Simpson, of Peterborough, has made application for a position on the team whichh will race Alfred Shrubb, the English champion, in a twelve-mile jaunt at Madison Square Gardens on Jan. 9th.

It is a well-known fact that several promoters have had their eyes on the Indian, amongst whom is Tim O'Rourke, who says the Indian ought to go some if he had the proper training.

Simpson went to England with the Olympic team, having earned a place by coming in fourth in the Olympic final Marathon tirla here last June.

Among the aspiring runners who would like to trim Shrubb are Felix Carbajoh, a Cuban; T. P. Morrissey, the Yonkers wonder; W. H. Feeney, of Brooklyn; H. B. Pelmar, who claims he ran rings around everybody in Texas and Mexico; Fred Simpson, the Canadian Indian; Tom Slater, of Troy; Frank Kanaly, who has competed against Shrubb in previous races and Mike Spring.

STRATHS. HAVE GOOD PRACTICE

The Strathconas had a particularly good practice last night from 7 to 8 at the Brock street rink. The players showed good form.

Wilson, Roddy and Dusty formed the defence, and Gray, McMillan, Weatherstone, Dobson, Long, Seymour, Parnell, Curtis and Ellis were on the line.

RUNNING

Johannesburg, Dec. 26.—R. E. Walker, the South African runner, did some excellent work and broke a record here to-day in short sprints at the Wanderers' sports. He made 100 yards in 9 2-5 seconds. This equals his time made at Abergavenny, England, last August, and it is 1-5 of a second less than the previous record made by Dan J. Kelly, at Spokane, Wash., June 32, 1906. Walker also made the 210 yard dash in 11 2-5 seconds. This is a new record. The record for 120 yards, 11 4-5, was held by B J Wefers. It was made at Travers Island Sept. 26, 1896. These are records for amateurs. Walker won the final in the 100 metre dash at the Olympic games held in London last summer.

THE MIGHTY POWER OF MI-O-NA.

Miona, that extraordinary and perfect stomach tonic, will relieve dyspepsia in twenty-four hours.

It will cure and is guaranteed by Wm. Madill to the readers of The Review to cure the most pitiful cases of dyspepsia, if taken according to directions.

Mi-ona tablets not only cure dyspepsia but all stomach disturbances, such as vomiting of pregnancy, sea or car sickness and the stomach sickness after excessive indulgence.

Mi-ona cures by strengthening and invigorating the flabby stomach walls and after a course of Mi-ona treatment, constipation, if there is any will entirely disappear.

Mrs S. Keast, of Clarksburg, Ont, says: "A bad stomach trouble that had bothered me for years, baffled and puzzled skilled physicians, was nicely relieved by my using Mi-ona. My trouble was on account of food not digesting but fermenting in my stomach, forming a gas that gave me untold suffering, and pain and also made me weak, nervous, irritable and unable to rest. Since using Mi-ona I can go to bed at night and sleep and wake up in the morning refreshed. I cannot speak too highly of Mi-ona."

Mi-ona is a most economical treatment a large box of tablets only costs 50 cents at Wm Madill's, Peterborough, and the dyspeptic, nervous or otherwise, who does not give them a trial is losing an opportunity to regain health."

HER MESSAGE TO SISTER SUE

Mrs. Chatter's Instructions to Hubby Were Long Drawn Out.

"Henry, dear," said little Mrs. Chatter to her husband while he was drawing on his top coat preparing to make the rush for the train that was to take him into the city. "You know our phone isn't working this morning, and I do want to send Sister Sue a message in regard to meeting her this afternoon in the city. Could you, dear, ring Sue up on your phone in the office and give her a message from me? You can as well as not? Thank you dear. Well, tell her that if it doesn't set in to rain and if Cousin Em doesn't come to take me to ride in her auto this afternoon, as she said she might, but you know how reckless Cousin Em is with her promises, and it wouldn't surprise me if she never thought of it again, but if she should come I don't want to miss the ride, and I'll try to get Sue on the phone by that time and let her know if I go to ride, or if Libbie Brayton doesn't come over to have me help her on that programme we are arranging for the benefit of the day nursery. Tell Sue I will meet her in the waiting room at Ridgeley's at 3, or it may be a quarter after or a quarter before, or if she'd rather have me meet her some place else tell her to try to ring me up and let me know I guess our phone will be working by that time. Tell her it wasn't working this morning and that is the reason I didn't ring her up, as I said I would, and tell her to try to think to bring me my hatpin and my lace handkerchief that I left when we stayed all night with her Monday night, and ask her if I didn't leave one of my gloves there, and tell her that, after all, I think we'd better meet at some place other than Ridgeley's because that is so far from where we are going, and ask her to try to think to bring me the recipe for that new kind of cake we had at dinner Monday night, for I'd like to try a loaf of it when we have the Brynlys here to dinner Friday. Yes, yes, of course you must get your train, dear. Run along. Only be sure to ring Sue up and tell her that she'd better ring me about noon, and—goodby! Don't forget!—Puck.

Why Not Be an Egotist?

There is much mistaken sentiment as to the sin of egotism. The fact is egotism is not a sin. On the other hand, it is somewhat of a virtue and an indispensable element in all real progress. Some phases of egotism are unpleasant to the beholder and unfortunate for the possessor, but if all of self love, or, rather, the love of other people's admiration and good will, were to be extinguished there would be little to hold society together and less to give impetus to the great enterprises which spring from individual thought and culminate in personal profit.—Leslie's Weekly.

JEAN JABOT

Our French Visitor Attends a Lively Football Game.

By Porter Emerson Browne.

AMONG the large calamities which has visited the United States of recent date is the Stamp Ack, the Battle of Bully Run, the Taxxycab Strike, the Johnstown Flood, the Galveston Likewise, the Panic, Unclejo Cannon and Feetball.

It are hard to tell which are the most worst. It are a close tie between the last trois. But the Panic are over; Unclejo Cannon are most over; so maybe feetball wins by a necktie. Which are unfortunate, but cannot be help so long as gate receipts are so many and peoples don't care what happens to they.

I are invited to see a feetball game by Pierre Lajoie, which have saw such things so often that he are carlessed to it and don't mind it no more. And when I are invited, I ain't never saw nothing like it, so I don't know no better, too.

"Feetball games is a fine sport," says Pierre Lajoie to me. "I shall get us two tickets, for which you shall pay one-half, and we will go it."

We does.

I finds out on the way to the game that although the U. S. are a large country there are not room enough in it for all. It are a large country only in spots. Parceque both of my feets is so occupied, also my lap, that I don't see them deux heures, and when I does I wouldn't of knowed them.

Arriving at feetball grounds, large U. S. policeman help us to get through crowd by sticking his club in the middle of our backs and pushing hard. Such courtesies is common from U. S. cops.

Inside the fence there are ausal large crowds and many excitements.

Beaucoup des peoples is setting on shelves in the sun, waving small flags and yelling.

Peoples on one side of shelves is yelling:—

Wah! Hoo!
Hullabaloo!
Pinky, Pinky,
Mallgmagoo!

Peoples on other side of shelves is yelling:—

Hit 'em in the wishbone,
Soak 'em in the jaw,
Cemetery, cemetery,
Raw! Raw! Raw!

Byne-bye the game commence.

Large ball are kick up in the air. Large gents chase it. One large gent she catch it. Nine other large gents they all jumps on him, and he are took off the field dying with a large noise.

Everybody yell.

Large gents all get together. Somebody say, "14—9—21½." This must be terrible insult, for every other large gent jump on him. And he ausal are took off from the field dying with a other large noise.

Pierre, who are standing on one feet on my left hand, waving his arms and bollowing, she say:—

"Mille tonneres! It are a hot game!"

"C'est ça," I says. "Where are all those police? Them two has look to me like murder in the first degree."

"Don't be a yap," says Pierre to me. "That is fine feetball playing."

"A lectric chair is quicker and more skientifick," I says. "It makes me sick to my stummick to see all them fine garçons getting sent to the morgue. Why don't they use axes and get it over more quicker. Also poison were a more mercifulled death."

"That's the science of it," says Pierre.

"Then Lizzie Borden would have made a fine coacher," I says.

A large gent just at those times takes the ball and try to stick it down a other large gent's throat. Other large gent are angry at those attentions and make a kick in 1st large gent's upholstery. All the other large gents butts in. Then you can't see what are doing until large gent which are called the refereer unsnarls they and ambulunch stargeon come to gather up the pieces.

"What do they do with what's left?" I says to Pierre. "It must be discouraging to try to make a funeral out of it."

"It are a little rough," says Pierre, acknowledgingly. "But it makes men of them."

"It looks to me more like it were making sausages of them," I says.

There are more excitement.

"What are it all about?" I says. "Why do they have to have a large field to kick each one another's faces in when a alley are more convenient and would do just as good?"

"It are a game," says Pierre.

"Oh," I says. "If this are a game, I would hate to see them doing something in earnest."

There are more enthusiasm and somebody stick a flag in my left eye and says, "Rah! Rah!"

"What are the objeck of this game?" I says to Pierre. "Are it won by the first side which kill the other sides completely?"

"The game is won by the side which sticks the ball through the other side's jail posts first and oftenest," says Pierre.

I winks, knowingly.

"That are a good bluff," I says; "but it can't get away with me. I may be a iggerance, but don't try to bluffle me like those. Don't you think I can see? Nobody ain't paying no attention to nothing except caving in each one another's ribs."

"Oh, cut it up! Shut out!" says U. S. gent which are seated next to we. "Ain't it awful, Maybelle?"

"Vous avez raison," I says, agreeing with him enthusiasmly. "It are turrible. By caparison with it a slaughter house are like a Home for the Aged and Indignant." And I feels glad that somebody besides me are human.

Byne-bye there are some more excitement. This time it are worse. People is jumping up and down and showing other sympfoms of rejoicing, such as sokeing one another on the head, hollowing, and et cetry things.

"What are it?" I says to Pierre. "Did they kill two at once?"

"A gole!" says Pierre, which are like the rest. "We has made a gole!"

"'We!'" I says. "What has YOU got to do with it?"

"Why," he splains, "I one time used to shave a man whose father almost went to Yale Colleges. So I am for they. And they had made a gole!"

"That was made before the game starts," I says. "I seen it there by my own eyes when we comes in."

"You are a idiot," says Pierre, maddishly. "I shall never take you nowhere no more."

"If it were like this you won't," I says. "That are a seinch. It are just as excitement and much cheaper to watch a gendarme arrest a drunk."

Then Pierre says something.

Then I says something.

Then Pierre says something.

Then we both says something.

Then Pierre hits me—Biffy!—on the jawbones.

Then I hits Pierre—Bingy!—on the nez.

Then U. S. gent which are setting next to we catches a loose one in the eye.

Then other U. S. gent which are behind we gets a other stray one in the solid plexus.

Then two cops interferes.

Then we has a small feetball game of our own. I don't know what the score are, but it ain't much.

I are setting in bed writing this with my left hand because my right one, also my two legs and my one eye, is in a sling.

Feetball are a brutle game. It maybe all right for people which is contemplating suicide. But for others, not.

I would like to get my rich aunt, which I am sole heir of, into a game. But she are not sufficiently degraded.

Why do they make laws against prize fighting, bull fighting, highway robbery, mayhem, Standard Oilers, second story workings, strong arming and et cetry sports and not against feetball?

Ain't it funny?

Maybe it are because admission are charged to feetball and not to others. U. S. peoples don't enjoy nothing that don't cost something.

So suljestion:—Charge admission to ralerode accidents, automobeel collusions, feet paddings, grand larcenies, kidnapings and et cetry sports and then feetball won't have no show in the world.

WAS IN THE SOAKING BUSINESS.

PREACHERS of all denominations occupied chairs upon the platform. They were giving their voices and influence to the overthrow of a political boss.

The Presbyterian clergyman had the floor, and most vigorously attacked the enemy. He delivered some fierce, telling thrusts, and the audience was with him. The boss received some cruel jabs.

"That's right, soak him!" encouraged a man with a stentorian voice, who had standing room in the rear.

As the clergyman warmed up to his subject, the interrupting "Soak him!" came from the rear with greater power and frequency.

The speaker paused. He was not irritated, but gently threw the audience into a good natured hysteria by saying:—

"The intentions of the gentleman in the rear are good, but wholly inopportune and ill advised. If he'll kindly reserve his comments for the next speaker, Brother Herrick, of the Baptist Church, he'll be accommodated, no doubt."

HAD ALREADY THOUGHT ABOUT IT

A MINISTER who had a somewhat parsimonious congregation once induced the Rev. Sam Jones, an eccentric lecturer and evangelist, to come and preach for him.

Just before the sermon was to begin the usual collection was taken up and found to consist mostly of nickels and pennies, together with a liberal sprinkling of buttons.

The Rev. Sam glanced contemptuously at the baskets as they were placed on the edge of the platform near his chair, and then, turning to the minister in charge, he asked:—

"Is that a fair sample of the collections you get in this church?"

"Yes," was the reply. "I should say that is about the average. My people are not very liberal givers."

"I see they're not," remarked Sam dryly. "But do you know what I'd do if I were pastor over a congregation of this kind? Why, I'd hunt up the meanest, leanest, ugliest, loudest barking yellow dog I could find and set him on them."

The minister put his open hand up beside his mouth, leaned toward his brother clergyman and responded in a stage whisper:—

"That is just what I had thought of doing. Sic 'em, Sam!"

SKINS AND HIDES.

IN view of the hurried exodus of many of our big financiers to foreign shores lately, the sign, "Hides and Skins" which appears near the financial district might very opportunely be switched to another neighborhood and read to better advantage as "Skins and Hides."

A FEMALE VOICE

Mr. Ramfounder Vainly Endeavors to Tell What He Heard.

By John H. McNeely.

"MR. RAMFOUNDER, didn't I hear a female voice at the door as you came in?" asked Mrs. Ramfounder, as her husband briskly stepped into the room and rubbed his hands vigorously to start the circulation.

"I can't say," responded Ramfounder, indifferently.

"I repeat, Mr. Ramfounder, didn't I hear a female voice at the door as you came in?"

"How can I tell? You have your ears and ought to know what you hear. If you don't I would advise that you consult a specialist. Of course, having good hearing myself, I can tell what I hear, but as far as your expecting me to know what you hear, that's out of the question."

"Don't try to dodge my question by a technicality," began Mrs. Ramfounder anew. "You should realize by this time that tricks of that kind cannot deceive me. Mr. Ramfounder, did I hear a female as you just opened the door or not?"

"I think you did," said Ramfounder, half heartedly.

"You think! Don't you know?"

"Yes. You heard one."

"Just as I thought, Mr. Ramfounder. You need not say another word. Do not add insult to injury by taking me for a fool. I can draw my own conclusions. I have suspected all along that you have been walking home from the office with some pretty girl—probably a stenographer—and now my suspicions are confirmed. The moment you opened the door I could hear her voice floating through the air, and I could tell, Mr. Ramfounder, that it was a young and sweet voice—not an old one. Yes, indeed, I can distinguish in a moment a voice that is cracked with age from the girlish and chirpy kind. How dare you do such an outrageous thing! Have you no sense of manhood left? Have you no spark of love in your heart for your wife, who stays at home, enslaved to her domestic duties and"——

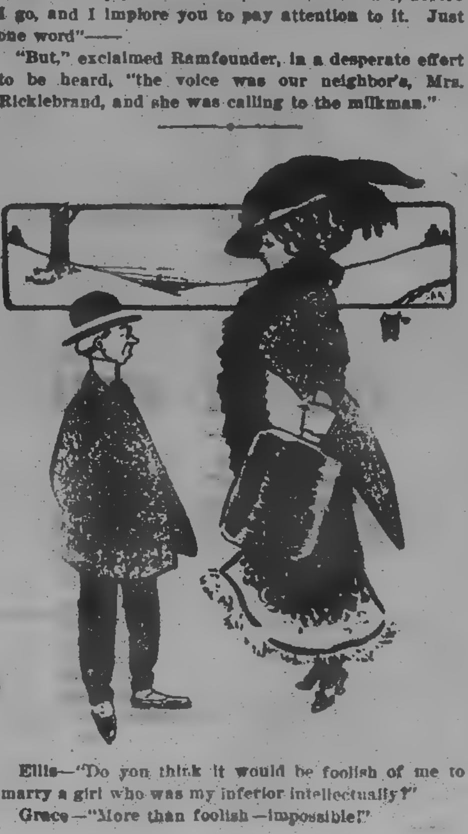
"If you"—— spoke up Ramfounder.

"I will not listen to your silly excuses. Any one with a grain of sense can see through you. But I want you to understand right now that the end has been reached. You have treated me with shameless and brazen inconsideration for years. You have hurled your bold disregard for me in my face and thrown my affection back at my feet for the last time. Of course, Mr. Ramfounder, I have too much self-respect to shadow you like a detective. I know how the neighbors talk and I always take particular care not to have them gossiping about me. Otherwise I could sit in the window every evening and watch for you coming home with your companion. Even then I would have to leave my work in the house simply because I have a husband who is not to be trusted out of my sight. But, no! I am too conscientious to leave my household duties for five or ten minutes when I know you are coming. Instead I remain at my work, and then you have the monstrous audacity to open the door purposely to let in that wretched female voice so that it can be heard all over the house, just to taunt me. You want to flaunt your escapade at me. You were anxious that I should know about it, and when you realized that in my innocence and love I would not play the part of a spy you took particular care to arrange so I should hear the hateful voice. I suppose she said some loving words of farewell"——

"You are certainly"——

"Don't open your mouth. I never want to hear you speak again. I can see by your manner that you are guilty. And—no, you need not think that I am jealous, Mr. Ramfounder. My mother always taught me never to be envious, and I have profited by her lessons. I shall maintain my character, no matter what happens. Although you have tried to excite my jealousy you have not succeeded, and you never will. I am too busy with my own affairs to be worrying about other people's, but when my husband deliberately goes out of his way to show his untruthfulness by walking home with a—I will not say it. I am too much of a lady to lower myself to discuss your friends, Mr. Ramfounder. I leave that to you, who have no better conception of right from wrong. I shall not interfere with you any longer. I shall not stand in your path. You have boldly displayed your insincerity, your unfaithfulness and deception with characteristic effrontery, and I shall make my plans to immediately rid you of my presence. The female voice at the door revealed your duplicity. I want to say just one word, Mr. Ramfounder, before I go, and I implore you to pay attention to it. Just one word"——

"But," exclaimed Ramfounder, in a desperate effort to be heard, "the voice was our neighbor's, Mrs. Ricklebrand, and she was calling to the milkman."



Ellis—"Do you think it would be foolish of me to marry a girl who was my inferior intellectually?"
Grace—"More than foolish—impossible!"

THE INTERRUPTED REVOLUTION.

IT was a South American revolution, and the conquering insurgents were in sight of the capital.

"Onward to victory!" yelled the dictator, flushed with hope and joy.

Suddenly the army faltered, and at length came to a standstill.

"Forward!—Victory or death!" cried the dictator. "Shame on all laggards!"

But his trusted lieutenant rushed from the front, pale and trembling.

"We can't go on!" he said, in despair.

"Can't go on? And why not? Are the loyal forces in front?"

"No," answered the lieutenant; "but there are three American sailors on shore leave, and they won't let our army go by!"

THE WOMAN STAMMERER.

Stammering is confined chiefly to the male sex. There are at least one hundred men who stammer to one woman.—Floating Newspaper Item.

NOTHING very remarkable about these figures. In fact, if we had been making the estimate we should have said the disproportion was even greater.

Stammer? Woman stammer? We should say not! Not so that anybody would notice it! Nothing short of total paralysis or death can entangle her vocal organs or in any way impede her flow of language!

Now, honestly, did you ever know, personally, so as to be on speaking terms with her, a woman who stammered or didn't know right where to put her tongue on a word when she wanted it? Every time at that! Did you? And the right word, too—the one that best filled the specifications and answered the purpose for which it was intended?

Why, a living, healthy specimen of the talkative sex with an impediment in her speech would be an anomaly, a candidate for dime museum fame and lucre. Yes, sir, she could sit right still and draw a salary of $500 a week simply for looking sweet and not talking.

All that would be necessary to draw the crowd would be to hang out the sign:—

> STAMMERING LADY.
> The only specimen ever born in captivity. Gentlemen are requested not to feed, or annoy her with proposals of marriage.

But utterly inadequate that request would be to stem the rising tide of manly appreciation. She would receive dozens of proposals daily, and break up the entire show by getting married inside of a week!

SPELLING REFORMER SUBDUED.

"SIR," said the spelling reformer, addressing the man florid of face and large of girth, "I learn that you are from Milwaukee."

"Yes, sirree," roared the heavy man, proudly.

"As an influential citizen," continued the reformer, 'couldn't you start a sentiment which would abolish those two final 'ee's' in your city's name, and substitute 'y' instead?"

"I should say not," protested the other gravely. "Those two 'ee's' are just half my business."

"What business are you in?"

"Beer," said the brewer, softly, as he drew the reformer's arm through his own and escorted him in the direction of clinking glasses.

ENTENTE CORDIALE IN JERSEY.

THERE is an editor in one of the New Jersey suburbs who works so hard through the week that he feels entitled to go fishing on Sunday. He respects the conventions by hiring a church pew and sending his family regularly to occupy it. The other day he had a call from his friend the rector.

"I have felt that I have not been doing my duty by you," the caller began. "It has been many months since I have seen you at our services, and surely the fault is mine. What can I do to remedy it?"

"Fact is," said the editor, "that I get fagged out at the end of the week. This journalism is an awful grind, you know. It has been a grief to me to stay away from church, but truly my health has demanded an outing on the only free day I have, and I must say that I have kept up by spending Sundays fishing."

"Couldn't you attend service and fish also?" queried the rector.

"I don't see how. I have to get out at five in the morning to go fishing, and when I return I am fit for nothing except bed."

"Those hours are certainly rather strong," was the sympathetic comment. "If services were held so as not to interfere with your starting out at five in the morning, or with your going to bed on your return, I suppose you would attend them."

"Indeed I would, and be very glad to do it. It is a real privation for me to stay away from church."

"I can readily understand that," said the rector. "You have to pass the church on the way to the fishing grounds, do you not?"

"Yes; that makes it all the harder."

"Well, next Sunday morning and the following Sunday mornings if you will be there at quarter before five we will have a service."

The editor appeared on time and made the responses as the rector read the lesson of the day from the altar. Then the rector came down into the body of the church, shook hands with his friend and wished him a pleasant day and good luck. That has been going on now for a month, to the complete satisfaction of both parties to the contract.

THE FLORA OF THE FLAT.

NOW that the goldenrod has been selected as the official flower for the State of New York suggestions for an appropriate floral emblem for New York city should be in order. In this great community of cliff dwellers flowers are all too rare. To the inhabitants of many miles of dreary east side streets a blossom is a curiosity. What flower is best known and loved throughout the city? A flower to be emblematic must be the object of universal pride and devotion.

Obviously the emblematic flower for Manhattan should be the rubber plant. What other plant is so common to the homes of every class or more anxiously and tenderly cultivated? In the darkest inside rooms, in an atmosphere of damp and chill which would mean death to any other form of vegetation, the rubber plant luxuriates. It waxes strong in the steam heated air which would kill Boston beans.

The rubber plant alone among the floral kingdom may be left in a shut up apartment all summer without suffering. The accumulation of weeks of dust does not seriously dim its freshness, which may be instantly restored by application of the sponge. It is the only flower which will grow in Manhattan, and doubtless deserves a place on the city's coat of arms. It lends itself admirably to the peculiar migratory habits of the people of New York, and whereas any other flower would die on being so often moved, the rubber plant continues to thrive equally well on any floor, irrespective of the size of the flat or the degree of light, air and heat it is permitted to enjoy.

Observe any one of the thousands of family movings in New York, and it is certain that the rubber plant will be the first object to emerge from the moving vans. The city which chooses the rubber plant for its emblem will have an assured claim on immortality, since it alone of our household furniture seems most indestructible. It is to be hoped New York will hasten to take advantage of this opportunity.

COSTLY CIGARETTES FOR THE MUSE.

GABRIELE D'ANNUNZIO, an Italian poet, maintains a princely villa, a stable of automobiles and disports himself otherwise as becomes a favorite of the muses. Italians rank him nearly among the saints, and the veneration in which he is held extends to the large Italian colony that planted the sort of spirit known as American in the Argentine Republic and made Buenos Ayres the most progressive of South American cities.

An Italian show maestro who had been to Buenos Ayres and found there a lively demand for d'Annunzio proposed to take the poet there this season on tour to read in public his own poems. He approached d'Annunzio with an offer of $1,000 a night for twenty appearances, plus expenses to and from Argentina.

"I think I would rather like to visit Argentina," the poet answered, "and I have no dread of the sea trip to Buenos Ayres, but I don't care to go for the price of a cigarette."

SMOKE COLORED.

LEADING MAN—This is tough luck, old man. We ordered cut up paper for the snow scene, and here they have made a mistake and sent up black paper.

Manager—Oh, don't let that worry you, [illegible]. We'll just bill it as a snow scene in Pittsburg.

IN FOR IT.

SHE—I had such a queer dream last night.

He—Yes? What was it?

She—Well, I dreamt you gave me a beautiful diamond brooch for Christmas.

He (in a very weak voice)—You did?

She—Yes, and the funny part was that the stones turned out to be sham, and, oh! I was so glad"——

He (brightening)—Glad?

She—Why, yes. You know dreams always go by opposites. That meant that you were really going to get me a genuine diamond brooch for Christmas.

He (with a gasp)—I—I—see-e-e. (Aside) Oh, Lord!

SUNKEN REEFS.

Sweeping the Ocean Floor Instead of Sounding.

The mishap of the cruiser Yankee brings forth the comment that it is the more remarkable as occurring on the coast "perfectly charted." Premising that the Yankee got off her course in a dense fog, it may be said that, while our coast is as well charted as that of any nation, "perfect" is not the characterization yet to be employed. The methods of surveying the ocean floor to locate reefs and shoals are now undergoing a revolution which, when fully accomplished, will reveal to the mariner many danger points which have heretofore escaped record. The old way of finding out reefs and rocks not evident to the eye was by sounding. Now the coast survey proceeds by "sweeping"—that is, by sinking to the depth a pipe bar, which is trailed along by two boats, one at each end of the cable passing through it. Any obstruction encountered is immediately perceptible and is at once noted, located and observed. Coastal waters are carefully "platted," and each plat is thoroughly gone over. The superiority of "sweeping" over "sounding" is made evident by the fact that in a comparatively limited area of the Maine coast, covering rather more than forty linear miles, fifteen reefs have been discovered heretofore uncharted. It often happens in sounding that the lead line avoids some narrow spindle of rock whose point is just below the surface of the water and which goes uncharted. When the cruiser Brooklyn was gashed by one of these unsuspected pinnacles on our coast a few years ago it was found to be isolated and surrounded with deep water up to within a few feet of its sides. Sweeping will minimize the probability of repetitions of such accidents.—Boston Transcript.

Umbrella as a Weapon.

In one of the women's fencing schools of Paris instruction in the art of attack and defense with foils has been discontinued and umbrellas instituted, says Popular Mechanics.

The first lesson the pupils learn in this up to date means of defense from attack on the streets is to baffle the watchfulness of the aggressor by skillful blows. The most simple and at the same time most effective consists in applying a flat stroke of the umbrella upon his headgear. Surprised by this stroke and perhaps blinded by the rim of the hat, he has not the time nor the presence of mind to seize the umbrella. The lunges which follow such a blow are not only effective, but dangerous. The first is known as the hors de combat blow. Seizing her umbrella near the handle with one hand and near the point with the other and advancing a step well forward, the point if well directed against the center of the aggressor's neck will drop him to the ground senseless and probably badly hurt. The same blow aimed at the pit of the stomach will probably send the recipient to the hospital and perhaps cripple him for life.

Municipal Theaters.

The first municipal, uncommercial theater in America—an endowed institution—is in successful operation in Red Wing, Minn. Red Wing is a town of only 10,000 persons, forty miles down the Mississippi river from St. Paul, and to it several years ago a citizen left $80,000 to found a municipal theater. A citizens' committee under the terms of the bequest manages the playhouse, and so well has it done its work that for the last three years a dividend on the capital invested has been paid to the town. Professor Richard Burton in a lecture on the drama, using the Red Wing experiment as a criterion, predicts that "in ten years probably and in twenty-five years certainly every considerable city in the United States will have its municipal theater."

Mr R. L. Borden whose office in the House of Commons has been occupied by successive opposition leaders for 42 years, will remove to 'Room Six.'

COWBOY GIRL AT THE GRAND

A Real New Theatrical Treat is Promised

The delightful melodrama "The Cowboy Girl," has achieved a big hit so far this season and the theatre going public seem to recognize a good thing and a new theatrical offering without much coaxing. Seldom in the history of the American stage, has there been such a decisive success as "The Cowboy Girl." The reason is apparent, however, something new and different, worth going to see, and one's moneys worth, that is the answer. Miss Sue Marshall, the title role, always a great favorite and regarded by many as the best comedienne on the American stage, has created an admiral acting role, which not only gives new opportunities but serves as an excellent foil for the many capital characters of the Parker play.

"The Cowboy Girl," is a play with a Western atmosphere and the numerous exciting situations and powerful climaxes. There is a wealth of music, uproarious comedy, pretty chorus girls, rich costumes, elaborate scenery and the critics and public alike have described it a very original and most satisfying entertainment.

The Cowboy Girl will be presented at the Grand next Monday night, January 4th.

WEDDING BELLS

BOYLE---COMSTOCK

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr Aaron Comstock, Water street at 2 o'clock this afternoon when his eldest daughter, Miss Sarah, was united in marriage to Capt Robert H Boyle of the steamship "Paliki" of the Algoma Central steamship line.

The bride who was given away by her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Dolly Comstock. The ceremony was performed by Rev S. Boyle, rector of Christ church, Chatham, and brother of the groom, assisted by Rev Canon Davidson, rector of St John's church.

The bride and groom were unattended.

After the ceremony and happy congratulations had been bestowed upon the newly wedded couple, a dainty repast was partaken of.

Among the out of town guests present were the Misses Boyle of St. Catharines and Rev. and Mrs Boyle, of Chatham.

Capt and Mrs Boyle left on the 4.38 train for a trip to New York. On their return they will reside in St Catharines.

BUCHANAN---SMITH

The marriage of Miss Edith M. Smith, fourth daughter of Mr. William Smith, Aberdeen avenue, to Mr. James Joseph Buchanan, of Brandon, Man., and son of Mrs. Horsman, of Vancouver, B.C., was solemnized this afternoon at two o'clock, at the residence of the bride's father. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert Pogue, of St. Paul's church. The bride was given away by her father, entering the drawing room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by her sister, Miss Frankie Smith. The bride was assisted by the groom's sister, Miss S. Buchanan, of Vancouver, B.C., and the groom was supported by Mr. Garnet Neff, of Moosomin, Sask.

After the ceremony and hearty congratulations had been bestowed upon the young couple, a sumptuous wedding repast was partaken of.

Mr, and Mrs. Buchanan left on the 4.38 train for their future home in Brandon, Man.

CONTROL THE SOO

Britons and Canadians Were Purchasers of Securities.

Philadelphia, Dec. 31.—Horatio G. Lloyd has announced that Robert Fleming of London and New York was the purchaser of the Lake Superior Corporation securities from Philadelphia institutions.

This was indicated by the fact that a New York house with which Mr. Fleming has close relations has been a considerable purchaser of the securities of the Lake Superior Corporation since the purchase of the bank's collateral was consummated.

It is understood that Mr. Fleming, who is well-known from his prominence in the Reading, Texas & Pacific and other re-organizations years ago, represents some very substantial English and Canadian capitalists, who, with Edward J. Berwind and his associates, now fully control the Lake Superior Corporation. These capitalists have now fully control the Lake Superior Corporation. These capitalists have not only purchased the Philadelphia bank collateral, which consisted of $1,000,000 of Lake Superior Corporation stock and lands, but they have also negotiated and acquired all the other holdings of the Canadian Improvement Co.

THE CHILDREN HAVE A PARADE

Youngsters Boom Reduction in City of Toronto.

Toronto, Dec. 31.—The children's license reduction procession enlivened the campaign yesterday afternoon.

President Martin of the Canadian Temperance League was grand marshal, and delighted the juveniles by his equestrian skill. The procession was divided into two detachments, each headed by a band from the Salvation Army. Sixty vehicles were in the procession. They ranged from a Shetland pony team and children's carriage to monster drays holding 50 children. About 1,500 children took part.

In each wagon load of children several of them held aloft cartoons with the picture of a boy and a barrel, and the query, "The boy or the barrel?"

Other campaign inscriptions were "Vote for Us," "Greater Toronto needs Sober Citizens," "Don't Kill Toronto Citizens," "Save the Boys and Keep the City," "Less Bar-rooms," "We Need the Boys to Save the Flag."

Throughout the parade the children kept up an incessant shout of:

Local option, local option,
Sis, boom, bah!
Reduction, reduction,
Rah! Rah! Rah!

ROWDIES BREAK UP MEETING GATHERING ENDS IN DISORDER

Huge Assembly in Massey Hall Packed With License Reductionists and Opponents Howl Down Speakers—Ends in Disorder.

Toronto, Dec. 31.—An exhibition of rowdyism has seldom been paralleled at a public gathering in the city, ended in the breaking up of the mass meeting held in the Massey Hall last night in the interests of the anti-license reductionists. The announcement that both sides were to be represented at the demonstration had excited the keenest interest among supporters of both parties, and long before the proceedings were timed to start the hall was besieged by a large crowd eager to obtain admission. By eight o'clock the large auditorium was filled to its utmost capacity, and still hundreds struggled to get in, with the result that it was eventually found necessary to close the doors. It was evident from the first that the parties were pretty evenly represented.

The trouble really started when Mr. J. H. Kennedy, the president of the District Trades and Labor Council, got to his feet and proceeded to explain why he, as representing trades unionists, was opposed to the reduction bylaw. His remarks apparently did not meet with the approval of a considerable section of the audience whose sympathies were with reduction, and throughout he was subjected to a running fire of interruptions.

The climax came when Controller F. S. Spence rose to reply on behalf of the reductionists. It seemed as if many of the audience opposed to reduction had made up their minds to retaliate for the interruptions of the previous speakers by preventing Mr. Spence from being heard.

Pandemonium Breaks Loose.

Whatever the reasons, the controller's rising was the signal for a pandemonium. The cheers seemed to predominate, but the booing and hissing, were more persistent, and the more he endeavored to make himself heard the greater the din became.

Controller Spence, vainly striving to make himself heard, appealed to the opponents of license reduction to be as fair to him as the chairman and Mr. Wright had been, but the noise became louder. Then the reductionists took a hand in the game and struck up the hymn "Hold the Fort." Again the chairman intervened with a threat that unless the disorder ceased he would close the meeting. This had some effect, and for a few minutes Mr. Spence was allowed to proceed, though with great difficulty.

A Fight in the Hall.

He had scarcely completed his first argument, however, when the interruptions were renewed, and the excitement was increased by a fight which took place in the body of the hall.

Recognizing that drastic measures had to be adopted the chairman called for a policeman, who, amid much excitement, marched down the hall and ascended the platform, where he took up a position ready to pounce on the first man who made a disturbance. But even this action failed to have the desired effect. Mr. Spence made a final effort to be heard and then wisely gave up, and after Mr. Wright had made a few remarks the gathering broke up in disorder.

WEDDING BELLS

BUTTERILL—DUFF

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. John Duff, Water street, yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, when his youngest daughter, Lillian May, was united in marriage to Mr. Harold Ross Butterill, son of Mr. James Butterill, of Sharbot Lake. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. R. Webb, of the Murray street Baptist church, in the presence of only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the drawing room to the strains of the wedding march, played by her sister, Mrs. Andrews. The bride was attired in a pretty gown of crepe de Paris over silk with veil and orange blossoms and having for her sole ornament a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom.

After the ceremony and hearty congratulations had been bestowed upon the young couple, a sumptuous wedding repast was partaken of.

Mr. and Mrs. Butterill left on the 4.38 C.P.R. train for Buffalo, N.Y., bride travelling in brown broadcloth with Persian lamb coat and brown hat to match.

It is economical to use "Salada" Tea on account of its great strength and delicious flavor. It requires little more than half as much as some other teas in the making.

KING AND QUEEN AT MESSINA LABORING AMONG SUFFERERS

Death List in Disaster May be Doubled When Full Particulars Can be Secured—Streets Littered With Dead and Thousands Dying.

Rome, Dec. 31.—The immensity of the disaster in Southern Italy and Sicily can only be measured by the fact that it is now estimated that 110,000 people perished in Messina and Reggio alone.

A score of others towns have been devastated, and thousands of victims in these places must be added to the roll. In the face of this awful total, all Italy stands appalled.

Nor has the full death list yet been reached. Shiploads of fugitives have arrived at Naples and other ports, and the vast majority of these are sorely injured. Other thousands remain near the ruins of their homes, or wander half-starving, half-naked over the land. The forces that on Monday overwhelmed cities also destroyed the means of subsistence. Telegraphic communication has been established with Messina, the apparatus having been installed.

King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena were in Messina yesterday. The King explored the ruins regardless of the danger to which he exposed himself. He was often moved to tears at heart-rending scenes he came upon at every turn. The King was loud in his praise of the fine work accomplished by the British, Italian and Russian bluejackets, who saved many who otherwise would have inevitably perished.

The Queen spent the day in the wards of improvised hospitals visiting the wounded, many of whom have lost all that was dear to them. Her Majesty did her best to cheer them with womanly words of consolation, often breaking into sobs as she listened to their dreadful tales of suffering. The King left for Reggio last night.

Miraculous Escapes.

The refugees are beginning to tell tales of their marvelous escapes. After the first shock they were for a while imprisoned in their ruined houses. The mass of wreckage made egress impossible. Many waited in terror for the coming of light. They then made their way out, and climbing over the countless obstructions in the streets, escaped to the open. They had to leave behind them under the ruins countless victims who called for help in heart-rending tones. It was impossible to give succor.

A large proportion of those who escaped sustained injuries. It is asserted that probably half the fatalities occurred because it was impossible for the survivors to render assistance. Not the least of the suffering was caused by the torrential downpour of rain.

The devastated district is still filled with half-demented survivors who cannot get away. They are naked and starving and wander aimlessly in a downpour of rain. The ruins are still burning.

Every possible thing is being done to forward the work of relief, but trains with supplies are halted long before they can reach the scene. The railroads have been put out of operation and in many cases transportation by rail is impossible.

Bagnara, a town of 10,000 people, north of Reggio, is reported as annihilated. The entire population is said to have perished. A wandering survivor has raised a cross over the smouldering ruins of Bagnara. Reggio, a city of 50,000 people, has been practically demolished.

Islands May Have Suffered.

Cable communication with the Aeolian Islands, 20 miles north of Sicily, is interrupted. It is evident that the line is broken, and it is thought that the islands also have been devastated.

The largest of the group is the Island of Lipari, and the capital town has a population of 12,000.

It is feared that vast treasures have been looted at Messina. The local branch of the Bank of Italy had $2,000,000 on deposit there and other banks had large amounts of money in their vaults.

A despatch received last evening from the British cruiser Sutlej, at Messina, says that Arthur S. Cheney, the United States consul at Messina, and his wife lost their lives in the destruction of the city.

National Relief Committee Formed.

Taking prompt action in the name of Italy's earthquake sufferers, a great national committee has been formed to collect funds for their assistance. The committee is headed by the Duke of Aosta, and include the presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies, the mayor of Rome, and all prominent men in the leading towns. The subscription list has been opened with $40,000 contributed by King Victor Emmanuel. All banks, clubs, civic and commercial associations and the newspapers have opened subscription lists.

The Lord Mayor of London has telegraphed that subscriptions have also been opened in British colonies, including the resident colonies in the United States.

Pierpont Morgan has telegraphed promising a $10,000 donation in aid of the sufferers.

Refugees at Naples.

Naples, Dec. 31.—Time only confirms the unspeakable horrors of the overpowering catastrophe in southern Italy for earth and sea ruthlessly claimed thousands of human beings, and the flames mercilessly completed the unfinished devastation.

Naples, vibrant with the memory of Vesuvius, is prostrated anew by the misery and woe from Messina confided to her care. The hospitals, hotels and homes are crowded with refugees, and the people are vieing with one another in aiding the stricken.

Those who have expert knowledge on the subject agree that the centre of the cataclysm was the Strait of Messina, which also is the centre of the volcanic zone, the highest peak of which, Mount Aetna, is now silent.

HOT ASHES CAUSE SMALL BLAZE

At Rear of Munro House Office—Practically No Damage

Some hot wood ashes from a stove at the rear of the Munro House office was the cause of a small fire this morning, which would doubtless have been attended by serious results had it not been discovered and promptly checked. A small hole was burnt in the floor, but the fire brigade put out the blaze with chemicals before it had made any progress.

WHERE WILL THE NEW YEAR LEAD?

(By Florence G. Ruthoven.)

Where will the New Year lead?—
God knows; thank Him we do not know;
O, might we look along the road,
Perchance some would no further go,
But, faint, would cast aside life's load.
And lay them low.

Where will the New Year lead;—
It is not meant that we should know;
But hope to each will point some spot,
Of cherished dreams where roses blow;—
God grant that to no desert tract
My feet may go.

MAY EAT MEAT ON NEW YEAR'S

SENATOR BERNIER IS CALLED AWAY

Well-Known Veteran Lawyer and Statesman Passes Away.

Winnipeg, Dec. 31—Hon. Thomas A. Bernier died at noon yesterday at his home in St. Boniface. He had been in a critical condition for the past week.

Born at Henryville, Que., Aug. 15, 1844, he was educated for law at St. Hyacinthe and called to the bar in 1869. He became district crown attorney at St. Johns, but in 1880 removed to Manitoba. A year later he was appointed a member of the commission to investigate the working of law regarding half-breed lands. From 1881 to 1890 he acted as superintendent of education for the Catholic section. During this period he was also assistant clerk of Legislature, member of the executive committee of the board of agriculture, chairman of the eastern judicial district board, and registrar of the university. The first mayor of St. Boniface, he was re-elected five times.

In 1892 he was appointed to the Dominion Senate. He was in politics a Conservative.

RUNAWAY ON GEORGE STREET

Caused Some Excitement at an Early Hour This Morning.

A runaway horse caused considerable excitement on George street this morning. It was attached to a sleigh and came north along George street at a lively clip. The driver was in the sleigh but could not obtain control of the animal. It turned east at the corner of Simcoe and George Sts, and the sleigh made a wide swing and struck a cutter near the corner. The cutter was nearly upset but was not damaged to any extent. The runaway was stopped at Water St.

The percentage of cleared land of the whole is 45.20. The market value of the fall wheat produced was $203,890; of spring wheat $37,798; barley $197,716; oats, $926,770; peas $219,835; beans $1,979; rye $15,673; buckwheat $46,750; corn for husking $5,693; corn for silo $51,370; potatoes $232,201; turnips $88,306; field roots $57,508; hay and clover, $734,830.

The number of cheese factories in operation in the county was 47.

WANDERING IN THE WILDS

Terribly Hardships Endured by Mexican Woman and Child.

Winnipeg, Dec. 31.—Wandering about in the wilds of the north, among the haunts of innumerable timber wolves, Margaret Romaro, a Mexican woman, old and frail, together with her daughter, a child of thirteen, have been found by Indians in a starving condition, almost frozen and desperate from hunger.

The place where the two were found was at Calling Lake, 75 miles west of Athabasca Landing. The pitiful story came to the immigration offices of Mr. J. Bruce Walker yesterday. The place is uninhabited, and only wolves and big game abound in the bush and swamps, which in winter are buried in mountains of snow. Evidently the victims have endured unknown hardships for a long time. Both have been driven from Canada into the United States, and from the States into Canada again.

EVIDENCE OF P. C. NEWHALL IN THE CASE OF WM. RATTRAY

Conversation Between Rattray and Other Prisoners in the Toronto Police Station as Heard by Local Officer—Magistrate Dumble Reserves Judgment Until Monday.

The trial of Wm. Rattray, charged with the theft of 686.12 from Martin Connors was resumed to-day at the police court. The evidence for the defence was concluded and His Honor said that he would take until Monday to consider it. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution.

Jas. O'Toole was recalled and cross-examined by Mr. Wood. He said that he had told Mr. A. Moore and a man by the name of Bartley that he guessed that he could have had half the money if he would have gone south with him. He did not see Rattray after the robbery.

P.C. Newhall testified to having gone to Toronto to bring the prisoner back. He said that on the afternoon of December 17th, Mr. M. Connors and he went to No. 1 police station. Mr. Connors went in first to Rattray's cell. Mr. Connors remarking to him, "You have got yourself into a nice box." referring to the theft of the money. Rattray replied that he never saw the money, saying, "I was sitting on the tombstones with some other men on the night of the theft until half-past one."

"You asked young O'Toole to assist you in the job" said Mr. Connors.

"I did!" exclaimed Rattray in great surprise. "Well, if he says so I must have. I was drunk all that day and night."

P.C. Newhall further testified to hearing Rattray say to Mr. Connors that he (Rattray) went along Charlotte street and down Aylmer street to the C.P.R., where he spoke to a brakeman and then took a train for Toronto. Mr. Connors remarked to Rattray that it looked bad for him as he knew the house so well. The prisoner replied that others knew where the money was kept as well as he. Mr. Connors then came out, but P.C. Newhall remained. He heard a prisoner in an adjoining cell remark to Rattray:

"You gave yourself away when you said you were drunk and when you admitted saying what O'Toole said."

"Well, they can't do anything to me," answered Rattray. "No one saw me do it, and, besides that, another man was with me."

"It looks bad for you—you skipping out," said a voice.

"I never took the money," Rattray answered.

P.C. Newhall heard Rattray tell of going to Chicago after he left here, but he only remained there two days, returning to Chatham. He returned to Toronto about election time and worked and slept around the docks. The first night that he slept at home he was arrested by Detective Guthrie.

MUNICIPAL WATER PAYS AT GUELPH

Guelph, Dec. 31.—Municipal ownership in Guelph continues to pay.

Yesterday morning the water commissioners handed over to Mayor Newstead a check for $17,000, which is a portion of their earnings for 1908. There will be more when the commissioners complete their financial statement for the year.

At a cost of $125,000, an almost entirely new system of waterworks will be completed in a few days. It includes an addition to the pumping house, with two new powerful pumps and a 24-inch pipe line laid to a number of springs five miles out. A concrete reservoir, with a capacity of half a million gallons and a hundred foot standpipe of the same capacity, on the highest elevation in the city, are also features of the new system.

THE SICILIAN DISASTER

The ruin of Reggio in Southern Italy, and of Messina, in Sicily, is complete. In point of loss of life, the catastrophe is the second largest in the history of the western world. The loss of property is enormous. Canadians should through their various houses of parliament vote generous sums of money and grants of supplies for relief. Notwithstanding our various misunderstandings and mutual suspicions, class and religious hatred, etc. We are all one in this rough world and should not allow ourselves to forget it.

OTTAWA

In the last five years Ottawa has become a really beautiful city. The Ottawa improvement movement of the present administration has done wonders in the way of rescuing the city from the exceeding wildness or rather unkemptness of its surroundings. The city itself has improved wonderfully. It has much of the beauty and by no means inanimate repose of a metropolitan, and thoroughly cosmopolitan town of its present dimensions. Its public buildings, its shops, its car service and the apparently natural politeness of its people are a delight to see and experience. Candor compels us to say that with all its bustle Toronto has much less of the capital about it and much more of the parvenu. There is more snobbishness in Toronto than in Ottawa where there is more of a basis to culture and a stronger foundation for "society," which accordingly is a model of simplicity and kindliness. Montreal will always be our one real city, fit to compare with anything of its size anywhere, but Ottawa while less commanding and commercially strong has perhaps just a trifle more of that delightful air which as someone has said is at the same time both religious and worldly. It is not fast nor is it slow. It is natural and beautiful. Considering that it is the Mecca of politicians its people have maintained a reputation for moral cleanliness that does them infinite credit.

GHOST PHOTOGRAPHS

The photograph of a ghost was considered improbable unless the ghost was really there. The fact that the photograph showed it transparent was also considered to have established the fact that it was a ghost, a real ghost, and no mere person dressed up as one. It now transpires that the way to photograph a ghost so as to show it in all its ghostly unreality is to have your room rather dark, then expose the background such as a stairway or mantel-piece, for, say, half a minute, at the end of which period a man dressed as a ghost jumps before the background and is subjected to the other half minute's exposure. The clearness of that which receives the full time of one minute is contrasted with the ghostly blurr of the half minute varieties. It is quite simple.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Students of mechanics are nowadays supposed to put in week and week alternately at theoretical and practical work. It is a plan that succeeds admirably.

The French detective force is considered the cleverest in the world, especially that in Paris. They do no go about in propria persona, but in all sorts of disguises, which they are able to assume with ease. The only way to beat criminals is by being too clever for them, and this plan the Paris detectives have the credit of carrying to perfection.

Of all the astonishing advances in magic, none are more mystifying than the enigmatic cube. The magician who performs this trick seems to have accomplished what other magicians have only dreamed of, and no one but the man himself has been able to find out how he does it.

The enigmatic cube is first a 1-in. cube which the magician produces from the air, and it is then seen to grow while in his hands to a 2-in., a 4-in., and a 9 in. cube. This he sets in full view upon his table, where it is seen to grow slowly to a size of 3 feet 9 in. The cube is then lifted and from under it steps a woman who starts to run toward the front of the stage. The magician snaps his fingers, she instantly stops, disappears in a sheet of flame in full view of the audience, and in her place is seen a gigantic bouquet of real roses, which are plucked and distributed to the audience.

Water infected by microorganisms may now be effectively purified at the tap, if we accept the claims made in behalf of a recently invented French device by which ozone is mixed with the water as it is drawn from the pipes. Says a writer in The Scientific American, New York, October 24th.:

"The apparatus is very simple and inexpensive to instal. Mounted on a small panel some fifteen inches square is a small ozonizer, comprising sheets of glass covered with tinfoil on one side and freely perforated. A current of air is drawn through these plates, which is ionized under the influence of the electric current. The ionized air passes into an inverted glass bulb into which the water is thrown by the main pressure in the form of a spray, and accordingly it combines with the gas, which immediately seizes upon all bacteria present, oxidizing or despatching them immediately. The water drawn from the tap is quite germ proof, while the addition of the ozone imparts a delightful sparkle and an invigorating taste to the liquid. The apparatus is very economical in operation, the ozonizer merely being connected to the holder of an electric lamp, while the simple task of turning the tap sets the ozonizer in action, switching off the current when the supply is arrested. The electrical consumption is very small, one unit sufficing for the sterilising of a thousand gallons of water. Over a thousand of these sterilizers have been installed in private houses in Paris, and recently they have been introduced into this country. The system has also been extended to the purification of public supply installations, a huge plant having recently been completed for the sterilization of the drinking water of Nice before its entry into the distributing mains, a plant capable of treating over five million gallons of water per day."

Of all the products derived from wild animals, furs are the most useful and valuable. They are scarcely less important to the most civilized than they once were indispensable to primitive man, but expanding civilization is steadily diminishing the supply of furs, both by increasing the demand and by encroaching upon the territory in which they are produced, therefore this article.

The growing and world-wide demand for furs of high quality can be met with only by increasing the number of the animals producing them, and one great means of increase is the industry of fox farming. As a business, fox raising is still in the experimental stage, and although many exepriments have failed, a few have succeeded to an extent indicating important possibilities for the future. Success is not due, however, to following but any set of rules, but depends upon the personal fitness of the one conducting the undertaking.

The expense of raising foxes is comparatively small. After building yards and securing stock, running expenses are slight. Without making extensive estimates of the profits of a well established fox farm, it may be said that every silver fox raised is likely to yield a pelt having a market value of over $100. Even pale skins bring this figure, and pure black skins command almost fabulous prices, ranging from $500 to $2,000. It is therefore evident that a modern income may be derived by raising comparatively few foxes. In the present stage of the business the sale of foxes for breeding stock is very profitable, as the live animals in good condition often bring not less than $500 per pair.

Like many new enterprises, fox raising is a business regarding which opinions differ. The favorable facts are that silver foxes are easily and securely kept in simple wire enclosures; that suitable food for them cheap, and that their disposition and the quantity of their fur can be improved by selective breeding. Apposed to these are the unfavorable facts that they are by nature suspicious, nervous, and not inclined to breed regularly and successfully, except when cared for by experienced persons more or less gifted in handling them. The number of persons engaged in the business is relatively small, yet many of the initial difficulties have been overcome, and it is therefore probable that under proper management fox raising will be developed into a profitable industry.

Inclosures for foxes are made with some of the many varieties of woven wire fencing. No. 14 galvanized wire is best and the mesh should not be greater than 2-in. as young foxes are able to wriggle through openings 3 in. square. The fencing should be about 10 ft. high and sunk into the ground 2 ft., while at the top 2 ft. should be allowed for an inward overhang to prevent the animals from climbing out. The sunken part may be turned in 1 ft. or more, and flat stones may be laid at the edge to prevent escape by digging. Experience shows that this percaution is rather more than necessary, as the foxes try to escape by diggin gonly at the edge of the wire, never seeming to think of starting to dig further back and under. The use of stones, however, is usually but little additional expense. The way they are laid is shown in one of the illustrations. The overhanging horizontal wire is easily adjusted along the top of the fence by means of cross pieces on the posts. This is essential, as foxes are good climbers, and in winter snow often greatly reduces the distance to the top of the fence.

The fox farm of exaggerated newspaper account usually is represented as occupying a lonely island or a vast enclosure of wild land, and too often beginners are led to believe that such places are essential. This is not the case, for, although an ordinary back yard is not quite sufficient, but little more is required. If the inclosures are too large, particularly if they afford a variety of conditions, the foxes remain so wild as to be unmanageable. On the other hand, if the enterprise is conducted in limited quarters in a city, or even in a small village, where the animals are often disturbed by visitors, they become restless and suspicious and do not breed well. The best conditions, therefore, are neither exactly natural nor yet too artificial. Foxes require but little space and thrive in inclosures not more than 40 ft. square. These may be but a few yards from a farm house, or, if visitors are excluded, in a quiet place on the outskirts of a village. Perfectly open ground has been used with fair success and in other cases yards have been situated in thick woods, but neither extreme is desirable.

The foxes often dig natural dens in the ground, but it is easy to accustom them to artificial shelters. These should always be constructed with reference to the exclusion of light. Two designs of shelter are shown in the illustration.

Wild foxes eat great varieties of food, including mice, rabbits, birds, and insects such as grasshopper, crickets and beetles. At certain seasons large quantities of berries also are eaten. Meat, therefore, is only part of the natural diet, and many fox breeders, failing to realize this, have fed them, including such food as bread milk, table scraps, or manufactured dog biscuits, all of which are relished and have the proper nutritive values.

The city of Florence has just done penance for a crime committed nearly 600 years ago. It has placed an ever burning lamp in the tomb of Dante at Ravenna.

Florence banished Dante, proscribed him, confiscated his property, sentenced him to death, rejected with scorn his plea to be allowed to return to the city he never ceased to love in spite of its cruelty to him. Ravenna gave him a home in life and sepulcher when he died. Florence repented of her bitterness when too late. She prayed Ravenna to allow the body of the poet to return to her, but Ravenna refused. Florence appealed to the Pope and he ordered Ravenna to surrender the bones of Dante, but Ravenna prized these bones like those of a saint, defied the pope, and built over the body she had cherished a simple but stately tomb. To wipe out the stain upon her reputation proud Florence hired Boccaccio to give readings of the "Divine Comedy" from a rostrum in her market place, but she has ever been jealous of the privilege of Ravenna in possessing the bones of the great poet.

Florence has at last humbled herself, and her act of penance was performed the other day in the presence of a vast assemblage from all the cities of Italy. A hanging lamp of silver severely simple in its design was made by a famous artist and paid for by popular subscription of the Florentines. This was borne to Ravenna with great ceremony and suspended from the vaulted roof of Dante's tomb, where it was filled with oil and solemnly lighted by the mayor of Florence. As a voluntary votive offering the city of Triest — Italian at heart though in Austrian territory—gave a silver jug in which to keep the oil for the ever-burning lamp. Other cities gave the wicks and burners and lamplighters, and there were speakers representing many towns, but all of these were accessories. The event which Italy was celebrating was the long delayed penance of Florence. Henceforth, just as the lamp burns forever before the sanctuary in which the blessed sacrament reposes, so will the Florentine light shine before the grave where Dante sleeps, day and night, century after century, so long as men read the poems that have been called "divine."— Arthur Bennington in New York World.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Bishop Farthing Welcomed.

Montreal, Dec. 31.—The Rev. Dr. Farthing, bishop-elect of Montreal, arrived in the city last evening. A large representative gathering of Anglican clergymen and laymen were present to welcome the new bishop and his family, who will be the guests of Archdeacon and Mrs. Morton.

A complimentary luncheon will be tendered by the clergy and laity of the diocese to the bishop at the Windsor Hotel on Wednesday, Jan. 6, at 1.30 p.m.

The enthronement will take place in Christ Church Cathedral on the feast of the Epiphany, Wednesday, Jan. 6, at 8 p.m.

Discusses Canada's Investments.

London, Dec. 31.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—British Empire Trust issues a statement wherein it deals lengthily with Canadian securitise.

A warning note is sounded regarding municipal extravagance and the view is expressed that unless greater caution is exercised in spending money which can be easily borrowed Canada may have to face a financial crisis.

At the same time the trust declares that Canada is given as good if not better opportunities as any other country in the world provided care is exercised in the selection of investments.

Blizzard In West.

Winnipeg, Dec. 31.—The worst snowstorm of the season, driven by a hard northern gale, had the Canadian prairie province in its grip yesterday.

The low temperatures are working down from the west, thirty below being recorded Tuesday night at Edmonton, with the thermometer just at zero here, but the glass is still falling. The trains are much delayed and street cars are being operated with difficulty. Brandon reports traffic dislocated.

Slight hopes are entertained for the recovery of Mrs M Butterus, who was shot at Hawkesbury.

While making excavations for the new CNR shops at Winnipeg two young foreign laborers were killed by a fall of frozen earth.

Eight Million For Mine.

Montreal, Dec. 31.—The statement was made at the Windsor last evening on the authority of several mining men who had come from Cobalt that the O'Brien Mine had just been sold to a foreign syndicate for the sum of $8,000,000.

It has been known for some time past that M. J. O'Brien of Renfrew, the almost sole owner of the mine, has been negotiating with a view to a sale; consequently the news of a final transfer will be no surprise in Cobalt. Mr. O'Brien said last year that he would not take less than ten millions for the property, but that was considered a pretty high figure even for the O'Brien.

Lord Rosebery's Warning.

Leith, Dec. 31.—At a dinner composed largely of financiers and notables, and at which Lord Rosebery was the guest of honor, those present were surprised to hear him sound a warning to Germany.

His remarks were in response to "war days." Lord Rosebery did not believe there would be an attempt by Germany to invade this country. Great Britain, however, must ensure herself against all risks.

His speech was vociferously received, the guests going so far as to stand upon their chairs and wave frantically the Union Jack.

Huge Airship Company.

New York, Dec. 31.—Announcement was made yesterday of the proposed organization of the Aerial Navigation Co. of America, with principal office in New York City and a capital of $50,000,000.

Thurlow Wood Barnes, known in connection with large Chinese railway operations, is to be president of the new company.

Chokes Wife to Death.

New York, Dec. 31.—Their suspicions aroused by the fact that Carl Breitag, a laborer of South Brooklyn, had the floor of his house cellar concreted the day after his wife Matilda disappeared three weeks ago, the police yesterday made a visit to the Breitag house, and in a corner of the cellar, two feet under the concrete, disinterred Mrs. Breitag's body.

Breitag, who had made strenuous objections, finding the police in earnest about the task, pointed to a corner and said: "You'll find her anyway; she's over there." They did.

The police say he told them he choked her to death.

"She bothered me too much," he explained.

Tax Collector Held Up.

Glace Bay, N.S., Dec. 31.—Archibald McLean, one of the county tax collectors, was held up Tuesday night by two masked men on the road leading to Glace Bay and robbed of $200. McLean was thrown down and gagged while one of the robbers went through his pockets. Both escaped.

Fire at Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Dec. 31.—Six small shops on South Cumberland street, damaged by an early morning fire to the extent of $7,000, included W. F. Fortune, furnishings; Henderson Bros., furnishings; Carroll & Thornton, butchers; Rogers' Photo Studio and a Chinese restaurant.

Fruit Prices Advance.

Montreal, Dec. 31.—As the result of the earthquake in Sicily, the wholesale fruit men report that the prices of oranges and lemons have already advanced.

Two Killed In Trench.

Winnipeg, Dec. 31.—Two men, Joseph Jackson, aged 41, and a Galician, were killed, and a third man injured by a slide of frozen earth into a sewer trench.

KING AND QUEEN ARE AT MESSINA

From this base, the telluric disturbance extended, abating little by little, northerly as far as Cape Vaticano and southerly as far as the Bay of Catania, ravaging the western region of Calabria and the eastern coast of Sicily for a distance of nearly 100 miles.

It is impossible to accurately ascertain the extent of the movement east and west in the inland regions, but it is certain that the beauty of one of the most charming sections of southern Italy has been irrevocably despoiled.

Vineyards are no more; waving rows of lemon, orange and olive trees have been torn up and the enchanting coastline, with its soft and fragrant foliage has been converted into a hideous desert. Reggio, whose gay aspect set off the severity of the mountains, and Balmi, perched jauntily amid orange and olive trees, have become mere blots.

Looters Shot Down.

Catania, Dec. 31.—The latest news sets forth that some progress is being made in the work of succoring the wounded survivors, but no attempt is being made to remove the wreckage. The troops and sailors have been obliged to shoot down robbers caught looting. All the funds of the Messina branch of the Bank of Italy, some $2,000,000, has been saved and is on board an Italian warship.

The rescuers at Messina are rapidly becoming exhausted. The fires have not yet been put out, and there is no water with which to combat the flames. Many of the people still refuse to leave the ruins of their houses. Force often is necessary to get them to the ships in the harbor. There are, however, large numbers of persons in the suburbs of Messina who will not come back into the city for fear of a re-occurrence of the shocks.

A despatch from Deputy Felice at Messina says: Organize squadron of volunteers for rescue work. Send us food, for we are dying of hunger. A number of the survivors are leaving for Catania. It is the duty of every family in Catania to shelter a family from Messina.

Only two members of the municipal council of Messina survived the disaster.

The bluejackets from the Russian warships at Messina have performed valorous service. They risked their lives recklessly in the work of extricating the wounded. Hospitals have been improvised in the railroad station, which is partially standing, and in another building on First of September street, and on board the steamer Reina Margherita, but they already are full. A roll call of the Eighty-Ninth Regiment of Infantry reveals the fact that the organization has only ten survivors. A man named Roberto, the sole survivor of his family, became mad from grief in Catania yesterday and committed suicide.

Sympathy From Montreal.

Montreal, Dec. 31.—The City Council yesterday passed a resolution of sympathy with the sufferers in Sicily, but, according to their charter, cannot send any money.

French Relief.

Toulon, Dec. 31.—A French relief squadron carrying food, clothing, medical supplies and money for the relief of the Messina sufferers left here yesterday for that port.

KEENE NEWS

Special to the Review.

Keene, Dec 31—Mrs Tate and Miss Tate, of Collings Bay are the guests of Mrs D D McDonald.

Misses Bessie and Nellie Read spent Christmas in Keene the guest of their aunt, Miss Bessie Read.

Mr and Mrs E Wilson and family, Young's Point, were the guests of Mr and Mrs John McFarlane, over Christmas.

Miss W Miller, Oxbow, is spending the holidays in Keene.

The Foresters' annual oyster supper and ball will be held in the town hall on Friday evening, Jan 8th.

Mr Wallace Adamson had the misfortune to fall and break his leg, while working at home last week.

Miss Olive Shepherd, of Toronto, is the guest of her sister, Mrs K H McWilliams.

Mr and Mrs Skinkle, Wellington, visited Mrs Skinkle's parents, Mr and Mrs Walter Thompson last week.

Mr and Mrs Roland McWilliams, and Mrs Miller, of Peterborough, spent Christmas in Keene.

Mr A St A Smith spent Christmas in Peterborough.

Mr Percy Skinner, Queen's College, Kingston, is spending the holidays with his parents.

The death took place after a long illness of Miss Alice Johnson, one of the oldest residents of the district. The deceased was a native of Scotland but has spent most of her life in Canada, coming to this country when a young woman. She is survived by two brothers, John of Grafton and Adam of Lang, and one sister, Agnes.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at half past one o'clock. Interment will take place in Fife's cemetery.

The funeral of the late Mrs John Howson, whose death occurred this morning in Campbellford will be held in the Methodist church, Keene, Friday morning at ten o'clock, after which interment will take place in the Pine Grove cemetery.

WHERE SAVAGES BEAT US

The rude, uncultured savage did not sit most of the day in a padded office chair, a carriage or car. His food was not prepared by a chef. He had to hunt for something to eat. And dinner, when he got it, was none too rich.

But the rude, uncultured savage did not suffer from indigestion, constipation, biliousness, headaches, as we civilized beings do. Exercise and the amount of fruit and fresh vegetables in his diet, kept liver, bowels and kidneys working right.

None of us want to go back to the days of wigwams and tomahawks but a lot of us certainly would like to have the digestion of the savages

We can, by taking "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" act directly on the stomach, liver, kidneys and skin, and keep these organs in perfect condition "Fruit-a-tives" bring back lost appetite and sound digestion to the Dyspeptic—regulate the bowels of those who suffer from Constipation — and build up the whole system. Trial size 25c. Regular size 50c, or 6 for $2.50.

PRESENTS FOR S. S. TEACHER

Interesting Items from Bethel, Emily.

Bethel, Emily, Dec. 30.—Dr. Thompson and Mr. Johnston, of Omemee, occupied the pulpit last Sunday evening in the absence of our pastor, Rev. Mr. McKenzie, who is spending the Xmas The service was very enthusiastic, a prayer and fellowship meeting was held in connection, owing to it being the last Sunday in the Old Year, and these meetings were conducteda in such a manner, that we are sure we had a glimpse of the good old time religion.

Miss Annie Mills, of the State Hospital, Rochester, is spending the holidays under the parental roof.

Miss Olive Clarke entertained a number of Bethel friends at her home last Monday evening and a most enjoyable time was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Falks, of Cavan, were visitors to Bethel last Sunday.

Santa Claus has been very kind to a number of our Sunday school teachers this season. Four of them received very handsome gifts from their classes. Miss Annie Doube, teacher of the Girls' class, No. 8, received a handsome gold bracelet and Mrs. R. Guthrie, of the boys' class, No. 3 was presented with a handsome teachers' Bible. Then on Tuesday evening, Mr. Gabriel Switzer heard sounds around his door, and on opening it a beautiful gold-headed cane fell towards him. On further observance he saw two of his Sunday school scholars of the young men's class, No. 7, making rapid strides towards the road. When Mr. John T. Switzer was starting out to the stable Christmas eve, on the verandah, a handsome gentleman's rocker, and a card on it stated from "Your Sunday School Class" (the gentlemen's adult Bible class.) All these presents are very much appreciated by the teachers, and no doubt testify to the high esteem in which they are held by the scholars.

Mr. Fred Reed left last Tuesday to spend the Christmas holidays at his home in Reaboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lytle, of Roland, Man., are the guests of Mrs. Lytle's mother, Mrs Jacob Lowes.

Mr. Frank Mills is the guest of his sister, Mrs. R. Casey.

Mr. Albert Franks has returned home after spending a couple of months with friends in the West.

Two sleigh loads from Orange Corners attended the concert in the opera house Christmas night. They report a very pleasant time.

Miss Annie Doube and Mr. Thomas Doube spent Sunday evening and Monday with acquaintances near Lakehurst.

An Observatory For the Public.

The only genuine public observatory in the world is at Zurich, Switzerland. It is open every evening to the public and during the past six months was visited by no fewer than 25,000 people. The telescope, which is mounted in an entirely new and ingenious way, is seventeen feet six inches long and weighs fourteen tons. Its object glass is twelve inches in diameter. Attached to the instrument is a projecting screen, upon which objects in the heavens are thrown for the benefit of those waiting to get a peep through the telescope itself.—Popular Mechanics.

See Your Heart Beat.

It may be comforting or otherwise to a man to have a cinematograph reproduction of his heart beats, but he can have it if he wishes, thanks to a Dutchman's cleverness. This is how it is worked: First find your heart. Place against it a stethoscope. This will intensify the beating and move an oscillator. This in its turn has its movements photographed on a film, and there you are! It would be invaluable as applied to a witness in the box, so that the jury could see what was going on when the cross examination became very hot.—Modern Society.

The Tallest Actress.

The distinction of being the tallest actress belongs to Miss Irene Smith, who plays La Bebe Bax in the new Drury Lane drama. She stands six feet one and one-half inches in her stockings. It seems somewhat incongruous that she should wear high heels, her hair brushed high over a pad and a high hat in order to give a greater impression of height. This is, however, what she does so as to realize the description of being six feet four inches in height, in accordance with the design of the authors.—London Tit-Bits.

Leprosy in a Cow.

A cow has been found apparently suffering from leprosy. Her ears were quite bloodless and were cut off inch by inch without hurting her. The possibility of milk being consumed by human beings from a leprous cow is terrible to think of.—Natal Afrikander.

Captain Lawrence Sinclair of Port Huron, fell dead while walking.

ANOTHER BLACKLISTED MAN FINED TEN DOLLARS TO-DAY

A young man on the blacklist was fined ten dollars at the police court this morning for having been found with intoxicating drink in his possession. He pleaded not guilty.

Inspector Stewart gave evidence as to the prisoner having been posted in all the local hotels.

Mr. Percy Engel, bartender at the Crown Hotel, said that yesterday the young man was in the bar. He was about to get a drink when the witness walked in and prevented the other clerk giving it to him. Mr. Engel then ordered the prisoner off the premises. He refused to go and the witness called P. C. McGinty, who arrested him.

P. C. McGinty testified to the arrest as the result of a telephone message. He found two bottles of lager on him.

The prisoner was put in the box and was asked to tell where he got his liquor. He swore that he had bought it before he was placed on the blacklist and had kept it in the cellar at home for about six months. He denied having been drunk within the last two weeks.

His Worship imposed the above fine.

THE SMITH STREET BRIDGE; DIFFERENT PLANS SUGGESTED

On Monday next a vote is to be taken on a number of by-laws for the expenditure of money on civic improvements. One of the most important of these and one vitally necessary to the circulation of business and social life in the northern half of the city is the Smith street bridge. The old wooden one is a thing of the past. The propositions now before the people are many. A three-span re-inforced solid concrete bridge 24-foot driveway and with two sidewalks 6 feet each will cost $49,000. The street railway has by its charter aright to run over any bridge in the city but the Crescent street bridge, if safe to do so.

The above plan would give it the desired privilege. A bridge of the same sort 6 feet narrower, that is with one sidewalk and with the privilege to the street railway would cost about $40,000. A two span steel bridge with concrete piers, etc. 36 foot wide as in the case of the first mentioned concrete bridge would cost about $46,000. This would not serve the railway's purpose not being equal to the weight.

A still narrower steel bridge with some concrete piers, etc, would cost about $37,500.

Then there is Mr Langford's proposition which he is prepared to guarantee in price and construction. It is 30 feet wide, the driveway being 18 feet wide and each of the sidewalks 5 feet wide. The piers, etc. to be as before by reinforced concrete. The cost is about $32,000.

Which shall it be?

PRESENTATION OF PRIZES AND PROGRAMME AT SPRINGVILLE

The Christmas tree exercises under the auspices of the Springville Presbyterian church, were held last night. The annual report showed the year to be the most successful in the history of the school with greater attendance, larger giving and generally then ever before. Some time ago a $5 gold piece was offered by Mr. John McIntosh and Mr. T. Hunter, followed with an additional $5. Both were for prizes for the Sunday school pupils. Others interested also contributed money in lesser amounts until a total of about $25 was given.

The presentation to the prize winners were given at last night's function. The gold piece was won by Mellville Whitfield, who won in addition the general assembly's diploma for reciting the shortest catechism without a mistake and also the diploma for memory verses. In addition to reciting the catechism without a mistake he recited upwards of 400 verses of Scripture.

Following close to him was Mary L. Pearce, who won diplomas and $4 in cash. Lillian Hooten and John Marsh were bracketed, winning the general assembly's diploma for reciting the catechism without a mistake and $2 in cash each. Lizzie Sherwood recited the shorter catechism and verses without a mistake, winning a diploma and $1.50 in cash.

Annie Brown, Vilda Trew, Pearl Bowles, Margaret Whitfield, obtained equal standing and received money prizes.

In the infant class Beatrice Whitfield won the diploma for reciting the mother's catechism, ten commandments and memory verses and received also $2 in cash. John and Geo. Whitfield were equal both winning the diploma for catechism and verses and $1 each in money.

During the evening readings, recitations, dialogues, songs and instrumental numbers of the school and were given by members of the school and were assisted by Miss Greta LeBar and Misses Titterson. The Sunday school sent Santa Claus in the shape of money to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.

BOGUS TEN DOLLAR BILLS BEING CIRCULATED HERE

The local banks have been notified to be on the lookout for bogus ten dollar bills on the banks of Toronto and Nova Scotia. It is said that five dollar bills on these banks are being made into tens by tearing the corners off the fives and sticking them on the fives. The banks here have been warned not to accept ten dollar bills that are not all there.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEA AND CONCERT AT KNOX CHURCH

The annual Sunday School tea and entertainment of Knox church was held last evening and was a great success. Tea was served from five to seven o'clock after which a cantata, "Miss Prim's boarding school," was put on by the scholars of the Sunday School under the direction of Mrs Patterson Mowry. There were about thirty who took part and the solos and choruses were splendidly given. The principals and soloists in the cantata were Mrs Mowry, Master Harold Hatcher, Mr Thompson, and Misses Jessie Miller, Clara and Eva Bartley and A Carr. Miss English was the accompanist and Mr Connal accompanied on the violin. Much credit is due Mrs Mowry for the able manner in which she trained the children. Everyone was pleased with the performance.

Sheriff Hall referred to the work of the Sunday School during the past year, stating that the average attendance had increased from 114 to 160. The presentation of diplomas and Bibles and gift from two large Christmas trees then took place. The Sunday organist, Miss Chiles was present- day School organist, Miss Chiles was presented with an ebony brush and mirror and Mrs Mowry with an umbrella.

The evening was closed with the National Anthem.

VAUDEVILLE AT ROYAL THEATRE

The Great Selvin and Co. Illusionists Have Been Booked

The management of the Royal Theatre have engaged a special vaudeville attraction for all next week. —The Great Selvin and Company. Illusionists beginning on Monday evening at 7.30. It is acknowledged by both press and public that Selvin is one of the cleverest in his line. The act will be greatly appreciated by all who will have the opportunity of witnessing the performance. It is elaborately staged with special electrical effects and is a clever, refined entertainment for ladies and children as well as the public. You can see a comic opera any day, but the Great Selvin in his special illusionist features but one in a life time. He is claimed to be the world's foremost deceptionist.

The regular picture show will be run as usual during the day at the usual price of admission.

RECEPTION HELD IN OTONABEE

Pleasant Event at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Petrie.

Christmas Day was spent very pleasantly at the home of Mr and Mrs T. Petrie, Otonabee where a reception was given to his sister, Mrs J Girven and son Arthur, from Kinbrae, Minnesota. The reception was attended by Mr and Mrs Jas Petrie, the parents of Mrs Girven, also by her sisters, Mrs Wm Girven, Otonabee; Mrs Shannon, Peterborough, and Mrs Crawford, Toronto. Among others present were Mr and Mrs C. Kruger and Mr and Mrs Jas Girven, Peterborough; Mrs. Coben, Kinmount, and Mr Wm Girven.

During the afternoon and evening the company was entertained by the singing of old familiar songs of their youth, and in social intercourse, recalling the events of by-gone days. Recitations were given by the younger members. Supper was served at about eight o'clock all doing ample justice to the good things provided.

All too quickly the evening passed "Auld Lang Syne" was sung with a hearty handshake, and the guests departed feeling brighter and better for a day so happily spent.

WEEK OF PRAYER IN CITY CHURCHES

Will be Observed From Jan. 4th to 8th—The Addresses.

All next week with exception of Saturday evening the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches will observe a week of prayer. Special addresses will be given by the different clergy there being a general exchange of pulpits among the ministers. This week of prayer is held annually during the first week of the year and has always been productive of good results.

The programme of meetings is as follows,

Monday, January 4th, Charlotte St. Methodist, "The Supremacy of Christ in Private Life."

Tuesday, January 5th, St Andrew's Presbyterian, Mark St. Methodist, "The Supremacy of Christ in Business Life."

Wednesday, January 6th, George St. Methodist, "The Supremacy of Christ in Home Life."

Thursday, January 7th, Murray St. Baptist, Knox Presbyterian, "The Supremacy of Christ in Social Life."

Friday, January 8th, St [illegible] Presbyterian, "The Supremacy of Christ—it's Result."

Band at Street Railway Rink on New Year's afternoon.

THEATRICAL

IN HIS POWER.

"In His Power," one of the strongbills in the repertoire of the Carl W. Cook Stock Company, was given last night at the Grand Opera House to a well pleased audience. The specialties were bright and entertaining. The juggling and balancing were especially good and among the strongest vaudeville features ever presented here by a vaudeville company.

To-night "A Boy of the Streets" will be the attraction. To-morrow, New Year's Day, both a matinee and night performance will be presented. In the afternoon "A Boy of the Streets" will be the attraction, and at night "The Little Duchess."

Band at Brook St. Rink New Year's Day afternoon.

SPORTING NEWS

PRIZE FIGHTS IN AUSTRALIA LIKELY TO BE PROHIBITED

Sydney, NSW, Dec 30—William H. Wood, Chief Secretary of New South Wales in an interview today, said that the prize fight situation at Sydney was being given serious consideration by the Government authorities, as the Burns-Johnston contest last Saturday savored of being more brutal and repulsive than scientific.

He declared that unless infighting was eliminated boxing here would have to be regarded as an illegitimate sport. Mr Wood says that an attempt would be made to amend the laws so as to make New South Wales less of a happy hunting ground for securing big stakes as in the last contest, as it was not desired that Sydney should correspondent with the Pacific slope regarding pugilistic undertakings.

However, as a result of the low character of pugilism indicated by the fight on Saturday the police would prevent any further contest here between Burns and Johnston.

New York, Dec. 30—The following cablegram from Sydney, Australia, received by the New York Evening World, speaks for itself;

Johnson's second influenced the police in stopping the contest. I was strong and had the same chance as Nelson had with Gans. Johnson was tiring. Pictures show everything. Am willing to fight Johnson again. Can beat him. Am arranging return match Pictures will arrive in two months.

Signed—TOMMY BURNS.

Tommy possibly refers to the forty-two round affair at Goldfields, between Nelson and Gans. Nelson was strong and still going when the decision was given to Gans on a foul. Later on Nelson demonstrated that he was Gans' master, and perhaps he would have worn down Gans at Goldfields if the battle had continued to a real finish.

NEW LIGHT ON LONGBOAT AND HIS MANAGEMENT

The Catholic Register says;—One pities poor Tom Longboat. He is only the merest creature in the hands of designing men. They race him brutally, parade him more brutally and marry him still more brutally—for money. The grind of the Indian, not like that of the "Man at the Hoe," an overdrawn picture for the most part of Labor's indignity, should sink deeply into other hearts than Tom's and cause a revulsion of feeling against brutality to even Indians and the offensive notoriety which invades the sacred precincts of of the sanctuary and desecrates even holy sacraments. We are sorry to see such good old names as O'Flannigan and O'Rourke connected with this flagrant venality and desecration. Once they were honored in Irish Kings and Irish Churchmen; now their holders brutalize athletics and shock the sensibilities of decent people. The atrocities of bull-fights in far-off Spain or the cock-fight of some dark corner nearer home, sicken and horrify man tender-hearted and self-righteous souls in our midst who fatten upon these degrading details of Longboat's Marathon experiences.

CONCERNING THE MANAGEMENT OF THE HIAWATHA INDIAN

The question of Fred Simpson's management when he breaks into the professional world, is one that is attracting considerable attention just now. The fleet Hiawatha man has been negotiating in the matter of securing a manager for some time, but has not been signed yet, but there is every probability of him being taken up in the near future.

The Review to-day was given some information on the subject by a local gentleman interested in the matter, but bound over to say nothing of it as no definite arrangements have been made. Definite news of the matter will likely be to hand in a day or two.

GEORGE CAIRNS HIGH SCORE

At P. B. C. Tournament Rolled 600 in Three Games

The Examiner A team took three straights from the Examiner B's in the ten pin league series at the PBC last night and the winners are now tied with the Pacifics for second place in the league standing. All the credit for the sweeping victory goes to George Cairns, who in order to land his team on top, had to roll an average of 200 in his three games, piling up a total of 600.

This is the first occasion a six hundred score has been made in the league and Cairns aggregate beats the previous record for three consecutive games by 22 pins.

In his three games Cairns had only two errors and these were made in his second game at a time when he had a splendid chance to greatly exceed the 200 mark. In all he had fifteen strikes during the evening, thirteen spares, two splits and two errors.

The first two games were won by the A's with comparative ease, but the third game was a fight from first to last frame, and only Cairns' magnificent total of 219 saved the team from defeat, five pins only, separating them at the finish.

The scores follow;

JEFFRIES REFUSES

Turns Down an Offer to Fight Johnson for $50,000 Purse — This Seems Final.

Special to the Review.

Melbourne, Dec. 31.—James J. Jeffries has refused an offer made by Hugh Wren of a purse of $50 000 for a fight with Jack Johnson for the world's heavyweight championship, win or lose, or draw, the fight to take place here on Melbourne Cup Day in November. In his reply to the tender, Jeffries says he will fight no more.

Band at Street Railway Rink on New Year's afternoon.

PRACTICE WAS A GOOD ONE

Intermediates and Juniors Had Workout Last Night

The intermediates and juniors practiced last night from 7 to 8 and the workout was an excellent one. The youngsters played cleverly and should give a good account of themselves in their game with Whitby tomorrow. The intermediates also chased the puck in good fashion.

The teams lined up as follows;

Intermediates
Goal—Derocher.
Point—Parnell.
Cover—Long.
Forwards—Seymour, Rose, Dusty and Dobson.

Juniors
Goal—Giroux.
Point—Fox.
Cover—Wade.
Forwards—Ray, Giroux, Pentland and Hillier.

SPORTING TALK

Another fight between Burns and Johnston is talked of. Some Children's Aid Society should try to prevent it.

HOCKEY

St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild hockey team, will practice to-morrow, New Years morning at Knox rink at 10 o'clock sharp. All players are requested to be out.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

The Money By-law

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Three by-laws for a total of over $100 000 are to be submitted to the qualified ratepayers on Monday. Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to say a few words in regard to these by-laws for $100,000 is quite a large sum of money and would be a charge on the city of 8,000.00 a year for 20 years.

Individuals and Councils often get careless and extravagant in the expenditure of money when it can be got easily by borrowing and do not give that careful consideration which they should or would if they had to pay as they go. We will look at the by-laws separately.

First, there is one of $21,500.00 to purchase land for street extensions. This no doubt, is required and is a necessary outlay on account of the growth of the city and as a considerable part of this amount has already been expended and we would have to pay it out of current account, therefore it is advisable to carry the by-law.

The second by-law is for $30 000.00, I think the ratepayers will vote for this by-law, as it seems absurd to think of such a thing seriously as to pay $30 000.00 to have the Peterborough Agricultural Fair held here for one day each year. What has the fair been worth to the municipality for the last 20 years? We must judge of the future by the past. I do not believe that the by-law was well considered by the Council, or it never would have been submitted to the people.

The 3rd of these by-laws is for 49 000.00 to build a bridge on Smith street. Now, a bridge is wanted and should be built as the bridge there there at present has outlived its time but why should we spend $49,000.00 for a bridge when we can build a first-class highway bridge for half the money. The bridge proposed by the engineer would be built of concrete, with three arches and would be a very fine looking bridge, but very expensive, as a complete wooden structure the full size and in every part the same as the finished bridge for a mould for the concrete, would have to be constructed. This mould or form would have to be very strong to support the weight of the wet concrete and to build this over a river as deep and as strong as the Otonabee is very expensive and as this false work has to remain in place several months to allow time for the cement to set there is a certain amount of risk of it being carried away by floods. There are few bridges, if any, in existence, built of concrete, having several arches over a river as deep as this. Such bridges are, as yet in an experimental stage and I think it would be unwise for us to build such a bridge, particularly when we can build one of a permanent character, that is no experiment, but a sure thing for so much less.

A steel bridge can be built for $24,000—less than half the price of the other—This bridge would be a three span steel bridge with concrete piers and concrete floor 18 foot roadway, two sidewalks, and strong enough to carry any load. It would be much superior to the Hunter street bridge and heavier than any in this locality This is the style of bridge in use on the highways and railroads all over Canada. It is no experiment and in my opinion is the safest bridge to build. The saving on the bridge as compared with the one proposed, would be $2000 per year or $40,000 for the 20 years the debentures would have to run.

Now I think it would be advisable to vote this by-law down and let the Council get plans for a proper bridge which, I am sure will not exceed $25-000.00.

Thanking you, Mr Editor,
Yours truly,
WM. LANGFORD.

COAL PROBLEM IN THE WEST

People of Western Canada Should Never Need to Face a Shortage of Fuel

Canada is a land of coal as well as of forests. Everyone knows that the coal mines of Nova Scotia have been among the greatest producers in the world for many years. Besides the coal of Nova Scotia, the country from the Atlantic to the prairies was at one time covered with forest, great areas of which remain. Contrary to the ideas of many who have never visited the prairies, these are not treeless but contain here and there timber belts, some small, some so large as to verge upon the inexhaustible. In addition there are deposits of coal on the prairies.

A soft coal of rather inferior quality but capable of emitting considerable heat when in process of combustion is found in the Souris valley and in the region around Estevan and Bienfait. There are other deposits of coal in Saskatchewan, some of which have been tested, others being as yet practically unknown. Around Lethbridge in Alberta there is a considerable coal mining industry, some of the mines producing a fine grade of soft domestic coal. Around Medicine Hat there are large deposits of coal which in some places can be dug out of the ground near the surface. The quality is quite satisfactory for domestic purposes and would be largely used by the people of Medicine Hat city but for the fact that they have in natural gas a fuel much more convenient and on account of its abundance approximately as economical. Further west in Alberta, and in the mountain region, anthracite is mined, the various sizes from that known as furnace coal down to the small nut coal being shipped out.

Again there are around Edmonton very extensive deposits of soft coal said to be very satisfactory for domestic purposes. It would seem that with all these sources of fuel supply both coal and wood, the people of Western Canada would never need to face a shortage. It would also seem that coal at least should always be procurable at reasonable prices, according to quality and grade.

A little comparison of prices of the various grades of coal as purchased in Western Canada may prove interesting. In Winnipeg American anthracite, all the way from Pennsylvania, is sold at $10.50 per ton down to the No. 2 nut size, which is retailed at $9 per ton. American soft coal for domestic purposes is sold at $8 to $9 per ton. Lethbridge and Taber coal from the Alberta mines is sold at $9 Souris coal brings from $5 to $5.5 0per ton. Canadian anthracite does not find its way from Banff and Bankhead to this city.

At Moosomin, 219 miles west of Winnipeg, Pennsylvania anthracite is sold at $12.50 per ton and here Banff anthracite comes into the market, being sold at $10.50 per ton, the exact price at which Pennsylvania anthracite is sold in Winnipeg. Taber coal is sold in Moosomin at $8.50 per ton. Moosomin is 541 miles from Lethbridge and 703 miles from Banff. Moosomin is 545 miles from Fort William and the latter town is some little distance from the Pennsylvania mines, but of course a large part of the haul of American coal to Fort William is over the water route.

At Moose Jaw the price of Lethbridge coal is much the same as at Moosomin and Banff. Anthracite is $10.50. At both Regina and Moose Jaw, 365 and 524 miles, respectively, from Banff, the price of Canadian anthracite is the same as that of Pennsylvania anthracite in Winnipeg

The Saskatoon Phoenix has lately been devoting some attention to the coal question and makes the statement that Edmonton coal, which is thought to be a really satisfactory domestic fuel, should be laid down there at $5 per ton. As the price of Lethbridge coal at Regina is much the same as at Winnipeg it would seem that Edmonton coal, which could be sold at Saskatoon for $5 per ton could be sold here at not more than $6 per ton.

In view of the fact that Western Canadian coal of good quality, both hard and soft, exists in vast deposits, and that it can be distributed over the vast prairies without duty restrictions, it would seem reasonable to expect that people should be able to purchase it at much less cost than corresponding grades of Pennsylvania coal, even taking in consideration the fact that the latter comes a great prat of the way hither over the water route.—Winnipeg Free Press.

THE QUEST OF THE STEPMOTHER

By Gertrude E. Allen

ANTONIO NEFERRIO owned the principal shop of the Italian quarter. As his young daughter, Rica, proudly phrased it, "My fatha sells the orange and the banan, and makes the butch on the meat."

It was evening, and Rica sat on the wooden step before the shop, gently jarring the youngest Neferrio to sleep on her knee. His lashes lay like charcoal crescents against his plump brown cheeks.

Out on the curb Antonio's second son, aged four, explored a treasure box before him, bringing to light familiar yellow objects, bitterly lined in white, or stiff green plants culled from the pineapple. Summer was at hand, and Leonardi had shed the heavy masculine attire sewed on for the winter and was now cool and happy in an outgrown frock of his sister.

Save these three, the block appeared deserted; but to Rica's ears sibilant Italian murmurings issued from the shop where the king, their father, was holding converse with a chosen few of his subjects. The alluring notes of a hurdy-gurdy, the shouts of children at play in the next street, filled the air with enchantment; for Rica beheld the world through a gold-washed imagination. Grimm's Fairy Tales, from the mission library, was the inexhaustible source of the gilding, and while passersby saw only a forlorn little girl minding a baby, she was, in fact, a princess loitering on the palace step.

A neighbor paused to condole and advise. "Poor little thing! You should find a wife for your father, Rica, so you could be at play with the other children."

"Sure," Rica agreed nonchalantly in English, "I should."

But such is the power of pity that she at once stepped out of her gilded world into a shabby, material one, where the yoke of bequeathed motherhood burdened her shoulders. The children's shouts now awakened yearning envy, the sweethearts whispering on the bridge at her right contrasted her loneliness. Even her father's voice told of companionship from which she was excluded. A vaguely defined wish, which had been with her for months, now modelled into form by the neighbor's words, became a determination. Still seated on the step with the baby in her arms Rica searched the vast kingdom of her acquaintance for a princess worthy of her father's hand.

For thirteen months this question of Antonio's remarrying had been discussed in the Italian settlement, yet he showed no corresponding inclination. Moreover, when the name of the children's mother was reverted to it was met by a coldness manifest of rankling memories.

Antonio was a man of conservatism. His wife's adoption of new country customs had been to him a sorry revelation. A few months after their arrival, when he was weak in the first pride of fatherhood, she had inveigled him into a millinery shop and into purchasing for her a modish hat of feathers and flowers. Afterward, repenting his extravagance, he had forbidden all further American follies, when, one year later, she had proved herself so unworthy of race and tradition as to pawn her earrings to replace the now wornout hat. This he had never forgotten. To wilfully relinquish her sense of hearing would have shocked him no more. For months she was the talk of the quarter, until his shame at her naked ears led him to his second and last extravagance, that of restoring the ornaments. Though she lived to bear Angelo, Leonardi and John, to revert to the shawl head covering of her race, he never wholly forgave her feminine wild oats. It had rendered him keen and suspicious of woman's ways.

Rica knew this and that the subject of a stepmother was a hopeless one to contemplate, yet Grimm proved repeatedly that success rewarded the most difficult quest. Now, one by one, six possible candidates were lifted into the stepmother niche, only to be hastily withdrawn. Mary Mantani remained longest, but the Widow Letorrio so snugly and jovially fitted in that Rica resolved on her permanent instalment.

She carried the baby through the shop, where the men sat smoking, opened a rear door and entered what was ordinarily a mysterious subterranean passage, but, devoid of gilding, was merely the back hall. It led to their two living rooms. Rica laid the young prince on his mattress, covered him with a blanket, and returned to the shop.

Her father's back was toward her. The German saloon keeper, distinctly an outsider, was speaking, and his words pierced through her inattention.

"I dell you, dose vimens ven dey drinks, dey drinks verser else de man."

Rica halted in the act of surreptitiously snapping a banana from its stalk. She had overlooked the candidate's one frailty. By the German's words the Widow Letorrio was disqualified. Mary Mantani had won.

With this more difficult task to perform she removed two bananas from the bunch and crept stealthily out of the shop, past Leonardi, still absorbed in epicurean pleasures.

Mary Mantani lived two blocks away, up three flights of stairs. She was at her evening meal when the little girl peered in at the door. A newspaper neatly covered the table spread with what seemed to Rica a fairy feast. There was even a pat of butter before her.

Mary Mantani, having reached her thirtieth year, was the old maid of the Italian settlement. She worked out by the day, and in her intercourse with American had attained an un-Italian neatness of coiffure. Her hair and eyes mimicked the hue of her faded brown calico; her skin was a shade lighter, while over all was a veil of meekness imparted by her unsought condition. The only glint of brightness in her appearance was the gold padlock in each ear. She greeted her visitor with smiling good nature, noting the covetous eyes on her spaghetti and cheese.

"Come, sit down and maka eat some," she invited.

Rica shook her head, unhesitatingly stating her preference to carry it home.

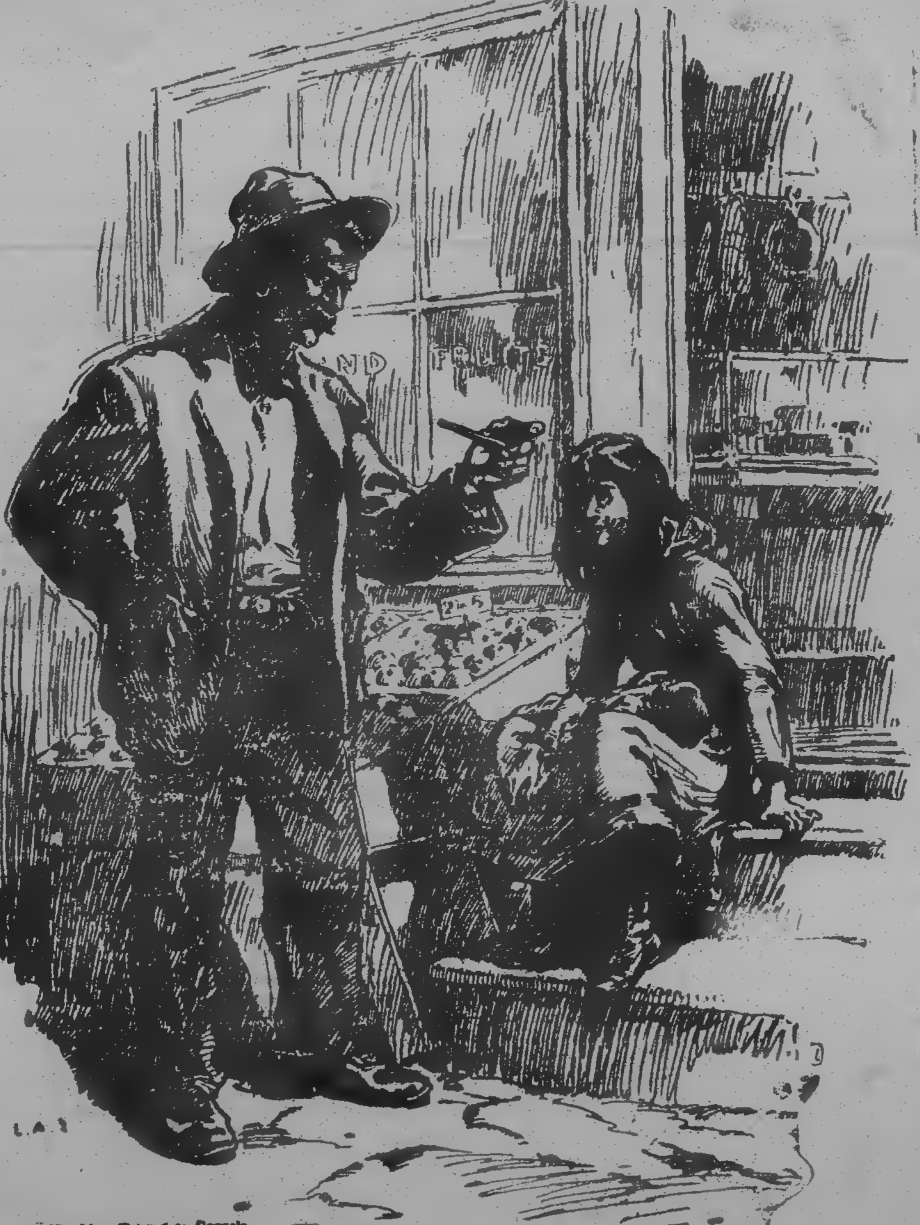
"Sura, sura." The hostess tore off a corner of the newspaper and emptied the spaghetti on it. "I maka plenta more."

"My fatha gives you two banan," Rica declared, abandoning for the occasion the teachings of the mission Sunday school.

"Your fatha, alway so stinge, maka me the present!" Mary turned the fruit over suspiciously, testing its soundness with a tentative thumb; then she bit off an end, tore down the skin, and contemplated the firm whiteness of the fruit.

"My fatha has a like on you," Rica proceeded cautiously. "He is a good man to have about. Every morning while I sleep he gets up and makes the fire with the coal."

"Huh!" Mary waved her hand toward a tiny range in the corner. "I burna de gas lika de American," she answered airily.



A Neighbor Paused to Console and Advise.

"YOU SHOULD HAVE A WIFE FOR YOUR FATHER."

Momentarily stunned and unable to declaim extempore other of her father's virtues, Rica remained silent, watching with solemn black eyes the rapid disappearance of the fruit, until presently the suspicion on Mary's face had faded and the approval dawning in its place spelled the first letter of the courtship.

The second Rica realized to be more difficult, but Antonio Neferrio devoured the spaghetti at breakfast the next morning in hearty approbation. She even stinted Angelo and Leonardi that her father's appetite might be satisfied. But not until the last remnant was heaped on his knife blade did Rica disclose its source. "Mary Mantani makes you the nice present, fatha."

"Mary Mantani!" Her parent paused in alarm, with knife blade beneath his nostrils.

"She is a good woman; she cooks healthy food." A chill starting at Rica's heart stole gently downward as Mary's prospects of stepmotherhood teetered in the balance.

But the test proved satisfactory, and Antonio swallowed the portion and nodded. "Good," he agreed. Thus encouraged, his daughter proceeded:—"Mary Mantani has a kind on all little children; she'd make the nice stepmotha."

The next instant Rica's lashes dropped guilelessly over her eyes, for she had caught her father's quick glance of suspicion.

"She's an old maid," her eldest brother interpolated. "She has always the jump on the m"——

"Hist! Shame!" His lack of gallantry was admonished by a hastily drawn moral from Grimm. "When you speak unkind words sometime frogs and toads will hatch in your mouth," and Angelo, imaginative rather than experimental, was hushed into silence.

"She wears alway the shawl on her head," Rica pursued with subtle insistence.

"Huh!" Her father rose from the table with a thumping clatter and the shop door slammed behind him.

It was difficult to determine the result of this first seed sowed in the stony ground of Antonio's heart, but afterward, when two shining black treasures from the coalbox were substituted for the empty bottle in the baby's hands and Rica was washing dishes, she rehearsed the interview to her neighbor, Mrs. Mayborina.

Though possessing a husband and eight children to look after, Mrs. Mayborina was the fairy godmother. Her necromancy, distinct from wands and pumpkins, was none the less evident. She transformed the most trying occasion into an event full of promise. She showed Rica now that the courtship was well under way.

"You made them eat and think well of each other, and that is the way to court the middle aged," she encouraged in her mellow Italian. She also approved of Rica's choice of stepmother. "Tame alway, never on the mad, so neat!" showing the goal in the shape of Mary Mantani to be worth the struggle.

As the days passed the spinster became visibly impressed by the frequent orange, the banana, or the rippled slices of dried beef that found their way to her supper table. On account of Mr. Neferrio's careful watch of his stock, and his habit of weighing and counting articles after an hour's absence from the shop, Rica was obliged to choose her love offerings from the "left overs" with which she supplied their own table.

In turn, Mary set many delicacies before the king, but the young matchmaker could make nothing out of her father. He devoured the food placed at his shrine without comment, though she boldly extolled Mary Mantani's virtues as those peculiarly fitted for the dual rôle of wife and stepmother. After that first quick glance of suspicion Antonio preserved an inscrutable air of indifference.

In vain the spinster became a frequent customer at his shop. She found her sweetheart unresponsive, and, after one or two fruitless efforts, she humored his manifest desire to carry on the courtship wholly by proxy, in order, she supposed, to divert speculative rumors.

So the affair might have dragged on indefinitely had not Patrick McCarty, iceman, on his daily rounds, come across Mary Mantani in one of her "days out" and become instantly smitten with her mature, pale brown charms. His first visit to the quarter started the tale that the hitherto hopeless old maid was contemplating her bridal array.

"Never fear, sweet," the godmother comforted in her gentle Italian; "no woman would prefer McCarty, and your father will now awake to his duties; it will make her less cheap to him."

This appeared to be the case. The gossip of an alien suitor spurred Antonio to his first voluntary move in the courtship. Rica beheld him present to Mary Mantani a box of blackberries. "With no mold on them, no soft spots, all fresh to eat; and without money!" she exclaimed in solemn ecstasy to Mrs. Mayborina.

The prospects of a stepmother seemed propitious, when, one Sunday noon, Leonardi was missing. Rica left the stew simmering on the stove and followed the canal bank to the bridge, where she found her young brother hanging head downward over the water. She lifted him up forcibly, reminded him of the fate of the unregenerate in Grimm, and was about to drag him down the alley when her attention was attracted by the congregation returning from mass.

Singly or in pairs, the women poured down the street. For the most part shawl arrayed or bare headed, they acted as a foil for one resplendent figure. Through the disguise of pink gown, flowered hat and triumphant bearing Rica's keen eyes recognized the hitherto meek and humble Mary Mantani. The spinster's tardy acquisition of two sweethearts had awakened a long dormant vanity.

Rica's clutch on Leonardi's arm caused him to writhe in pain as, without a word, she drew him into the house. She scraped some bronzed stalks of celery, added them to the stew according to a mission recipe, and proceeded to lay the table. Even the chatter of the children at her heels could not distract her. She waited fearfully, yet eagerly, for her father's return, for he, too, had been to mass and must have seen Mary in her glory. She realized that this was to be the final test. Her attitude toward [illegible] madness would prove the success or failure of the stepmother quest.

Yet when at last Antonio entered, his manner revealed nothing. He ate with his usual rapidity, in silence, speaking once only, and then to rebuke Angelo for rejecting a piece of gristle. "You make eat every bit," he commanded sternly, and the tone hinted at a parsimony already outraged.

The sun streamed in at the open door; the canal waters sparkled as a trembling subject waits for the royal mandate.

"Hist! but Mary Mantani makes the style on the new hat," her eldest brother rippled out unexpectedly; "all white, with flowers red as the butch."

She pinched his arm in fright.

"Mary Mantani makes the fool," Antonio observed, and helped himself to more stew. This was his exclusive epithet for women, even including Mrs. Mayborina, so that no special displeasure was indicated, and Rica took heart. She determined to make a final stand for the stepmother of her choice.

"But Mary makes the care on her t'ings, and her hat will last always. If any one was to get the marry on her, he need buy another never."

A significant stillness filled the room. Even the baby stopped his guttural murmurings, as though he too realized the portent of the occasion.

As her father continued eating in silence happy contingencies gilded Rica's fancy. Possibly the good qualities of the princess were so overwhelming that he was forced to overlook her single weakness; possibly time had softened and broadened his conservatism; possibly—but hist! The king speaks:—

"I want you shoulda know alway now, I ainta on te marry. I ainta on te marry for no woman sometime."

"Is it by the hat?"

"It isa by te hat." Antonio relaxed into his more fluent Italian. He delivered a brief and forcible address to Rica, which was a warning to her brothers, on the follies of her sex. Not only Mary lay under the ban of his displeasure, but all women whose vanities she represented. The latent resentment of years took words and thundered from his lips. He left no corner for hope. With one blow he demolished Rica's aspirations and showed that Mary had, by her vanity, irrevocably forfeited the chance of becoming an honored member of the Italian community.

It was the widower's ultimatum, and it pronounced a knell to his daughter's quest. Even the fairy godmother's power of transformation was unavailable here and the subject was abandoned.

It was raining dismally on Sunday afternoon two weeks later when Rica, Angelo, Leonardi and John were gathered in the shop window to watch the return of the mourners. Though the occasion owned a phase of excitement, it was primarily a sad one, for their devoted friend, Mrs. Mayborina had met with affliction. A train had struck and killed the hapless father of the eight while he was at work on the tracks and left her widowed.

As a vettura stopped, Rica lifted the baby to a more advantageous seat on a nut barrel and pressed her own face close to the glass.

A short, plump figure alighted. She was brown skirted and shawled in gray, but wearing on her head as a single badge of grief a large black hat drooping with veils. Mrs. Mayborina was surrounded and followed by her children. They disappeared through the next doorway.

"She wears a fine hat on the mourn," Angelo observed, and his sister nodded solemnly.

Presently another carriage drew up and their father stepped out. Instead of entering the shop he followed the black hat through the doorway and out of the children's sight.

Antonio's appearance a half hour later apprised Rica that something extraordinary had occurred, and his first act on entering the shop rendered the fact evident to her brothers. Antonio groped in a dark corner where his boxes stood and produced four of his largest oranges, retailing at five cents each. He placed them in the hands of his astounded offspring.

"Poor little ones," he said in his native tongue, while his face glowed with benevolence; "it is not well for you to be without a mother's care. Rica works too hard for eleven years; she needs time to play; also, she needs new clothes. To-morrow she shall go to the shop and buy a white dress. Angelo, Leonardi and John each shall have a new suit, for next Sunday we have the wedding with the Widow Mayborina."

A moment later the boys ceased marvelling and fell to eating, lest in contemplation of future joys the present be withdrawn; but Rice stood with her orange forgotten in hand.

All had ended as though it was written of a fairy tale-quest. When the goal appeared most difficult to attain it was at hand. Yet Rica's mind was impressed by an inconsistency or an oversight. The memory of a prejudice, deep rooted and iconoclastic, even now threatened her happiness and sent the fear trembling to her lips.

"But fatha, the Widow Mayborina wears the hat!"

"Sura, sura!" Antonio threw out his hands as one magnanimous to the vanities of the weak. His reply was in the language of the country whose follies he was from now on to tolerate.

"Tose women some pleasure needs to use. Tey lika make te style; to looka prett. She be-a good stepmotha, she bringa me big insurance, tree hundred dollar; alway, I buy her te hat."

THE BOLD HUNTERS.

They Couldn't Tell a Cow from a Moose Until They Were Chased Up a Tree.

By L. T. Smyth.

THE barkeeper in Kelley's place had just escorted two young men to the door, pointed them the way to the station and said, "So long; come and see us again next fall," and then resumed his occupation of polishing glasses and rubbing down the mahogany slab.

"Friends of yours?" ventured a visitor.

"Yes—no; just a couple o' youngsters from Boston that's been up hunting. Dropped in here going and coming. Gave them some points; but, say, you talk about yaps! Why, if a fellow from here was as much of a kid in Boston as they were down this way, well, he might just as well send his money in advance and stay at home. I've heard that Boston would fit into the "Old Homestead" all right without any make-up; but, honest, I never thought any town where they stay awake after supper could launch the two that just faded out of here.

"First I see of them they wandered in here one night about three weeks ago, peeked all around and then when the rail was clear edged up and asked if they could get a beer. 'Sure,' says I, 'you can get a barrel if you've got the price—or anything else.' They looked kind of surprised, but drank two, and then asked if I opened early in the morning and could they come in and get a cocktail. I told them they could if the house didn't blow down before then, but that they could get a cocktail in their hotel before getting out of bed without bothering to gallop clear down here. Two of them looked as if they thought I was joshing. Then one of them said they'd got in town too late for supper at the American plan house they were roosting at, and asked if there was any place where they could get a feed. Well, that nearly froze me. 'Where do you fellows think you are, anyway?' says I, 'in the woods?'

"'Why, yes,' one says, 'pretty near it; we're down here hunting.'

"'Well,' says I, 'you've got some ways to go yet before you get where the hemlocks are real thick. You'll find plenty of places where they'll feed you at any hour.' When I told him sure there were plenty of all night places he winked at his chum, as much as to say it was a stout string I was putting on him. Well, they went and fed, and 'long about ten o'clock back they came and said goodnight. When I went home I passed the Penobscot Exchange, where these two guys were stopping. I see them on the steps, looking up and down the street, kind of anxious. When they see me they reckernized me right away, and one says, pointing to t'other, 'My friend here's got an awful toothache. I don't s'pose there's any such thing as a drug store open this hour.' It was about half-past one.

"'Well,' says I, 'you're in wrong again. Trot along with me and I'll steer you to one that's got no key.' When they saw that dope joint wide open and all blazing they looked as happy as if they'd broke into heaven. I didn't see them again till next day, when they came in to get a few vials of stuff to take along. They told me they were going a few miles up river to shoot deer, and they hoped to get a moose apiece."

"'Where's this you're going?' says I.

"'Oh,' says they, 'just up the Allegash and 'round by Mount Katahdin a ways. Deer's thick up that way, we're told.'

"'I guess you'd better take some more stuff with you,' says I.

"'No,' says they, 'we're light drinkers—there's enough here in the bag to last us two days.'

"'Make it a couple of gallons,' says I, 'for if you're going where you say, you won't be back for two weeks. How far do you think it is from Bangor to the Allegash—two or three jumps?'

"'They were just stunned to find out how far it was, but they wouldn't load up more'n another quart, and with that they started. They were going to shoot two deer apiece the first day, and then go after moose. They were well fixed, them two. They didn't have the right duds, nor the right guns, nor anything a man wants when he goes in the woods, and not enough booze to fit out an old maid's whist party. But they went.

"'A week after that Jim Barker, a guide that I know, dropped in here. He says to me, says he, 'I been towing a couple of the queerest yaps you ever see this last few days, and I'm going back to finish up the job. Both from Boston, and both soft as the middle of a punkin. They came down here expecting to kill enough game in two days to pay all their expenses—going to sell it in Boston. Well, maybe they would a-done it if I'd run acrost them first thing, but 'fore I see them they'd been sloshing 'round for a couple of days, getting lost and going hungry and shooting wild at everything that moved. Lucky they're well fixed, or their folks are, for first day they cut loose they killed one of the best Jersey cows on the Grant place and plugged a horse worth [illegible], so's he had to be killed. Took both these animiles for moose. Yessir! Then one of them came near getting arrested for shooting at a cow moose that he took for a deer. That would have cost him $500 if he'd shot straight. Where do you s'pose they were when I run acrost them? Up a tree! Yessir; up a tree, yelling like Injuns to 'tract 'tention. Said a bull moose drove them up there. I don't know what it was, but there they were, and they offered me $10 to show them the way back to the camp they were staying at. It was easy money, the camp being 'bout half a mile off. They'd had a guide and lost him, and when they got back to camp the guide had hired with another party. So they hired me, and I've got them on my hands. Come down to get some licker for them. Said they got two pints in here, and thought it would last them. Guess I'll take up a couple of gallons.'

"Well, that was what Jim said. Didn't hear nor see nothing more of the bold hunters till to-night, when they bounced in here all out of breath. They told me about their trip. Says the one that did the talking:—'You see, we didn't know much about Maine, and so we didn't figure it right. We thought Bangor was a little place right on the edge of the woods and that we wouldn't have more'n a few miles to go to get a deer or a moose. Also, we didn't think we could get anything fit to drink here, 'cause we'd read so much 'bout this being a prohibition State. Thought you were stringing us 'bout them other things—all night restaurants and owl drug stores. But now we don't see where Boston has got anything on this town that way. Rather like this place. Folks more sociable here than to home!'

"'Did you get enough game to pay your expenses?' says I.

"Well, you ought to see the look that fellow give me! 'Enough to pay our expenses!' says he. 'Say, mister, if we'd brought down a carload and deer meat was selling for a dollar a pound we'd be a couple of hundred to the bad then!'"

Strong westerly to northwesterly winds, light local snow falls.

INCREASE IN PRICE OF LEMONS WILL LIKELY COME AT ONCE

As Result of Earthquake in Sicily, Which is the Greatest Lemon Producing Country in the World.

An almost immediate increase in the price of lemons in all parts of the world will probably be one result of the disaster which has ruined Messina and the surrounding districts of Sicily.

Sicily is the great lemon producing country of the world, supplying all the countries of Europe and the eastern part of the North American continent, and also sends cargoes to South Africa and other places. Until recent years when California began to come to the fore as a lemon producing section, all the lemons of the United States and Canada came from Sicily and largely from the district about Messina. In certain parts of Greece the fruit is grown, but very small quantities only are brought across the Atlantic.

Wholesale fruit dealers of Montreal discussed the matter with the Star this morning, saying that as yet details were too meagre to express any definite opinion as to what the probable effect on the fruit trade would be, but that it was likely that a large quantity of the season's cut had been destroyed.

"Practically all the lemons consumed in Eastern Canada came from Messina," said a local fruit dealer today, "and are shipped either by the Thompson liners in the spring and fall direct to Montreal or in bond through Boston or New York. The November cut which is the finest of the year has just been cut and stored in magazines and is to lie over winter for curing. It is very probable that this great tidal wave spoken of in to-day's despatches will have destroyed them. I think that the fruit still on the trees must be safe, but it is not as good for shipment.

"All shipments from Messina will probably be stopped for some time anyway and as the stocks here are very light, the market will probably go up. [illegible]

"There is a great deal of lemon growing about Palmero also, but Canadian buyers do not want Palermos; they have always had a fancy for the Messina grown fruit which keeps much better. We can also get lemons from California a very good quality, too, but the crop there is light this year by about fifteen hundred cars. So that I think the advance in price will probably take place immediately if the disaster is of the extent reported."

Another one was of the opinion that the effect on trade in Canada would not be very great though a slight advance in the price of lemons was possible "the increasing popularity of the California fruit has kept United States buyers from coming here to buy the Sicilian lemons, so that the demand is not as great as it once was." He said "As for oranges we get a very few only from that district and can keep up the supply from California and Florida.

"The destruction of the November cut lemons will probably have a much greater effect in the other European countries which get practically their whole supply from Sicily," he continued. "The Russians use lemon juice in their tea and consider it an indespensable article of food. The Russians get the best quality of Messina lemons and the next best is supposed to come to this side of the Atlantic."

EARTHQUAKES AND VOLCA[illegible]OES

No Intimate Relation [illegible]ween the Two Says the Dom[illegible]on Astronomer.

Dr. Otto Klotz, Dominion [illegible]tronomer, has given the following [illegible]eresting interview on earthquake [illegible] the'r causes;—

"Let it be said at the ou[illegible]t," he marked, "that the relation [illegible]tween volcanoes and earthquakes is [illegible]ot very intimate. Speaking gener[illegible]y, volcanoes are shallow seated, [illegible]al disturbances, while earthqu[illegible]es are more deep seated, and the [illegible]turbances cover a more or less w[illegible]e area. Volcanic eruptions are accom[illegible]anied by tremors and quakes, but the[illegible] are seldom very destructive, an[illegible] are comdom very destructive, an[illegible] are confined to a circumscribed [illegible]territory. The natives of the Andes l[illegible]ve learned by experience that as long [illegible]s the volcanoes show activity by [illegible]charging there is little fear from [illegible]rthquake, the volcano acting as a sa[illegible]ety valve. In no country has the stud[illegible] of earthquakes been more seriou[illegible]y and scientifically pursued than [illegible] Japan and much of our knowledge on this subject is due to Professors Milne and Omori, and the latter has clearly shown that in that country, so noted for both volcanic and seismic disturbances, the volcanic and seismic energy are not interrelated.

"The general introduction of the seismograph for recording earthquakes is of very recent date, and it is only five years ago that an international seismological association was formed, having Strasburg, Germany, as central station, so that in the near future with the combined attack of the scientists of the world we may hope to obtain more information of the causes that lead to these phenomena.

"Various theories as to origin of earthquakes have been advanced during the past hundred years, that have some plausible basis, but one after another has been abandoned or found at least inadequate to explain observed facts or phenomena. We do not even know what the interior of the earth is like for from direct observation even in our deepest mines it is but a scratch on the surface; of one thing, however, we are certain that when an earthquake takes place there has been a readjustment of strain and stress; that is equilibrium has been restored to a greater or lesser extent for a given area.

"The fact is that the earth is subject to strain and stress. What produces these is the great question now awaiting adequate solution. The Contraction Theory of the cooling earth has been found unsatisfactory, so has the Tidal Theory. There is another consideration that has occupied the minds of scientists, and that is the disintegration and denudation that is continually going on over the earth's surface whereby a translation or transference of matter takes place from land to sea.

"In general isobrasy or equilibrium prevails on the surface of the earth, and the mountains do not rest on top of the earth as a superimposed mass but float in the earth as an iceberg in the ocean having lighter material underneath to compensate for what is above. Correspondingly, the sea bottom will be underlaid by heavier metal. This has been demonstrated by pendulum observations for determining the force of gravity. There is, therefore, a constant tendency to maintain this state of equilibrium. When, however, the conformation of the earth does not yield by continuous practically imperceptible changes, the strain may exceed the limit of elasticity and we have an earthquake."

CASE AT LINDSAY WAS DISMISSED

Father and Son Were Charged With Trapping Muskrats.

Lindsay, Dec 30—Father and son, two well known citizens of Lindsay appeared before M D Moore, KC, county magistrate yesterday afternoon on a charge of trapping muskrat out of season in the vicinity of Cross Creeks a couple of weeks ago. The information was laid by Inspector Bradshaw. After hearing the evidence of a number of witnesses from the vicinity of Janetville, the magistrate dismissed the case as the evidence was not strong enough to prove that they had been trapping out of season. The crown will pay the costs of the case. Mr G. H. Hopkins, KC, for the defendants and Inspector Bradshaw acted for the crown.

REMOVAL OF OFFICES

Messrs. R. D. Cowan & Co., stock brokers, of Toronto, are announcing their removal to their new offices at No. 36 King street East, directly opposite the King Edward Hotel. This progressive firm have found it necessary to get larger premises in order to accommodate their ever increasing business. Recently an addition has been made to the firm, when Mr. A. Lyall Scott, one of the late members of the firm of Ussher, Playfair & Martens became a partner. Mr. Scott's wide connection in the stock-broking business should be a distinct strength to the firm. Messrs. R. D. Cowan & Co. will be pleased to receive a call from the out-of-town public while visiting Toronto when quotations from all markets on Cobalt stocks can be had.

RE-ELECTION OF

Alderman Gillespie

To the Electors of the City of Peterborough:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

At the request of many citizens largely interested in the welfare of Peterborough, I have decided to again accept nomination as alderman. I trust that the confidence reposed in me last year has strengthened my candidature for a second term. If so my aim will continue to be the advancement of the progress of our growing city. While I will oppose without fear or favor all useless expenditure, I shall support all wise measures calculated to build up our natural resources, irrespective of wards or boundaries.

GUILTY OF BIGAMY

Chas. Rotchford in Police Court This Morning—Pleads Guilty to Having Two Wives.

Charles Rotchford who a week ago appeared before the police magistrate charged with creating a distrubance in his home in the north end of the city on Christmas Eve, was in court again today having been remanded for a week. He pleaded guilty to a much more serious offence, that of bigamy.

The information read that on the 12th day of July 1888, the accused was married to Jessie Garrett and then afterwards while he was so married he did on the 22nd of July, 1899, marry Louisa Mary Dare, of Stepney, England his first wife being still olive. He elected to be tried summarily and pleaded guilty.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution. His Worship reserved judgment for a week. The charge against Rotchford for creating a disturbance was let stand, pending judgment in the bigamy case.

MONTREAL ROBBER USES A HAMMER

Daring Attempt to Rob a Jewelry Store on St. Lambert Hill.

Montreal, Jan. 2.—A daring attempt was made Thursday afternoon to rob a jewelry store on St. Lambert Hill, when a man wearing a fur coat entered the place and knocked the clerk who came to meet him stiff with a blow from a hammer. Mr. J. Farmer of the firm of Farmer & Sons grappled with the would-be robber and a terrible struggle ensued, ending by the assailant being choked into unconsciousness. By that time the clerk had recovered his senses, and, placing a loaded gun in his hands, Mr. Farmer rushed out and called for the police. The latter came, but the assailant was still senseless, and he and the two men had to be taken to the hospital. The clerk's wound needed five stitches. Mr. Farmer has a contusion of the scalp, and the intruder, who gave his name as Oliver Patin, was in a state of collapse from the choking. He said he was hungry. He had a lone cent in his pocket.

EXPRESS COMPANIES TO CHARGE FOR THE RETURN OF EMPTIES

A new rule went into force yesterday morning among the three express companies in Canada, the Dominion, Canadian and Canadian Northern. Hereafter a charge will be made for the return of empty packages which in the past have always been carried free. A schedule of minimum charges has been issued but the general rate will be one-half of the merchandise rate. The returning of empties free has applied only to such things as liquors, soft drinks and cream. Dry goods merchants had no such privileged. Often when things shipped by freight the empties were returned by express. It was therefore decided to levy a small charge for returning empties. An appeal against the change will probably be taken to the Dominion Railway Board.

JAIL BREAKER RE-CAPTURED

Leader of the Toronto Jail Breakers is in West Virginia.

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Identified by the scar left after an operation for appendicitis, Alexander Rose, the most-wanted of the batch of prisoners who broke out of the Toronto jail on the afternoon of July 17 last, is in custody at Huntingdon, West Virginia, under the name of John Mitchell, awaiting trial on several charges of robbery. Inspector Duncan and Detective Tipton left yesterday afternoon to bring him home as soon as possible. Although the police here have not been definitely informed as to what disposition is to be made of the charge at Huntingdon, the crown officers are going on and preparing the papers in the extradition proceedings which are to be launched. His extradition will be asked for upon three charges of robbery with violence, chief among them being the case of Miss Ethel Skitch, who was brutally assaulted in Wellwood's fruit store on Yonge street. Upon this later charge Rose was awaiting sentence by Judge Winchester when he escaped.

Word of the presence of Rose in the jail at Huntingdon reached Inspector Duncan of the Toronto Detective Department by way of Hamilton. No photograph or Bertillon measurements accompanied the communication, and, although the description tallied in important particulars there was no mention of a scar made by the surgeon's knife. One of the circulars offering a reward of $200 for his capture was sent to the Huntingdon police, and when confronted with the statement that he was Rose and was wanted in Toronto, the prisoner admitted that such was the case. His detention was immediately asked for by Inspector Duncon, who was on Thursday instructed by the Huntingdon police to go on with the preparation of the extradition papers.

Seaforth, Hastings, Port Elgin, Cannington, MacKellar and Athens Councils have been elected by acclamation.

MOOSE'S KICK EXPOSED GOLD

Dying Animal's Convulsions Revealed Rich Vein to Hunters.

Bellingham, Wash., Jan. 2.—A curious story of the way in which the kick of a dying moose uncovered a rich vein of gold comes down from Alaska. Oscar T. Nelson and two companions were the lucky hunters. They were out prospecting in the neighborhood of Fairbanks Creek when they crossed the trail of two moose, and decided to make an effort to get one of the animals. They soon started a huge bull with a spread of atler of more than seven feet. Nelson brought him down with his rifle, and when the men were cutting the carcass up they discovered that in its dying convulsions the animal had torn loose a layer of moss, exposing rich gold-bearing rock below. The men immediately staked their claim.

EXCHANGES SHOTS WITH DESPERADO

Operator at Cowansville Station Drives the Robbers off

Montreal, Jan. 2.—A daring attempt was made at five o'clock Thursday morning to rob the C.P.R. station at Cowansville. A man appeared at the wicket with a revolver in his hand and demanded that Operator Mette hand over the cash. Ducking low, Mr. Mette grabbed for his revolver and fired at the man who stood at the wicket. The would-be robber returned the fire with two shots, which passed just above Mr. Mette's head. The agent then fired two shots in quick succession. While he did not score, the burglar apparently realized that the tables were turning against him, and he bolted for the door and disappeared in the darkness. It is understood that there was a considerable amount of cash in the office.

EGGS SOLD AT 35 CENTS TO-DAY

Butter Was 26 and 27 Cents—Fowl Sold at Reasonable Prices.

Eggs were as high as thirty-five cents per dozen at the market this morning, although the price of this household necessity ranged from 30 to 35 cents. Butter sold at 26 and 27 cents per pound and fowl was fairly plentiful at reasonable prices.

On the outside market, beef was very plentiful.

THE WEATHER

Fresh westerly and southwesterly winds fair and not much change in temperature.

DEATH LIST IS NOW REPORTED TO REACH NEARLY 300,000

Two Refugee Steamers in Straits Are Reported Lost—Lipari Islands at First Reported Destroyed Are Now Found to Have Escaped With Very Little Loss.

Naples, Jan. 2.—It is reported here that another tidal wave has swept through the Strait of Messina. Two steamers loaded with refugees and injured persons, that were expected in here, yesterday have not yet been sighted, and fears are entertained for their safety. It is impossible to verify his report.

Great relief was felt here when the announcement was made that the Lipari Islands, which were reported to have disappeared with their population of 28,000, suffered little or no damage from the earthquake.

Public opinion is seriously concerned with regard to the safety of the King and Queen and their possible danger from tottering walls.

New Year's Day in Italy is usually the occasion of festivties and rejoicing as widespread as on Christmas. But these ceremonies and the festal spirit were wanting yesterday. Instead of rejoicings Rome is filled with lamentations; the flags wave at half mast and the bells of a thousand churches ring, not the Te Deum, but sad knells for requiem masses.

King Victor Emmanuel has supervized the entire work in the fallen city of Messina and has infused new courage and energy into the rescuers. Often he is surrounded by a crowd of victims, who cheer him enthusiastically and shout: "We have a king; we have a protector."

A large number of soldiers have been landed from steamers arriving at Messina and other stricken places, and all efforts are being directed towards embarking the wounded refugees who are crowding all available places. Some of these will be sent as far as Genoa.

A touching feature of the material aid offered by all classes of people in Rome is the donation of clothing and bedding which workmen are freely giving to collecting students. Reports from all parts of Italy indicate the same generous spirit. The King has placed the royal palaces at Naples and Caserta at the disposition of the injured.

The estimated number of dead in Messina, Reggio and all the towns of Calabria has now risen to 300,000.

In the list of dead and missing foreigners there are no names of Canadians.

The King and Queen of Italy continue their pious pilgrimage along what was once the beautiful and smiling eastern coast of Sicily, but which yesterday is a sepulchre of the dead, a desolated region still filled with thousands of unfortunates dying in anguish amid the ruins of their homes.

The Government has decided to concentrate its energies to removing the wounded to points where they can receive proper attention. Uninjured survivors also will be assisted from the devastated territory, and it is hoped that in this way serious epidemics can be avoided.

The survivors can be fed on board ship, for each vessel is provided with thirty days' rations for a full passenger list, and this leeway will give time for decision as to where the unfortunates had best ultimately be landed.

Two Royal Heroines.

This advantage of feeding, however, applies only to the survivors of Reggio and Messina. There are still scores of smaller inland towns and villages where it is impossible to send relief. Whenever it has been possible to get a message through from these localities the cry always has been for bread.

Two noble female figures stand out as guardian angels watching over the afflicted population. They are Queen Helena and another Helena, the Duchess of Aosta.

The Queen looks far from well. She is exhausted and the terrible scenes she has witnessed have affected her strongly. She weeps frequently, and on more than one occasion she has covered the hands of some unfortunate woman with her tears. The King desired his wife to return to Rome, but this she refused, saying she could not sleep from thinking of the miseries of her subjects. By remaining on the spot she feels she can do something to relieve the general misery. She has given also all of her worldly possessions, including the rings from her fingers.

The Duchess of Aosta, who still proudly signs herself a princess of France, is performing miracles of love, pity and endurance at Naples, where the wounded are arriving in great numbers.

Thousands of Helpers Needed.

Trains leaving here for the south are filled almost entirely with newspaper men, relatives of victims, or volunteers on rescue committees. These committees are composed of ever nationality of Europe. Some of the volunteers do not speak a word of Italian, but they go forward simply because they have two hands with which to work. All volunteers are thankfully accepted, and there is room for thousands more.

Prof. Alfani of the Florence Observatory, predicts that the seismic activities will continue for three years to come. He recommends the enforcement of restrictive building laws in the earthquake zones of Italy.

Systematic Food Distribution.

Catania, Jan 2.—A heavy rain continues to fall at Messina, and while it increases the sufferings of the injured and makes more difficult the work of rescue, it is quenching the fires, and having a slightly purifying effect on the air.

The distribution of food has been organized. Bakeries have been opened and slaughter-houses established, and

REFERENDUM CARRIED BY THE VOTERS OF TORONTO

Measure to Abolish Forty More Bars Goes Through by Majority of 1,192—Mayor Joseph Oliver is Re-elected With Large Majority.

Toronto, Jan. 2.—The referendum vote to cut off forty liquor licenses passed by a majority of 1,192 yesterday after a historic municipal battle in which a record vote was cast. Mayor Joseph Oliver was re-elected with a majority of over 19,000 votes, the largest ever secured by a mayor in this city.

Controler F. S. Spence, leader of the reduction movement and general of the campaign, was defeated in his candidature for the board of control, and with him goes Ald. James Hales, his companion in the prohibition work.

The feature of the day was the heavy vote polled by the women, a very large number of whom were canvassed and perswaded to exercise their suffrage by the W.C.T.U. and other workers in behalf of the temperance forces.

The keenest fight after that over the bylaw was for places on the board of control. The poll was headed by G. A. Geary with 19,027 votes. The other three were: Hocken 17,380, Ward 15,782, and Harrison 14,509.

The new aldermen for 1909 are: Ward one, Chisholm, Hilton, McMillan; ward two, Church, O'Neil, Foster; ward three, Bredin, Bengough, Maguire; ward four, McMurrich, Vaughan, Welch; ward five, Graham, Dunn, Keeler; ward six, McGhie, Graham, Adams.

The referendum on the hospital grant passed by a majority of 4,509, and the Wilton avenue bridge bylaw was defeated.

James Lindala, the Socialist candidate, who ran simply for the purpose of keeping the educational propaganda before the eyes of the electors, polled a vote of 1,500.

LOSING HUNTERS STOOD EXPENSE

Fox Hunt and Supper at Chemong—Whetung's Men Won

Two fox hunting parties from Chemong Indian village held a fox shooting campaign on New Year's in the woods of Smith and Ennismore. One was captained by Mr Dan Whetung, junior, and the other by Mr Alfie McCue. The former's hunters shot five foxes to the latters three. As a result of the competition the losing party paid for a superp prepared by the Ladies Aid of the Chemong Methodist church and served in the town hall. About one hundred guests were at the supper.

New Year's Day at Y.W.C.A.

The reception rooms at the Young Women's Christian Associaton looked very bright and homelike yesterday. With the Christmas decorations of evergreen, holly and Xmas bells, added to this, the cheery grate fires and the warm hospitable welcome given by the ladies to their guests. We hope there will be many similar social gatherings enjoyed during 1909.

CRAZED BY SORROW COMMITS SUICIDE

New York, Jan. 2.—Grief-stricken over the death of their eighteen-year-old daughter Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Gardy of West 116th street committed suicide together immediately afterwards by means of chloroform. With their arms about each other, the sorrowing parents retired to a room adjoining the one in which the body of the young woman lay, and were not disturbed for an hour in the belief that they wished to be left alone with their grief. When at last the room was entered the couple were found dead in bed, and by their side was a bottle which had contained chloroform.

HANDSOME TABLET PRESENTED TO Y.M.C.A. BY MR. J. W. BENNETT

Yesterday was reception day at the Y.M.C.A. and all day and evening the building was thronged with visitors. Boys and young men had full use of the gymnasium, whether members of the association or not. During the day dainty refreshments were served by the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary. The most important feature of the reception was the presentation to the association of a handsome bronze tablet, the gift of Mr. J. W. Bennett. The tablet bears the following inscription;

In memory of Charlotte Jane Nicholls, through whose munificence this building was erected.
1896.

The tablet has been placed on the south wall of the lobby and is attracting much attention. Mr. Bennett's kindness is deeply appreciated.

HAS ISSUED CAMPAIGN CARD

For Re-election to Council at Local Municipal Elections

Ald. J. J. Turner, who is a candidate for re-election to the City Council of Peterborough, after a year's valuable service in the best interests of the city has issued a neat campaign card bearing an excellent cut of himself and containing his request for another term on the aldermanic board.

The card was printed at one of the local newspaper offices.

HIAWATHA GUN CLUB'S SUPPER

On Tuesday the Hiawatha Gun Club gave an oyster supper in the Hiawatha town hall at which there were 75 or 80 guests. A most enjoyable evening was spent. Short speeches were given and there were also recitations, and singing.

Chief Alfie Crowe made an acceptable chairman.

HOT FIGHT AT BRANTFORD

Brantford, Jan. 2.—Hon. Adam Beck and J. W. Lyon addressed an enthusiastic meeting of ratepayers here last night on the power bylaw.

Lloyd Harris, M.P., and Chas. B. Heyd spoke in the interests of the Cataract Co., and some warm passages marked the discussion, which lasted until midnight.

Mr. Lyon outlined the success of municipal ownership at Guelph, and Mr. Beck dealt with the movement from a Government standpoint. A strong point was adduced when he showed the recent reduction in power prices quoted by the Cataract Co. to Brantford was the result of the Hydro-Electric scheme. The peak load factor it was stated presents no difficulty when so many municipalities are securing Government power.

Rudders For the Sea Giants.

Belfast, Ireland, Jan. 2.—The Darlington Forge Co. of Manchester has secured the contract for the 160-ton stern frame and rudder brackets of the White Star Line's new sea-giants Olympic and Titanic, as well as for the immense rudders, weighing 100 tons each.

These are the heaviest castings ever undertaken anywhere, and mark a long step forward in marine architecture.

The lower portion of each rudder-frame will be of cast steel, and the other portions of hydraulic pressed ingot steel.

Prohibition In Alabama.

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 2.—With the passing of the midnight hour Thursday night prohibition became effective throughout Alabama. A number of local clubs have been opened and charters for these places will now be in great demand. In these clubs drinks will be dispensed to "members only."

Before the doors of the saloons were closed Thursday night whisky and beer were given away in large quantities and during the day drinks of all kinds were sold at nominal prices.

Leper Walks 350 Miles.

New Orleans, Jan. 2.—With his body covered with the peculiar eruptions characteristic of the dread disease of leprosy and with hands and fingers half gone from the ravages of the fearful scourge, Elias Olsen, a Norwegian, 45 years of age, walked 350 miles for the purpose of seeking refuge in the Lepers' Home at New Orleans. He came from San Francisco and when taken in charge by officers was penniless and half starved.

Eight Hundred and Fifty Deaths.

Killed by a Train.

Buffalo, Jan. 2.—A special from Schenectady, N.Y., says the funeral of L. W. Trudeau, who was killed by a train, was held here yesterday. Mr. Trudeau was born in Point Edward, Ont., forty-two years ago, and went to Schenectady seven years ago. He was employed there by the General Electric Co.

Car-Cleaner Killed.

London, Jan. 2.—David Paisley, car-cleaner on the Grand Trunk, met instant death at the Richmond street crossing last evening, his body being cut to pieces.

No one saw the accident, but it is thought that he was run over twice by some cars that were being shunted. Paisley was regularly a day man, but worked last night in order to let off a fellow workman, James McIntyre.

Attacked by Roughs.

Hamilton, Jan. 2.—While protecting two ladies whom he was escorting from the insults of a gang of hoodlums on New Year's Eve, Henry Buswell of 19 North Hughson street, was murderously assaulted and his chances of recovery are slight. The gang dispersed after the assault and no arrests were made.

Fire In a Theatre.

Erie, Pa., Jan. 2.—A horror was narrowly averted here last night when fire broke out in the Park Theatre during a performance. The house was crowded to its capacity. A dozen or more women fainted and had to be carried from the building, but so far as learned no one was seriously hurt, owing to the ease and rapidity with which the audience was dismissed and the theatre emptied. The building was partially destroyed.

Five Blocks Damaged by Fire.

Skowhegan, Me., Jan. 2.—A stubborn fire destroyed two and damaged three business blocks and burned five tenement houses on Water street, in the heart of the town, early yesterday. Two of the houses were blown up with dynamite in an effort to check the progress of the flames. Loss, $400,000.

CATHOLIC EXTENSION

"The great Archdiocese of Chicago has always loomed large in the eyes of Catholic Canada, but now that the wonderful Church Extension Congress has gathered within its hospitable precincts and from it has gone forth this sound that is to penetrate into the four quarters of the continent and loudest and clearest throughout our great Dominion, Chicago, is of still more interest to us on this side of the line. Then it is that an Very Rev. Mr. Kelly then gave the history of the birth of Extension. Three years ago on October 18th, there gathered in the city of Chicago a company of men, nineteen in all, of whom two were Archbishops, two Bishops and the remainder priests and laymen. These men were from all over the continent. From the Great Lakes on the north to the Carolinas on the south, from the Atlantic on the east to the Rockies on the west, and they had come to consider the needs of the Church in the cities and in the plains. They had come to ask themselves why it was that though the church increased in membership in the city, she was losing and decreasing woefully in the country districts. In the United States their country there were only about fifteen millions of Catholics when there should have been thirty millions. The answer to their question was that up to the present the church has not been able to follow her immigration except by sending out a bishop to an extensive and poor territory and sending a few priests to accompany him in his poverty. The consequences of this are written in the history of America or rather they are not written because no pen could be found harsh enough to write them. Instead we have jubilees closing the closet door upon the skeleton—the skeleton of the lost millions.

Meantime, our separated brethren are losing in the cities but the non-Catholics follow their members into the country. They build for them churches and schools and this is the work of some Extension. The scattered Catholic immigrants have no church and no school. For amusement the children ask to be allowed to go to the church or chapel of some non-Catholic neighbor. Consent at first, is reluctantly given. The children go at first once or twice a year, then comes the mixed marriage and in the third generation all faith is lost. An awakening to these things had brought about the meeting which resulted in Catholic Extension.

The speaker then enumerated the works of our separated brethren. The Methodists had spent $1,000,000, Congregationalists $800,000, Baptists $1,200,000 in one year—the year of our organization—non-Catholics in all had spent $3,000,000 in the same period, and this to break through the weakest part of our line, the sparsely settled country districts. Besides building they employ teachers, the Baptists alone sending out 1,200 clergymen. Thus what decaying Protestantism is losing in the city is being made up in the country. On the authority of their most prominent clergyman, Congregationalism owes four-fifths of its growth to home missions. Thus Extension is a great good to our separated brethren.'—Catholic Register.

IMPERIALISM

Mr. MacKenzie, the railway and general magnate, gave utterance recently to something we oft have heard, but "ne'er so well-expressed." At a dinner in England he was asked if Canada was loyal to England and he said in reply that Canada was loyal to the British Empire. England is part of that Empire. The idea that the old days of "England and her colonies" had not been succeeded by a united British Empire is here treated properly. It is the true conception of nascent if not accomplished Imperialism, and it has the abiding virtue of being devoid of bombast and individual pride. There is a lesson in it all for us Canadians too.

WAR IN PEACE

It is customary to affirm that "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war." It is beginning to transpire that peace hath her routs, her rivalries and bloodlettings also. It is doubtful if the result is very much more admirable. To beat our enlarged Welland canal the United States has about completed a new Erie canal of huge proportions that will swamp our present grain carrying routes. It is the biggest bid yet for inland continental traffic. We are supposed to respond to this great effort by a Georgian Bay Canal. The Americans possibly like Dooley, will come back at us with the Mississippi waterway and then what shall we do? We may have to build a canal from Winnipeg, or indeed it may be that the next great Canadian statesman's life work will be to build (at the people's expense) a National Trans continental Canal from ocean to ocean. And so the competition goes on. What's the good of it? If trade demands it then well and good. But if the race for trade is merely an excuse for heaping burdens upon the people in the way of taxation to repay principal and interest to financiers then we say, "Away with it."

OF INTEREST

The mistletoe is probably the oldest of the greens that are used for the Christmas festival. It goes back to the days of Scandinavian folk-lore, when Freye, the beautiful goddess of youth, love and beauty, nearly lost her favorite son, Baldur, because she had not remembered to include the mistletoe in her prayer that nothing would injure her son. Earth, fire, water and all living things swore to respect Baldur—all but one insignificant plant growing upon an ancient oak. This plant was considered too insignificant to hurt the god, but Loki, the spirit of evil, envious of the popularity and goodness of Baldur, took advantage of the knowledge and obtained a wand from the plant (the mistletoe), and of it fashioned an arrow. This he carried to Walhalla, where the gods were at sport. They were throwing missles at Baldur, and even the hammer of Thor was powerless to harm him. Hod, the blind god of brute strength, stood by taking no part because he could not see. To him Loki gave the mistletoe arrow and directed him where to shoot. Thus Baldur was pierced by the arrow and injured almost to death, and for a time evil triumphed.

Everywhere this strange plant has found a place in legend. When Aeneas sought counsel from the Cumean Sibyl and begged that he might make a journey into hell and learn from his father the fate of his posterity, the prophetess explained that it was not the descent into the infernal regions that was difficult, but the return therefrom. She commanded him, in order to make his journey safe, to search in the grove for the tree sacred to Prosperpine. Upon it he would find one golden bough which he was to tear off, feeling assured that another would replace it. Guided by the doves of Venus he soon found the tree and became possessed of the mystic plant—the mistletoe. At sight of it, Charon ferried him across the Styx, and he eventually hung it in the entrance to the place of Pluto.

The Druids of old held the mistletoe in deepest reverence. To them it was the symbol of every virtue, and during the winter solstice, when the moon was young, these strange woodland worshippers went into the forests and sought the oaks to gather the parasite mistletoe growing on the trunk and branches of the king of the forest. If the mistletoe was there, the Druids hailed it a proof that the gods had looked with favor on the deeds of the past year. Then they next sacrifices of cattle and sometimes even of human beings. When the mistletoe was absent, they held it as a potent of evil and danger, and the gods were quickly propitiated lest something happen. When the mistletoe was plentiful, each person took home a small sprig that he might keep it to scare away the evil spirits.

Pliny speaks entertainingly of the cutting of the mistletoe. At the beginning of the winter this great rite was performed. With dance and song the Druids led the way to the sacred oak upon which the mistletoe was growing. This plant can hardly take root on so hard a wood, and its presence must have been the reason for the consecration of the individual tree. The parasite, however, is extremely long-lived and ready to outlive its host. Cutting only makes it sprout the stronger. The smallest thread of root will grow, and it is almost impossible to get rid of the plant without sacrificing the limb, from a crevice in which it springs. Therefore, although not common to the oak, when once established, it might be trusted to be permanent.

Two white bulls that had never borne the yoke were led by the Druids into the forest nda their horns bound to the holy tree. Then the chief Druid, clad in a white robe, ascended and cut the sacred plant with a golden knife. Another priest standing below caught the falling bough in his robe, that it might not touch the ground. After this the white bulls were sacrificed to the spirit of the holy tree, and the plant was carried away with great rejoicings.

Some of the plant was boiled and from it a medicine prepared of such wonderful virtue that it was believed to be a cure for all diseased, no matter of what nature. Hence the name of "All Heal" by which the mistletoe was known in ancient days.

Even after the days of Druidism this plant was used as a medicine by herb doctors and old women in rural communities, although now it no longer holds a place in pharmacopoeia. Culpepper says that it cures the falling sickness (apoplexy and palsy)" speedily," and recommends that it not only be taken inwardly but be hung about the neck as well.

Kissing under the mistletoe is a survival of the Roman saturnalia, when riot and license ran loose. In Wales and many other European countries the belief is strong that a bit of mistletoe worn about the neck will give great good luck.

Viaduct For Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Toronto is to have a four-track viaduct. An order to this effect has been given by the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada, and a copy of the draft order was received by City Solicitor Chisholm on Thursday morning. He at once notified Mayor Oliver, and the matter was brought before the Board of Control, which was in session a few minutes later. While the city has asked for a six-tracked viaduct, the Railway Commissioners' decision to have the four running tracks elevated was regarded with great favor. The commissioners' decision to order the railway companies to pay two-thirds of the cost of the viaduct was received with gratification. The cost of such a viaduct is estimated at about $2,000,000 with the city's share $500,000 to $750,000.

Asks Extension of Time.

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—The Toronto, Niagara and Western Railway is seeking an extension of time for commencing and completing these railways: Toronto to Niagara Falls; Toronto to Windsor and St. Catharines to Port Colborne, and increasing the bond issue.

The Dominion of Canada Burglary & Plate Glass Insurance Co. make application to Parliament for incorporation.

The Collingwood Southern Railway Co. will apply to Parliament for extension of time in which to construct the Abitibi & Hudson Bay Railway.

The British Columbia Life Assurance Co. is asking for incorporation.

Swept Under Ice.

Catskill, N.Y., Jan. 2.—By venturing on thin ice on the Hudson River Channel, off Catskill Point, last night, Domie Sabatini, aged 20, with a companion, Tony Fina, aged 18, broke through and Sabatini was swept under the ice, perishing in spite of the determined efforts put forth by the crew of a ferry boat and members of a skating party. Fina was hauled out in an exhausted condition.

Fast Train Killed Riveters.

Buffalo, Jan. 2.—A fast mail train on the New York Central bore down on a gang of riveters at work on the Broadway subway yesterday killing two of them and injuring a third. The dead are John Baker and John Conrad, both of Pittsburg, Pa.; Louis White had four ribs broken and his spine injured. The men say the train was running at high speed although there is a sign post warning trains to slow down on account of the construction work. The working pneumatic riveters drowned the noise of the approaching train which was upon the men before they could move.

Sensational Silver Find.

Elk City, via Charlton, Jan. 2.—A sack of silver nuggets and slab of silver sent in here yesterday over the trail from Gowganda taken from a sensational strike on one of the properties controlled by Captain Pauley of Cobalt and his associates electrified the hundreds of prospectors who are thronging into this new silver region. Great activity prevails here and a wild stampede is looked for into Gowganda in the spring.

Captain Pauley, who is famous as the life-saving hero of Cobalt, passed through Elk City yesterday to inspect the find.

Railroad Purchased.

Pekin, Jan. 2.—Belgium yesterday relinquished the Pekin-Hankow Railroad to China following the payment of the redemption price of $30,000,000 at Paris and London last Tuesday. China will at once dispense with the foreign employes of the road, retaining only the consulting engineer. China's initial success in constructing and operating the Pekin-Kalgan Railroad has created general confidence in her ability to take over and operate other foreign-built railroads as they become redeemable.

Flew Ninety Miles.

Lemans, Jan. 2.—Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplanist, beat all previous aeroplane records here Thursday afternoon with a magnificent flight that lasted for two hours and nine minutes. He covered officially a distance of 73 miles, but as a matter of fact, counting the wide curves, he made over 90 miles. Mr. Wright's feat was the more remarkable because of the intense cold.

After breaking the record, Mr. Wright went aloft again with M. Barthou as a passenger.

Why She Couldn't Think of It.

"Why," asked the manager, "don't you want this part? It is just the thing for you. It will give you a chance to make the greatest hit of your life. You will have some of the cleverest lines I ever read, and there will be a fine chance to exhibit your emotional powers."

"Yes," replied the actress who for fifteen years had been regarded as one of the most beautiful women on the American stage, "but the costumes I should have to wear would give me no chance to show that I have during the past six months reduced my weight more than forty pounds." — Chicago Record-Herald.

DEATH LIST IS NOW REPORTED

it is hoped that by to-night no one need be without bread.

While it is not yet definitely known whether any Americans were in Messina at the time of the earthquake, it is learned that a party of twenty English-speaking persons, which may have included Americans, made their escape in the direction of Palermo.

Canada to Sicily.

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—At a meeting of the Cabinet Thursday afternoon it was decided that Canada should evince its sympathy for the sufferers in the appalling disaster in Italy and Sicily in the tangible form of a national subscription of $100,000. Parliament will be asked to ratify the Government's action, but no objection is anticipated from any source to this generous and prompt step on the part of the Dominion to help alleviate the terrible disaster which has befallen a sister nation. The money will be forwarded through the British Ambassador at Rome with as little delay as possible.

Mass For 'Quake Victims.

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—On Sunday morning at the Basilica, Italians will attend a requeim mass for the repose of the souls of victims of the earthquake in southern Italy. Among those who will attend will be Mons. Sbarretti, papal delegate, himself an Italian.

For Italy's Relief.

New York, Jan. 2.—The Chicago Board of Trade has set out to raise $100,000.

San Francisco has so far contributed $76,720.

Boston has raised nearly $50,000.

Philadelphia has already forwarded $10,000.

Adolphus Busch of St. Louis has given $25,000.

The U. S. Red Cross have collected $110,000, of which $40,000 has been forwarded.

New York, has subscribed $150,000, the Stock Exchange giving $21,000 and Italian societies $37,000.

A collection will be taken in the Catholic churches of New York tomorrow.

Mexico has collected a large sum. Rio Janeiro bankers have given $1,600.

Monsignor Falconio, the apostolic delegate in the U. S., has issued an appeal to the church for contributions for the "vast multitude of sufferers" from the Italian earthquake.

GOOD HOME MADE BLADDER CURE

Old Folks Who Suffer Find Prompt Relief in Simple Home Mixture.

Here is a prescription that anyone can mix at home. Any good prescription pharmacy can supply the ingredients named at little cost; being composed of vegetable extracts, it is harmless and inexpensive. Best of all it does its work well, relieving even the worst forms of bladder trouble, frequent urination, backache, kidney complaint, and by its direct action upon the eliminative tissue of the kidneys, makes these most vital organs rid the blood and system of waste matter and uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Here it is; try it, if you suffer. Fluid Extract Dandelion, one half ounce; Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

Former sufferers often state that one week's use shows curative results in nearly every instance, and often symptoms as lame back, frequent desire to urinate, pain in bladder and even chronic rheumatism are generally relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing with each dose.

Miss Louisa and Katie Smith, of Norwood, were in town on Thursday.

Miss A. Graham, of Hastings, was in town on Thursday.

Miss E. Swan, of Warsaw, is visiting with friends in town.

The municipal battle wages hot in town, and much interest will be taken in the voting on Monday next, especially as local option is one of the issues on which the electors have to vote. There will be a hard tussle between Jas. Knox and R. J. Graham for the reeveship as also for the Council with five men in the field, and four to be elected.

Both parties are working hard in the local option issue. The local optionists have held three meetings during the past month and will carry on the work to the last minute. A meeting in the opera house on Wednesday evening was largely attended there being a goodly number of men, but most of the class that would vote for the by-law any way. Rev. Adams and McLennan, of Norwood and Robertson, of Millbrook were the principal speakers. Mr. A. C. Denike, of town, was chairman. Union Temperance services will be held in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches on Sunday, January 3rd, Mrs. Owen Hitchcock who spoke in the opera house at one meeting, will address the congregation in the Presbyterian church in the morning, and the Methodist church in the evening. Those opposing local option have big advertisements in the local paper, as has the local optionists and so that great question is being discussed in town and all anxiously await the poll on Monday night, when it will be definitely known whether the the three bars in Havelock will close on May 1st next.

For the municipal elections on Monday in division No. 1, in the Council Chamber, Mr. R. Phillips will be deputy returning officer and Mr. Jas. Scott, poll clerk, and in division No. 2, in the town hall, Mr. H. T. Andrews will be deputy-returning officer, and Wm. Bryans, poll clerk.

Mr. J. W. Bryans returning officer, will be at Reeve Thompson's office on Saturday at 10 o'clock a.m. to appoint agents in connection with the local option by-law.

Mr. Robert Gillies of Port Hope, is spending a few days with friends in town.

Mr. J. A. Culverwell, manager of the Northumberland-Durham Power Co., was in town on Wednesday.

Mr. Stan Halcombe is visiting with frends in Foxborough.

Mr. Wm. Waymark who resided some years ago in Havelock but who is at present living in Saskatchewan, is spending a few weeks with friends in town.

The hockey club were the hosts at an enjoyable and well attended dance in the opera house on New Year's eve. Mr. J. Lonergan and Miss F. Smith, of Norwood, furnished excellent music for the occasion. A dainty lunch was served in the lunch room at midnight. The dance will put the club in first class financial conditions for this season's campaign.

Havelock made their first appearance on the ice on Friday, Jan. 1st. and showed up well against a team from Campbellford. The game started at 4 o'clock and Havelock had it all their own way from the first, for hardly had the bell rang than Havelock registered goal No. 1. The Havelock team was slightly heavier than their opponents although Havelock have no extra heavy men and they also excelled them in stick handling. At half time the score was 4—1 in favor of Havelock. During the second half no count was kept of the score only that Campbellford scored no more and Havelock registered whenever they wanted. The following was the lineup for Havelock;—

Goal A. Armstrong; point, W. Rose; cover, H. Mathison; rover, Frost; centre Ferguson; right wing, A. Curry; left wing, H. Patterson.

Havelock play their first league match on Monday January 4th, with Marmora but they do not expect such easy work as they had to-day.

Mr. Jas. Knox has resigned his position as chairman of the Board of License Commissioners for East Peterborough.

Mrs. K. Falkner of Peterborough, and Mrs. Spilsbury are the guests of Mrs. H. Falkner.

The house lately occupied by Mr. Jas. Frost on Ontario street, will be sold by public auction at Queen's Hotel on Jan. 12th.

Miss Bertha Bryans is visiting with friends in Peterborough.

LAST RITES OF THE CHURCH ADMINISTERED

Miraculous Escape From Death of Mme. Lirette, of Sorel, Que.

"I look upon my recovery from approaching death as a miracle and it was "Fruit-a-tives" alone that cured me. I suffered from severe womb disease for seven years, and I suffered from severe constipation, great weakness and constant pain all the time. I was treated by six different physicians without any benefit and took every medicine I heard of, but nothing gave me any relief. My suffering was so intense that for a year I was unable to get out of bed—and I became so ill that my friends did not expect me to recover and the last rites of the Church were administered to me. At this time I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I began to improve. These tablets cured the constipation and relieved the dreadful womb pains. I began to improve and "Fruit-a-tives" entirely cured me. Nothing did me any good but "Fruit-a-tives." I took in all 18 boxes and I am quite as well as ever I was, entirely due to the use of this great medicine."

"Fruit-a-tives" is put up in a new 25c trial size as well as the regular 50c boxes, in order to enable everyone to try these wonderful fruit juice tablets. Sent on receipt of price if your dealer does not have them.

A Good Alderman

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—Will you allow me to call the attention of the people who will elect the aldermen on Monday to a man who has worked exceptionally hard this year in the public interest. I refer to Ald. Harry Phelan, who is chairman of the Board of Works, a position which is undoubtedly the most difficult of all in the Council, and one that entails the most work. Without reflecting upon the excellent services of the other aldermen, I feel that his saving to the City of 4000.00 on the cement contract alone should ensure his re-election as a reward for his good work.

Yours, etc.,
CITIZEN.

Brothers Still

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir.—The recent earthquake in Italy and Sicily and the quick response of all nations, Protestant and Catholics, to the call of duty shows that we are brothers all for a' that, A' what!

Heard Her Death Sentence

To obtain temporary relief when suffering is a great boon, but to be permanently cured and restored to health after being assured that one has not a year to live, is an experience that cannot fail to bring joy to any heart. Yet this is what Mrs. A. E. Ternan, of Norwich, Ont., says PSYCHINE accomplished in her case.

Writing on August 11th, 1908, she says: "It is ten years since I took PSYCHINE, and I have not taken ten dollars' worth of medicine since. I should not have lived out the year had it not been for PSYCHINE. I am now in excellent health." Can any testimony be stronger than this?

If you are feeling worn out and run down, try PSYCHINE. You will be surprised at the result. PSYCHINE thoroughly builds up the system, and imparts new life and vigor.

The greatest of tonics, PSYCHINE, restores the throat, lungs, heart, stomach, digestive and blood-making organs to perform their proper functions. The only specific known that will cure chronic weakness, catarrh and decline. Sold at all druggists and stores. 50c. and $1. Send for a free sample to Dr. T. A. BISHOP HOLSEY SAYS: "PE-RU-NA IS A BLESSING."

He Declares Pe-ru-na to Be a Triumph of Medical Science,

A Magnificent and Sovereign Remedy.

Having Tried Many Remedies and Failed to Find a Cure,

Tried Pe-ru-na and Was Promptly Relieved.

After Twenty Years Bondage to Catarrh

He Is Relieved By Pe-ru-na.

BISHOP L. H. HOLSEY

The Bishop's Strong Tribute to Pe-ru-na.

A public speaker cannot afford to have catarrh. Even a slight catarrhal hoarseness of the throat becomes intolerable.

This is especially true of the minister who is called upon to preside at religious functions of all sorts.

L. H. Holsey, Bishop C. M. E. Church, Atlanta, Ga., writes:

"I have found Peruna to be a great remedy for catarrh. I have suffered with this terrible disease for more than twenty years, until since I have been using Peruna, which has relieved me of the trouble.

"I have tried many remedies and spent a great deal of hard-earned money for them, but I found nothing so effectual in the cure of catarrh as the great remedy Peruna.

"I feel sure that Peruna is not only a triumph of medical science, but it is also a blessing to suffering humanity.

"Every individual who suffers with respiratory diseases will find Peruna a magnificent and sovereign remedy."—L. H. Holsey, Bp. C. M. E. Church.

SERVICES IN BASEMENT OF CHURCH ABOUT END OF MONTH

It is expected that services will be held in the basement of the new St. James church about the last Sunday in January and until then the Sunday school classes will be held in the King Edward school. The new church will be completely finished about the first Sunday in April. The week-night service will be held as usual in the homes of the congregation.

A USEFUL ARTICLE

Is Conceded To Be the Most Acceptable New Year's Gift

Let me suggest a nice pair of Gold-rimmed Spectacles for Father or Mother. This would certainly be appreciated during the long winter evenings, when fitted with the proper reading lenses. You can buy them now and have them fitted after the holiday season without any extra cost. We also carry a nice line of Opera Glasses and Eyeglass Chains, which makes very suitable gifts at this time of the year. Everything we sell is guaranteed.

A LINDSAY RESIDENT OF BIGAMOUS TENDENCIES

Toronto, Dec 31— Thrown into prison cells the second day of his honeymoon, Edward S Soane will now have to answer the serious charge of bigamy. Soane was married in St Thomas on Tuesday last to Miss Jennie E Reynolds, came to Toronto yesterday and registered at the Savoy hotel with his bride. This morning he was in the hands of the police on information given by the brother of Soan's first wife. A vagrancy charge was preferred by his worship during the morning session of police court, and the man was held until the close of court, when the bigamy charge was read to him. He offered no plea.

Soane's alleged crime forms a story of unusual interest and according to the police version is as follows:

After living with his first wife, Kathleen McLean, for many years of varied happiness, he took a notion to cut loose the bonds, and without warning, left his home in Lindsay, where six children depended on him, and went to Jackson, Mich. According to information received, the youngest child died shortly after the father's departure, and a Lindsay doctor reported that the death was due to neglect. After spending some months in Jackson, where he was free from prosecution, Soane moved to St Thomas, there secured his new bride's permission to a marriage, and was united to her on Tuesday by Rev Mr. Pidgeon of that city.

Fearless of any legal results from the second contract, Soane came boldly to Toronto, where he knew several people and registered at the Savoy hotel with his wife. But the brother of the first wife, Mr McLean, caught sight of the familiar face of his deposed brother in law, and notified the detective department.

The arrest came this morning and was a thorough and disagreeable surprise to Soane.

MR. EDWARDS BANQUETTED BY THE "CRYSTAL" STAFF

Mr W A. Edwards, the popular proprietor of the Crystal was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered him at Long and Hooper's palm parlors by the members of his staff on Friday night. The party around the banqueting board saw the old year out and the new one in and most cordial greetings were exchanged for happiness and prosperity for 1909. Besides the staff the orchestra of the Crystal was also present.

Mr Herb Nicholl acted as toastmaster and very happily officiated in that capacity. "Our Guest," was responded to by Mr Edwards. Words of appreciation towards "The Patrons" were expressed by Mr S Coon, "The Ladies" were honored by Mr. Watson and "The Press" was acknowledged by the representatives present.

General expressions of appreciation towards Mr Edwards were voiced by his employees for his treatment to them during the year. He also spoke of the pleasant relations he had had with his staff of their painstaking and satisfactory service.

At the conclusion of the supper the entire party adjourned to the Crystal where an impromptu programme was given consisting of vocal and instrumental selections.

POULTRY SHOW PROMISES TO BE A GREAT SUCCESS

The poultry show to be given under the auspices of the Peterborough Association on the 5th, 6th and 7th of the month promises to be a decided success, both in the standpoint of arousing public interest and also in a financial way. The show will be held in the market hall and a magnificent showing of fine birds is assured. Mr J. E Bennett, one of the leading poultry authorities of the province will be the judge. Mr. Bonnet is held in high regard as a judge and he acts in that capacity for the large Government shows.

On the first day of the show it will be open to the public from 4 to 10 o'clock, and on the other days from 9 am. to 10 pm. Every day school children will be admitted for five cents.

THE LABRADOR MEDICAL MISSIONARY SOCIETY DANCE

The Labrador Medical Missionary Society of Peterborough held its annual dance at the Conservatory Hall last evening and it was in every sense a signal success. Mrs Hughes-Charles to whose efforts the initiative in the movement to aid this most deserving mission is principally due, reports that the receipts are growing larger year by year. The amount the local society has undertaken to guarantee is $100 but it is possible that in the near future this handsome sum may be exceeded.

The dance being poudre brought out ladies of a "prior era" who in their poudre and puffs, rouge et noir, looked charming. Very many of the "mere men" present had red, white, green or blue lapels especially decorated for the occasion while some had wigged-looking hair with poudre and the customary black patches. They needed but ruffs, cloaks, silk stockings an swords to complete the picture of by-gone days. The ensemble was perfect. To the varied styles of feminine beauty was added an unusual wealth of color that lent to the gay and animated scene a distinction and artistic effect that was at once pleasing and characteristic of the Christmas holiday season. The patronesses were Mrs Aymer, Mrs J R Stratton, Mrs P Campbell, Mrs Montizambert, Mrs Currier. Amongst those present were: Mrs Hughes-Charles in black; Mrs Aylmer in black lace and white; Mrs J R Stratton in white lace and rose velvet; Mrs Albert Coulthard wore black, touched with green; Mrs Currier, white satin; Mrs R H Hall, apricot satin; Mrs Jas Hamilton, white lace; Mrs Dickson Hall, dark prune; Mrs C Pousette grey, Mrs H A Wood white Mrs Hay mauve silk; Mrs Medd black lace, Mrs Rubidge, black net, Mrs Blackwell, blue; Mrs P Campbell white; Mrs Gracie, yellow; Mrs Crane, white; Mrs A H Stratton, white; Miss Foster, white; Miss Archer black; Miss Frankie Burritt, pink; Miss Marie Hall, pink; Miss Helen Hall, pink; Miss Effie Munro, blue; Miss Lillian Cox, yellow; Miss Alberta Gooding, pink; Miss Pearl Lundy, lavender; Miss Gladman, white; Miss Sherry, Norwood, green; Miss Bourchier, black; Miss Shepherd, Port Hope, yellow; Miss Kerr, Cobourg, blue; Miss Leary, blue; Miss K Graham pink; Miss N Graham white Miss Halliday, black; Miss Dennison, yellow; Miss Aylmer, white; Miss Pearse, white; Miss Davies, black; Miss Bouchier black; Miss Sheppard, Miss Ackerman white; Miss Hay white Miss L Irwin, yellow; Miss E Irwin, white; Miss De la Mater, blue.

The supper was a contribution from the ladies. The Deep Sea Dance of 1909 will long be remembered as one of the most delightful of the series.

To Mr L F Cross, honorary secretary, fell a large share of the work. He was assisted by a large corps of efficient and obliging stewards.—S P Clarkson, Gerald Rackham, Walter Davidson, D Davidson, Ernie Clarry

ONLY ONE CHANCE OF LEMON CROP BEING INTACT

The shortage in lemons may not be as serious as it was feared it would be owing to the earthquake in Italy. Mr T. Minecolla of the firm of Minecola Bros, the Hunter street fruit merchants informed the Review today that the situation would be saved if the magazines had been saved. The export crop for the year has been mostly picked and stored in the magazines which are in the rural districts and in large warehouses where the crop is kept previous to shipment.

It is feared, however, that the magazines have been destroyed although no definite information concerning the matter is to hand as yet.

At the close of the watchnight service at St Luke's church Thursday night, Rev Dr Langfeldt had scarcely entered the vestry when he fainted away. He was unconscious for some little time. The doctor has not been in the best of health of late and Thursday night conducted his service under great difficulties. However he is much better today and will preach at both services at St. Luke's church tomorrow.

MANAGEMENT OF POULTRY

Will be Subject of Lecture by Miss May Yates Under Auspices of Poultry Show

Miss Mary Yates, the talented lecturer who is being sent here by the Institutes branch of the Department of Agriculture, to lecture on the second day of the big Peterborough Poultry show next week has sent to the secretary of the local Poultry Association a synopsis of her subject for next week's lecture which promises to be well worth hearing. The subject will be the "Management of Poultry," in which Miss Yates will give much interesting and valuable information on egg production, table poultry, preparation for showing, hatching and rearing, food and feeding stuffs, etc. She will also give demonstrations in killing, plucking and shaping birds for market, packing, trussing for table, boning and carving.

The first show of the Peterborough Association gives every promise of being a grand success. Certainly the members of the Association have their shoulders to the wheel and it determined hard work can accomplish anything the success of their efforts is assured.

WEDDING BELLS

BROWN—SAWERS

A quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Mr Augustus Sawers, 298 Brock street, when his eldest daughter, Miss Mary, was united in marriage to Dr William E Brown of Victoria Harbor. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H J. Sawers, of Christ church cathedral, Montreal, and brother of the bride. Only the intimate friends and relatives of the bride and groom were present. They were unattended.

Dr and Mrs Brown left on the 4.38 train. They will reside at Victoria Harbor.

RUTHERFORD---DUNSEITH

A very quiet wedding was solemnized in Toronto on Wednesday, Dec. 30, the participants being Mr. Wm. Rutherford, of Otonabee, and Miss Bertha Dunseith, of Toronto, formerly of Fenelon Falls. The bride and groom were unattended and left immediately after the ceremony on an extended tour to Fenelon Falls and points north. The presents were numerous and costly, showing the esteem in which the bride and groom are held. On their return they will reside at Zion, Otonabee, and will be at home to their friends after Jan. 12.

CARD OF THANKS.
Mr. B. Moon desires to convey his thanks to the kind friends for the many expressions of sympathy in his recent bereavement.

SPORTING NEWS

GOTCH THREW ENGLISHMAN 3 TIMES IN LESS THAN 3 MIN.

Although he is travelling the vaudeville circuit with his sketch, Frank Gotch, the world's wrestling champion, now in England, found time for a bit of wrestling in Sheffield, the other evening, when urged to appear in a match on the mat, he tackled and downed quickly an aspirant for honors.

The following is an extract from the Sheffield Evening Mail, which also touches extensively on the negotiation—to date without avail—between Hackenschmidt and Gotch for a return bout.;

A great crowd swarmed into the Sheffield Empire this afternoon to see Gotch wrestle his first match in England. Over 3000 persons secured admission and many were turned away. All the standing room was utilised and men were eaegr to pay if only to get a glimpse of the contest.

Outside the Empier a crowd which could not gain admission awaited the result. The American's opponent, George Dinnie, of Sheffield, is the best-known wrestler in the county of many acres.

The arrangement this afternoon was that unless the American pinned down Dinnie twice in the catch-as-catch-can style under 30 minutes the Sheffielder would receive £15. Dinnie expected to last the time for the two falls. With Zbysco he lasted sixteen minutes for one fall and with Hackenschmidt eight minutes, 40 seconds. He retired from a meeting with Madrali after eight minutes' wrestling, owing to the Terrible Turk's methods.

Dinnie and Gotch, as they faced each other, appeared splendid specimens of manhood. The contrast between Dinnie and Hack was as great as between Gotch and the Sheffielder. Gotch's muscles, however, do not stand out great and strong, as with some strong men. His strength is more like that of the sleek, sinewy panther.

The exhibition of wrestling was remarkable. Dinnie's face after the first grip bore a look of extraordinary astonishment.

Gotch went at his man like a cyclone, getting three falls in 1.15 seconds, 50 seconds and 50 seconds.

GREYS TOOK TWO GAMES FROM THE FRONTENACS

The Greys ushered in the New Year yesterday at the Peterborough Bowling club by taking two games from the Frontenacs, defeating Lang's trio by twenty and forty-five pins, respectively, in the first and second games of the league fixture, losing the third and closing contest by such a large margin that the Frontenacs were able to show the largest pinnage for the three games. The work of the Frontenacs in the last game was about as good as anything seen in the league this season, Hoolihan's score being the feature.

The score follows;

GRAYS.
YMcFadden...	115	137	137—389
Richea...	144	183	145—473

GOOD SHOOTING AT HIAWATHA

Gun Club Held Competition There This Week---The Results

At the target shooting competition in Hiawatha this week the results were as follows;

100 YARDS

1st round—Bert Anderson.
2nd round—Wm Anderson.
3rd round—Bert McCue.
4th round—Ed Loucks.
5th round—Madden Howard.

This competition was won by Ed. Loucks.

In the Hiawatha, Alnwick and Chemong competition the above reserves were represented in the order named by Ed Loucks, Samson Comego and Bert McCue. Hiawatha won.

In the 50 yards off hand shooting the three reserves were again represented as above stated, with the exception of Chemong. Dan Whetung, jr, carrying off the honors for northern marksmen.

In the 60 yards match George Paudash shot for Hiawatha, Sampson Comego for Alwick, Madden Howard for Harwood and Dan Whetung, Jr for Chemong. Howard won this fixture after some good shooting. The marksmanship was good in all the competitions.

THE RING

The announcement has been made here that James J. Corbett, formerly heavyweight pugilistic champion, has expressed his willingness to meet Jack Johnston if it were necessary in order to bring the championship back to the white man.

COBOURG AND THE LOCAL JUNIORS

Play O.H.A. Game at Brock St. on Monday Night---Ice in Great Shape

The Cobourg juniors and the locals play here on Monday night. Cobourg has a fast seven this winter and should make the homesters hustle to the limit to win. Peterborough will have a strong line-up. The ice is keen and a big crowd is expected for the opening game of the season.

TIGERS WON FROM MIDLAND

At the Y.M.C.A. last night the Tigers defeated Unos of Midland by 40—10. The half-time score was 20—5.

The locals lined up as follows;
Centre, Wallace.
Forwards, Best, Miller.
Defence, Staunton, Loomis.

JIM HARRISON AND BLAKE MAY WALK IN TORONTO

Blake, the colored walker, in a letter to Jim Harrison, suggests that the two meet in a matched race in Canada and it is possible that the race will be pulled off in Toronto. A side bet of $150 will be contested for should the race be arranged.

One of the most exciting finishes in the history of the walking game took place when Blake and Harrison finished neck and neck at the conclusion of the six day tournament held here at the Brock street rink, the negro winning out. A matched race between the two for twenty-five miles up should prove a great sporting card.

WHITBY DEFEATS THE LOCAL JUNIORS IN OPENING GAME

In a speedy and interesting game the Peterborough juniors were defeated by Whitby in the latter town yesterday by a score of 7-1. The locals held their opponents down to 3-1 up to half time. Whitby has a strong and clever seven and the team won on its merits.

"Dinner" Smith was referee and while impartial was incompetent.

Lavery and Blanchard shone for the winners at all stages and both played very effective games. Giroux, in goal, played a remarkable game for Peterborough septette and stopped everything that it was possible for any goal tender to look after.

Ray did splendid work on the forward line until his left arm was badly bruised by falling on it twice, as a result of being tripped.

Wade at point, was unfortunate being put out three times.

The winners excelled the losers in combination.

A despatch from Whitby says;

Whitby, Jan 1—The first junior O.HA. game in group 3 was played here tonight between Peterborough and Whitby, resulting in a victory for the home team by a score of seven to one. The score adequately indicates the play throughout.

"Dinner" Smith in the absence of F C Waghorne, who missed the train made an impartial referee.

The teams lined up as follows;

WHITBY—
Goal—Smith.
Point—C Lavery.
Cover—K Waugh.
Rover—C Jones.
Right wing—Don Wilson.
Left wing—C Blanchard.
Centre—J Smith.

PETERBOROUGH—
Goal—L Giroux.

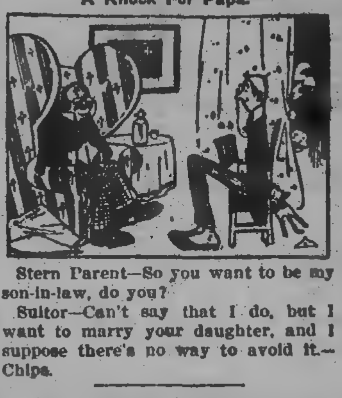
A Knock For Papa.



Stern Parent—So you want to be my son-in-law, do you?

Suitor—Can't say that I do, but I want to marry your daughter, and I suppose there's no way to avoid it.—Chips.

Lest They Suspect.

A French duel was about to be pulled off.

"Help me remove my coat," said one of the principals to his faithful seconds.

They took away his coat.

"Now my vest and my shirt."

They took away his vest and shirt.

"But, dear friend," said one of the seconds solicitously, "your imprudence is costing you a severe chill. You are shaking like a leaf, and your teeth are chattering."

"Hush!" whispered the principal. "This isn't a chill—it's fear. B-b-but, of course, I want the other f-f-fellows to think it's a chill. That's why I took off my co-co-coat!"

A little later there were apologies all around, and everybody went home arm in arm.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Parsimonious.

"Never mind," say the lawyers to the malefactor of great wealth after the jury has found him guilty and the judge has pronounced sentence upon him in scathing words—"never mind, we can take an appeal in this case, and if it goes against us in the court of appeals we can get a writ of error and a habeas corpus and a mandamus and an injunction and so on until"—

"Excuse me, gentlemen," says the malefactor of great wealth. "I have concluded to pay my fine and serve my sentence. I figure that your fees would be a great deal more than my time and money to pay the penalty are worth."

"Stingy!" hiss the lawyers, filing out and thinking bitter thoughts about the economical traits that have enabled their client to build up his fortune.—Chicago Post.

What Pat Said.

A woman fell from a ferryboat crossing over to Camden the other day, and a poor Irishman sprang over and rescued her. When she was safely landed on the deck her husband, who had been a calm spectator of the accident, handed the brave fellow a quarter.

Some of the bystanders expressing their indignation, Pat said: "Arrah, don't blame the gentleman—he knows best. Perhaps if I hadn't saved her he'd have given me a dollar."

OF INTEREST

Are the people of the United States religious in the real sense of the word.

The question is asked by M. Marc Debrol in La Grande Revue, and he replies,—

"No. The American is too taken up with the practical side of life, to preoccupied with conquests and gain, to be meditative. There is no introspection. This practical view is distinctive. It soon becomes the characteristic of the immigrants who have settled in the States to make money. In this race for the dollar the finer sensibilities dry up; the day's tasks take the mind away from thoughts of the morrow or of the future life. Yet although they lose their fervor, these "transplanted' families bring with them their penates, their crucifixes, and their icons; they keep their religion, in a way, yet as a Frenchwoman naively expressed it; 'I am devout no longer; it is not in the air.'

"Even members of the same family may belong to different sects. One religion is as good as another; ie., no one knows much about his own religion as religious discussion is unknown, but he sticks to it out of habit, each one goes to his church because it is the national thing to do. It is necessary to belong to a church as one belongs to a district, otherwise something is lacking. Believer or not one must be catalogued, one must adhere to some dogma; without that there would be no order—one would almost be an outlaw.

"Religion is a social force; it is a sort of restriction placed on the individual's liberty; in this way, however, religion loses its mysticism; it almost becomes a business.

"Many are indifferent to religion; there are no partisans. The devout are without fanaticism and the freethinkers without hatred. There is no animosity between Church and State. The state does not seek to monopolise education; private schools and parochial ones are allowed free competition, even the universities as attached to particular creeds.'"

The Sunday schools are criticized, but the Y.M.C.A. is admired. The latter is regarded as a splendid example of the American's liberality. No country it is pointed out, has more charitable institutions than the United States and in no country do people give more freely. But the writer is doubtful if this is charity. He writes,—

"The Americans, like all fighters, like all conquerors, does not know what pity is. I have never seen public opinion stirred by a great catastrophe where many lives had been lost. Individual life is of little value, but public health is of vital importance. That is why the innumerable institutions are founded —sanatoria for the poor, splendid hospitals, and free dispensaries. Epidemical diseases must be prevented, for they are a menace to public health.

The poor must be fed and clothed not out of pity, but out of prudence; they must not become discontented and revolt, disturbers of the national peace.

Charity does not spring from private initiative; it is carefully organized, and in many cases by churches. The individual makes no personal sacrifice; the more fortunate, the rich, keep aloof in their part of the town; the poor are shoved back into their hovels. For disease and misery, if seen at first hand, might shock the selfish, might, for a moment, disturb their peace of mind. Does not pay to have a calm conscience;"

A CONVENIENT FAITH.

"The author," says the Literary Digest, which translates the article, "dwells on the numerous 'charitable' institutions, giving them the tribute of his respect, but he cannot help deploring 'that he only heard of one society woman visiting the poor in their home.' He resumes;—

"'Altogether the American is not a mystic; he sees moral discipline rather than faith and mysticism in religion; he has no dreams; few ideals; he has no vague longings; he looks for a support in the present life; he does not speculate about the one to come.

"'America is on the whole, a religious country, but religion is adapted to the temperament of the nation. The practical American has made his faith a convenient one, inspiring confidence; it is rational and applies to all, and contains no more than is necessary to control the material life he leads, a life of struggle and of progress.'"—(Public Opinion, Eng.)

Matter of Duty.

Shopper—What makes these goods so expensive?

Clerk—The duty, ma'am.

Shopper—Oh, then they are imported?

Clerk—No; they are domestic goods, but the proprietor thinks it his duty to increase his bank balance.—Chicago News.

Juvenile Philosophy.

"Young man," said a father to his precocious son and heir, aged seven, "here's where I pay you that whipping I owe you."

"That ain't fair, dad," protested the youngster. "You never pay anybody else that you owe, and I don't see why you should make a preferred creditor of me."—Detroit Tribune.

A Distinct Loss.

"I suppose," said the grouchy old man, "it wouldn't worry you very much if there wasn't any such thing as soap in the world?"

"Sure it would," replied the dirty little urchin, "'cause den dey wouldn't be no soap boxes ter make bonfires wid."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Filial Consideration.

"Aren't you afraid you are paying more attention to athletics than to your books?" said one college youth.

"I've got to," answered the other, "so that when I go home I can talk about something that will interest father."—Washington Star.

Familiar With One Kind.

The knight of the golden helmet rode briskly down the lane. His word made a pleasant clanking in the usty scabbard which it was never in nded to fit; his eyes sparkled; his umes waved bravely in the breeze.

Anon from sheer exuberance of spir the knight of the golden helmet out a wild and joyous whoop which rtled the grazing cattle and set the ld eyed sheep huddling together in mbling wonder.

The general getup of the gentleman the aureate headpiece was a trifle rtling. Upon his head was a bas , the handle beneath his chin and bottom (or, rather, top in its pres position) decorated with the tail thers of an incautious rooster. out his waist was a red sash stuck of wooden dirks. From the left of this sash half dangled, half gged, the naval sword in the old alry scabbard.

rake handle answered the purpose a lance and bore as its pennon a tering three cornered piece of red nel. Upon the knight's fat, chub legs were fastened pieces of zinc, dently intended for greaves. The he bestrode was a crooked piece pple limb, with a bit of twine one end of it for reins.

is quite needless to state perhaps the knight of the gold helmet recently been filling his small with certain romantic literature ing to the days of chivalry.

"My lady! You mean your Aunt Margaret?"

The knight nodded.

"Down the lane a bit, by the walnut trees. Know the place, don't ye?"

"Sure!" was the unknightly reply.

He drew a bit nearer. One hand rested upon the hilt of the sword.

"Why are you here, varlet?" he demanded. "Why hast thou deserted thy lady?"

"Huh!" said the man in flannels. Then he burst into laughter. But there was a certain grating noise in it.

"Well, Billy—Mr. Golden Helmet, I mean—I'm here because she sent me. Couldn't seem to endure my society. Are you on? And I hardly think you're correct in calling her my lady. She's just told me mighty plainly that she wasn't."

The young gentleman astride the stick pondered deeply, and to aid his cogitations he removed the basket from his head and swung it idly to and fro in one hand. Then he replaced it with a considerable show of firmness.

"Back you go, craven!" he declared flatly.

"Huh? What?" said the man in the flannels.

"Back you go! I ride to the succor of ladies in distress.

"Bully for you, old chap," the other replied. "I think you'd better go alone, though."

"Never!" bawled the knight. "Turn around."

After several futile efforts he managed to yank the sword from the scabbard. He waved it threateningly above his head.

"See here," the young man began irritably as he took a step forward, but at that moment they both heard quick steps down the lane.

Around the bend came the lady under discussion. She started violently at the sight of them. Her face was flushed, and her eyes were suspiciously red.

"I've got him!" shouted the knight joyously. "He's in my power! He was deserting you, but I held him up! I'll see he begs your pardon if you say so!"

The young woman drew herself up. Her face was scarlet now.

"Billy, what are you doing? What is the meaning of this foolishness?" she demanded.

"Come on, you! Apologize!" said the youth sulkily, prodding the immaculate white trousers with the point of his sword.

Neither the words nor the prod seemed to attract the man's attention. He stood staring at the girl—particularly at her red eyes. Then suddenly he sprang to her side and caught her hand in his.

"Margaret," he cried, "he's right! I should apologize, that's a fact. I'm a pigheaded duffer. The quarrel is my fault—all mine."

Then came a few low words, a little happy laugh from the girl, and then two of them strolled down the lane together, utterly oblivious of the ridiculous figure which stood silently watching them until they disappeared around the bend.

The knight of the golden helmet remained thus for some moments lost in thought. Then he turned about and went slowly up the lane.

"Gee!" he muttered. "Wouldn't that cook yer? This ain't the way they done it in the book."

He was still lost in his own musings as, whoopless, he passed again the grazing cattle and the huddled sheep.

His Vivid Imagination.

It was in Sunday school in the infant department. The teacher had just told the children something about the Holy Land and had said: "Now, children, let's just play we're taking a trip over that very place. We step into this little boat tied here at the shore, and away we go. Now we are landing at the very place where"—

She was interrupted by the sobbing and gasping of a small boy in the second row, whose sister sought earnestly to quiet and comfort him.

"What is the matter with Eddie?" asked the teacher.

"Please, teacher, he's feeling bad," explained Eddie's sister. "It always makes him sick to ride in a boat."—Chicago News.

Finding Is Keeping.

By MARTHA M'CULLOCH-WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Lisabeth climbed into the runabout and sent Meg down the road at a clipping pace. There was a certain likeness betwixt the girl and the mare. Both showed blood; both were handsome in unusual fashion. Lisabeth was a Spanish blond, and her face was vivid as an autumn flower. Thus Meg's copper red coat and flaxen mane and tail brought her beautifully into the picture.

"I don't see why mammy and the colonel never will pull together," Lisabeth complained to Meg when they were safe in the big road. Meg was her only confidant, her nearest comrade.

"If only they ever did agree I might give up to them," Lisabeth went on plaintively. "Since they won't I have to stand up for my own way. They'd hate each other forever if they thought I was partial."

The big road swept in a long curve halfway round the plantation. Lisabeth caught glimpses of the white house, with tall red chimneys, nestling among the trees, all along throughout the first mile.

Several times she smiled at the house; once she shook her fist, saying, with a frown: "Oh, you look good, but but you're just the same as a prison! I can't do anything I want to do, because I'm going some day to be mistress of Willow Wand. But that isn't the very worst—I must marry somebody fit to be master there—if ever they find such a paragon. I won't do it! I won't! I won't! I'll run away with a drummer man or even a gypsy—if I like him."

Lisabeth was nineteen, vital to her finger tips, an only child and, truth to say, rather badly spoiled.

"They fight so, Meg," Lisabeth ran on, more than ever plaintive—"my mammy and the colonel. He gets up first. By breakfast time he has thought of a brand new reason why I ought to marry that Kinross thing." (Type can never express the curl here of Lisabeth's lips.) "And he fires it at mammy as she gives him his coffee—and spoils her appetite always—and makes her cry sometimes. But she gets even. Long before dinner's ready she's ready with something good and better in Hump Dillard. Oh, Lord! Fancy living with a body named Hump! I hear myself saying, 'Humpy, dear,' or 'My Humpy sugar lump!' I have my opinion of folks who would go and name a boy child Humphreys—don't care if the name has been in the family forty thousand years."

She fell silent a little while. The road ran on down Leet's hill, which was more than half a mass of clay bedded round bowlders. One could drive over it safe enough if only one knew how; also if one's horse were clear footed and true pulling.

Evidently a passenger had essayed coming up it who lacked all those things. Halfway down the hill upon a small gravelly bench there was an overturned buggy with a man half sitting, half lying beside it, casting rueful glances alternately at the vehicle and the horse, whose head barely showed above the depths of a roadside gully.

The horse whickered appealingly to Meg, who answered with the least faint whinny. Lisabeth stopped opposite the stranger, leaned a little toward him, saying in her father's most judicial tone: "Um! Can't you pick yourself up after your spill?"

"Certainly I can. I'm doing this all for a lark, of course!" the stranger retorted, pointing to his forehead, bleeding from a long gash, then on to a foot lying helpless in front of him. A smallish brass bound trunk a little beyond explained his plight. In the spill it had somehow fallen upon his ankle, breaking a bone. It was a sample trunk, Lisabeth decided instantly. Therefore the stranger was a drummer.

It served him right for trying to go cross country without a driver and with only a single horse, but that was no more than a fleeting thought. She was giggling so inside as she thought what the colonel would say to him.

The colonel hated the whole race of drummers, albeit he admitted they had their uses. Notwithstanding he would not refuse succor to this special drummer. Lisabeth chuckled inly as she got out and approached him, saying: "I'm real sorry you're hurt. At first I thought you were only"—

"Drunk," the stranger supplemented as she passed, coloring deeply. She nodded. "But I'll spare you apologies. Instead I'm going to take you home with me," she said.

"Sure I'll go?" the stranger asked. Lisabeth gave him a severe glance as she answered: "You needn't unless you want to. Just tell me who you are, who you travel for and where you're going, and I can send word to them right away. The Higleys down yonder," pointing down the hill, "have two telephones."

"Thank you, but I'd rather go with you. My name is Maclise. As for the rest, it doesn't matter," the stranger said, trying to rise and falling back, white to the lips. Lisabeth caught his arm, saying severely:

"Be still, you, while I halloo up Babe and Billy—the Higley boys, you know—to make a bee saddle and tote you to my runabout and take care of your plunder."

"I see," Maclise said, his eyes dancing in spite of his pain. "Don't you think you'd better let me go home with them? I always did like to ride on a bee saddle."

"But you never tried it with a game leg—at least I reckon not," Lisabeth retorted. "Anyway, you can't go to Ma Higley's. I found you in the road, and finding is keeping."

"Clearly there's no more to be said," Maclise answered, shutting his teeth on a groan.

He had only a simple fracture, the doctor said, but somehow he made a very slow recovery. The colonel had sworn over him for exactly half an hour—silently, of course. Humanity and hospitality both forbade anything else. Then he had fallen victim to the charm of a personality singularly frank and winning. As for mammy, she had succumbed instantly.

Lisabeth was not permitted to do more than say "Good morning" through the door so long as Maclise kept his room, but when he came down to sit on the piazza or hobble up and down the garden she followed him like a fascinated child.

He had such tales to tell her. Evidently he had been all over the world. He was thirty, not handsome, but well made and supremely well bred in spite of his vocation. The Mertons each and several deplored the vocation tacitly.

He had not fretted in the least over his accident. Instead, after sending off a couple of brief letters, he had said: "Now everything is fixed. I have only to enjoy myself getting well." All his solicitude had been for the brass bound trunk. He had beside it a suit case cramful of proper clothes. Moreover, his wallet was so fat, his fees and tips so generous, it was clear he had no anxiety about money.

In his first fortnight at Willow Wand all the family had confided to him their plans and grievances. Set speech was hardly necessary. He had sensed so much before it came. After seeing the Kinross thing and the long descended Hump Dillard his judgment veered shamelessly to Lisabeth's side.

"But you need a man of your own to fight for," he explained to her judicially, "somebody—anybody almost—to oppose to these two. You insist that you can do better than take either. You've got to show mammy and the colonel, even if they don't come from Missouri. Don't you know anybody you could idealize into a hero?"

Lisabeth shook her head, murmuring: "I don't know him, but I know of him. It's so aggravating he won't come home. I wonder if you ever met him—M-M-Murray. He's been globe trotting ever since he left college. I made up my mind to marry him—nobody else—two years ago, when I went all over his house, not because it's so fine, but for the name—Goodheart. I love that. And I'm sure I'd love him too. But how can I when he keeps away all the time?"

"It might be harder still if you saw him. No, I've never met him, but I've heard a lot about him—not much to his good," Maclise said, scowling oddly. "If he's the only rival you can scare up I see nothing for it but to propose myself. You found me, you know, and said finding was keeping."

"And I meant it—right then," Lisabeth said joyously. "Even if you are a drummer I believe it will be great fun to go along with you. I might even drum for things myself."

"That's a bargain," Maclise said, holding her tight, but not kissing her. "I'm afraid, though, you won't stick to it when you know I'm a rank, rank impostor—not a bit of a drummer. You don't even know my right name."

"I don't care—I know you," Lisabeth cried, clinging closer. Then he kissed her twice, saying, with the least shake in his voice: "Thank God! Sweetheart, I never before was so proud of myself. But the name is a pretty decent one. I'm asking you formally to be Mrs. Marmaduke Maclise Murray. I was going home with my family papers in that trunk when it lamed me and gave me something very much more precious. Now, what do you think mammy and the colonel will say?"

"It doesn't matter. I say 'Yes,'" Lisabeth whispered. "Still, I believe they won't make much fuss about it."

Vocation and Avocation.

The word "vocation" is derived from the Latin voco, I call; vocatus, calling. "Avocation" is derived from avoco, I call away or divert; avocatus, calling away or diverting. A man's calling or vocation is that for which he has prepared himself, for which he is fitted or for which he has received a call, as we say especially in regard to a religious vocation. But when a man is called away—avocatus—from his regular employment and engages in a diversion or recreation of any kind the word avocation applies to such diversion or calling away. The recreation may be of a very serious nature, as some profound study or arduous work, but it is not his vocation. The schoolboy has no vocation. He is fitting himself for one. But he may have many avocations. Gladstone's vocation was statesmanship; among his avocations were the study of the classics, making translations and sometimes chopping down trees.—London M. A. P.

A Small Girl's Philosophy.

The small daughter of the house was sent to bed early the other evening as punishment for some act contrary to rules and regulations. After she had been tucked in bed for some time and was supposedly asleep the youngster called her father and told him she wished he would go ahead and spank her and have it over with instead of sending her off in that way.

"This lying in bed never's going to make me any better," she said, "and a good spanking would. Besides, it makes me so mad I can't sleep, and so what's the use of it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Kind Audience.

The tragedian had just returned from his tour and was greeted joyously by his friends at the club.

"Well, Ranter, my boy," said Tomlinson, "I'm glad to see you back. Have a good trip?"

"Fair," said Ranter.

"Did you play my old town?"

"Yes," said Ranter.

"What kind of an audience did you have?"

"I don't know," said Ranter. "I did not ask him for a reference as to his character, but he was a genial kind of cuss and lent me $2 to get out of town with."—Harper's Weekly.

Effect of Fear on Wounds.

The fear of poison in a lacerated wound under certain circumstances is in itself quite sufficient to give a wounded man tetanus, or lockjaw, than which no more horrible complication exists. Thus for a long time it was thought that the natives of the Solomon and other neighboring islands used poisoned arrows, and many white men shot by them died in tetanic convulsions, including one very horrible case of a commander in the navy who had made a special study of tetanus.

At length the French governor of New Caledonia, noticing that the symptoms exhibited were not consistent with the use of any known poison, appointed a medical commission to inquire into the affair, when it was discovered that the arrows of the natives were not poisoned at all, although constructed in such a way that a small piece of the bone point almost always remained in the wound. The irritation produced by this prevented the wound from healing quickly, and the mental disturbance produced by fear and perhaps change of climate did the rest.

It was discovered at the same time that the natives of other islands who firmly believed in the poison theory seldom suffered much inconvenience from the arrow wounds, because they believed that the spells given them by their own sorcerers prevented the poison from taking effect.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Lady Randolph's Repartee.

Lady Randolph has a sense of humor, or perhaps I should say wit, as exemplified in a short passage at arms with Bernard Shaw. She wrote a polite note to that gentleman asking him if he would come to a luncheon party, to which he curtly replied:

"Certainly not. What have I done to provoke such an attack upon my well known habit?"

To which she answered:

"Know nothing of your habits. Hope they are not as bad as your manners."

To this telegram Mr. Shaw wrote a long letter excusing himself on the ground that he did not eat "the unfortunate dead animals and things" that were usually provided for luncheons. As one always expects Mr. Shaw to be amusing, even at the expense of politeness, one is seldom disappointed.—Putnam's Magazine.

Greenough Statue Goes Begging.

The Rev. Edward Anderson of President's Hill, Quincy, has come into possession of a statue by R. S. Greenough, the Boston sculptor, which he has sought in vain to present to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Public library and other institutions. This statue is the artist's conception of "Christ Awakening In the Tomb." The statue is now packed away in a storeroom of the Boston Public library and its possessor is endeavoring to find some institution or even cemetery that will accept it. Mr. Greenough made this statue to be placed over the grave of a friend in Rome.—New York Tribune.

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." N. MY FREE TRIAL TREATMENT MAY CURE YOU

ORANGE LILY

Kingston, Ont., June 6th, 1904.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—I feel so very much better after using the ten days' treatment of Orange Lily you were kind enough to send, that I will not require any more. In fact, I feel entirely well, and it is now a month since I stopped using the treatment. (Miss) F. T. W.

Similar letters to the above are not infrequent, though, of course, such cases are not of long standing. Most women who have suffered for any length of time will require to use Orange Lily longer than the Free Trial Treatment in order to effect a complete cure, but in every case they will be perceptibly benefitted. Further, the benefit will be permanent, whether they continue to use Orange Lily or not. It is not taken internally, and does not contain any alcohol or other stimulant. It is an applied treatment, and acts directly on the suffering organs. In all cases of women's disorders, these organs are congested to a greater or less extent, and Orange Lily will relieve and remove this congestion just as positively and certainly as the action of ammonia or soap on soiled linen. It is a simple chemical problem, and the result is always the same—a step towards better health and complete cure.

In order that every suffering woman may prove its good qualities, without cost, I will send enough of Orange Lily for ten days' treatment, absolutely free, to each lady who will send me her address.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

A Letter From the Mayor

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It has been brought to my notice that statements are being made, and have appeared in print, that the aldermen and myself were responsible for reducing the wages of workmen employed by the city, and fault has been found with this. I refer to this because the Council served the people and the people have a right to know the facts. The Council employs a street commissioner who looks after the greater part of the street work, and they act on the principle and have done so for more than one year, that he should be given authority to employ the men, otherwise he would not be in a position to do the best for the ratepayers, and as the Council has confidence in him this authority has not been interfered with. I have not, nor so far as I am aware has any member of the Council interferred with the officers of the department as to who were employed or what wages were paid to any particular employee of the department. As to the wages that have been paid, labourers have been paid from $1.50 to $1.60 per day and in a few cases $1.75. Mechanics and more skilled men on sidewalks and other work have been paid higher wages, of course. Teams have been paid for at $3.65 per day. I believe the wages paid have been the highest current rates, as the city should not depress the scale of wages nor inflate it, but pay fair wages for the work done. The name of one man has been mentioned frequently in the current reports. I did not know the facts in this case, but am informed that he is not able to do general work and is given work that he can do fairly well and has been paid $1.25 per day—the only instance of wages less than $1.50 on the list, and he could not earn more in any other way, if indeed, he could obtain employment elsewhere at that wage. Last winter this man met with an accident and was laid up for eight weeks and was paid half rate, $4.50 per week, during that time. Really I think it will be agreed that he has not been unfairly treated. I do not like to mention a particular case, but owing to the persistent reports I felt that it could not be avoided.

The Mayor and aldermen are elected to transact the business of the city, in a fair, impartial and business like manner, doing no injustice to any individual or individuals, not to the ratepayers as a whole. I believe the electors will see that this year the matter of wages referred to has been dealt with fairly and honestly, with the purpose of giving everyone fair play and serving the interests of the city.

Yours truly,
H. RUSH.

The By-laws

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I notice in your issue of Thursday evening, Dec. 31st, an article from Mr. Wm. Langford respecting the by-laws. $21 500 for street extensions and $30 000 for exhibition grounds. $49,000 for new bridge at Smith street, to be voted on next Monday. I may say that Mr. Wm Langford is a gentleman that I have every regard for, and a man who is not afraid to speak out and say what he considers is right, irrespective of whom it pleases.

I do not agree with him respecting some of these by-laws, to which he refers in his letter.

The first item named above for street extensions, he says is O.K., and should carry. I quite agree with him myself.

The second amount may not have received the attention of the Council that it should. The cost of it does seem high, but for the very same reason that we both agree on the first item is my reason for upholding this by-law. The greater need is probably not seen just now. The $21 500 that is being asked for now would not have been more than half of the amount had it not been considered by the Council of say, fifteen years ago, but recently did not demand them. And it will be what the Council of 10 years hence will be saying about us, if we let this opportunity pass.

There is not a question of doubt, but that the city limits are fast growing to the south, and no matter who owns that property a street will have to go through it, likely the continuation of George street. The western portion can be for exhibition purposes, and better and proper buildings could be erected by the directors which, to my mind, has a great deal to do in influencing people to exhibition their goods.

The eastern portion could be laid out for a south end park or for manufacturing purposes if necessity demanded it.

Some mention has been made to cut it into town lots. I do not agree with that. The town has no right to act as a real estate agent, there is enough of them here now. But the 3rd amount is what I take the greatest exception to, viz., $49,000 for a bridge. Any ratepayer who has given this matter a little bit of attention knows that a new bridge has got to be put at this place The Council of three years ago made a mistake in not allowing the by-law to go before the people at that time. It was thought at the time that less money would be required to patch it than what it would take to pay interest and sinking fund on the cost of the bridge. This was bad policy. The bridge could have been built for a lot less money then than now, as the water was 4 or 5 feet less in depth than now, and from the information have the work below the water line is very costly and will cost as much for one bridge as another for abutments.

$19 500 is what it will cost for the steel work of a bridge laid down here. The abutments will cost from $18 000 to $20,000. These are approximately the figures I have for a bridge to span the river at Smith street.

This would be for the 18 foot roadway. Now I do not think it would be fair to the citizens of Ashburnham not to take into consideration for their benefit a bridge that will be of proper dimensions to give them a street railway service.

Paragraph No. 10 of the street railway agreement says that in case the tracks of the company cross any bridges the company at its own expense is to place all girders and works necessary for strengthening them so as to safely carry the cars over such bridge. This to my mind means a whole lot, and Smith street is the proper place for cars to cross at least in one place. The best thing to do is to vote for by-law to allow the construction of a new bridge and give the contract to Mr. Langford for the sum of money he mentions in his letter.

Yours, etc.,
W. J. JOHNSTON.

P.S.—The clause referred to is as follows;—"In case the tracks of the company cross any bridges or culverts, the company at its own expense is to place all girders and works necessary for strengthening the same so as to safely carry cars over such bridges or culverts." In view of this clause is it not desirable that the company should be taken into consultation in building city bridges, as it will prevent misunderstanding and possibly needless trouble and expense.

THE KING AND QUEEN HAVE LEFT THE RUINS

Their Majesties Have Returned to Rome.

Soldiers and Bandits Engage in Sanguinary Conflicts---Queen is Hurt.

Rome, Jan. 4.—The King and Queen stole into the capital yesterday afternoon, but news of their arrival spread quickly, and crowds gathered outside the Quirinal cheered till King Victor Emmanuel appeared on the balcony of the palace to bow his thanks. Their Majesties have created a new and strong bond between themselves and their subjects. Prior to their departure from Calabria the King telegraphed the Premier saying that fresh troops were arriving, all relief services were being gradually organized and the situation was improving. After visiting the districts most affected, and in view of the fact that order had been everywhere restored, while, moreover, the number of rescus was diminishing, he was leaving for Rome.

Queen Helena Injured.

Queen Helena was not greatly injured in the hospital panic which she endeavored to check. She was only bruised. When the panic, which was caused by a renewed shock, broke out, everybody, in a paroxysm of terror, made a mad rush for the doors of the hospital amid cries of "Flee! flee! another earthquake! the building is falling!" The Queen commanded silence and called on the panic-stricken patients to keep their places. Some obeyed, but others, mad with fear, tried to rush out. It was one of these latter who struck the Queen so violently on the breast that she almost fainted in the arms of one of her ladies. As soon as she recovered she resumed work. The King, when he heard of the accident, hurried to the hospital and endeavored to persuade her to leave, but without avail. Even when returning on one of the men-of-war from Messina the Queen's labors were not over, for there were injured aboard whom she attended with her own hands. Only one thing the Queen was not allowed to do. This was to visit certain streets of Messina where the sights were too horrible.

The Queen not only displayed coolness in the face of danger, but put to practical use the training she got a couple of years ago, when she and many other Roman ladies went through a course of nursing and first aid to the injured.

Work of the Ghouls.

Premier Giolitti confirms the King's statement that the local authorities now have the situation well in hand. It was necessary to proclaim martial law as affording the only means of dealing effectively with the pillagers and marauders, one of whom was discovered with notes to the value of 100,000 lire in his possession. For two days the scum population, however, were in command, and both dead and dying suffered at their hands. Several of them were shot at sight by rescue parties. It was only on the arrival of troops from the outside that the bandits, who even so late as Friday night engaged in a pitched battle with sailors and customs officers. One man was shot in the act of tearing the rings off the finger of a dying woman, and stories of incendiarism are also current, in which human ghouls are stated to have set fire to the ruins in which the victims they had despoiled were still alive.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH POISONING

Owen Sound Woman Gave Candies to Small Boys.

Owen Sound, Jan. 4.—A case of a most serious nature was heard in the Police Court Wednesday, when a woman was charged with administering noxious drugs—in other words, poisoning.

The story is that the woman had an irritant drug in her possession, and had given some, concealed in chocolate drops, to a couple of small boys, telling them to give the candies to some one if they wanted to have some fun. It is said she also gave them a small package of the drug. They fed the candies to another boy, with the result that he went clean out of his head and was with difficulty kept from injuring other members of the family. It was not until the following day that the effects passed off. Evidence in the case was heard behind closed doors, and the prisoner was remanded for a week.

THE MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION MEETS

The Ministerial Association met this morning as usual at 10.30 o'clock, Rev. H. J. Keith, M.A., B.D., in the chair. A paper on "Evangelism" was read by Rev. Robert Pogue. A committee composed of the President, the secretary and Rev. Canon Davidson was appointed to interview the retail merchants with respect to early closing. The Week of Prayer begins this evening at Charlotte street church.

The week of prayer begins tonight at Charlotte street church.

A $200 FIRE ON SATURDAY

On Saturday night at 10.30 fire broke out in Swartz's second-hand store, Simcoe street, and did damage to the extent estimated at about $200. The fire brigade prevented further loss.

THE VICEROY HAS BEEN DISMISSED

China is Excited Over Deposition of Yuan Shi Kai.

Pekin, Jan. 4.—An edict issued Saturday dismisses from office Yuan Shi Kai, grand councillor and commander-in-chief of the forces. The reason given for this action is that he has rheumatism of the leg. The edict orders Yuan Shi Kai to vacate all his offices and to return to his home, adding: "Thus our clemency towards him is manifested."

A second edict appoints Na Tung, comptroller of customs and ex-governor of Pekin, grand councillor, presumably in Yuan Shi Kai's place.

The members of the diplomatic corps at Pekin are well nigh thunderstruck at the sudden dismissal of Yuan Shi Kai. The step is believed to be the outcome of a Manchu plot and there are indications that the Japanese representatives alone had any inkling of what was on foot.

There is nothing to indicate that the dismissal of Yuan Shi Kai means danger to foreigners, but the good fame of China's management of the crisis following the demise of the Emperor and the Dowager Empress, and the appointment of a successor, has been swept away by this vindicative act, which will astonish and arouse the outside world.

There are grave apprehensions here of revolutionary outbreaks in such centres as Canton and some of the most conservative diplomats already are suggesting the return of foreign troops to the lines of communication between Pekin and Tientsin.

It is not exaggeration to say that the foreigners of Pekin are overcome with astonishment at this evidence of China's capacity to take such a reactionary step.

MRS. SCHWAB THREATENED

Chicago, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Henry C. Schwab announced Saturday night that her monster reception scheduled for Jan. 6 would be held exactly as planned.

This announcement followed a day of excitement, during which a score of private detectives worked in vain to discover the identity of the person who, in a letter, threatened the death of the popular South Side society leader.

Mrs. Schwab has invitations out for a reception to be held Wednesday night at the Congress Hotel. Four hundred guests have been invited. The mysterious writer in his messages announced that before the guests were assembled Mrs. Schwab would be killed.

SCOTCH CONCERT NEXT MONDAY

The "Imperial Scotch" Concert Company, direct from Scotland, will give an evening in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Monday evening next, January 11th. This company consists of J M Hamilton, tenor; Miss Ruby Seath Grant, soprano; Fred Barclay, humorist, and Andrew Mackenzie, piano and accompanist.

MANY BY-LAWS ARE VOTED ON TO-DAY

Local Option Fight Throughout the Province is One of the Bitterest in Years and 165 Bars Hang in the Balance.

Toronto, Jan. 4.—Power bylaws are being submitted and voted upon in a large number of western municipalities to-day and those which are in the same neighborhood are almost as interested as those which are actually voting.

The construction of a line to Windsor from Niagara interests every municipality on the way, and ever farmer and tradesman within range of power will take a keen interest in the outcome of the ballot.

Among the leading points are Windsor, Sarnia, Walkerville, Sandwich, Amherstburg, Highgate, Newbury, Blenheim, Ridgetown, Bothwell, Wheatley, Cottam, Tilbury, Comber, Thamesville, Gosfield, Belle River, Mercea, Anderton, Rochester, South Colchester, Leamington, Kingsville, Wallaceburg, Dresden, Oil Springs, Petrolia, Glencoe, Chatham, Alvinston and Strathroy.

There are about 40 places altogether in which bylaws are to be voted upon, some of these further east, as at Stratford, where the question is to be laid before the people once more. The power question is also an issue in the elections at Hamilton, Brantford and Galt, and Brampton, Acton, Milton, Georgetown, Mimico, Dundas, Norwich, Tillsonburg, Aylmer, Simcoe, Waterford, Port Stanley, Elmira, St. Jacobs, Breslau, St. George, Doon, Ayr and Paris are also considering it.

One of the greatest local option fights ever fought in Ontario will be decided at the polls to-day. There are 92 municipalities in the province voting on the question, in 61 of them the proposal being to do away with existing licenses, while in 31 the vote is on the repeal of local option.

Should local option receive the requisite three-fifths majority in every case, it will mean the wiping out of 165 licenses, while in the event of every vote to repeal being carried 92 licenses will be restored. Only a majority is required for repeal, as in each of the 31 municipalities local option was carried before the amendment to the Liquor License Act became effective. St. Catharines votes to-day on license reduction.

In Kingston the petition of the Social and Moral Reform League asking for a reduction of liquor licenses in the city is now in circulation, and: reports say that it is being very largely signed. The petition is to be presented to the City Council during the later part of January.

There are in Ontario 492 municipalities under liquor license, representing about 2,200 licenses. Municipalities now under local option number 174, and there are 138 municipalities in which licenses have been cut off by the commissioners.

ARRESTED IN PITTSBURG HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Silas H. Pearson, of Peterborough, Confesses to Shooting Merchant in That City—Was Attempting to Rob Store When Interrupted—Wife Held as Witness.

Special to the Review.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 4. — Arrested with his wife, as he stepped from a Pittsburg and Lake Erie train at the Erie depot last night, Silas H. Pearson, who had just returned from a visit with relatives in Peterborough, Ont., was taken to the Central Station and subjected to a sweating process, which ended in a confession clearing the mystery surrounding the wounding of Jacob Knoedler, a Willock station merchant, on the night of November 24th.

Pearson, whose home is in Peterborough, Ont., disappeared two days after the robbery of Knoedler's store and the shooting of the merchant, who is still confined to the hospital, although it is believed he will recover. Suspicion was directed against Pearson. Last week a warrant for his arrest was issued and requisition papers secured and a detective was about to start for Peterborough, when it was learned that Pearson had left that city on his return to Pittsburg.

He alighted from the train to step in front of policemen. Pearson was subjected to a severe examination and collapsed. Later he signed a copy confession.

He declared he went to Knoedler's store to rob it and being caught in the act, shot the aged merchant. Pearson was lodged in jail to await the action of the Allegheny County Grand Jury. His wife will be held as Gas witness. After his arrest the wife told a story of her husband's movements, which conflicted with that of Pearson. It was an easy matter after this to fasten the guilt on the suspected.

A dispatch from Pittsburg says:—

Weakening at midnight under the fire of cross-questioning levelled at him by George H. Waggoner, chief of the county detectives, Silas H. Pearson, twenty-six years of age, of Peterborough, Ont., broke down and confessed to the shooting of Jacob Knoedler, of Willock Station on the night of November 24th and the entering of his store. According to the statement, the work was a "one-man job."

He was placed in the county jail, a self-confessed criminal, five hours after his arrival in Pittsburg from Canada, accompanied by his wife. Testimony secured against him by detectives was too strong for him to resist. After the first sesion of grilling to which he was subjected, he was allowed an hour in which to ponder over the matter, and gave in quickly when again attacked. In his sign-

Russian Abscender Surrenders.

New York, Jan. 4.—A seedily-dressed man came to police headquarters last night and told the officers he desired to give himself up.

He said his name was Moses Friendlansky, and that he was 33 years old. He declared that while in charge of a branch bank of the Northern Bank of St. Petersburg, at Rostoff, Russia, in March, 1906, he absconded with $70,000 of the bank's funds, coming to America. He traveled all over the United States, he said, but is now practically penniless, having only 15 cents left.

He said he wanted to be sent back to Russia, where he has wealthy and influential relatives who will comes to his aid.

Montreal's Fire Record.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—The year of 1908 saw over a thousand fires in Montreal, some 20 of which were of first importance, according to the annual report of Superintendent Ferns of the fire alarm department. The exact number is 1,053, as compared with 984 in 1907. False alarms decreased from 205 in 1907 to 130 last year. Of the causes of the fires, 51 are classed as unknown, while 114 were chimney fires. Spontaneous combustion was a frequent cause and burglars and mortar mixing are set down for two. Of nine fatalities, one was a fireman.

Lusitania Passengers Arrested.

New York, Jan. 4.—When the steamship Lusitania reached her pier from Liverpool Saturday, detectives arrested a man traveling as "O. Sands," who is suspected as being Otto Slater, who is charged with murder in Glasgow, Scotland.

The murder occurred a few weeks ago. The victim was Miss Marian Gilchrist, who was wealthy. A woman accompanying the prisoner, and registered on the Lustania's passenger list as "Mrs. Sands," was also taken into custody by the police.

Rev. W. Wye Smith Resigns.

St. Catharines, Jan. 4.—Rev. William Wye Smith, the octogenarian pastor of the Congregational Tabernacle, has resigned and he preached his farewell sermon yesterday. The church building will be offered for sale, as the congregation is disbanding. Mr. Smith is the well-known Scottish poet and the translator of the New Testament into broad Scotch.

Anson R. Flower Dead.

Watertown, N.Y., Jan. 4.—Anson R. Flower, aged 66, special partner of the firm of Flower & Co., bankers of New York, died suddenly at his home in this city at noon yesterday, from heart trouble.

Mr. Flower was director in numerous banking, industrial and traction corporations, and was a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Nominations In Virden.

Winnipeg, Jan. 4.—The nomination for the Local Legislature for Virden, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. J. H. Agnew, was held Saturday. Harvey Simpson, Conservative, and Robert Forke, Liberal, were nominated.

Boycott Threatened.

Vancouver, Jan. 4.—A boycott against British goods is threatened at Hong Kong, owing to the severity of the Hong Kong Government in attempting to stop the boycott against Japanese goods by Chinese of the colony.

The Viceroy of Canton has forbidden emigration to Mexico.

Falls 600 Feet.

Vancouver, Jan. 4.—Nelson Penn, carpenter, aged 25, met with a terrible death here yesterday morning, while working in the Western Fuel Co.'s mine. He was walking along a drift without light and fell down an airshaft of No. 1 mine, dropping 600 feet. Death was instantaneous.

Deadly Coal Oil Again.

Elkhorn, Man., Jan. 4.—Coroner Goodwin has returned from McCauley, where he was called to look into the death of Mrs. Phybers, whose end was caused by a coal oil explosion. The fire in the kitchen stove had gone low, and Mrs. Phybers took a can containing poor coal oil and poured some on the smouldering fire with the result that an explosion occurred, burning the woman so severely that she died nine hours later. The oil had been purchased some time ago and had exploded in a stable lantern and then been set aside as too dangerous to use. Mrs. Phybers leaves four children, the youngest four months old.

Snubbed by Emperor.

Berlin, Jan. 4.—Considerable comment has been aroused by the fact that Emperor William, at the New Year's reception Friday, refrained from offering his hand to Count Von Stolberg-Wernigerode, the president of the Reichstag. The incident is regarded as an intentional snub, expressive of His Majesty's resentment against the Reichstag for that body's frank criticisms of his course in the matter of the interview with him printed in The London Daily Telegraph last October.

Farmer Gored to Death.

Danbury, Conn., Jan. 4.—James Reynolds, a wealthy and prominent farmer, was gored to death by a bull in a field on his farm in the town of Danbury yesterday.

The body, terribly torn and mangled, with the face crushed in, was found by his son, Theodore, yesterday afternoon lying face downwards in one corner of the field, while all about were evidences that a fierce struggle had taken place. The medical examiner expressed the opinion that the animal after killing the farmer, had trampled on the body and tossed it about. Mr. Reynolds was 63 years of age.

Boy Drowned In Lake.

Toronto, Jan. 4.—Allan Gardener, nine years of age, East Toronto, was drowned in the lake at the foot of Birch avenue Saturday afternoon.

The little fellow had been playing with his cousin on the ice crust on the beach. He fell in and the other children rushed off to give the alarm. The bell in the fire hall on Spruce avenue was rung and the firemen went to the scene with pike poles, but were unable to recover the body.

Elevator Burned.

Vancouver, Jan. 4.—In a raging gale last evening the fire department waged a winning fight against a fire which did $200,000 damage and threatened several saw mills and other industries located in the immediate neighborhood. The wheat elevator of the Vancouver Milling Co. was totally destroyed. The blaze was confined to the main elevator, the packing plant a few feet away being saved.

Drowned at Vancouver.

Vancouver, Jan. 4.—Three skaters broke through the ice of Trout Lake in the east end of the city early on Saturday afternoon. All were rescued except Edward Hughes, aged 24 years, of New Westminster. He went in at a point only six feet from shore. His body was not recovered for an hour.

He was the son of James Hughes, caretaker at the Canadian General Electric, who resides at 306 Berkeley street, Toronto.

Burned by Grease.

Hamilton, Jan. 4.—Wm. Collins, a young Englishman, employed in the kitchen of the Waldorf, was severely burned Saturday. He let a pan of grease he was carrying come into contact with a gas jet. He pluckily carried the burning grease outside, but was badly burned in doing so, and had to be taken to the hospital. The firemen were called, but there was no need of their services.

C. P. R. SECTIONMAN SLAYS HIS WIFE WITH A POKER

BAD MAN HAS BEEN CAUGHT

Maurice Ryan Faces Serious Charges at North Bay.

North Bay, Jan. 4.—Maurice Ryan, a crook, who made his headquarters at North Bay for some time, but disappeared two months ago, was captured yesterday at Haileybury. He was recognized from descriptive circulars sent out some time ago by Detective Greer.

The prisoner was brought to North Bay yesterday to stand trial on a charge of robbing a young man from Nova Scotia. Ryan is accused of decoying the victim about one mile from town in a buggy and throwing him from the vehicle after beating him to unconsciousness and robbing him of a large sum of money.

Ryan took refuge in the Cobalt district, and has managed to elude the police since. He is looked upon as a dangerous character, and will likely have to face other serious charges. He is a brother of Joseph Ryan, whose body was found near North Bay recently with strong evidence of murder and robbery having been committed. This case is being investigated by the provincial detective department and startling developments are expected shortly.

HARRIMAN IS BOSS OF 'FRISCO

Philadelphia, Jan. 4.—At a luncheon of the City Club yesterday Francis J. Heney of San Francisco, who prosecuted the "graft" cases in that city, declared that E. H. Harriman of New York, through his control of the Southern Pacific Railway, was responsible for the "graft" and corruption that has been found in the Golden Gate City.

With Abe Ruef and Harriman was linked the head of the United Railways Corporation of San Francisco, by Mr. Heney, "but the real boss," he said, "sits in New York and has as one of his chief agents in California W. F. Herrin, general consul of the Southern Pacific Railroad."

WILL BE GIVEN AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE

'The Private Secretary" Will Not be Presented at Conservatory Music Hall as Formerly Announced

A short time ago it was announced that "The Private Secretary," would be presented at Conservatory Music Hall. Owing to the fact, however, that it was thought the limited accommodation of the Conservatory Hall would not be sufficient to allow the large audience that will probably want to see the play an opportunity of doing so, the Grand Opera House has been secured for its production.

The date will be announced later.

The play will be given under the auspices of the 57th Regimental Band.

Walter Blythe Brutally Beats Wife.

Declares That He Wanted to be Master of His Own Home---Had Been Cautioned Before.

Toronto, Jan. 4.—Agincourt, a little village situated about 12 miles from Toronto, was the scene yesterday evening of a particularly brutal murder, the perpetrator being Walter Blythe, a section hand on the C.P.R., and the victim his wife.

Blythe, who had been drinking heavily for some time, had previously threatened his wife's life, and only a month ago County Constable William Hobbs, who yesterday affected his arrest, had to caution him.

The victim, who was only 35 years of age, presents a terrible appearance. Her body is a mass of bruises and her head is badly cut. The implement used was a common poker.

The motive is apparently a purely domestic one. Blythe, it appears, has for a long time labored under the delusion that the deceased had tried to "boss" him, and he is quoted as saying that he had fully made up his mind to be "master of his own house."

Enquiries show, however, that the prisoner is of a very morose temperament, even when out of drink, and had constantly ill-treated his wife.

The dead woman leaves behind her two children—a boy and girl—whose ages are, respectively, 6 and 2 years.

Immediately after the crime had been committed Blythe went across to a friend named Malcolm Walker, and stated that he thought he had killed his wife. He afterwards quietly submitted to arrest, being brought to the Toronto jail at an early hour this morning by Police Constable Hobbs.

The prisoner, who is a sullen-looking man of about 40 years, was not handcuffed, and appeared to be quite on friendly terms with his captor. He seemed to be in a very dazed condition. He showed signs of a recent debauch, and from what he said he had partaken very heavily of cider yesterday. Questioned as to the crime, he refused to say more than that he wanted to be master of his home.

From the appearance of the house in which the crime was committed, it would appear that the death struggle took place about six o'clock. The body was discovered lying upon a bed, and the room was upset in such a manner as to indicate that the victime had offered desperate resistance.

Blythe was last night taken before the local magistrate, John Milten, and he was remanded until Jan. 11, on the charge of the wilful murder of his wife.

Dr. Coutts, coroner, was summoned and made an investigation of the room where the woman's body lay. He will conduct the inquest to-day.

Blythe has always been considered an inoffensive neighbor and a steady workman.

JAPANESE SAILORS WERE MURDERED

Shipwrecked Japs Killed and Robbed by Chinese Peasants.

Tokio, Jan. 4.—News was brought by the steamer Monteagle, which arrived yesterday from the Orient, that some survivors of the lost Japanese steamers Ginsei Maru and Nagato Maru, wrecked near Chefoo, reached the shore, but were murdered by the Chinese inhabitants of the coast villages, who also mutilated corpses.

The dead list of the two disasters total 750, and as fast as the bodies were washed ashore they were not only stripped of their clothing and robbed of money and valuables found on them, but even teeth were pulled out to get the gold fillings, and fingers were cut off for the sake of the rings.

Among those lost were many laborers returning from Manchuria with their season's savings, and a number of merchants who had been to Antung to purchase wild silk cocoons, produced north of the Yalu and carried yearly to Chefoo to be reeled and spun. One Chinese seaman alone survived, he hiding himself away from the murderous coast people.

FOUR OF THEM ARE NOW CAUGHT

Another Toronto Jail-Breaker is in Toils With Rest.

Toronto, Jan. 4.—It has developed that another of the septette has been captured, namely, Wm. D. Jones, alias Williams, who was at the time of the "delivery" being retained along with Budd Copeland for breaking jail in Newcastle, Pa.

With the capture of Rose and Jones, this makes four of the septette who broke jail last July who have been heard of.

Only three, however, are in custody, Churchill, who was caught in Texas, having been let go. The others still at large are Ed. Lee, Clark and Copeland.

Runaway on Saturday

A runaway accident occurred on Saturday morning, a horse belonging to a local livery making a mad gallop from the C.P.R. station. The bit becoming broken is held as the reason for the animal running away. It ran right to its stable. No damage was done.

MANUFACTURE OF PEAT

Of all the various systems of converting peat into a material having valuable steam raising and heat generating powers, the Swedish system known as the Ekenberg process, seems to give the greatest promise of satisfactory results.

The new process is described as wet carbonization as distinct from dry distillation. The latter has a destructive effect upon the peat, destroying its true character. The valuable oils are completely eliminated from the stable matter with the elimination of the water, consequently the fuel obtained has its heat value depreciated. With the Ekenberg system the oily matters are preserved in the substance, so that when briquetted a dense hard black fuel not unlike coal, both in appearance, weight and texture is produced.

In the process the peat, as it is torn from the bog by means of mechanical excavators, is thrown into a pulping machine where it is disintegrated and water driven off. It is then forced in a continuous steady steam through a special type of oven by means of a centrifugal pump. In this retort the peat is subjected to a temperature of about 350 deg. F, and it becomes gradually carbonized.

Carbonizing completed, the pulp is passed to a press where the water is pressed out, and at this point the 87 1-2 per cent of moisture which was present in the pulp upon entry to the retort has been reduced to between 8 and 14 per cent. This remaining proportion is removed by submitting the carbonized peat to a final drying by means of the waste heat from the carbonizing oven.

The finished peat briquettes have a black glossy appearance and are dense. When burned they retain their form until consumed, give a long, clear flame of intense heat without smoke, and leave but a minimum ash. From various practical tests that have been made with railroad locomotives and for other purposes it is reported that this peat coal compares favorably with coal. Six pounds of peat coal are equivalent to about five pounds of coal. Bulk for bulk, the briquettes represent approximately the same heating value as coal as a ton of coal occupies from 24 to 45 cubic feet of space, and a ton of peat coal but 30 cubic feet. The cost of production by the Swedish system is at present a little over $2 per ton, but this figure may be reduced when the capacity of the plant is made larger.—Exchange.

PROTESTANTISM IN IRELAND

"We wish that the declaration of Roman Catholic policy for Ireland, as set out in a recent issue of "Catholic Progress," a paper published by the London Jesuits could be put into the hands of every Protestant sympathiser with Home Rule.

The following is the statement which this journal is not ashamed to publish:

The woes of Ireland are all due to one simple cause—the existence of Protestantism in Ireland. The remedy could only be found in the removal of that which caused the evil, which still continues. Why were the Irish not content. Because being Irish and Catholic, they are governed by a public opinion which is English and Protestant. Unless Ireland is governed as a Catholic nation, and free scope given to the development of the Catholic church in Ireland by appropriating to the Catholic religion the funds given to religion a recurrence of such events as are now taking place cannot be prevented. Would that every Protestant meeting house were swept from the land, then would Ireland recover herself, and outrages would be unknown, for there would be no unbelievers with her champions."

If this would not open the eyes of English Protestants generally, they must be given over to strong delusion."—The Sentinel.

Those who objected not without reason to the violence of Rev. A. J. Bruce's language here last summer might also not reasonably condemn this.

EDITORIAL NOTES

At a recent public dinner there were no alcoholic drinks. It was a plot on the part of dissatisfied waiters. It leaked out.

Concrete houses have made an advance on the Edison idea. The walls are now built flat on the ground and then hoisted up.

A bon mot of a monochist is going the rounds of the towns of western Canada. On hearing of a set of honour at a shanty ball a cowboy remarked that "the social thrill in a set of honour is equal to one pint of hot whiskey taken externally or an introduction to a governor's flunkey."

Englishman—"Pardon me, sir, but where do you come from?" Paddy—"From County Cork." Englishman—"Then that accounts for your brogue." Paddy—"May I ax where you come from?" Englishman (proudly)—"From Worcester."— Paddy—"Then that accounts for your sauce."

"It might be that the participation of the laity in the work of the Church would strengthen the effectiveness of the hierarchy as a political force, but we think it is extremely doubtful. The probability is that the faithful would more and more insist that the Church attend to spiritual matters rather than to political affairs. They would also want to know the particular use to which the tithes they now rather reluctantly pay are put. We would be pleased if matters worked out that way, for we desire nothing but good for the Church in its real mission to humanity. We would greatly prefer that the millions of neglected Roman Catholics in America were properly ministered than that they should become Godless and infidel. It is the Papacy that we as Orangemen are under obligation to oppose, and we should look with sympathy on the occasional indication that the laity is disposed to assert itself."—The Sentinel.

"And now they say that Joan of Arc appeared to Pius X. and encouraged him to put aside fear and pursue his present policy towards her poor country. One would not have suspected that the heroic Pontiff needed any preternatural visitation to confirm him in his manner of dealing with a godless government. There was no other course to pursue, there was never any thought of an alternative course since the breach occurred; there is no other possible alternative course to-day. So the Holy Father may be depended upon to safeguard the rights and consciences of Catholic Frenchmen in the way he has been doing lately. And the poor but self-respecting Church of France will quickly overcome her enemies there and vindicate the wisdom of the course counselled from on High by Him whose will is so courageously interpreted by His Vicegerent on earth. The Blessed John might then have few misgivings upon this point.—The Catholic Register.

OF INTEREST

The Times, of Bombay, India, of date September 28th, contains an interesting account of the inauguration of the great Jhelum Power works at Baramula (Kashmir). These works were constructed on the Jhelum, under the supervision of Major Lotbiniere, R.E., a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, Canada, in 1883.

The guests to the number of ninety were entertained at lunch by the Maharaja, and then proceeded to the electrical operating station, where the ceremonies took place. His highness the Maharajah, in a fine speech said that Kashmir might expect a brilliant and prosperous future, with such an electrical works. Regarding Major de Lotbiniere the Maharajah said;

"Major Joly de Lotbiniere, the chief engineer, whose child this scheme is deserves the highest gratitude of the Durbar for seeing a scheme like this brought into actual existence and working order. He has wielded the heavy responsibility of the department in a very creditable manner and has shown what ability and extraordinary power of scientific application he possesses."

Sir Francis Younghusband made this reference to the Canadian engineer;

"It is fitting also to acknowledge the keen intelligent and business-like interest which Sir Amar Singh has taken in the whole scheme and the very efficient and constant support which the Foreign Minister, Diwan Amar Nath, has afforded. Mr. Field, the state engineer, has done what all state engineers would not have had the sense to do. He has left the originator or organizer of the scheme to work it out in his own way and has loyally and generously supported him wherever his support would be a help. And to this originator and organizer —to Major de Lotbiniere—must be given the chief credit to-day. It is due to his energy, his organizing capacity, and knack of selecting good men to work under him, his powers of persuasion, his driving power, his cheery confidence and his resource that this work is completed and completed up-to-date, almost exactly to the date—he named to me when I arrived here two and one-half years ago. I hope Canada will be as proud of him as he is of Canada.

"But Major de Lotbiniere would be the first to acknowledge and has indeed time and again acknowledged to me that he could never have got the work through up-to-date if he had not had first-rate men to work under him. Captain Hunter had already served under him in Mysore, and here, as there, he could be trusted for absolutely thorough and reliable work on that most important part of the whole undertaking—the flume line in which if there was a single flaw the whole flow of electric power and all that was dependent on it, would come to a standstill."

The electrical establishment consists of the following officers; Major A. J. de Lotbiniere, C.I.E., R.E., the chief engineer, who initiated and carried out the whole work; Captain Hunter, in charge of the engineering (civil department), assisted by two officers; A. C. Jewett, electrical engineer, and a large staff of assistants; T. Avery, hydraulic power engineer; L. A. Desy, superintendent of the dredging fleet, assisted by a staff of Canadians.

The Spectator of December 12 devotes over three columns to the problem which we discussed last week under the title, "Tarnishing our Name." It dealt with the case of an Acting District Commissioner in British East Africa, who had used his official position and power to procure as his mistresses two native girls. The Spectator heads its article "A Canker in Imperial Administration."

"We do not wish," says the Spectator, "to take up an extreme or puritanical view in regard to the question of sexual morality involved, but we do say—and we feel sure that here we shall be supported by every sound Imperial administrator, no matter what his views on the moral problem—that it would mean nothing short of ruin to the Empire if we were once to allow the men charged with the duties of administration can be permitted to exercise the tremendous powers placed in their hands to gratify their animal passions. If we fail to punish with the utmost severity men who have used their official position for purposes such as the official in question is stated to have used his, then the ruin of the Empire must be at hand. Such a prostitution of the trusteeship which is involved in civil administration over uncivilized peoples cannot be tolerated without depraving our whole system of Imperial administration.

"The man who uses the forces of the Empire in order to gratify his lust one day may use them for the purposes of illicit gain the next, or, if he does not do so himself, may set an example in misdoing and want of self-control, which will be followed, not only in one, but in a dozen directions. For this reason the Government of India, whose experience is unrivalled in such matters, though it very properly makes no attempt to exercise inquisitorial functions over the private morals of its officials, will not tolerate for an instant anything which approaches the misuse of official position for ignoble private ends. If Lord Crewe and Colonel Seely want to know the proper way in which to deal with a case such as that which has just come before them, they have only got to ask for precedents at the Indian Office.

"Inquiries which we have been able to make since the publication of Mr. Routledge's letter induce us to believe, as we have said above, that the case he refers to is not exceptional and that in British East Africa the condition of the administration, especially as regards its personnel, is in a high degree unsatisfactory. A canker is at work there which, if not eradicated by drastic treatment, may do incalculable harm. In saying this we must be careful to avoid the injustice of a general indictment."

The Spectator then discusses what shall be done, and declares that we must "exact responsibility from those on whom responsibility ought to rest. We shall never get sound administration unless we make the Governor feel that if his province becomes demoralized as a whole the responsibility will be his."

"If we look a little closer," continues the Spectator, "we shall find, to put the matter crudely, nay, brutally, that a better class of official is required for the principal and subordinate posts. We have not got in British East Africa the right type of man. We believe that he is to be obtained here, as elsewhere, in the first place, by paying him properly. We hold it to be little short of a crime against the Empire to give men the tremendous powers possessed by the district officers in British East Africa—the power of life and death, among others,—to subject them to the temptations to which they are subjected, and then to pay them the salaries which are now given. We understand that in many cases the pay of the men in question is as low as $100 a year."—Public Opinion.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Rose on Way Back.

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 4.—Inspector Duncan and Detective Tipton, in charge of Alex. Rose, the Toronto jail-breaker, left here yesterday for Toronto. Rose consented to go back, but Duncan was armed with full extradition papers in case they were needed. Any possible charges here against Rose of burglary have been dropped. Rose seems in good spirits. He got a letter in jail Saturday from his sister that seemed to depress him.

Shot Woman and Self.

New York, Jan. 4.—It was Arthur Korger, a boy of 20, that shot and killed Mrs. Elizabeth Orlop Wood, and then killed himself in a lonely section of Yonkers Friday night. Mrs. Wood, an attractive young woman of 29, was the childhood sweetheart of Korger, but in a moment of pique, it is stated, she eloped with and married Wood, from whom she had since separated. Both were of good families.

Woman Hugger Jailed.

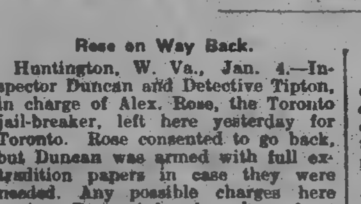
Port Huron, Jan. 4.—Charles Forion, Sarnia's "Jack the Hugger," was convicted of annoying Port Huron women and sentenced to pay a fine of $57 and serve three months in jail. His wife, who was arrested at St. Clair, where she had eloped with Louis Weitzel, after her husband was arrested, has been deported to Sarnia.

Drowned at Tilbury.

Tilbury, Jan. 4.—Yesterday morning Peter Labadie was drowned in Baptist Creek, north of the Grand Trunk Railway bridge. He was skating and broke through the thin ice. His body was recovered in about an hour after the accident. Deceased was about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and seven children.

Deanship For New Yorker

Kingston, Jan. 4.—Rev. Dr. Crockett of New York was the preacher at the Cathedral of St. George's yesterday. He is the guest of Bishop Mills. It is just possible he may be offered the rectorship and deanship of Ontario Diocese in succession to Bishop Farthing.



CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

ACHE is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

Suicide at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—Kal Hibner, a draughtsman in the city engineer's department, committed suicide Saturday afternoon by shooting himself through the head with a 38-calibre revolver.

Two shots were discharged from the weapon, but only one struck him. He left the city around one o'clock, going to the vicinity of the golf links, getting off the car there and ending his life, though why is not known yet. He was probably 35 to 40 years old. He leaves a wife and two children, and had been in the city's service several years. It is alleged that he had been drinking and he had not been at work for several days.

U. S. Fleet at Suez.

Suez, Jan. 4.—The United States Atlantic battleship fleet is two days ahead of its schedule, and yesterday completed the next to the longest run of its world-girdling cruise, arriving at 8.15 yesterday morning from Colombo, a distance of 3,440 knots. The fleet sailed from Colombo Dec. 20. The loss of a seaman from the battleship Illinois, who fell overboard and was drowned, as previously reported, was the only accident to mar the voyage from Colombo.

Dies to Save Others.

Meriden, Conn., Jan. 4—Risking his life to save those of Mrs. Philip Gauthier and her child who were on the tracks, Michael Donlon ran in front of the New York-Boston express over the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad at the station here on Saturday and resqued both, being himself fatally hurt. Mrs. Gauthier and her child escaped practically unhurt. Donlon is a porter at the station.

Two Deaths In One Family.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—Their two children dying within a few hours of each other on New Year's Day, enshrouded the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Williamson, 248 Frank street, in gloom. One child, William R., aged three years, died from the effects of diphtheria, while his seven-year-old sister, Denysa E.'s death occurred a few hours later, resulting from typhoid fever.

Reserve For Veterans.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—A deputation of the Imperial South African Veterans' Association was received by Hon. Frank Oliver on Saturday. He promised to lay their proposals before the Cabinet.

The proposition is to form a military reserve of upwards of 5,000 soldiers of imperial veterans for a period of ten years free of cost to the Government.

Just Peat Burning.

Morgentown, W. Va., Jan. 4.—Dr. I. C. White, state geologist, when asked yesterday about reported volcanic activity in Pocahontas County merely smiled at the reports. "It is probably nothing but a peaty soil on fire," he said.

Ask For Arbitration.

Ottawa, Jan. 4.—There is a dispute between the board of railway telegraphers and the Michigan Central Railway and the telegraphers has applied to the Labor Department for arbitration.

Inertia.

"Well," said Mr. Staylate for the fourth time, "I must be going."

"What a queer delusion!" replied Miss Patience Gonne. "You're really quite stationary."—Philadelphia Press

SOME STRONG MEN OF ROYAL BLOOD

Feats of Strength Performed by Crowned Heads

Curiously enough, a large percentage of the notably strong men of history have been of royal blood. One of the earliest of these royal athletes was Maximianus, called "Maximianus Hercules," because of his great power. He was the son of a peasant and had an enormous physique. He became a common soldier, and was finally made Emperor by acclaim of his fellow soldiers during a stormy period of Russian history.

Maximianus' strength was prodigious. It was said that on foot he could run down a fox, that he could hit three men with one hand, and that by gripping the wheel of a chariot with one finger he could resist the pull of three horses. Like most men of great physical strength, Maximianus was a heavy eater. History records that his daily allowance was forty pounds of meat and eighteen bottles of wine.

CARRIED HORSES AND RIDER.

Augustus the Strong, of Saxony, was another of these royal Sampsons. He would often seize two of his courtiers, grasping one with his right hand and another with his left, holding them up at arm's length and playfully twirling them about.

On one occasion the horse ridden by one of his attendants became balky and refused to budge. After some minutes of coaxing, the King dismounted, placed his Herculean shoulders under the horse's chest, grasping it by the four legs, and calmly walked away with both horse and rider. This remarkable performance was witnessed by a number of courtiers and attendants.

GAVE THE UPSTART A LESSON.

King Richard of England (Coeur de Lion) had tremendous strength. During his captivity in Germany he gave a terrible demonstration of his physical powers. The son of one of the wardens was a youth locally renowned for his muscular strength, and in his assurance invited the royal captive to an exchange of buffets. The young man, by a cast of the dice, won the right to the first stroke, and struck the king a staggering blow on the side of the head. It was then the king's turn, and he landed a blow just below his opponent's ear so heavy that the man was instantly killed.

This incident is used in Sir Walter Scott's famous historical novel, "Ivanhoe," where King Richard, the "Black Knight," and the jolly outlaw Friar Tuck have an exchange of buffets; without, however, any fatal results.

DOM PEDRO'S LITTLE JOKE.

Dom Pedro I., Emperor of Brazil, is also on the list of royal strong men. On the occasion of a carnival he arranged matters so that he was standing on the bow of the royal barge between two of his stateliest courtiers.

Suddenly, in the midst of the festivities, the king reached out, grasped a courtier with each hand, and, after holding them for a few moments squirming in the air and begging to be released, he relaxed his grip and allowed them to drop plump into the water, amid the frantic applause of the huge crowd that had assembled to view their monarch. The king joined heartily in the general hilarity; but what the drenched courtiers thought about this exquisite joke is not recorded.

A DISCOMFITED BLACKSMITH.

Peter the Great of Russia, like Charlemagne, possessed great physical as well as mental power. His years of work as blacksmith and ship carpenter had so developed a naturally powerful physique that he was believed to be the strongest man in Russia.

The story is told that a certain blacksmith in a little country town had boasted that he was the only blacksmith in the world who could lift his own anvil.

The emperor, hearing of the blacksmith's boast, disguised himself as a workman, and, with a single companion, set out for the blacksmith village. On learning of their errand, the blacksmith, without a word, laid aside his tools, and, grasping the anvil with his brawny hands, lifted it with great effort about a foot from the floor.

Then Peter took hold of the anvil, raised it a foot, two feet, three, higher and higher, till he finally swung it to his shoulder and calmly walked off with it.

A HORSESHOE BREAKER.

Charlemagne was said to be the most powerful man, physically, of his time. One of his favorite feats of strength was to break the heaviest horseshoe by gripping it with one hand.

ALEXANDER III'S STRENGTH.

A worthy successor of Peter the Great was the late Czar Alexander III., who was one of the strongest men in the world. He was often called "The Russian Samson." The Czar's regular visiting card was a Russian coin somewhat larger than our silver quarter, which he would bend almost double with his powerful fingers.

Alexander was also fond of breaking horseshoes, and it is said had never found one he could not break in two. He could take two fresh packs of cards, and, by gripping the ends with his hands tear them straight down through the middle.

It is said that on one occasion a woman companion expressed a wish for a bouquet holder in which to place a bunch of roses. The Czar took a pewter tankard from the table nearby and with a few movements of his powerful hands fashioned it into a rough but picturesque and quite efficient bouquet holder.

So many nominees for Deseronto Council have withdrawn that nomination will be held again on Jan. 8th.

WEDDING BELLS

SHARPE—HARRISON.

Keene, Jan. 4.—The home of Dr. and Mrs. Harrison, Keene, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, Dec. 30th, when their only daughter, Mabel, was married to Mr. Torrance B. Sharpe, of the Bank of Ottawa, Winnipeg. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. D. Harrison, under a floral arch. The bride looked lovely in her Lansdowne gown of Liberty satin with trimmings of duchess lace and seed pearls; her veil was arranged over a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of orange blossoms and lillies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Willena Miller, of Calgary, who wore a beautiful gown of pink figured silk voile and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Little Aileen Steele, cousin of the bride, made a very sweet little flower girl dressed in white, and carried a basket of sweet peas. Mr Phillip Boyd, of Toronto, attended the groom. Miss Campbell, of Peterborough, played Lohengrin's Wedding March as the bridal party entered the room. After receiving the congratulations of their friends an elaborate wedding breakfast was served in the dining-room, which was decorated in the Christmas colors, to twenty-three guests. The usual toast were proposed and responded to. The bride's going-away gown was of taupe broadcloth with velvet and braiding, with hat to match. They left on the afternoo train for Montreal and other points, and will spend two weeks in the east before leaving for their home in Winnipeg.

Edwin Pakenham 28 Years a Resident of Peterborough, Passes Away

Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, one of the oldest citizens passed away in the person of Edwin Pakenham. The late Mr. Pakenham, who was a millwright by trade, and employed at the Quaker Oats Company, was 70 years of age. He was taken seriously ill on Tuesday and worked right up to that time. Deceased was of a somewhat retiring disposition and was not identified with any societies or fraternal orders.

Surviving are a wife and ten children, six sons and four daughters. The sons are Edward, Norwood; James, Peterborough; William, Toronto; Frank and Gilbert, Peterborough. The daughters are Mrs. John Graydon, Streetsville; Mrs. E. Hall, Queenston, and Miss Maude and Cora at home.

The late Mr. Pakenham was a member of St. Luke's church, and Rev. Dr Langfeldt will conduct the burial services. The funeral will be held from the family residence, Manning avenue, at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and interment will take place in the Litt eLake cemetery.

OBITUARY

MRS. W. FLAVELLE.

The Lindsay Free Press says: Word was received in town to-day of the death at Halifax, N.S., of Mrs. W. Flavelle, formerly of town, and a daughter of Mrs. Charles Bartlett, Lindsay street. The late Mrs. Flavelle was until a few months ago a resident of Lindsay, when she left to join her husband in Halifax. Her husband was formerly employed in Flavelle's mill here, but latterly has been working at his business of miller in Halifax.

The body will be brought to Lindsay for interment, and the funeral will take place on Monday from the residence of the deceased's mother, Mrs. C. Bartlett, Lindsay street, south.

Their many friends in town will extend sympathy to the bereaved husband and family in their bereavement.

MRS. RUTH FOX.

The death occurred yesterday at noon of Ruth Fox, relict of the late Charles Fox, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. James Rutherford, 222 Carlisle Ave. The deceased had been ill for some time. She was seventy-eight years of age and had been a resident of Peterborough for many years.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon, at two o'clock, from 222 Carlisle Avenue, to the Little Lake cemetery.

DEATH OF INFANT.

Former pastor of Mark street Methodist church, Rev, J. G. Lewis and Mrs. Lewis, have been bereaved by the death of their youngest child on Sunday morning.

They will accompany the body to Peterborough, arriving this evening on the Belleville train, and on Tuesday at 2.30 the burial will take place in Little Lake cemetery, from the home of Mrs. A. R. Campbell, mother of Mrs. Lewis, Stewart street.

PROMPT PAYMENT OF ALL DEBTS.

Canon Davidson's Deliverance on This Subject at St. John's Last Night

Last night at St John's church, Rev. Canon Davidson spoke, as usual, on the first Sunday of the New Year, of the beauty of attending promptly to all financial obligations in connection with the New Year. The speaker referred to the interdependence of men in the above particular.

The doing of this duty was most important, it was stated. It should be done for itself and also had the effect of enabling others to meet their obligations.

HAD FACE BADLY CUT AND BRUISED

Slipped on Sidewalk and Struck Face Against Telegraph Post

Mrs. John R. Scott, Maria street, Ashburnham, was the victim of a painful accident a few evenings ago while walking along Mark street. Owing to the extremely icy condition of the sidewalk, she slipped and fell against a telegraph post, badly cutting and bruising her face.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

On New Year's morning about 40 boys accepted the invitation to the Y.M.C.A. to all the boys of the city, to use the gymnasium privileges. The boys spent the morning in the gym, playing basketball and other games. After a swim the boys were served with coffee and cake.

This week all the gymnasium and Bible classes will be in full swing again after the Christmas holidays. The Business Boys' Bible class will be held on Tuesday night at 7 p.m. as usual, and the Collegiate and junior school boys' classes will be held on Saturday morning.

The skating rink is in fine shape, now, and all boys who wish to use the rink can secure tickets from Mr. Colling at Mr. Evans'.

Mrs. Margaret Wickham, of Hamilton, widow of James Wickham, is dead.

RATTRAY WAS DISCHARGED

Appeared Before Magistrate Dumble for Judgment This Morning.

Wm. Rattray, charged with stealing $686.12 from the City Hotel during last September, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning for judgment and was discharged.

"I do not think that anyone who heard the evidence in your case," said His Worship, "but would feel that you were guilty. But," he added, "there is not the legal evidence that a jury or a judge find a man guilty on." His Worship said that there was a doubt, and he would give the prisoner the benefit of it. He expressed a hope that young man would not continue in his present course, but that he would strive to live by honest means.

"How am I going to get back to Toronto?" Rattray asked. "You brought me down here, and I have no money."

The court informed him that he could get back to Toronto the best way he could. They had nothing to do with that.

PROCEEDS OF ENTERTAINMENT TO BE DEVOTED TO CHARITY

In view of the recent earthquake in Italy more than ordinary interest is lent to the lecture to be given by Rev. Dr. O'Brien at the 9th anniversary concert of the T.A.S. in the society's rooms next Friday evening at eight o'clock. The reverend speaker will give an address on Italy, illustrated by handsome and descriptive views and besides the places of interest will deal with that part of the country so recently afflicted with the awful calamity that transformed miles of beautiful cities, towns and villages into a scene of devastation and ruin and destroyed thousands of lives. Rev. Dr. O'Brien has visited that part of Italy where the earthquake wrought destruction, and is in position to speak authoratively and from personal observation. A programme of merit will also be given in addition to the address.

The proceeds of the evening will be devoted to charity, and a generous patronage is looked for.

Tickets may be had at Lynch's drug store, Lane & Eano's, Gainey Bros., Merrill & Meredith's, Wm. Collins', Ashburnham; T.A.S. rooms, J. J. Lynch's store, Park street, and from members of the committee.

TWO MEMBERS OF SLEIGH-RIDING PARTY WERE INJURED

While sleigh riding down the Hunter street east hill on Saturday evening, a party of young people were thrown from their bob-sleigh and two persons were somewhat badly injured. Mr. Erwin Chapman of Toronto had his foot sprained and his lip cut. Miss Bertha Record received a bad shaking up and will be confined to her home for a few days. The front sleigh of the outfit was smashed into kindling wood.

QUIETEST ELECTION DAY THAT HAS BEEN FOR YEARS

That this is the quietest municipal election day for some years in Peterborough is the general opinion expressed on the streets today. This is likely owing to the fact that there is no mayoralty contest, and the great interest excited in it last year made things lively on election day.

However, the ratepayers are turning out to cast their votes for aldermen and members of the school board and to vote for or against the bylaws. At noon candidates and their assistants were pretty busy getting the voters to the polls.

700 MEMBERS OF ST. PETER'S T. A. S. ATTEND COMMUNION

Over seven hundred members of St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, attended Holy Communion in a body at the cathedral yesterday morning at eight o'clock. They assembled at St Peter's school and marched to the church. After the administration of the sacrament His Lordship Bishop O'Connor addressed them. At the close of the service they returned to the hall where they renewed their pledges

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. F. G. COX

The Toronto Mail and Empire says, Word was received in Toronto yesterday that Mrs Fred G Cox, of Glen Road, Rosedale, died suddenly of heart failure in Chicago on Saturday morning.

Mrs Cox, who was the widow of the late Mr Fred Cox, and a daughter-in-law of Senator Cox, was on a visit to her only brother Mr Harry Swan. Her relatives and friends in this city had no intimation of any illness, and the news of her death came as a painful surprise.

The body will be brought to Toronto for interment, the funeral taking place probably on Tuesday next, to Mount Pleasant from the home of her brother in law, Mr E W Cox, Isabella street.

The deceased, in addition to relatives here, had also connections in Woodstock, having been a daughter of Dr Swan, of that town, who was killed in the St George disaster.

All dredging at Fort William and Port Arthur hereafter will be 25 feet deep.

Ex-Mayor Thomas Elliott has retired from the Mayoralty contest in Brantford.

He was picked up in a semi-conscious condition.

OPERA COMPANY SAYS FAREWELL

Imperial Opera Company Starts on Tour of Ontario

Toronto, Jan. 4—The Imperial Opera Company, after filling the longest continuous engagement ever played by a stock organisation in Toronto, said farewell on Saturday night to the patrons of the Royal Alexandra. Both in the afternoon and evening the theatre was filled to capacity and the audiences manifested in no uncertain way the warm regard in which the members of the company were held. The evening performance was a benefit to Mr Harry Girard, who had made himself immensely popular during his stay in Toronto. In addition to being part owner of the organisation and singing the baritone role in a majority of the productions Mr Girard has been called upon at times to act either as stage director or musical director. In each capacity he has shown himself thoroughly at home. On Saturday night, in the course of the performance of "Jack and the Beanstalk," Mr Girard appeared on the stage and after thanking the theatregoers of Toronto for their uniform friendliness toward his company and himself, he sang two numbers in excellent voice and told some good stories. Miss Agnes Cain-Brown the prima donna who is Mrs. Girard in private life gave a charming rendering of the dainty "Jewel of Asia" song from "The Geisha" and Miss Louise Le Baron sang "O Promise Me" the "Robin Hood" number, which shows her beautiful contralto voice at the best. The company left yesterday for Barrie where it will begin its month's tour of the Ontario towns and cities. After a return week at the Royal Alexandra in February, when most of the original members of the company, including Clarence Harvey, Miss Violet Colby and Hallen Mostyn, will appear, the Imperials go to Cleveland for an indefinite engagement

CONCERT FOR CHARITY

The 9th Anniversary Concert of St. Peters T.A.S. will be held in the Society's Rooms on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Illustrated lecture on Rome and Italy by Dr. O'Brien Splendid programme. Proceeds for charitable purposes.

"SAN TOY" TO BE GIVEN HERE

Mr C. Robson, advance representative of the Imperial Opera Company, was in the city on Saturday, making arrangements for the presentation here of "San Toy," by the Imperials next Saturday afternoon and night. This was one of the most attractive offerings given by the company during its remarkably successful season of four and a half months at the Royal Alexandria Theatre Toronto.

The original production of the Shuberts will be given and the opera will be lavishly and artistically staged.

ARRESTED IN PITTSBURG

ed confession he says:

"I hereby voluntarily state that on the night of November 24th, at 10 o'clock, I entered the store of Jacob Knoedler, at Willock station, in Baldwin township, and when surprised by Mr. Knoedler shot three times, but do not know how many times I hit him. This statement is made voluntarily by the signer, Silas H. Pearson."

In a lonely cottage in the county near Carrick, Pearson's booty from apparently many raids, was found by detectives. He left for his home at Peterborough, Ont., shortly after the shooting of the merchant. Chief Waggoner received a tip that he was the burglar wanted only a week ago and had men watching for him since then. He was employed as a carpenter in Kelly's construction camp, building a county road near Willock station. Mr. Knoedler, his victim, was shot in the head, cheek and breast, and is still in the Mercy Hospital, where he may die. He was shot down as he was about to close his store door at Willock. Efforts have been made to identify a dozen suspects with the crime and four men were under arrest for a time. The testimony of Harry Coot a former "pal," who served a term for a robbery they committed in partnership at Altoona two years ago, and admissions made by Pearson's wife, made a strong case against him without other evidence.

SPORTING NEWS

SPORTING PROMOTER SAYS EDMONTON HAS BETTER TEAM

Mr. George Griffiths, one of the promoters of the Whitney Place Athletic Club, Whitney Place, Buffalo, is in the city and is registered at the Snowden House. He gave the sporting department of the Review a call today. Mr Griffiths is an enthusiast in all lines of amateur and professional sport. He takes a special interest in boxing and wrestling and it is for the promotion of these sports that the Whitney Place Athletic Club has been formed with a substantial capatilization.

M. Griffiths is a Canadian, coming from Montreal and has been visiting his parents in that city for the past week. He saw Edmonton and Wanderers play and thinks the Montrealers were lucky to hold the cup. Although Montreal is his home town, Mr Griffiths expresses the opinion that Edmonton has the better team of the two and would in all probability lift the trophy if given another trial.

YANKEE ROGERS READY FOR BUSINESS AGAIN

A letter was received today by the sporting editor from Mr. W H Naylor, manager of Yankee Rogers, and Mr Naylor says that Rogers is feeling allright again after the worst attack of boils of his wrestling career. Yankee's manager declares Rogers was greatly handicapped by boils when Yusiff Mahmout the Turk, defeated him at Sohmer park, Montreal, and says that Yusiff or any other man in the business couldn't get away with the big American grappler if he was in shape to do justice to himself.

Rogers is by no means out of the game, and now that he is in condition again hopes to loom up prominently among the world's best heavyweights in the catch as catch can business.

THINKS RETERBOROUGH WALKERS STAND CHANCE

W A. Hoagland, the champion walker, writes that he would like to see some of the local walkers take part in some of the walks that will take place this year in the States. This winter promises to be an active one in the pedestrian game according to Hoagland and he says that Harrison, Spenceley, Stevens and Gavarin would stand pretty good chances of landing with the six or seven moneys that most of the walkers 60 per cent is divided into.

Hoagland has had a good year between the roller skaters and handicap walking matches and has cleaned up considerable money. If a walk in the spring is held here, he says the elite of American pedestrians will enter and furnish one of the best walking tourneys of the year.

MISS FRITZ SWEPT EVERYTHING AT BOSTON TERRIER SHOW

Fifteen ribbons and five specials is the excellent showing made by the entries of Dr. King of this city, at the Boston Terrier Specialty Show held in Toronto on New Year's day.

"Miss Fritz," one of the finest Boston terrier bitches in the Dominion, captured everything in sight against a large field of aristocratic competitors. She won first in the open and limit bitches 12 and under 17 pounds and also went into winners' or sweepstakes class, getting the highest award for the best bitch in the show. She obtained four special prizes, two cups, one service and the prize for the best bitch shown from Peterborough.

"Jocbet's Tess," another bitch from Dr. King's kennels, secured two seconds in limit and open, 22 and under 28 pounds.

"Othello" the dog entered by the doctor, got two third prizes in the same class for dogs, as "Othello" obtained seconds in the bitches' division.

As a fitting conclusion for his list of triumphs Dr. King was given the handsome silver trophy for the largest entry.

His winnings also show that he maintains a high standard of breed at his kennels here.

DORANDO FORCED TO QUIT AT NINETEEN MILES THIS TIME

Buffalo, January 2.—For a second time Thomas Longboat, the Onondaga Indian, has demonstrated his superiority over Dorando Pietri, the gallant little Italian who came so close to winning the Olympic Marathon, and who subsequently decisively defeated J J. Hayes, the New Yorker, who holds the Olympic title. Longboat effected his demonstration in the same way, but more rapidly and more decisively in manner than when the two famous runners met in New York in Madison Square Garden it was not till five and twenty miles had been run that the dramatic end came. Last night, before a crowd constituting a record for the 74th Regiment Armory, the Indian did his task more quickly. He urged Dorando continually at a pace that was decidedly faster than at their first meeting, and because it was faster it told the sooner. Dorando was dead beaten before doing nineteen miles, and abandoned the contest. He fell downstairs when being conducted to his dressing room and was utterly exhausted by the desperate and long-continued effort to stay with the tireless Onondaga. As in New York, the little Italian—and he is a very little fellow—did the best he could, and died battling but he was in a match he could not win, barring the possibility of an accident to his competitor. Dorando can't beat Longboat, but the same may be said of a million other people, and the Italian will win many races, for he will not meet Longboats elsewhere.

LINDSAY SPORTS ARE PLEASING

Lindsay ice races will not have the Peterborough event of the same kind to clash with to mutual disadvantage as was reported.

Through some mistake or oversight the two clubs picked on the same date for their winter ice races. Lindsay held to the date because they had chosen it and announced it for some days before anything was heard from Peterborough in this line. Lindsay has completed arrangements for the big event and felt secure for success, though regretting the clash by Peterborough.

Now, however, all will be pleased to learn that the sports in Peterborough have decided to cancel the date first chosen.

Lindsay's winter races will be held on January 12th and 13th and all attending circumstances augur for a big success.—Lindsay Free Press.

YUKON CURLER FOR SCOTLAND

Winnipeg, Jan 2.—Chas W McPherson inspector of surveys in the Yukon and the well known curler of Dawson who was selected as the far western representative of the Manitoba Curling Association team for Scotland, has passed through Winnipeg en route to the east.

Mr McPherson was detained unexpectedly several days at Vancouver and owing to the serious illness of a relative at Fort William regretted that he was unable to stop over for even a short time in Winnipeg. He will spend some time at the lake port and will join the balance of the western team at Montreal on Wednesday next.

Mr McPherson was met at the station by Secretary Robertson, D D Waugh and W H Payne, representing the western curlers. He stated he had had a pleasant trip and is looking forward to meeting his fellow countrymen who are to be his companions in Scotland. Mr McPherson expects to return to Dawson before the ice breaks up.

Vice-Pres.—Roland Weir.
Secretary—Denis Kennealy.
Treasurer—G. T. Gall.
Captain—Leo Walsh.
Trainer—Dr. V. H. McWilliams.
Committee—V. McCarthy and Jas. Quinn.

They will play in district No. 1 of the Trent Valley League, and will play on the following dates in Keene rink;—January 5th Hastings; Jan. 20th, Norwood, and February 19th, Warkworth.

THE RING

San Francisco, Jan. 4.—Something more interesting to the followers of the roped arena than the aftermath of the Johnson-Burns fight in far-off Australia has sprung up. Will Stanley Ketchel fight Sam Langford? is the all important question in pugilistic circles. Joe Woodman, who guides the destinies of Langford, comes out with a statement that Langford is willing to fight the erstwhile middleweight champion, Ketchel, on any terms. Here is what the jovial Sam has to say;—"I am ready to box Ketchel and will agree to make 154 pounds at the ringside and Ketchel can come in at catch weights, and if I don't knock him out in ten rounds I don't want a cent." The men who follow the game of fisticuffs are all worked up over the possibility of a fight between the world's premier middleweights and there is a possibility that Ketchel may take up Langford's challenge and if he does what a royal fight will take place.

THE YOUNG LAURIER.

His Oratorial Powers Once Earned Him an Interruption.

In the course of a lecture delivered recently in Montreal before the Bar Association, the Hon. Mr. Justice Lemieux related an interesting incident connected with the early life of one of Canada's most prominent public men of to-day. The lecturer, who, by the way, does not belong to the Lemieux family of which the Postmaster-General is a member, took for his subject the late Mr. Justice Ramsay, who for many years was a judge in the Court of Queen's Bench, the highest court in the province of Quebec. He was not only a seignior of broad culture and of high literary attainments. But he was also noted for his temper, which was very short and equally hot, so much so that well-seasoned lawyers were afraid of him. And to young lawyers he was simply a terror. In fact, he was something of a juridical martinet.

One day many years ago an appeal from the district of Arthabasca came up for hearing before the full Bench of which Judge Ramsay was a member. The advocate for the appellant was young and striking in appearance. His bushy hair almost reached his collar, and his gestures were the very expressions of grace. But still more remarkable was his fluency, and at times his bursts of polished eloquence.

The court listened with close attention, but finally Judge Ramsay's patience gave way. That was not the style of speaking he cared for, especially in a court of appeal. More law, with less eloquence, was to his taste. He stopped the young pleader and warned him to be more brief, and, in fact, he interrupted so frequently and with such heat that the lawyer brought his address hurriedly to a close and sat down.

It is related that a fellow judge, Mr. Justice Monk, father of the present member of the House of Commons for Jacques Cartier, and as kind-hearted and genial a man as ever sat upon the Bench, leaned over and whispered to Judge Ramsay "Why did you stop the young man? It was a pleasure to hear him speak."

That young lawyer was Mr. Wilfrid Laurier of Arthabascaville, now Sir Wilfrid and Prime Minister of Canada.

On the following day the too eloquent young lawyer received at the hands of Judge Ramsay a second surprised, for the court had decided in his client's favor and the decision was rendered by Judge Ramsay who on the preceding day would not hear the pleader out.

It is a long time now since Wilfrid was stopped in the midst of an address.

Pictorial Grain Loading.

A striking representation of the method of loading grain from the Fort William elevators to lake steamers is afforded at the Charing Cross windows of the Canadian Government Emigration Offices in London. Reproduced from a photograph the scene is most realistic, and large crowds gather round the window to see the mechanical workings of the ingenious arrangement. By means of belting which operates behind the picture wheat is to be seen pouring out of the elevators into a modelled steamer lying in the blue waters outside the port. At night-time the buildings in which the elevators are fixed are illuminated, and the scene presented, amidst the usual display of minerals, woods, cereals, and mounted birds, which have for some months been features of the window, is picturesquely attractive. The admiring crowds have been so great that the police on occasions have been compelled to keep the people moving. It may be stated that grain is turned out of the elevators at Fort William at the rate of 50,000 bushels an hour. The four or five elevators have a carrying capacity of from 2 to 7 1-2 million bushels, said an official of the Canadian Government to a representative of The Standard of Empire. The total capacity of the combined elevators is 23 million bushels.

Few Big Ranches Left.

There are probably not more than 30 big "cow outfits" left in the Canadian west, exclusive of British Columbia, where several more exist. By big is here meant ranches stocked with from 6,000 head up. The largest have perhaps 30,000 head of cattle. All were considerably larger before the bad winter of 1906. In addition to the cattle ranches there are several big horse outfits, some of these having as many as 3,000 or 4,000 head of horses.

Some ranches have recently acquired 21-year leases of vast tracts of land declared by the Government agricultural experts to be unfit for farming. There is, therefore, a likelihood of there being some big ranches for many years to come. The cattlemen not already having grazing leases are mostly endeavoring to acquire them.

A Treasure Hunt.

Another expedition is being formed at Victoria, B.C., to seek the treasure of Cocos Island, off Costa Rica, reputed to be valued at $50,000,000. Capt. Fred Hackett, who commanded the Aurora and the Blakeley expeditions, arrived there recently and left for Seattle to inspect a vessel which may be purchased to carry another expedition to the island, where the captain of the runaway bark Mary Dea is reported to have buried the treasures placed on board by the people of Callao when the Peruvian port was being besieged during the war with Chili, and where also a pirate is believed to have buried his ill-gotten gains.

HIS LAST ASSIGNMENT.

By CHARLES E. VAN LOAN.

The sporting editor stood at the window and drummed on the sash with his pencil. Three blocks away, over the roofs of Newspaper row, a column of flame shot into the night, and the clang of hurrying engines rose sharply from the clattering streets below.

"Great Jehoshaphat! That's a big fire, Chester; close too. Who's got it?"

The city editor came to the window, copy in hand, and flattened his nose against the pane.

"She is a roarer, isn't she? I sent young Stanley out on that. I didn't know it was going to be a big thing or I'd have sent some one else. Looks like more than he can handle, I'm afraid."

The sporting editor ceased his tapping on the window and turned to the speaker.

"Say, Ches, what's the matter with the youngster anyway? From the way he shaped up at first I thought he was going to make a top notcher, but Eddy Rice and the News and Tim Barnes of the Reporter skin him alive whenever they're out on the same assignments. I don't understand it. And he was such a big help to me last winter with that football stuff, too; knew all the team like a book; played on one of 'em year before last, if you remember. He's as steady as a clock and as willing as a boy can be, yet every time he gets a chance to do something big he goes up in the air."

"I know that," said the city editor. "This is strictly on the q. t., but the old man sent for me only last night to talk to me about that very thing. He says the boy hasn't shown any natural aptitude for newspaper work and unless he makes good he'll have to be dropped." And the city editor went back to his blue pencil again.

From down the smoky street came the muffled roar of human voices. The sporting editor threw up the window and leaned out.

"Cheering, by George! Hear 'em, Chester? There must be something doing down there; fireman making a grand stand play most likely. I can see your scare head tomorrow, 'Our Brave Fire Laddies.' Hey?"

Ten minutes later one of the office boys dashed in, breathless and excited.

"Say, Mr. Chester, you otter been down th' street. There's three women up on th' top floor of th' building what's afire, an' everybody thinks they're goners, 'cause th' streets is tore up wit' sewers, an' th' firemen can't get in there wit' th' towers. A man gets through th' ropes an' runs across th' street wit' his coat over his head, an' before they could nab him in he goes at th' front door. Th' next we saw of him he was up on th' roof a-lettin' down a piece of rope to th' window where th' women was. Th' rope was only a short one, an' so he hauls 'em up on th' roof where he is, an' then we sees what he is goin' to do. You know th' three story brick what's next door? Well, they's a wire runs from th' top of th' big buildin' down to th' brick on a slant, about so." And here Bobby indicated an angle of about forty-five degrees. "He hitches th' littlest woman on to this wire wit' a piece of rope an' cuts her loose. I didn't watch, because I was scared it wouldn't hold her, but it did, an' she got down all right. Then he sends th' next one down. Nobody said a word. We was just holdin' our breath. While he was tyin' on th' last woman th' whole insides of th' buildin' caves in, an' I thought they was both gone for sure, but when th' smoke clears away there he is way on th' edge of th' wall, wi' fire all around him, an' th' last woman is halfway down. Th' rest of th' rope he was savin' for himself must have went down into th' fire, for he looks around for it just once an' then swings out an' comes down that wire hand over hand like a circus actor. When th' crowd saw that he was a-goin' to make it all right they cut loose, an' I bet you could have heard 'em over in Jersey. They swarms around th' brick buildin' to meet him when he comes down, but somehow he makes a clean getaway, an' there don't nobody know who he is nor nothin'."

And Bobby paused for breath, much abashed to find that every one had drawn near to listen.

The city editor threw up his hands and groaned.

"Now, isn't it just my luck to send Stanley out on a story like that? Why, Billy Kimball would have got three columns out of that, besides a signed interview with this unknown person and maybe a picture of him thrown in. Dexter, you go out and get what you can of this, will you?"

An hour afterward a tall, broad shouldered young fellow came quietly into the room and laid a bunch of copy on the city editor's desk. Chester looked up and nodded a greeting, his practiced fingers already sorting the penciled sheets.

"Looks a little sloppy, don't it?" said he. "What's this—blood?"

The young man dived his hand into his coat pocket and replied hurriedly: "Yes. I'm afraid it does look a little that way, but I cut my hand down there, and I haven't had time yet to have it fixed up."

Chester had reached the bottom sheet, and when he spoke again his voice came like the click of a steel trap.

"How does this happen, Stanley? Didn't you see this man get the woman off the roof?"

"Yes," said the reporter. "I saw as much of that business as any one did, I guess."

"And do you mean to tell me that such a thing as that is only worth three or four lines of copy? Didn't you make any attempt to find out who the man was or get any story out of him?"

Chester was getting angry now. Stanley's voice came clearly across the hush that lay on the room.

"Well, you see, Mr. Chester, it didn't strike me that that business amounted to so very much. Any man would have done the same thing. Don't you think so?"

The city editor was now fairly roused, and his voice rang like a clarion. "Why, good Lord, man, don't you know that the News and the Reporter will everlastingly scoop us on this proposition? Here's a man that takes his life into his bare hands to do a brave thing—to save three women from being burned alive—and because you fall down on the story you try to belittle the whole thing! You ought to be ashamed, sir! Why, tomorrow morning the whole city will be ringing with that man's name, and here we are high and dry and scooped all because it didn't strike you as amounting to much."

The young man was pale, and he mopped at his forehead with his handkerchief, but when he spoke his voice was steady.

"I don't think we'll be scooped this time," said he. "The man slipped away from them all. They haven't any more idea of where he is now than—you have, Mr. Chester."

"How do you know that?" rapped out the city editor. "I suppose you know who he is and all about it, eh?"

"Yes," said the young man very quietly. "I know who he is."

The city editor leaned back in his chair and stared, fairly gasping for breath.

"Well, I'm damned!" said he at length. "And you can stand there and tell me that you know who this man was and yet you made no attempt whatever to get the story?"

Stanley bowed his head without a word.

"Then all I've got to say to you is that you've botched this business in a way that ought to everlastingly disgrace the youngest cub reporter on the street."

Stanley stood a moment, swaying slightly, and then, putting out a hand to steady himself, he spoke:

"I guess you're right, Mr. Chester," said he. "I know as well as you can tell me that I haven't shown any ability in this line of work. You've been very patient with me, and I appreciate it. I don't suppose there will be any need for me to write out a resignation, will there?" And, turning, he walked out of the room.

The sporting editor caught him at the head of the stairs and laid a kindly hand on the boy's shoulder.

"Harry, old man, I'm awfully sorry. I am for a fact. Don't take what Chester said too much to heart. He's away off tonight anyway. But why didn't you tell him who the man was, Harry?"

The younger man put out his hand, but winced at the grip that met it.

"Joe," said he, "I know I'm not cut out for this business, and it's just as well I quit it now as later, only—only I'm sorry I had to fall down so hard. It wasn't because I didn't know it would have made a good story, but I can't give the man's name."

The sporting editor spoke quickly. "Why man, your hand is bleeding! Let's have a look at it!"

Across the palm and the joints of the fingers ran deep parallel cuts, and as the sporting editor bent over them a great light came to him. Their eyes met, and the older man's were full of tears.

He strode back to the editorial rooms.

"Chester!" he called, and the city editor looked up. "We've got the man's name, and, by heavens, it's more than a scoop for us!"

THE BLACK BOTTLE.

A Legend That Still Lives in New York's Bellevue Hospital.

The legend of the somber old pile may pass with its destruction, but the tradition of the "black bottle" will be handed down to curse the new. In the minds of the unenlightened this fiction of the past has become a fact, as firmly believed as the doctrine of a religion. The black bottle is the euthanasia of the useless, the incurable or the troublesome. It is in the custody of some mysterious person, who sits as the judge of life and death. Its contents are quietly dropped in the victim's food or drink, and he passes on to cumber the earth no longer. There is no appeal from the black bottle. Its existence is denied by all in authority. It does its work silently and surely. Horror of horrors! The bottle sometimes falls into the hands of some spiteful nurse or attendant, and then let the trouble maker beware! Or perhaps the medical schools need new material for their dissecting rooms. Again the black bottle, and a plethora of subjects results.

A great many years ago the nursing in the institution was done by convicts from the penitentiary and by women from the workhouse and the jails. Tradition says that in those days it was dangerous to be helpless in the wards with even the wealth of a few dollars. A little opium in the food, a pillow pressed down over the face or a knee squeezed into the throat, and it was all over. The legend of the black bottle may have been the result of those days. Another tradition of Bellevue is to consider every man alcoholic until he is proved innocent. This tradition dates from 1735, when the hospital was "raised" where the city hall now stands, at the expense of fifty gallons of rum, paid for by the corporation.—Harper's Weekly.

Warning to Novelists.

In prohibition states the following usual novelistic excerpts must hereafter be omitted:

"His sprits sank."

"Her beauty intoxicated him."

"As he stepped up he noticed that the ballroom was full."

"As he left the room her eyes filled up."

"She staggered and would have fallen had not a strong arm supported her."

"Her face was all lit up."

"His heart was too full for words."

"He led her to a dim corner of the ballroom, and when they came back both were smiling happily."

"He was a rum sort of a beggar," etc.—Nashville Tennesseean.

Charles I.'s Cloak.

The mayor and corporation of Shrewsbury have recently had presented to them the scarlet cloak which was worn by Charles I. on the scaffold at Whitehall. The cloak was secured by William Walcot, who was page of honor to the unhappy monarch and who was in attendance on the king at the time of his execution. The garment has been in the possession of the Walcot family for 260 years and was exhibited at the Society of Antiquities in 1861. It is in a splendid state of preservation, and, the Walcot family having presented it to the Shrewsbury town council, it is now on view in the town museum.—Dundee Advertiser.

Use Moonstones In Building.

It is estimated that more than 200,000 moonstones are carried away from Redondo beach every year, says the Los Angeles Express. Residents and visitors are allowed to lug them home in pockets and handkerchiefs, and of late teamsters have been hauling them away by the wagon loads for building purposes. Protests have been made to the city trustees, but the traffic continues. Nor does the supply of pebbles that are said to be rich in moonstones and other gems seem in the least shortened. The never resting ocean washes them in day after day, as though a boundless wealth of them lies out somewhere in the deep.

Rest and Posture.

We stand and sit too much, according to the views of Dr. Gelbke, expressed in a lecture recently delivered before a body of German physicians. Chairs may have been known to the ancients, but they were used only on extraordinary occasions. Persons of culture as well as the barbarians took their meals and their rest reclining. In discussing the subject Dr. Kruche of Munich, according to the London Globe, says that "to this day the primitive peoples prefer the reclining to the sitting posture, and the fact that they lie not upon the back, but upon the stomach, accounts for the better and more supple figures of these people."

The Collar Question.

One of the first signs of advancing years in men is the desire to have an easy and ample collar. Our humorists have dwelt on this subject in many phases, but that it is no joke is shown by the fact that during the past week two men living in the vicinity of New York have died of apoplexy when attempting to button tight collars. While the youth may choke himself if he will in order to be smart looking, let the average man of forty and upward beware. High collars and tight collars are not for him unless he chances to have a neck like an ostrich.—New York Evening World.

George Nelson of London, a cigar-maker, died at Hamilton after a lingering illness.

THE LATE JUDGE MACCALLUM.

Former Reporter Had a Caustic Wit and an Untiring Energy.

The death of but few Canadians could occasion more genuine regret than did that of Judge MacCallum, of Manitoulin, or "Archie" MacCallum, as he was better known. His friends were legion. In the days when the Conservatives were in power, "Archie," then a rural barrister practicing at Paisley, stumped the province from end to end, especially the Gaelic settlements, denouncing Tory corruption. He had an intense, fervid and quaint style of Gaelic eloquence, with the high-keyed voice of the Highland Scotsman, and much as he denounced them, his magnetism was such that even the bad and ungodly Tories liked him. Previous to that he had been a reporter on The Globe, and in the gallery of the Legislature and had won a wide acquaintanceship and popularity with the members of both parties. His alert mind and ready wit, together with his power of picturesque expression, made him welcome in any company.

Many stories have been told of him. The one related about him a few months ago of his remark, "My Gawd, are we as near to power as that?" when he got a telegram on the train that the conductor had orders to let him off at Iroquois, which was not a regular stop, is said to be Sir Wilfrid Laurier's favorite anecdote. A glimpse of his quickness on the platform may be had from a reminiscence of a joint debate up in Bruce County. His opponent closed his speech with the remark: "They tell me—of course, I do not know that it is true, but I have heard it said—that Mr. MacCallum is an applicant for a Government office."

"They tell me," said MacCallum, in his droll voice on rising—"of course I do not know that it is true—but I have heard it said that my opponent set fire to his gristmill and burned it down for the insurance." He stated rumor correctly, and the meeting broke up in great disorder.

FELLING A BIG ONE.

Graphic Description of Woodmen's Work on Forest Giant.

The cedars, in particular, reach a vast girth, comments a writer on Canada's wonderful forests of the Pacific slope. In the valley by the roadside was one with a circumference at the ground of 63 feet and nearby was another that had a Gothic arch cut through it, affording easy passage for a man on horseback. But the tallest trees are the firs. Two hundred feet is a very moderate height and some shoot up to above 300. The fall of one of the monsters when the woodsmen have cut through its base is something appalling. As the tree begins to give the sawyers hustle down from their perch and seek a safe distance. Then they look upward along the giant column and listen. "She's workin' all the time," says one.

"Yes," agrees the other, "you can hear her talkin'"; and he gives a loud cry of "Timber!" to warn any fellow laborers who may be in the neighborhood.

The creaking and snapping increase and the tree swings slowly at first, but crashes down through the forest to the earth. There is a flying of bark and broken branches and the air is filled with slow-settling dust. The men climb on the prostrate giant and walk along the broad pathway of the trunk to see how it lies. What pigmies they seem amid the mighty trees around! The ancient and lofty forest could well look down on them and despise their short-lived insignificance, yet their persistence and ingenuity are irresistible, and the woodland is doomed.

Bear Terrorized District.

There is an extraordinary large bear of the grizzly species roaming around the Squamish Valley in British Columbia. For years there have been many stories about the big brute. And of late these stories have been further supplemented by people who have actually seen the animal, and who fully confirm all that has been said about its size.

That it is an extraordinarily large animal may be judged by the fact that there are half a dozen reputable residents of the Squamish Valley who have seen the animal's tracks, and who are prepared to affirm that they were eighteen inches in length by actual measurement. A bear track is very much like the mark of a naked human foot, only broader across the toes. There are only four toes, too, on the bear's foot as compared with five on the human biped. In the case of an ordinary-sized black bear a footprint measuring nine or ten inches is about the average. But when an animal that can make an 18-inch track goes roaming around it is little wonder that few Squamish residents do much traveling around now without a rifle of heavy calibre.

Her Little Toes Cut Off.

A few days ago the discovery was made upon the death of Mlle. La Blanche, who died of injuries received while performing at the Toronto Exhibition, which showed how typically French she was. Her costume as an acrobat demanded that she wear the dainty pointed French shoes which have become so customary that the public demand them. Mlle. La Blanhe, in order that she might wear the little shoes and conform to custom, had had the little toe of each foot removed.

Humor

THEY ROPED HIM IN.

And Thereby the Business Man Was Taught a Lesson.

The business man who owns two dogs made a sad mistake a few days ago. Every Sunday he takes the dogs for a walk, and for fear that they may go astray he fastens them together with a stout rope. The little dog, he feels assured, will not lose the big dog, and he is quite positive that the big dog will not lose the little one. Of course if the big dog takes it into his massive head that he wants to go in a certain direction he is pretty apt to have his way. Luckily he is an easily persuaded animal, and the little dog by the exercise of some diplomacy gets fully as much fun out of these promenades as the big fellow.

Well, all three of the friends were out walking Sunday, the two dogs and the master, and the dogs were some distance ahead. The snow was drifted deep in places, and the master determined to turn and go back. He whistled for the dogs.

The big dog whirled around. He saw his master had stopped and instantly came full tilt toward him. The small dog was taken by surprise and for a few moments could not regain his footing. When he did he put in some tall running. They came down on the master at a stiff gallop.

As they approached their speed increased, the little dog at the end of the rope running for dear life. Just as they reached the master they separated, the little dog going around him to the right and the big dog to the left, the six feet of stout rope held taut between them.

When the master gathered himself out of the snowdrift and blew the flakes from his mouth and dug them from his ears and rescued his hat and brushed off a little of the more sticky mass, he started for home with one shivering hand grasping the rope, the dogs demurely trotting along on either side.

Hereafter he will either shorten the rope or else get behind a convenient tree the next time he whistles.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Unimportant.

The captain of a certain yacht had evinced an anxiety touching a mishap to the craft that at once attracted the attention of a fair passenger on board.

"What's the trouble, captain?" asked she.

"The fact is, ma'am," was the response, "our rudder's broken."

"Oh, I shouldn't worry about that," said the lady. "Being under the water nearly all the time, no one will notice that it's gone."—Harper's Weekly.

Fire broke out in an amusement theatre in Sydney, N.S., doing $12,000 damage.

SEIZED HIS CHANCE.

The Incident That First Brought Fame to Mr. Asquith.

The Right Hon. H. H. Asquith, now prime minister of Great Britain, was bound to distinguish himself sooner or later, even though he first became noted through what seemed mere chance. Mr. Stead in the Review of Reviews tells of this piece of "luck" which paved the way to fortune.

Mr. Asquith was the junior counsel to Sir Charles Russell, afterward lord chief justice as Lord Russell of Killowen, in the famous Parnell commission. For nine months he was immersed in the intricacies of that celebrated case. One day while snatching a hasty lunch Sir Charles told Asquith that he would have to cross examine the next witness.

"This is most absurd!" exclaimed the astonished junior. "Mr. MacDonald is the next witness, and he is one of the most important. Of course you will cross examine him!"

"No," replied Sir Charles; "I am tired. You will do it well enough."

It was no use to protest. Asquith was dismayed. He was totally unprepared. MacDonald was supposed to be a shrewd, intelligent Scotchman who would prove more than a match for the ablest cross examiner.

When Mr. Asquith rose in the court he was at his wits' end. By good fortune he put a question which was answered by the witness in a supremely silly fashion. Mr. Asquith saw at once that he could play his fish with good results. He did so, and the process was one of the most brilliant displays of skill ever witnessed at the bar. Poor Mr. MacDonald was turned inside out and held up to a scoffing world, from which he gained the title of Simple Simon.

Mr. Asquith that day established a reputation throughout the nation. He had seized his chance and made use of it.

RACE FOR THE TOURNEY CHAMPIONSHIP EXCITING

With the opening of the New Year the ten pin league race at the PBC. is becoming very close and exciting, and the indications are that the Bankers who have led the race from the opening of the league will be supplanted tonight by the Examiner A. team, who by taking three straights from the Lock Works Saturday night moved up into second place and the newspaper men are in such a strong position that the Bankers must take three games from the strong Iroquois trio tonight to retain the top rung in the percentage ladder.

Cairns was again high man for the Examiner on Saturday night, his high single, 223, being the second high for the season, and only 13 points below Martin's 236, made early in the league race.

Harry Lasheur was also in good form. LaPlant was easily the pick of the losers.

A double header will be played tonight when the Iroquois will meet the Lock Works and afterwards will take on the Bankers in a game postponed from last week.

Saturday's scores follow;

BILL CROWLEY EDMONTON'S TRAINER HERE ON VISIT

Bill Crowley is receiving the glad hand from his multitudinous friends in town. Bill is here for a couple of days on his way from Montreal to Edmonton, after witnessing the games between the westerners and the Wanderers for the Stanley Cup. He thinks Edmonton has fully as good a team as Wanderers, and with the experience they have now concerning their players could lift the cup.

The former local hockeyist has has acted as trainer for Edmonton this season, and under his guidance the team rounded into excellent condition. Mr. Crowley is thoroughly pleased with the west and thinks Edmonton is the best town in the country—that is, of course, next to Peterborough.

COBOURG AND LOCAL JUNIORS PLAY TO-NIGHT

Cobourg will play the local juniors here tonight in the first junior OHA. game of the season. The homesters although defeated in Whitby have a fast and aggressive aggregation and should stand a good chance for the district championship. Cobourg always has a speedy bunch of kids and the match can be looked forward to as one of the most interesting of the season.

A large number of enthusiasts are expected to be in attendance to see the Peterborough septette perform for the first time this season on local ice.

Wrestling Class on Wednesdays—First Events of Track and Field Club

The senior gymnasium class at the Y.M.C.A. will be open to-night and to-morrow will be boys' night. The wrestling class will be held on Wednesday night of each week instead of on Mondays and Fridays. While one night has been substituted for two, the time of instruction and practice will be longer, as the class will be conducted from 7 to 10 o'clock.

The first track events in connection with the newly organized Y.M.C.A. Track and Field Club will be held Wednesday evening. They will be the 30 yard dash and the shot put.

BUFFALO PAPERS ON MARATHON

Courier; At the sixth lap after the 18th mile Dorando left the track. After the sixth lap the Italian, who had been running strong up to that time, stopped suddenly and left the track. Longboat, who was running with his steady lope and a smile on his face, continued on around the track after his opponent had quit.

A sudden silence settled over the great crowd that filled the armory as the little Italian champion walked off the track. The crowd broke into great cheers when it became apparent that the Indian was continuing on the course.

Dorando, after leaving the track, said that he quit because his heart "went back on him." He seemed to be keeping his steady pace without trouble up to the time he left the track.

In the 19th mile Dorando tried again and again to sprint away from the Indian, but the Canadian could not be shaken off. It was the Italian's last effort. In the sixth lap he began to falter and when he neared the finish line he stopped. His trainers rushed to his support and he was led from the track.

Express; Dorando Pietri, the Italian Marathon runner, collapsed in the sixth lap of the 19th mile of the 25-mile race at the 74th Regiment Armory last night and Tom Longboat, still going strong, was the winner.

The Italian set a terrific pace from the beginning. At the end of the 18th mile the runners were more than four minutes ahead of the mark set in their New York race, in which Dorando also collapsed. The Italian tried a dozen times to gain a good lead on the Indian, but the Canadian stuck right at his heels throughout and once or twice easily took the lead.

Dorando's supreme effort came in the 19th mile, when he made a desperate attempt to shake the Indian. It was in vain and it soon became evident that the Italian had shot his bolt. In the sixth lap he began to stagger and as he reached the finish line he stopped. His trainers rushed to support him and he was led from the track.

Times; In the fourth lap of the 18th mile Dorando regained his lead over Longboat, but the Indian failed to use any energy to make up the lead. The time of the 18th mile was 1.46.04 1-3, which was a bit faster than when the two met in New York. Dorando was in the lead by about two yards.

In the 19th mile Dorando tried to shake off the Indian, but the clever Canadian would not submit. In the sixth lap the Italian's steps began to falter and when he neared the finish line he stopped. His trainers rushed to his support and he walked from the track. The race was given to Longboat. His limit of endurance seemed to have been reached.

Edmonton May Take Patched up Seven to Toronto

Ottawa, Jan. 3.—The Edmonton hockey team went on the rocks here Saturday night after the match with the Senators and as a result the team may disband and go home. They went to Montreal to-day minus Vair, Lindsay and Pitrie, who deserted and went to Renfrew Saturday night. According to Montreal advices, a couple of men have been picked up there and an effort will be made to fill the Toronto engagement.

It was known that Renfrew was after some of the Edmonton men but that the latter would "jump" was not expected. However, after the match, and during a banquet tendered the team by Hon. Frank Oliver, the three men named quickly packed their baggage and took the midnight train for the west, landing in Renfrew a few hours later. They are to play there with the Federal Leaguers.

Lester Patrick is understood to be going directly west from Montreal. If he does this only leaves four of the team which came east after the cup. There are, however, several men not signed with any team in Montreal, and these may be utilized.

Apparently the team which unsuccessfully tried to lift the Stanley Cup has gone to pieces, and only the real Edmonton men will return home. The development will do a lot to kill hockey in the west.

OF INTEREST

Seven years ago a leading English authority declared that China had no newspapers except those started and controlled by foreigners. Today there are over 200 native journals.

Peking boasts a very prosperous daily, started, edited and managed by women for women. A printing press is now on its way to Lhasa. The Government affords every facility for the distribution of periodicals, and collects subscriptions through the post for certain favored sheets. The Viceroys, the rulers of the provinces, are encouraging and feeding the newborn national appetite for news. The Viceroys of Manchuria has opened a hall in the main street of Mukden, and has engaged a literary man, whose sole business is to read the newspapers and expound them to all who will listen. Walking through the back streets of Peking you will come every now and then upon a man chanting aloud to the assembled crowd. He is not a priest, but a newsman reading the day's papers to those who cannot afford to buy them or who do not know how to read.

The Chinese newspaper usually takes one or two forms. It is either printed on one side only on very thin paper—like the India paper editions of books at home—or it is printed on both sides of thicker paper. The latter is considered more up to date. One popular organ, which lies before me as I write, consists of three blanket sheets, three feet six inches long by two feet wide. Each sheet contains eight pages of closely set Chinese ideographs. There is a good supply of foreign telegrams, Reuter's service being freely used. Leaders, articles on all manner of subjects, native and foreign, and a number of minute and dainty line drawings occupy most of the space.

The advertisements speak even more eloquently than the text of the change that has come over China. Yesterday John Chinaman believed that the world was flat. Today globes showing the latest discoveries in geography are prominently offered for sale in nearly every paper. European dress, musical instruments, and dummy arms for school boys are given well displayed notices, and you are shown sketches of the young Chinaman minus his pigtail and dressed in Western garments.

Several British manufacturers advertise their wares, and the British and American medicine vendors seem specially active. A well known emulsion of cod liver oil rivals the display of a London made solution of malt. Insurance companies, rubber waterproofs, American watches and American dental machinery all declare their merits. These appear, be it noted, in a paper printed solely in Chinese, and managed altogether by Chinamen.

Other journals, while giving the bulk of the matter in Chinese, have several columns printed in English. English tongue is becoming more and more the lingua franca of the Far East. If you read the English columns, you will see, that apart from cable news, their main matter consists of exhortations to the people to reform. Here is an article denouncing the binding of the feet of women and praising up a young wife who committed suicide rather than continue the practice. Another article demands the reason why full representative government has been delayed; a third urges the people to send their children to school. An English editor wrote to a friend of mine a few days ago, asking him to describe the movement that some thought would lead to the awakening of China. My friend replied, "My dear sir, you are three years too late. China has been wide awake these three years past." These journals bear out the statement.

Let me not convey the impression, however, that the contents of the papers are wholly good. A great deal of very crude stuff is to be found in many of them. Young men who have obtained a superficial education in Tokio return home and attempt to make the press a promoter of revolt. Some Japanese have obtained power on the native press, which is often used in a way that may well cause alarm. Racial wars are freely preached.

I have no wish to dwell on this point but one cannot forget the harm that has been done by the misstatements over a recent massacre and by the publication of the "Chinese Slavery" cartoons in the Japanese controlled press around Shanghai. Probably the political zealots in London who drew these lying and abominable political slanders on the countrymen little imagined that they would be thus used to fan the flame of anti-foreign hate in China.

Most Chinese are entirely friendly to England, and this friendliness is, I believe, on the increase. But it is not universal. The anti-foreign spirit still lingers in some quarters, and may still display itself in dreadful forms. A few weeks ago at an examination in Paoting-fu, the pupils were asked what was their greatest desire. Forty of them replied; "To have the blood of every foreigner here drained before us."

JOURNALISM INVESTIGATED.

Last year the excesses of the native press led the Chinese Government to take action. A distinguished taotai (high commissioner), was sent to England to study journalism, and a former minister of Russia was called upon to advise. The newspapers formulated a series of demands, and were supported by Prince Tsu, who is in favor of liberty of the press. The papers asked for no preferential treatment to official organs, lower postal, telegraphic rates, freedom to report official proceedings, and the right to trial before suppression.

The new regulations which were put into force last May, ignored these demands and established a rigid official control. The regulations concern only the journals under native proprietors, but any foreign owned paper that offends against them can be excluded from the mails.

The publishers, printers and editors of papers must now be over 30 years of age, sound of brain, and persons who have never been imprisoned. They must deposit security to the amount of $75 for each paper, unless it is educational, artistic or statistical. A copy of each issue must be sent to the local Magistrate and to the Board of Civil Affairs in Peking.

One regulation provides for the correction of errors. "Corrections" or protests against mis-statements must be published in the next issue. In case the number of words used in the letter or correction is more than twice the number of words used in the original statement a fee at half the ordinary advertisement rate may be charged."

The provision against the publication of secret State intelligence are drastic. Those who print matters against the throne, disturbing to the peace of the public, or tending to the degradation of the customs are liable to imprisonment for not less than six months or more than two years. Temporary suspension is to be the fate of the papers that publish secret diplomatic intelligence.

These regulations are not intended to be a dead letter. One wellknown newspaper owner, Hong Kai Sing,—known to Europeans as Mr K S Thompson—was recently sentenced to a long term of imprisonment for quoting an article from a revolutionary organ. It is said that another was flogged to death last year.

The Chinese Government has for some time contemplated starting organs of its own, or obtaining such control over some foreign papers as will insure its side being fully heard in case of international disputes. Here it is to be hoped that it will pause before committing itself. The officially subsidized paper is soon found out and is useless when discovered. The best way to obtain full publicity for the official side of the case is not by crude bribery but by giving full facilities to a responsible press.

Chinese journalism is only at its beginning, but this beginning is the most wonderful the world has ever seen. The press shares with the telegraph and the railway place among the three great forces that are transforming Cathay.—F. A. McKenzie, in the London Daily Mail.

ROSE IS BROUGHT BACK TO TORONTO

Jail-Breaker Tells of Escape and Subsequent Wanderings.

Toronto, Jan. 5.—Alexander Rose is once more in Toronto Jail. He arrived in the city last night, having been brought from Huntington, W. Va., where he was serving a term of twenty-seven days for carrying a dirk knife.

He says that the lock in the jail corridor which was the first step in the escape was picked by a key found in the cell, which was left by a previous prisoner. He says that he, with Jones, who is now in Newcastle, Pa., having been arrested in Williamson, W. Va., and Clarke cleared from the jail at 2.30 o'clock and struck for Little York on a King street car.

That night they rode blind bagggage to Blackwater Junction, and thence on to Peterboro. Then in a like manner they made Montreal on Sunday afternoon. They stayed there a few hours, and afterwards proceeded to Boston, having lost Clarke in a chase by the police in Montreal.

A few days later they returned to Montreal, thence to North Bay, where they worked a week and came down to Allandale and Georgetown to Guelph, and thence on to Sarnia and across the line to Port Huron, Detroit and Toledo, and on to Columbus, O., Portsmouth, and Huntingdon.

After Rose's arrest, Jones, who, with Rose, had committed a number of burglaries at Huntington, went on to Williamson, where he was employed as a waiter in a Y.M.C.A. until arrested and brought to Huntington, just as Rose was being taken away.

While in jail at Huntington, Rose made an attempt to escape, and had got through one door when discovered.

Rose says that he expects a life sentence.

FATHER TRIES TO CUT HIS THROAT

Richard Forhan Prevented by His Children From Committing Suicide.

Guelph, Jan. 5.—Richard Forhan, a resident of the York road, just beyond Guelph's city limits, caused a good deal of excitement Sunday afternoon in the vicinity of his home.

He is the father of a large family, principally young girls. Sunday the girls stopped some passers-by, stating that their father had a razor and was going to cut his throat. The man was walking hurriedly across a field near his home, with three of his daughters hanging on his arms and crying to him to give them his razor, stating that they would not leave him till he did.

Ald. George Penford and Thomas Hewer and some other well-known citizens who happened to be driving past, were accosted by the man's frightened children, and some of them helped them to dissuade Forhan from his intention.

EIGHT OLD ALDERMEN AND FOUR NEW ONES IN THE COUNCIL OF 1909

Messrs. Hicks, Duffus, Metheral and Duncan the Newly Elected Aldermen--Ald. Gillespie Heads the Polls—All the By-Laws Defeated---Three of the Old Members Re-elected to Board of Education.

When Mayor Rush meets his Council of 1909 at the inaugural meeting next Monday there will be four new faces around the aldermanic board, two of last year's Council having retired and two having been defeated in yesterday's election. However, two of the new ones are not strangers in local civic circles, both Ald. Hicks and Ald. Duncan having served in the Council several terms. The other two new aldermen are Messrs. Duffus and Metheral. The defeated candidates who sat in the council last year are Messrs. Robert Neill and George Elliott.

If one compares the election figures this year with those of 1908 it will be easily seen that the vote polled yesterday was not nearly so large as that polled a year ago. Election day of 1909 will be remembered as the quietest in the city for some time past. This lack of interest is attributed to the fact that there was no Mayoralty contest this year as compared with the fight in 1908 between Mayor Rush and ex-Mayor R. F. McWilliams.

In the contest for members of the Board of Education all of last year's members with the exception of Mr. W. S. Robinson—namely, Robert Fair, Dr. Morrison and B. F. Ackerman were re-elected. Mr. E. F. Mason will take Mr. Robinson's place. The defeated candidates besides Mr. Robinson were Drs. E. V. Frederick and M. McClelland, and Mr. Wm Madill.

That the by-laws submitted were in no way favored by the ratepayers is evidenced by the fact that in each polling subdivision they were strongly voted down. In each instance the majority against them was a big one. The three by-laws were;—

Smith street bridge, a by-law to provide for the borrowing of $49,000 for the construction of a new bridge at Smith street.

Exhibition Grounds, a by-law to provide for the borrowing of $39,000 for the purchase of the exhibition grounds.

Street extensions, a by-law to provide for the borrowing of $21 500 for the filling in of the water front and the extension of streets.

In the aldermanic contest, Alderman Gillespie headed the polls, with Alderman Morgan a close second. Both these gentlemen are residents of Ashburnham, and in both polling divisions in the East Ward they polled large votes.

AN EFFICIENT COUNCIL.

A glance over the personnel of the new Council would indicate that the municipal affairs of Peterborough will be in capable hands for the coming year. The new aldermen struck a good average, Ald. Hicks, Duffus, Metheral and Duncan being elected in fourth, seventh, ninth and twelfth places respectively.

As has been before remarked the interest this year was not as great as that of last year when the Mayoralty almost aroused the excitement of a political campaign. Nevertheless there was considerable interest displayed by the citizens to know the results of the voting, and when only two or three places had been heard from the 'phones at the Review office commenced to ring and kept fairly busy until the final result became generally known. Most of the returns were in comparatively early, division No. 4 having the ballots counted sooner than any other. The Council Chamber was the polling place for this division. The first actual returns received were from No. 4 at about 5.09 announcing that the Exhibition By-law had been opposed by a vote of 29 against it and 8 for it. This pretty well guaged the sentiment of the ratepayers as a whole in regard to the by-law, and in fact, the other two were not held in much more favor, the only one to get a majority in any division being the by-law for street extension.

THE BULLETINS.

As is usual at municipal and provincial elections, the Review's service was prompt and accurate and in the returns came from the entire city at the earliest possible time. Owing to the fact that there was no contest for mayor, and as a consequence the election was deprived of its greatest element of public interest. No lantern slides were used but the returns were posted on the big bulletin boards used by this office for such occasions and the result was quite satisfactory to those anxious to know the standing of the different candidates and as the figures from the various polling places were being bulletined there was much speculation as to what nominees for aldermanic honors would be elected and the twelve with the greatest number of votes—the twelve that was to compose Peterborough's Council for 1909.

Quite a few expressions of surprise were heard as the adverse numbers for the by-laws came in. In division ten the Exhibition grounds by-law found a particularly small number of supporters, only ten votes being cast for it as against 164 registered against it.

THE HIGHEST VOTES.

The largest numbers of votes in the aldermanic contest that was polled in any one division was given Ald. Morgan in No. 14, Ashburnham, where he secured 157. Ald. Morrow was next in No. 8, with 148.

In the voting for the Board of Education Dr. Morrison had the greatest number for one polling place, getting 116 in No. 8, and Mr. Fair was second with 109 in the same polling place.

Who headed the polls yesterday.

LATEST CABLE AND TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

Kaiser Economizing.

Berlin, Jan. 5.—It is reported in court circles that the Emperor has issue instructions to the officers of the household for greater economy. The Emperor intends to travel less and live in a simpler manner this year. The reports that the Emperor desires to sell some of his castles is confirmed. The Emperor has fifty-two provincial residences, some of which he has never even visited. The projected economics are undertaken because recent events have rendered this an inopportune time to ask the Prussian Parliament for an increase in the allowances to the Emperor as King of Prussia. The empire itself makes no grants for the maintenance of the Emperor and his family.

Autos May Now Cross.

Niagara Falls, Jan. 5.—An order was received yesterday by the Canadian customs officials raising the embargo on automobiles crossing the bridges into the Dominion from the United States, which have been excluded for the past two months on account of the foot and mouth disease.

This will greatly affect trade between the two cities for the better, and merchants on both sides of the river will now be able to deliver goods by auto in the two cities. Automobiles are the only vehicles now permitted to enter, and the first went over the upper bridge ten minutes after the order was received.

Changes In Quebec.

Montreal, Jan. 5.—It is semi-officially announced that the Hon. Adelarde Turgeon will leave the Quebec Government next week and be appointed president of the Legislative Council, and that his place in the Cabinet will be taken by Sir George Garneau, mayor of Quebec, an able business man and a graduate of the University of Laval.

Wife Returned to Find Him Dead.

Temagami Station, Ont., Jan. 5.—Joe Turner of Temagami was found by his wife dead at about four o'clock on Saturday morning. A 30.30 rifle lay by his side and from appearances it would seem was premeditated suicide.

The deceased was a son of John Turner, who keeps a boarding-house at Bear Island, well known to tourists. He leaves a wife and six children. A dance was held on New Year's Day at his father's house, and the deceased and his wife returned to their home just before daybreak, he then asked his wife to go back again and bring a sleigh he had left. On her return he was dead.

Edward to Visit Berlin.

London, Jan. 5.—The Standard's Berlin correspondent says that King Edward and Queen Alexandra certainly will visit Emperor William at Berlin in February, and probably will be tendered an elaborate state reception and other entertainments. Feb. 9 is given as the probable date of the visit.

Sir Hugh Graham's Gift.

Montreal, Jan. 5.—The announcement is made that the donor of $10,000 to the children's memorial hospital is Sir Hugh Graham. Funds subscribed amount to $27,000, which is enough to complete the building under construction.

Sixteen British Tars Drowned.

Sydney, N.S.W., Jan. 5.—The pinnance of the British cruiser Encounter was sunk in a collision with a collier here yesterday. Sixteen of the sailors were drowned.

U.S. Anti-Gambling Laws.

Albany, Jan. 5.—Newspapers will be prohibited from publishing betting odds on horse races if a bill to be introduced by Senator Agnew of New York becomes law.

Roosevelt and Congress.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 5.—President Roosevelt yesterday transmitted to the House of Representatives a special message in reply to a resolution adopted by the House some weeks ago, calling upon the President for data relative to his reference in his annual message to the attitude of the House in refusing to make an appropriation to be used in secret service work for the various Government departments.

The President says he made no reflections on Congress, as was complained, nor did he intend to, as he has not only always deprecated but vigorously resented, the practice of indiscriminate attack upon Congress.

Roasted to Death.

Fort William, Jan. 5.—Two men who crawled into the C.P.R. power house to sleep on top of the boilers discovered a body which has been identified as that of Edward Williams, a native of Glasgow. It was lying on a hot boiler with the head on coal, and the flesh cooked, peeling off on touch.

Bishop to Visit In Quebec.

London, Jan. 5.—Bishop Ingram of Sierra-Leone is arranging a tour of the world on behalf of the Church Missionary Society, whereof he is one of the secretaries. He first visits Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Que., where he spent his school days.

Want to Join Toronto.

Toronto, Jan. 5.—A new application from Wychwood and Bracondale, for power to be annexed to the city, was filed with the Railway and Municipal Board yesterday.

What Milner Did.

London, Jan. 5.—The Sunday Observer thinks Lord Milner found imperial sentiment weakening in Canada and arrested its decline.

Dauphin School Fire.

Winnipeg, Jan. 5.—Dauphin No. 1 school, which contained four rooms of public school and four of collegiate, was burned down yesterday morning. The fire started from the furnace, and owing to the extreme cold the brigade was hampered, but the citizens lent aid.

The children, 500 in number, however, had been splendidly drilled, and carried through the fire drill exercise with precision that all of the rooms were emptied in a few minutes. The loss is $12,000, and insurance $8,000.

French Elections.

Paris, Jan. 5.—The results of the the French elections yesterday for members of the Chamber of Deputies show that the Radicals and Radical-Socialists have made net gains of 15 seats. The Socialist-Independents gained two and the Conservatives one seat, while the Progressists lost 18. The election has been a victory for the Government and particularly for the Radicals.

Twenty-four deputies, including Mm. Ribot, Maujan and Baubin, were elected to the Senate.

May Succeed Senator Bernier.

Ottawa, Jan. 5.—A recent visitor to the city has been Horace Chevrier, ex-M.P.P., who left for Toronto Sunday. Mr. Chevrier's name is being mentioned in connection with the vacancy in the Upper House, caused by the death of Senator Bernier. The names of J. E. Cyr, ex-M.P. for Provencher, recently appointed an immigration officer in France, is also being mentioned in the same connection.

Blizzard In West.

Winnipeg, Jan. 5.—A fierce snowstorm, which is paralysing street car and other traffic, is raging and the weather is unusually cold for such a blizzard. The thermometer is standing at 18 degrees below zero.

RELIEVING SUFFERERS

United States Votes $800,000 to Earthquake Victims.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Bountiful provision for the earthquake sufferers of Italy was made by the Congress yesterday by unanimous vote. In the House there was vigorous hand-clapping as the bill carrying the appropriation was sent on its way. The munificent sum of $800,000 was granted almost immediately after the reception in both Houses of a message from the President calling attention to the calamity and the pressing need for aid for the stricken people of a sister nation.

President Roosevelt will sign the bill, making it effective, probably today.

No aid so generous was ever extended to a sticken people by this Government before. The legislators anticipating the President's message, and filled with a sympathetic desire to lend their votes to any proposition which would bring relief, were early in their seats and prepared to take immediate action.

The American National Red Cross has collected over $330,000.

Russians' Gallant Aid.

Messina, Jan. 5.—Praises of the Russians are on every lip. They hesitated before no danger, digging under tottering walls or entering the unsafest shells when asked to do so by some frantic woman who had not lost all hope that husband or child was still alive.

Here and there the correspondent encountered salvage parties digging at the instance of some distracted woman who imagined she heard a voice, but usually there was no answer to the pathetic call. One party was trying to dig out a girl whose crying could be heard plainly, but as the correspondent watched there was a sudden cave-in and thereafter silence.

In many places bloated and decomposing arms and legs protruded from heaps of masonry and plaster.

Curious Quake Freaks.

Curious freaks of the earthquake were to be observed. Standing walls had fallen out, exposing one tier of rooms above another, in which nothing seemed to have been disturbed. Pictures hang straight on the walls, dishes were on the tables and vases and flowers on mantles. One place two buzzards, their beaks full of carion, were sunning themselves on a window ledge over the dead body of a woman whose wealth of black hair covered her face and shoulders. Dogs and cats were killed by the soldiers whenever caught feeding on the dead. The buildings that best resisted the shock were those of the old palace, and now the prefecture, and the archbishop's palace, where ten of the inmates lost their lives.

Although the air in Messina is heavy with the stench with putrifying bodies, several groups of Sicilians sit camped out in the cleared places of the city and obstinately refuse the invitation of the authorities to move away. The survivors of the disaster are so tired and worn out that they are quite incapable of describing their experiences lucidly, but the accounts of all agree that the devastation was accomplished in less than one minute.

HAINS SPEAKS IN OWN BEHALF

Thornton Jenkins Hains on the Stand for Over Four Hours.

Flushing, N.Y., Jan. 5.—Taking the stand in his own defence, Thornton Jenkins Hains, for over four hours yesterday related with a wealth of detail the story of the shooting of William E. Annis and of the conjugal troubles of Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., that counsel asserts caused the mental unbalancing of the army officer and led to the killing of the publisher on sight. When court adjourned last night Hains direct examination had not been concluded and he will likely be on the witness stand all to-day.

Thornton Hains told his story in snappy, crisp sentences, that fell from his lips as soon as his counsel had completed his interrogation. He showed no signs of nervouaness and at time during the trial illustrated his brother's expressions and appearance when speaking of his wife's conduct, with dramatic inflection of voice and facial expression.

The defendant declared that when he went to Bayside to look at real estate on Aug. 15 he had no idea that his brother was armed, and that he did not know that Annis was at the yacht club. He told the jury that all the shots had been fired by Capt. Hains before he rushed to the float to protect his brother from John Tonning, the boatman, and the club members, whom, he said, he thought would harm the captain. Thornton Hains denied that he pointed a revolver at Mrs. Annis. The defendant stated that he had no idea how many shots Capt. Hains had fired, and when Charles Roberts, a club member, picked up the revolver, and the muzzle of the weapon pointed at him, he drew his own gun and told Roberts not to shoot.

District Attorney Darrin said he would probably take all day to-day to cross-examine the defendant.

TUESDAY, JAN. 5, 1909.

THE SUPREMACY OF CHRIST

To-night there will be held in St. Andrew's church the second meeting of the week of prayer. The subject of prayer will be "The Supremacy of Christ in Business Life." The singleness of purpose the sublime principles and the unostentatious sacrifice involved in the life and death of Christ are so alien to what is known as business in the well-known phrase, "Business is Business," that it would seem impossible to reconcile them. Not that a business man cannot be a Christian in the fullest and noblest sense but merely that to become so, he must fight against unusual odds. The stress of competition and the consequent fierce struggle for commercial existence are more apt to bring mankind down hard to the basic rock of human necessity and pitilessness than to infuse into it a spirit of purity and love. Sincerity however, is the basis of all true success. No matter what men do if they mean well they stand excused. So must it be in all phases of life, business or otherwise. Those who mean Christ as He is, not as they may make Him cannot go far astray in any walk of life or at any time. Sincerity is the touchstone. "Seek and ye SHALL find," no doubt, refers to this fact.

"THE WHITE CHRIST"

It is alleged that theology is narrow and unrelenting, that it is an attempt to make an exact science of criticism backed by Biblical sanction. It is alleged that a theological critic who can appeal not to common facts as the ordinary scientist does but to infallible scripture as the source and warrant of his inspiration, necessarily overrides what is known in scientific circles as the search after the principles that underly human life and material conditions. It is for this reason that the great novelists are the leading moralists. "The White Christ" is aimed at the great evil of the day. It is the author says, "A protest against that part of western civilization, the lust of wealth and power, which is crushing our religion, morality and truth." Why is it that the forces already arrayed against materialism have failed to withstand its onrush? Because they themselves have become largely materialistic. The argument is irresistible that such is the case. Kipling, Caine and all that noble band of great singers and writers, come to the rescue like Richard, of the Lion-heart, just at the critical moment, and defeat the forces of materialism so far as they tend to the overthrow of the "moral and religious" forces. Law became a "strictum jus" or narrow system of legalism in which the letter of the law ruled. An age of reason rose up and threw off that mantle. Today it is the "very right and justice of the case," that is sought for. So must it be with theology. When it becomes a "strictum jus" its usefulness cease. The stronger underlying necessities of humanity will demand a reform. The historian of deeds and misdeeds brings together in focus the inconsistent of narrowness and above all the inefficacy of the plan that ignores the primal virtues in favor of sectarian theories and theological pinpoints. The master-mind of Hall Caine flowing from his master-heart bears down upon the wreckage of human weakness and clears it away. He infuses a great and noble spirit into the age. The influence of such men bears witness to its fitness and strength.

TURNER DISCOVERIES

Mystery has ever attached to the name of Joseph Mallord William Turner, who was born the son of a barber in Maiden-lane, Covent Garden, and died fifty-seven years ago in a house which may still be seen on the Thames Embankment at Chelsea.

Surprise has followed surprise from the moment that he died with the words "The sun is God," on his lips to Monday, when visitors to the National Gallery saw, for the first time, some forty-seven of his water-color drawings and oil pictures which have for years been hidden away, unknown to everyone of this generation, at Trafalgar Square.

Some three years ago Londoners were startled by the news that a score of Turner's pictures, some of them being among his finest and most characteristic achievements, had been found at Trafalgar Square and were to be hung in the Tate Gallery, where they have long been on view.

But the latest discovery affords one of the most remarkable chapters in the romantic history of art. Indeed, it was quite by chance that the newly-exhibited water-color drawings came to light at all.

About a year ago it was found necessary to transform the room which contained the Eastlake Library into the Director's private room, and the bookcases were taken down and removed to a larger room on the other side of the passage which communicates with the private offices attached to the Gallery. Mr. Hawes Turner, the Keeper and Secretary, found to his astonishment at the back of one of the bookcases a large portfolio, which, on examination, was seen to contain the water-colors which have in the last two days been placed on screens in the Turner Room (Room XXII.) at Trafalgar Square.

The director, Sir Charles Holroyd, whose energy, initiative and wise discrimination have brought about such important not to say epoch-making changes at the gallery in the two or three years he has held office has had these water-colors suitably mounted. They have been very slightly cleaned by the use of bread only, and no retouching has been necessary. Considering that Turner's water-color of "Heidelberg, with Rainbow" was sold at Christie's in the Holland sale last June for £4,410 and his oil painting of "Mortlake Terrace" fetched over £13,000, one wonders what price would have had to be paid for the contents of this portfolio if it had been put up as one "lot" at public auction in London, with all its contents accurately catalogued.

But this is not all. A further Turner "find" has to be recorded. One of the store-rooms was not long ago "explored" and a mysterious bundle wrapped up in brown paper and tied with string, was brought to light. This precious parcel which bore Ruskin's initials, contained a few crinkled panels of mahogany veneer, apparently of no importance, artistic or otherwise. The director, however, needed but a few minutes to see that he held in his hands some precious oil-paintings by "the one man who saw nature in its relation and subjection to the human soul."

These pictures have been mounted on mahogany panels by Mr. Morrill, the "liner" to the gallery, and have been restored by Mr. Buttery, the official cleaner, who has merely had to remove the dirt and never a few accidental damages.

They are now all hung together on a screen and have been labelled:

"A Town on the Thames."

"Eton from the River."

"Newark Abbey."

"A Wide Valley with a Tower and Spire."

"Windsor Castle from the River."

The finest of all perhaps is "Windsor Castle from the Meadows." There are five more of these "hidden treasures" painted in oil, and all hang on this or adjoining screens.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Toronto cannot be so "beastly partisan," as some allege when it can elect a Grit Mayor by the biggest majority on the biggest vote ever polled there.

For a people so largely illegitimately married, Canadians are more tolerant than they are usually given credit for, when it comes to voting money for humanity in suffering.

Charity funds are always in order. The T.A.S. propose increasing theirs at this midwinter season by devoting the proceeds of a lecture on Rome by Rev. Dr. O'Brien on Friday night to the earthquake sufferers. It is said that Charity is Love. It is certainly the evidence of it.

"Several days ago some of Alderman McLaren's friends discovered evidences of an organized effort among workers in the opposite camp to circulate falsehoods damaging to Alderman McLaren's personal reputation. This campaign of slander was so very quietly carried on that it was difficult for a time to get hold of any direct evidence. But such evidence was at length obtained. Enough was learned to show that certain workers for Alderman Bailey had been instructed to tell damaging stories about Alderman McLaren, 'where they would do most good,' women voters being the ones whom it was designed especially to influence in this despicable way. It is probable that, whatever may be the result of the election on Monday, actions for slander will be brought against the rascals who are thus attempting to smirch the reputation of a man who, whatever may be thought of the public record, is in personal character the peer of any candidate now seeking the suffrages of the electors.

The Herald does not for a moment suspect that this sort of dirty work is done with Alderman Bailey's knowledge or consent. But he has some peculiarly slimy knaves working for him—creatures of the Huckle stamp, who ought to be put where Huckle is."—The Hamilton Herald.

This sort of blackguardism is not unknown in other places.

OF INTEREST

No stouter blow at creed subscription has been struck within recent years than that just delivered by Professor Denney in his latest book,—"Jesus and the Gospel; Christianity Justified in the Mind of Christ." Hodder and Stoughton, 10s. 6d.—says the Glasgow Herald in a leading article.

"During the last generation all kinds of evasions of an antiquated doctrinal authority have been adopted or suggested, in the shape of Declaratory Acts and ingeniously devised formulas of subscription; but Presbyterianism still has its confessional Old Man of the Sea clinging about its neck, obstructing its freedom and impairing its efficiency if not threatening to strangle it altogether.

"But the claims to intellectual liberty of the emancipated modern mind grow more and more irresistible every day; it is safe to say that, in spite of all the barriers to fellowship in work and worship that are raised by the doctrinal standards to which most churches still hold themselves bound, there is spreading apace in the general heart the conviction of a deep underlying Christian unity, which sooner or later must come to realization. Discussions on the subject of creed revision and creed revision and creed subscription usually proceed on the assumption that all that is needed with a view to liberty of thought and a larger Christian fellowship is a curtailing and simplifying of the doctrinal symbols;

"In this country some voices have been heard of late suggesting a return to the Nicene Creed; and in connection with the union negotiations that have taken place in Australia between Presbyterians and Episcopalians this ancient formula has been practically accepted as a suitable basis for a united church. But the idea of a return to Nicaea, as Professor Denney very properly points out, however plausible it may superficially appear, will hardly bear looking into by those who appreciate the real situation of modern Christianity. The Westminster Confession, for example, contains everything that is found in the Nicene Creed, and what it contains in addition has much more Christian value, as having a much closer correspondence to Christian experience, than what is most distinctive in the creed of Nicaea. The Nicene Christology is a puzzle for metaphysicians; while the Westminster Confession, in its fundamental teaching, really does appeal to the Christian consciousness, because it gathers up the fruits of a great return to New Testament Christianity. It stands for justification by faith, for the authority of the Word of God as contained in Scripture, for the liberties of the Christian conscience.

"But what the churches really need according to Dr Denney is not a shorter creed of either the Nicene or the Westminster type, but something radically different—not a doctrinal symbol, but an honest declaration of faith made in the simple language of religion; and so he has had the boldness to offer in about a dozen words an affirmation of essential Christian minds might find themselves at one in making. Dr Deney's plea for the total abolition of creed subscription, as well as the grounds on which he places it are certain to be keenly canvassed and criticised," concludes the Glasgow Herald. "But coming as it does from a theologian of high repute who holds a responsible position in one of the great Presbyterian churches it must be regarded as a significant sign of the times."

Dr Denney is Professor of New Testament Language, Literature and Theology in the United Free Church College, Glasgow, and here is this "Affirmation of Essential Christianity,"

"I believe in God through
Jesus Christ His only Son, Our Lord and Saviour."

It is contained in what the Glasgow Herald reviewer says is "in many respects the most striking part of the book—the author's indication in the scope of about forty pages, of the bearing of his whole argument and proof of the religious conditions of the present time. Professor Denney makes use of his conclusions to vindicate what may be described as Evangelical Broad Churchism. The findings he has arrived at are entirely favorable to those who stand in the line of historical Christianity in respect of the supreme place it has always given to Jesus in its living faith. On the other hand, he insists that Broad Churchism is in the right against a dogmatic Evangelical Christianity which has not learned to distinguish between its religious faith and those inherited symbolic forms with which it is usually identified.

FAITHS OUR PROBLEMS.

"Faith, he maintains, must be free to raise its own problems and work out its own solutions, and no intellectual construction of the meaning of Christ's presence and work in the world can properly be imposed beforehand as a law of faith or a condition of membership in the Church. The intellectual questions which Christianity raises should be left for the unbiased consideration of Christian intelligence. The answers to these questions cannot be lifted from any quarter—not even from the New Testament itself. The apostles help us by inspiring in us an intellectual interest in the Gospel answering to their own, not by imposing their thoughts authoritatively upon us as a law to our faith.

NON-ESSENTIALS OF CHURCH MEMBERSHIP.

"Such matters, accordingly, as the Virgin birth, the consubstantiality of the Son with the Father, the personality of the Holy Spirit, while they will always be legitimate and even necessary subjects for Christian inquiry and speculation, cannot find a rightful place in the Christian profession that should constitute membership and qualify for office in the Church. And the 'Formula Concordiae' or symbol of faith and unity which the modern Church requires might all be expressed, Professor Denney believes, in the brief affirmation. I believe in God through Jesus Christ His only Son, our Lord and Saviour."

THE INEVITABLE ISSUE.

The reviewer pays a high tribute to Dr. Denney's book; and points out the issue of the discussion thus:—"This latest book from Dr. Denny's pen will do more than sustain his reputation. It proves his power to grapple, not merely with certain great doctrines of the Christian faith, but with Christianity itself considered in its very essence as the historical revelation of God in Christ. It shows his skill in disentangling faith from dogma, the essential from the non-essential, and his readiness to stake all the ventures of faith upon the historical Jesus. Above all, it testifies to his courage in pointing, as he does, without any hesitation, to this as the inevitable corollary of the whole discussion—that the Church must be bound neither by Christological metaphysics nor theories of the work of Christ, but must be absolutely free in its consideration of all the doctrinal questions that present themselves to the inquiring intellect, while not less absolutely loyal in its attitude to Christ Himself, and in its sense of His unique place as determining all the relations into which we come both with God and with our fellow-men.—Public Opinion.

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER

The Secret of a Famous Healing Balm

The re-discovery of a secret that has lain hidden in the dust of 20 centuries is an event full of fascinating interest, and the story of Zam-Buk, the world famed first aid and skin cure will always enlist attention. Zam-Buk is the virtual descendant of those wonderful and mysterious herbal balms by the use of which the comely athletes of Ancient Greece and the stalwart gladiators of Rome ensured the healthiness and ready healing of their skin.

Many are the attempts that were made to produce a perfect balm for the skin, but only in Zam-Buk has this ideal been realised. Since its discovery Zam-Buk has been welcomed in mansion and cottage and the people of two hemispheres realised that they have been placed in possession of an absolutely unique cure for skin complaints.

The reasons for this triumph of science are simple and few. Taking a lesson from the Ancients, the proprietors of Zam-Buk first of all wisely decided that the ideal balm must be purely herbal and contain not the slightest trace of rancid animal fats or poisonous minerals. Thus Zam-Buk is made solely from rich and pure essences obtained from certain rare medicinal herbs. These juices and extracts are prepared and refined by ingenious scientific processes and then so skilfully blended that a unique, effective and yet perfectly natural preparation for dispelling skin diseases is secured.

Zam-Buk has an affinity for the human skin such as no ordinary ointment or liniment can possibly possess. Besides soothing pain and allaying irritation, it possesses unique antiseptic and germicidal qualities which virtually chase disease germs out of their hiding places in the skin tissues, at the same time it purifies the pores and invigorates the natural functions of the skin in a way that no other preparation can.

Zam-Buk solves in a perfect manner the problem of always having handy at home or at one's work an ever-ready and reliable first aid for cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, lacerations, scratches, etc. Zam-Buk is without equal for eczema, ulcers, piles, bad leg, ringworm, scalp sores, festering sores, sprains, stiffness, poisoned wounds of all kinds, face sores, chafing, chapped hands, cold sores, frost-bites, sore feet, diseased ankles, and all itching, irritation and inflammation.

Zam-Buk is a daily need in every household and is sold by all druggists and stores at fifty cents a box. Refuse harmful and dangerous substitutes sometimes "pushed" as being "just as good."

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD

Wolfe's Birthday.

London, Jan. 5.—Wolfe's birthday was celebrated at his birthplace, Westerham, on Saturday, when Beckles Willson said many of thes present had very little idea how great was the fame of Westerham, but if any Westerham man went into the backwoods of Canada, he would have a great reception. Another speaker said Wolfe was one of the greatest of Englishmen, and who had effected by a single daring stroke more perhaps in the way of future results than any other national hero.

Two Burn to Death.

Coldwater, Jan. 5.—Two brothers, Wm. and Louis Warriner, aged 19 and 22, respectively, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed a log camp in the Township of Matchedash.

The young men were cutting wood in the vicinity and boarding themselves. On Thursday night they went to a farm house for milk and left again about ten o'clock for their camp. This was the last seen of them alive.

Will Defy Whirlpool.

Niagara Falls, Jan. 5.—Percy Webber, chemist, working in Niagara Falls, N.Y., said last night he would brave the turbulent waters of the whirlpool in a canoe which he is constructing. The features of the canoe will be an air tank which will buoy the canoe up, and special steering apparatus which he says will enable him to successfully pass through the rocky whirlpool.

Pitched Battle.

San Diego, Cal., Jan. 5.—Advices just received from Mecagrande, forty miles from here, tell of a pitched battle thirty miles from here between a gang of cattle rustlers and members of a vigilance committee. Two Mexicans, an Indian and a white man, all members of the band, were shot and killed, and one vigilante was seriously wounded.

Two Killed; Twenty Hurt.

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 5.—An engineer and fireman were killed and twenty others were hurt yesterday when a passenger train and a freight train on the 'Frisco collided head-on.

Yuan Shi Kai Dismissal.

Pekin, Jan. 5.—Two days have passed since the dismissal from office of Yuan Shi Kai, the great Chinese statesman, who was a member of the grand council, and it is still impossible to determine the future course of the Chinese Government or its inner composition. The palace continues an enigma.

An edict issued yesterday relieves Na Tung, successor to Yuan Shi Kai, of some of his minor duties for the purpose of enabling him to discharge his new responsibilities. But the developments are not sufficient to disclose the administration's plan, and it is believed that if any plan exists knowledge of it is confined to only two persons in addition to the prince regent.

Riots in India.

Calcutta, Jan. 5.—The prohibition by the police in deference to Hindu feelings of Mohammedan sacrifices of cows Sunday led to serious riots at Titteghur, just outside Calcutta.

Troops were summoned from Barrackpur to quell the trouble and were compelled to fire upon the rioters, several of whom were killed and sixty seriously injured. Two hundred arrests were made.

Thaw Trial Echo.

White Plains, N.Y., Jan. 5.—Counsel for Mrs. Wm. Thaw, Harry Thaw's mother, obtained from Supreme Court Justice Tompkins yesterday a writ of habeas corpus compelling the Matteawan Asylum authorities to produce Harry Thaw before that justice at Nyack next Saturday. Mrs. Thaw's contention is that Thaw is not a criminal, having been acquitted by a jury, and that he is now sane.

Banker Shoots Himself.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 5.—Henry C. Potter, Jr., of this city, vice-president of the People's State Savings Bank of this city, committed suicide at his home yesterday.

Mr. Potter had been suffering from nervous prostration for some time.

Mr. Potter killed himself with a revolver.

A Peterboro Man.

Peterboro, Jan. 5.—S. H. Pearson, who was arrested yesterday morning in Pittsburg, Pa., and held on a charge of wounding Jacob Knoedler, came from Smith Township, near Buckhorn. His father's name was Frank Pearson. Pearson and his wife visited here a short time ago.

Montreal Man Honored.

Paris, Jan. 5.—M. Chouillon, president of the French Chamber of Commerce at Montreal, has been made a member of the Legion of Honor.

J. W. Leonard Very Ill.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—Alarming reports have been quietly given out at the home of J. W. Leonard, assistant general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, about his condition. Mr. Leonard is suffering from diabetes and though several of the most prominent physicians of the east have been called into consultation, his chances of recovery are despaired of.

Collection For Sufferers.

Montreal, Jan. 4.—Acting upon instructions received from Archbishop Bruchesi, now abroad, the administrator of the archdiocese, has asked that a collection be taken up in all the churches next Sunday in aid of the sufferers in Italy.

Tribesmen Loot Town.

Teheran, Jan. 4.—Serious disturbances have occurred at Ispahan, which lies 210 miles south of Teheran. Bakhtiari tribesmen have penetrated the town. Indiscriminate looting followed, with severe fighting and loss of life.

Local Option Bylaws Carried in Twenty Municipalities.

Temperance Measures Are Sustained in 17 Places and Defeated in 23—Beck Power Scheme Is Accepted in Twenty Towns and Rejected in Three—Brantford, Thamesville and Kingsville Refuse It.

Toronto, Jan. 5.—In 20 municipalities yesterday, including Stratford, where the Hydro-Electric power bylaw was resubmitted, the Beck cheap Niagara power policy was adopted by majorities varying from the unanimous voice of Windsor to less emphatic but not less conclusive verdicts elsewhere.

The only defeats recorded are at Thamesville and Kingsville, places which do not affect the scheme as a whole.

The main result of the voting yesterday is to settle the question, as Hon. Adam Beck states, of building a power transmission line to Windsor.

The Windsor division, from London westwards, now includes Glencoe, Bothwell, Chatham and Dresden, which is off the main line; Amherstburg, Elmira, Leamington, Ridgetown, Essex, Norwich, Sandwich, Tilbury, Comber, West Lorne, Port Stanley and Windsor, which will also soon be joined by Walkerville.

Brantford, on the Guelph division, is associated with Kingsville and Thamesville in rejecting the power policy.

The London division is complete now, with the addition of Tillsonburg to London, St. Thomas, Ingersoll and Woodstock.

The Guelph division is practically complete, as Brantford can be economically sidetracked in transmitting power to Preston, Hespeler, Guelph, Waterloo, Berlin, New Hamburg, Stratford and St. Mary's.

Carried—Amherstburg, majority six; Bothwell, large majority; Chatham, majority 468; Comber, 84 to 7; Dresden, —. Dundas, large majority; Elmira, 240 to 23; Essex, 326 to 35; Glencoe, —; Leamington, almost unanimous; Norwich, large majority; Port Stanley, —; Ridgetown, large majority; Sandwich, —; Simcoe, —; Stratford, majority 100; Tilbury, 164 to 17; Tillsonburg, majority 255; West Lorne, 171 to 18; Windsor, unanimously.

Defeated—Brantford, increased expenditure bylaw; Kingsville, by 26 votes; Thamesville, small majority.

One of the most general campaigns under the Ontario local option law was held throughout the province yesterday. Ninety bylaws were submitted.

Definite returns from sixty-one municipalities showed that local option had carried in 20 places with 45 licenses. It was sustained against repeal votes in 17, and defeated in 23 places. In ten of these there was a majority for the bylaw, but not the necessary three-fifths.

The most notable contest was that at Owen Sound, both sides regarding it as the key to the situation. The bylaw carried three years ago by a majority of 476. The effort to secure its repeal yesterday cut down the previous majority to 193. As the repeal votes are on a simple majority local option was sustained.

At Woodstock local option was defeated most emphatically. Every ward went against it. There were 847 votes for and 1,050 against, a majority against of 203.

Carried 20—Tweed, Bowmanville, Wellington, Havelock, Boone Township, Wyoming, Iroquois, Seneca Township, Sydney Township, Thurlow Township, Yonge, Ashfield, Athens, Paradoc, Escott, Hiller, Middleton Township, Orillia Township.

Sustained 17—Owen Sound, Markham Township, Stouffville, Southampton, Pickering, Amabel, Gainsboro, Hepworth, Tara, Whitchurch, Beamsville, Vaughan, Richmond Hill, Grimsby, North Oxford, Euphemia, Hope, Peel Township, Thornbury.

Lost 23.—Hagerman Township, Madoc, Whitby Township, Woodstock, Aylmer, Lucknow, Hepworth, Point Edward, Forest, Blandford Township, Oso, Ridgetown, Morrisburg, Goderich, Trenton, Ingersoll, Tillsonburg, Caledonia, Camboro, Glencoe, Alnwick Township, Elgin and Gunthyn, Kennebec.

Reduction 2—St. Catharines and Smith's Falls.

Repealed—Courtright.

Hamilton, Jan. 5.—The people of Hamilton have declared in favor of joining the Hydro-Electric power project. Yesterday they elected a Hydro-Electric mayor and 12 aldermen to support him, the council, counting the mayor, standing 13 to 9 in favor of the Hydro-Electric project.

Year For Assault.

London, Jan. 5.—George Cook, the St. Thomas blacksmith, who so brutally assaulted his sister, while visiting her over Christmas, was sentenced to one year in the Central Prison by Magistrate Love yesterday.

Grade Crossing Tragedy.

Phillipsburg, N.J., Jan. 5.—Dr. and Mrs. N. O. Carhart, while out driving, were run down by a railroad train. Mrs. Carhart was killed. Her husband had both legs and arms fractured.

Cawthra Mulock's appointment to the Senate is predicted in Ottawa.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of 379 sheep and lambs sold at firmer prices. Export ewes sold at $3.25 to $3.60; lambs, $5.50 to $6.15 per cwt.

Hogs.

Gunns, Limited, report hogs firmer, at $6.25 for selects, fed and watered, and $6 to drovers at country points, f.o.b. cars.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 4.—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 2 were 2177 cattle, 893 sheep and lambs, 2600 hogs and 132 calves, while the supply for local consumption this morning consisted of 1200 cattle, 500 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 100 calves. Owing to the unfavorable weather for this season of the year for keeping stock, and the big increase in the supply of cattle, the undertone to the market was easy, but prices showed no actual decline as compared with those of a week ago. There was a fair number of buyers present, including some from Quebec and Ottawa, but as most of our local butchers and jobbers had ample stock on hand, trade was rather slow, and the indications were that some would be carried over for a later market in the week. Cable advices from Liverpool reported trade fair, with prices firm at last week's advance, but this fact did not seem to influence local exporters any, as there was no demand from them. Sales of choice Ontario cattle were made at 5c; choice northwest range at 4¾c; good at 4¼c to 4½c; fair, 3½c to 4c; common at 3¼c to 3½c, and inferior at 1½c to 2½c per pound. Supplies of sheep and lambs were small, and in consequence the undertone to the market was firm, and prices showed no change from a week ago. The demand was fairly good for local consumption, and sales of choice lots of sheep were made at 4¼c to 4½c, and culls at 3½c to 3¾c, while choice lots of lambs sold at 5¾c to 6c, and good at 5¼c to 5½c per pound.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for hogs, and prices since last Wednesday show an advance of 25 cents per 100 pounds. This is attributed to the small supply that has been coming forward of late, and, as packers were somewhat short of supplies, the demand today was active, and the competition between the buyers keener than usual; therefore a good trade was done, and sales of selected lots were made freely at $6.75, $6.90 and $7 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

THEATRICAL

The Cowboy Girl.

A good company, picturesque scenery, a melodramatic plot, some vocal and revolver music—shake it up and you have "The Cowboy Girl." This play of the west was given at the Grand Opera House last night and made a decided hit with the big audience. Lue Marshall as "Gyp" Clyde, appeared in the name part and to excellent advantage. She was given good support by the large cast.

Something of a departure in melodrama was introduced in the musical numbers, which were featured by the singing members of the company and an attractive and well drilled chorus of six. Some of the song hits were; "He Treated Me White," "Whistling" and the typical Indian number "Napanee."

"The Cowboy Girl's" a good show and deserves to play to good business all along the route.

Park St. Baptist

The literary evening at the Park street Baptist church was one of the most enjoyable of its kind given this season. The main feature of the evening was an address on "A trip to the Holy Land" given by Mr E. M. Matthews. Mr Matthews gave a very graphic description of that interesting country and all felt indebted to him for his kindness in coming.

Miss Ethel Hill and a male quartette consisting of Messrs Green, Miller, Dawson, and Fraser, also assisted in adding pleasure to the occasion. There was a large crowd present.

The next address will be given by Mr Elcome, on "Happy times, and how to make them," on Feb 1.

COMING TO THE GRAND

San Toy a Comic Opera That Has Won International Favor

"San Toy," undoubtedly one of the most popular international musical comedies that has ever been produced on this continent, will be the offering at the Grand Opera House. It will be presented by the Imperial Opera Company, which has achieved such success during the phenomenal run for four and a half months at the Royal Alexandra Theatre in Toronto.

"San Toy" is the medium that brought James T. Powers to the front rank of stellar lights and made him a favorite in New York. The book is by Edward Morton and the music by Sidney Jones. When produced in London and New York its musical comedy established new records by the length of its engagements and the phenomenal business accorded it. The members of the Imperial Opera Company are well suited to the various roles, both lyric and comic.

There are a number of musical gems in the score, which, since the original production have become immensely popular, among which might be mentioned the following: "We'll Keep the Feast in Pynka Pong." "The Mandarin," "A Posy from Over the Sea" "Six Little Wives" "It's Nice to be a Boy Sometimes," "The Lady's Maid," "Love has come from Lotus Land" "When You are Wed to Me" "Samee Games" "A Little Bit of Fun," "Rhoda and Her Pagoda" "Tommy Atkins," "I Mean to Introduce It into China" "Pretty Little Chinee" "The Little China Maid" and "Chinee Soger Man"

"San Toy" is blessed with an interesting and at the same time amusing plot. The story has to do with San Toy, daughter of Yen-How, a mandarin of the first-class. She is noted throughout the land for her beauty and her accomplishments. This fact coming to the ears of the ears of the Emperor causes that worthy to send an order to Yen-How that his daughter shall be sent forthwith to Pekin to become one of the court bodyguard, a band of women. Yen-How has, however, an entirely different future mapped out for the daughter, and decides to disguise her as a boy, and send word to Pekin that he has a son but no daughter.

San Toy is given to the care of Sir Bingo Preston and his family, and Bobbie, Sir Bingo's son, is teaching the little Oriental the English language, falls desperately in love with her, proposes, and is accepted. Fo-Hop is also in love with San-Toy, but his case is hopeless and when she tells him she is in love with the young Englishman Fo-Hop swears vengeance. Li, the secretary, of Yen-How, is despatched with the message to the Emperor advising him that Yen's How's daughter is a son but after starting on his journey word is received by Yen-How to send San-Toy to Pekin at once under penalty of being cut up into a thousand pieces if he refuse. Yen decides to send San Toy and she arrives ahead of Li. This complicates matters terribly, as when Li appears unadvised of San Toy's arrival he delivers his message and almost his head the latter being saved only through the indemnity of San Toy. Everything ends happily, as it should, in musical comedy and they all live to love ever after.

Among the many offers received by Tom Flanagan for the services of the famous Indian is one from Cole Bros. Circus. They want him to take an Indian part for a period of thirty weeks from April to November.

Another offer was received from the manager of the "Through Death Valley" Company, which is playing at the Majestic this week. He would get $300 a week as an actor—but can he act? Imagine Tom spelling off a yarn or giving soft talk to the heroine.—Toronto News.

PRESENTATION AT ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

The Girls' Guild met at All Saints' church last evening and presented Miss Cotton, the retiring president, with a very handsome pearl brooch-pin. Miss Cotton is leaving for Albany, NY, where she will go into a nurses' training school.

The address was read by Miss Clara Cairns, while the presentation was made by Miss Duggan. During the four years of her residence here, Miss Cotton has endeared herself to all who has been a valued member of All Saints' and of the Guild from from the presidency of which she is now withdrawing.

The following is the address:

All Saints' Church,
Peterborough, Jan 4, '09

Dear Miss Cotton,—

It was with extreme regret that the members of the Girls' Guild and the Sunday School learned of your intention to leave Peterborough, though it was to enable you to take up the work with the sick to which you felt called. During the four years you have been with us, you have been a most diligent and devoted worker in All Saints' church, and an example and inspiration to the rest of us. We ask you to accept this pin as a token of our thanks to you for all you have done, and assure you that you carry away the esteem and love of all the church workers with whom you have come in contact. We shall do our utmost to see that the work you did as President of the Girls' Guild and as teacher of the Senior Girls' Bible Class will be continued. Our prayers will go with you that God will bless "your goings out and your comings in," and lead you into ways of pleasantness. We wish you every contentment in your new work and every prosperity in life, and hope the remembrances you carry away with you from All Saints' church will in some measure be a help to you in days of sunshine or of clouds, if such should come.

Signed—
Julia Sabin.

SUGGESTIVE LITERATURE

Members of Anglican Association Would Curb its Sale.

Ottawa, Jan. 5.—A deputation of the Anglican Association of Ottawa, consisting of Rev. Canon Kittson, Rev. A. W. MacKay, Rev. J. M. Snowdon, Rev. J. F. Gorman, and Col. Irwin, waited upon the Minister of Customs yesterday and asked that he give instructions that the law governing the importation of immoral and suggestive literature should be better enforced. Incidentally, the problem of how to prevent production in Canada of plays with immoral tendencies was also discussed.

Mr. Paterson promised that he would take action requested so far as literature in question is concerned. The law regarding theatrical posters is already being enforced, and has been responsible for non-appearance on Canadian billboards of worst features of sensational lithographs.

Censorship of plays is not a matter which could in any way come under the surveillance of the Customs Department. That is a matter which must be left to local authorities of cities in which such plays are produced, and to a great extent to newspapers in warning their readers against plays which have a malevolent influence.

WARNE DRUG COMPANY, LTD.

Has Been Incorporated With a Large Capitalization

One of the recent signs of progressiveness on the part of our business men is the change that has taken place in the firm known as Warne Bros., the cut rate patent medicine store. The business has lately been incorporated as a joint stock company, under the name of the Warne Drug Company, Limited, and the scope of the business has been enlarged so as to include the filling of prescriptions and the handling of everything to be found in a fully equipped modern drug store.

Mr. S. N. Ridley, of St. Thomas, graduate of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, and who has also taken a course at the St. Louis College of Pharmacy, is in charge of the prescription and drug department, and as he has had about ten years' experience in the retail drug trade, this department is in capable hands.

The new company commence with a display space in the Review to-day, and our readers attention is directed to their introductory advertisement.

PHILLIPS DISAPPOINTED IN STANLEY CUP GAMES

When Tom Phillips left Montreal for Toronto he was one of the most disappointed players who have ever come east on a challenging team says the Montreal Gazette. Phillips honestly believed that Edmonton was good enough to win the cup. In fact, his private opinion was that it was one of the best teams ever brought together, and given a little more time for practice he felt confident even after the series was over, that they would have won out.

Phillips in his career won a strong claim to being the greatest forward player in the game; certainly it would be hard to think up a wing man in the last five years who had it on the Kenora boy. When he came east with Edmonton he was combining business with pleasure, and as far as the pleasure goes the trip was a disappointment.

To intimate friends Phillips confessed that he intended to quit hockey with this cup series, and his hope was that his career as a player would end in a blaze of glory. However, as events turned out, the Kenora man was crippled in the first half of the first game, and the one point to which he can look back with satisfaction is that in his last game of hockey he gave a display of gameness never surpassed on a Montreal rink.

It was wrongly surmised that Phillips was not in good condition. As a matter of fact his own opinion, and he was a good judge and an honest one was that he was never in better physical condition in his life. He was noted as fond of cigarettes in his old days in Montreal but prior to the present cup series Phillips, in an effort to make himself fit and ready for the game with Wanderers, cut the cigarettes out for over five weeks. His gameness in continuing through that first game with a bone just above his ankle fractured, was appreciated by everyone who knew the Kenora man for the sturdy player he is. It was a big disappointment to him to be forced to lay off from the second game, but he philosophically remarked that after all he was better off than McNamara, who with a sprained muscle suffered an injury likely to prove much more troublesome.

Phillips is interested in a shingle mill in Vancouver and he thinks it will prove a big success. He is enthusiastic over the West, and will get back to Vancouver just as smartly as he can. He has probably played his last game of hockey, and the general ones a player admired and liked in every part of Canada.

SHAKEUP IN THE STANDING IN THE P.B.C. TOURNAMENT

Three games were played in the ten pin league series at the P.B.C. yesterday and as a result there have been several changes in the standing of the teams.

In the afternoon the Pacifics took two games from the Frontenacs and thus strengthened their hold on third place, while the Iroquois won two from the Lock Works and dropped two to the Bankers and are now a good fourth in the league race.

The Bankers double victory puts them back in a position where they are tied with the Examiner A for the top of the percentage ladder.

LOCAL JUNIORS DEFEAT COBOURG BY 10-6 IN THE OPENING GAME OF YEAR

The local juniors surprised the fans by the clever form they showed last night in their game with Cobourg. The score was 10—6, and at half time 2—2, showing the decidedly strong showing of the locals in the second half when they took quite a revival and played around the septette from the lake town. The ice was not in condition conducive to hockey of the fastest kind but nevertheless, the exhibition was a good one and the crowd was interested from beginning to end. The crowd was not a large one, probably the election having the effect of taking so much of the general interest. However, in view of the class shown by the youngsters a big audience should be on hand to see the match with Port Hope here on Wednesday night.

The star of last night's game was undoubtedly Charley Ray. He played a pretty and effective game and serpentined his way through all sorts of opposition. Giroux, Wade and Fox all played splendid games on the defence and this division of the team was most effective. Pratt made his debut by playing at right wing and made good. He is a nice stick handler and shoots well.

Doheny, at centre, for Cobourg, was fast and aggressive. He was the star goal tender of last year's St. Michael's College seven. Guy at cover, and Gliddon, at right wing, were also very effective. The latter is a crack shot and secured three of Cobourg's goals.

The exhibition was a clean one. Mr. George Lynch gave every satisfaction as referee.

It was nearly 8.50 when Referee Lynch lined up the teams. For the first few minutes the rubber travelled up and down the ice and both goals were assaulted in turn. After seven minutes of fast hockey, Gliddon score for Cobourg on a combined rush with Doheny.

Score 1-0.

It took Ray four minutes to even up matters. Short bored in a hard one from the side which Reynolds stopped but Ray poked it through.

Score 1-1.

The boys from the lake shore took the lead again when Guy fitted one in from centre which bounded off Wade's stick into the nets.

Niles was benched for two minutes for tripping Short, after the latter had made a nice dodging rush through the Cobourg team. Pentland and Ray worked another rush the latter scoring, time ten minutes.

Score 2-2 which it remained at till half time.

The locals when they came out after the rest, seemed to play with more snap and vim than they did during the first period and it took them only a minute to jump into the lead from which they were never headed, Ray doing the trick by placing a back hander in the nets.

Eleven minutes elapsed before the next goal was secured and during that period some very fast hockey was played by both teams. Short scored the goal on a shot from the side. Score 4-2.

Gliddon got the next for Cobourg in seven minutes.

Ray carried the rubber from behind his own goal through the entire Cobourg team for the next score, time three minutes.

Cobourg pressed hard but L. Giroux in the flag for the locals was too much for them. Wade relieved by a nice dash up the ice and C. Giroux poked the rubber through from a scrimmage in front of the Cobourg cage. Score 6-3.

The goal was disputed and Umpire Parnell removed.

It just took the kids a minute to get the next, C. Giroux doing the trick. Score 7-3.

Gliddon notched one for the visitors in thirty seconds. Score 7-4.

From a face-off near the Cobourg citadel the disc was passed back to Ray who again planted one behind Reynolds. Score 8-4.

Ray secured the rubber from the face-off and dodging the entire visiting seven added another to the locals' string. Score 9-4 Time 30 seconds.

Wade, Short and Giroux combined nicely and the latter tallied again for the local seven. Score 10-4.

Gliddon and Fox were benched for mixing it up. Crawther secured another counter for the visitors before time was called, making the final score, 10-5.

The teams lined up as follows:

PETERBOROUGH—

PETERBORO' BEAT OTTAWA Y.M.C.A.

Local Boys Were Leading at Half Time But Were Outplayed in Last Half

After being behind at half time in their basketball game with the local Y.M.C.A. the famous Brownie team of Peterborough, so completely overplayed their opponents in the second period of the game that they were able to retire victors by the handsome margin of 59 to 42, thereby accomplishing a feat, that of defeating the local team on their own floor, which has only been achieved once during past seven years.

Although the "Y's" were not at full strength the visitors deserve every credit for their win, they played good snappy ball, and had a good combination. The Y's lacked condition, which accounts for their falling away in the second half, and their combination was not all that could be desired.

In the first half the Y's had easily the best of the play, Woodland doing some good shooting, while Neelin also was able to locate the basket. At the other end Cressman talked several pretty baskets.

The second half was practically all Peterborough, and they registered basket after basket in quick succession, and though the locals rallied they could not reduce the visitors' lead, and they had to retire beaten after a strenuous game.

The winners all played well, and it would be hard to pick out any particular star, they all having a share in the victory; Woodland and Neelin were the pick of the losers. Mr. B. McGiffin handled the whistle in a very satisfactory manner.

THE RING

Los Angeles, Cal, Jan. 4.—James J. Jeffries, former heavy weight champion, said last night that J. J. Corbett would have an easy time defeating the new champion, Jack Johnston, provided Corbett could stand the training necessary.

Asked if he thought that Corbett was in earnest in saying that he would fight Johnston, the retired champion replied that he did not think that he was.

"Johnston does not class with men like Corbett or Fitzsimmons," said he. He would have no show to beat either of them if they could get back half the form they showed when they held the title. Corbett is not too old to train again and might be able to get into condition to show some of his old time form. If he did, Johnston could not warm him up."

APPLES, ORANGES FIGS AND PRUNES

The God-given Cure for All Diseases of Bowels, Liver, Kidneys and Skin.

Few people seem to realize how important—how absolutely necessary—it is to keep the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin in proper working order.

They wonder why they have Sallow Complexions — Indigestion — Headaches—Rheumatism — while all the time their systems are clogged and poisoned with waste tissue and indigestible food which these organs should have removed.

What they need are Fruit Juices—nature's provision for keeping the eliminating machinery of the body working right. "Fruit-a-tives" are the concentrated juices of fresh, ripe fruits, combined in such a way that their medicinal action is greatly intensified. They stimulate and regulate the action of Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and Skin, thus clearing the system of the accumulated waste and poison, purifying the blood, and banishing those distressing troubles that make life miserable.

No other remedy has ever been discovered that does this so effectively as "Fruit-a-tives." 50c. a box — 6 boxes for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

WHITTY GETS ALL THE BLAME

For Edmonton's Failure to Take Cup From Wanderers

Fred. Whitcroft was deposed from management and captaincy of the Stanley Cup challengers after the first game. His place was taken by Lester Patrick. The officers of the club who went east with the team did not think very much of Whitty's headwork. They put their failure to land the cup down to bad management pure and simple.—Mail and Empire.

CURE IT IN ONE DAY

Coughs and Colds Disappear Like Magic When Hyomei is Used

If the thousands of people who suffer from hacking coughs and agonizing colds would arouse themselves sufficiently to follow this advice, they would cease to complain within 24 hours.

Here is the advice, if you take it and you are afterwards sorry that you did, it won't cost you a penny.

Go to Wm. Madill the druggist, and purchase from him a Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) outfit. It will only cost you $1.00. Take it home; use it according to directions and if it does not cure your cough or cold, take it back and he will refund the purchase price.

Mrs. I Coon, of John street, Acton, Ont. says: "I had a welling come near my eyes which was caused by the catarrhal conditions. I had to cough up the bad impurities that dropped into my throat and it felt as if a hard cold had attacked me, right in my head, nose and glands near. A week's treatment of Hyomei overcame my trouble. I am glad to endorse Hyomei."

When you use Hyomei you don't swallow nauseating drugs. You simply breathe in the soothing, pleasant and antiseptic Hyomei air through the little pocket inhaler that comes with each outfit. As this medicated air passes over the inflamed parts, relief comes almost at once and cure follows.
